RECORD OF PROCEEDINGS
IN THE
DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES FOR THE
WESTERN DISTRICT OF KENTUCKY
IN THE ABOVE ENTITLED CAUSE

BILL OF COMPLAINT

(Filed February 17, 1936)

The caption, listing all defendants, and "Exhibit A," listing their shareholdings and alleged assessments, are omitted.

I

The National Bank of Kentucky is a national banking association organized under the laws of the United States, commonly known as the National Bank Act, and is domiciled at Louisville, Jefferson County, in the Western District of Kentucky.

II

Said Bank was closed by resolution of its Board of Directors on the 16th day of November, 1930.

III

Thereafter on November 17, 1930, the Comptroller of the Currency of the United States, being satisfied from information on file in his bureau, that said National Bank of Kentucky located in the City of Louisville, County of Jefferson and State of Kentucky, was insolvent and unable to pay its just and legal debts, and in pursuance of the power and authority vested in him by law and under the provisions of Section 1 of the Acts of Congress,—"An act authorizing the appointment of receivers for national banks and other purposes," approved June 30, 1876, appointed Paul C. Keyes Receiver of said National Bank of Kentucky with all the powers, duties and responsibilities given to or imposed upon a Receiver under the provisions of the Revised Statutes of the United States which authorize the appointment of a receiver. Said Paul C. Keyes thereupon duly qualified and entered upon the duties of his office as such receiver and took possession of all of the books, records and assets of said Bank and continued in the possession and control thereof as such Receiver until December 15, 1932, on which date he resigned. Thereafter on December 15, 1932, F. G. Awalt, then acting Comptroller of the Currency pursuant to the power and authority vested in him by law as aforesaid, appointed the plaintiff, A. M. Anderson, Receiver of said National Bank of Kentucky with all the powers, duties and responsibilities given to or imposed upon a receiver under the provisions of the Revised Statutes of the United States which authorize the appointment of a receiver, and the said plaintiff forthwith qualified and thereupon entered upon the duties of his office as such Receiver, took possession of all of the books, records and assets of said Bank. Plaintiff still is in the possession and control thereof as such Receiver and is still the duly appointed, qualified and acting Receiver of said The National Bank of Kentucky.

IV

This is a suit of a civil nature in equity brought by the plaintiff as receiver of an insolvent national bank. As such receiver he is an officer of the United States. This suit arises under the constitution and laws of the United States for the enforcement of a liability imposed by the laws of the United States and is brought in performance of his official duties. This is a case for winding up the affairs of a national banking association.

This suit is brought in equity for the reason that the plaintiff does not have an adequate remedy at law because an accounting is necessary and prayed for herein to determine the proportionate part of the aggregate liability claimed against the defendants named herein for which each individual is severally liable and to determine the credit to which the defendants may be entitled, if any, by reason of the collections made by the plaintiff on account of the statutory liability hereinafter set forth. The matters set forth herein involve complicated interests and degrees of interest among approximately six thousand stockholders of BancoKentucky Company hereinafter described and to require the plaintiff to proceed at law would involve several thousand independent actions in which the defendants and all of said stockholders have a common interest. The equitable determination in one action of the questions of common interest will avoid a multiplicity of suits and circuity of actions and the unreasonable expense of thousands of separate suits which would dissipate the trust fund herein sought to be recovered for the benefit of creditors of said Bank, and unless the plaintiff is granted the relief in equity as prayed for herein, he will suffer irreparable damage and injury.

On account of all of which the plaintiff has no adequate remedy at law and this court has jurisdiction of this suit.

The defendants are named in the caption hereof and the names of said defendants are incorporated in the body of this complaint by reference to the caption hereof, the same as if fully set forth herein and are not repeated to prevent unduly encumbering the record.

The individual defendants are citizens and residents of the State of Kentucky and the Western District of Kentucky.

The corporate defendants are either corporations organized and existing under the laws of the State of Kentucky or are corporations organized and existing under the laws of other states which have qualified to do business in the State of Kentucky and are engaged in business therein.

Certain defendants are sued in a representative capacity, as fully set forth in the caption incorporated herein by reference thereto, and as such are residents of the Western District of Kentucky and said defendants are acting in said representative capacity at the present time and proof of claim properly verified for the amounts due him, as hereinafter set out, have been filed with each of said representatives and payment of same has been demanded of each of said defendants and plaintiff states that the claims herein sued on are a just demand against said respective estates, and have never been paid and that there is no offset or discount against same or any usury therein.

VI

On or about the 20th day of February, 1931, J. W. Pole, as the Comptroller of the Currency of the United States, upon an accounting by Paul C. Keyes as Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky, and upon a valuation of the uncollected assets of said Bank remaining in the hands of Paul C. Keyes as Receiver, found to the satisfaction of the Comptroller of the Currency that in order to pay the debts of the National Bank of Kentucky, it was necessary to enforce the individual liability of the stockholders thereof to the extent hereinafter mentioned as prescribed by Sections 5151 and 5234 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, Section 1c156, Act of June 30, 1876 and Section 23, Act approved December 23, 1913 known as the Federal Reserve Act, and said Comptroller of the Currency, by virtue of the authority vested in him by law, did therefore levy and make an assessment and requisition upon the shareholders of said The National Bank of Kentucky for $4,000,000.00, to be paid by them on or before the First day of April, 1931, and did make demand upon each and every one of them for the par value of each and every share of the capital stock of said association held or owned by them respectively, at the time of its failure; and said Comptroller of the Currency did thereupon direct the Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky to take all necessary proceedings by suit or otherwise to enforce the individual liability of said shareholders.

VII

At the time of the closing of the National Bank of Kentucky, it had issued and outstanding 40,000 shares of capital stock of the par value of $100 each, and 39,820 of said shares were held by Henry Vogt, Thomas J. Minary, Stewart E. Duncan, Allen P. Dodd, Charles H. Bohmer and Ben J. Metcalfe, as Trustees under a certain trust agreement dated April 22, 1927, entered into between the owners and holders of the capital stock of the National Bank of Kentucky and the owners and holders of the capital stock of the Louisville Trust Company. At the time of the closing of the National Bank of Kentucky, in addition to the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky, the above mentioned Trustees held under the same trust agreement 17,235 shares of the capital stock of the Louisville Trust Company.

VIII

Pursuant to the terms of said trust agreement, the above mentioned trustees issued to each stockholder of the National Bank of Kentucky and to each stockholder of the Louisville Trust Company whose stock was deposited with said trustees, a transferable Trustees Participation Certificate having a par value of $100 in lieu of each share of stock of the bank or trust company having a par value of $100. Said Trustees Participation Certificate certified that the holder was the owner of shares of stock of the par value of $100 each, of the indivisible trust estate consisting of the shares of the capital stock of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company and of any other corporation acquired by the trustees under the agreement between the stockholders of said institutions previously described. This certificate was issued under the terms of the aforesaid agreement and the holder thereof, by accepting the same, consented to and adopted the terms of the certificate and the terms of the agreement, as if fully written in said certificate.

Subsequent to April 22, 1927, each share of the trust estate having a par value of $100 per share, was divided into ten shares of the trust estate, each having a par value of $10.00 per share but except for the change in par value, said Trustees Participation Certificates remained unchanged and were issued under and subject to the trust agreement dated April 22, 1927.

Each Trustees Participation Certificate having a par value of $10.00 represented .0697923 of a share of the capital stock of the National Bank of Kentucky, having a par value of $100 per share.

IX

Each and every Trustees Participation Certificate contained on the face thereof a statement that it was issued pursuant to the trust agreement of April 22, 1927 which was recited to be on file with said National Bank of Kentucky and each and every Trustees Participation Certificate contained on its face the further agreement assented to by the holder thereof and reading as follows:

"This certificate is issued under the terms of the aforesaid agreement and the holder hereof by accepting same, consents to and adopts said terms as if fully written herein."

One of the terms of said trust agreement of April 22, 1927 to which the above assent was given by the holders of Trustees Participation Certificates, read as follows: -

"(1) The Trustees shall not be responsible for any acts done by them as Trustees in good faith and in the exercise of an honest judgment. No Trustee shall be liable for the act or omission of another Trustee.

"(2) They shall not be liable, except as Trustees to the extent of the Trust funds held by them by reason of the ownership of stock in any corporation. They shall be indemnified against any such liability by each holder of Trustees' Participation Certificates to the extent hereinafter set forth.

"(3) Each owner of a Trustees' Participation Certificate issued hereunder shall be subject to the same liability thereon as he would have been subject to in case he had been the owner of record of such proportionate part of the shares held by the Trustees in any corporation as the number of shares called for by his Trustees' Participation Certificate bears to the whole number of shares covered by all outstanding Trustees' Participation Certificates; and to such extent he shall indemnify and hold harmless the Trustees owning such stock from any loss or liability on account of being the holders or owners thereof. The measure of liability assumed hereunder shall be the same as that provided by law with reference to the holders of stock in any particular corporation in which the Trustees may hold stock as is provided by law with reference to the holders of such stock, and no more."

At the time of the closing of the National Bank of Kentucky as aforesaid, there were issued and outstanding 570,550 shares of the trust estate having a par value of $10.00 per share, and said shares represented 39,820 shares of the capital stock of the National Bank of Kentucky having a par value of $100 per share.

XI

On or about July 19, 1929 the officers and directors of the National Bank of Kentucky and the officers and directors of the Louisville Trust Company and the Trustees under the trust agreement of April 22, 1927, proposed to the holders of said Trustees Participation shares of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company, that the two banks and the business conducted by them should be reorganized by adding to this group a third corporation which said officers, directors and trustees represented would make the operations of these banking institutions more profitable, and expand their facilities for the profit of the shareholders of said banks. The plan of reorganization proposed by the officers and directors of the two banks and approved by formal resolutions of the trustees under the trust agreement of April 22, 1927 was to organize under the laws of the State of Delaware, a holding corporation to be known as the BancoKentucky Company, with an authorized capital of 2,000,000 shares having a par value of $10 each and to exchange the stock of this holding corporation for stock of the bank, represented by the Trustees Participation Certificates on the basis of two shares of the stock of said holding corporation, the BancoKentucky Company, for each Participation share.

The Trustees Participation shareholders were advised that it was an essential part of the plan that the shares of this holding corporation, the BancoKentucky Company (or at least a substantial majority thereof) be owned by the Trustees Participation shareholders and that it be managed and operated by the boards of directors and officers of the two banks. The holders of 570,550 shares of the trust estate approved and adopted the plan above described and the holders of 540,384 shares of the trust estate representing 37714.6422 shares of stock of the National Bank of Kentucky exchanged their Trustees Participation Certificates which represented the stock of National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company, for 1,080,768 shares of the holding company, BancoKentucky, which shares continued thereafter to represent the holders' interest in said bank stock,

XII

Pursuant to the above described plan, the holders of the Trustees Participation shares representing approximately 95% of the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company, caused said holding corporation to be organized as their agency and instrumentality, for their own use and enrichment and in furtherance of a scheme to engage in unlawful acts and to enable them through said corporate agency and instrumentality unlawfully to acquire, own, hold, control and operate a group of state and national banks and trust companies contrary to and in defiance of the meaning, spirit and intent of the laws of the United States and of the Commonwealth of Kentucky and other states relating to the ownership, operation and supervision of banks and trust companies.

Accordingly said holding corporation, the BancoKentucky Company was incorporated under the laws of the State of Delaware on July 16, 1929 with an authorized capital of 2,000,000 shares of common stock of the par value of $10 each for the alleged purposes set forth in its articles of incorporation as follows:

"The acquiring by purchase or otherwise of all or any portion of the capital stock, property, assets and franchises of any or all corporations transacting business in any state of the United States; the purchasing, holding, selling, assigning, transferring, mortgaging, pledging or otherwise disposing of shares of the capital stock of or any bonds, securities or evidence of indebtedness created by or issued by any other corporation or corporations organized under the laws of any State of the United States or of any foreign country and while the owner thereof to exercise all the rights, powers and privileges of ownership the purchasing or otherwise acquiring of any promissory notes or other evidences of indebtedness executed by any person, firm, association or corporation; the financing managing or operating of any commercial or manufacturing business or enterprise; the underwriting of any issue of stocks, bonds, debentures or other securities issued by any corporation; the charging of fees or commissions for any or all services rendered or advice or assistance given to any person, firm, association or corporation; acquiring and paying for in cash, stock or bonds, of this corporation or otherwise, the good will, rights, assets and property of any person, firm, association or corporation and to undertake or assume the whole or any part of the obligations or liabilities of any person, firm or corporation.

"The corporation shall have power to act as registrar or transfer agent for any other association or corporation and to act as agent in general for any other person, firm, association or corporation.

"The corporation shall have full power to issue bonds, debentures or obligations of this corporation from time to time, for any of the objects or purposes of the corporation and to secure the same by mortgage, pledge, deed of trust or otherwise. The corporation shall have full power to purchase, hold, sell and transfer the shares of its own capital stock, provided it shall not use its funds or property for the purchase of its own shares of capital stock when such use would cause any impairment of its capital; and provided, further, that shares of its own capital stock belonging to it shall not be voted upon directly or indirectly.

"The corporation shall have full power to guarantee the obligations of any other person, firm, association or corporation and to become surety therefor and to become joint maker, endorser or acceptor of any such obligations and to charge fees and commissions for such services.

"The corporation shall have full power without restriction or limit as to amount to purchase or otherwise acquire, hold, own, mortgage, sell, convey or otherwise dispose of real and personal property of every class and description in any of the States of the United States, or any foreign country, subject to the laws of such States or foreign countries.

"In general, the corporation shall have full power to carry on any other business in connection with the foregoing whether commercial, manufacturing, financial or otherwise, and to have and exercise all the powers conferred by the laws of Delaware upon corporations formed under the act hereinafter referred to and to do any or all of the things hereinbefore set forth to the same extent as natural persons might or could do.

"The foregoing clauses shall be construed both as objects and powers, and it is hereby expressly provided that the foregoing enumeration of specific powers shall not be held to that limit or restrict in any manner the powers of this corporation."

XIII

The defendants and other shareholders of said banks in carrying out the plan and scheme aforesaid through the agency and instrumentality of their holding corporation, the BancoKentucky Company, proceeded unlawfully to acquire, own, hold, control and operate a group of state and national banks and trust companies contrary to and in defiance of the meaning, spirit and intent of the laws of the United States and of the Commonwealth of Kentucky and of other states relating to the ownership, operation and supervision of banks and trust companies and unlawfully to use the assets of said banks and trust companies in speculative financial transactions prohibited by law, and unlawfully to use the assets and property of one or more of said banks in making loans on the security of the holding company stock in violation of law.

XIV

After the aforesaid exchange of Trustees Participation Certificates for stock of the holding corporation, the Banco-Kentucky Company, the holders of the stock of the Banco-Kentucky Company continued to be the actual, real and beneficial holders of approximately 95% of the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky and continued after the organization of the holding company, to receive all of the benefits and advantages incident to the ownership of stock in said National Bank.

XV

At the time of the organization of the BancoKentucky Company and at all times thereafter, the persons who appeared as stockholders of the said company exercised all the rights and privileges of shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky and of the other banks and trust companies whose capital stock, was held by BancoKentucky. Said persons who appeared as stockholders of BancoKentucky secured and retained to their own use and enrichment all the benefits and advantages of shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky and were from the time of the organization of the BancoKentucky Company up to the time of the closing of the National Bank of Kentucky the real, actual and beneficial owners of the Trustees Participation Certificates which represented shares of stock of the National Bank of Kentucky.

From the time of its organization to the date of the closing of the National Bank of Kentucky, the BancoKentucky Company acted as a corporate agency and instrumentality for the persons whose names appeared as stockholders of said company and as such corporate agency and instrumentality for said owners of the said BancoKentucky Company stock it held the Trustees Participation Certificates which represented the shares of stock in the National Bank of Kentucky and the persons whose names appeared as stockholders of the BancoKentucky Company were the actual, real and beneficial owners of the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky.

XVI

The holders of the Trustees Participation Certificates who organized the BancoKentucky Company as a holding corporation for their bank stock, well knowing that said bank stock was subject to the individual liability of shareholders of national banks, imposed by the Acts of Congress, Sections 5151 and 5234 of the Revised Statutes of the United States and knowing that bank stock of state banking institutions was subject to individual liability imposed by state laws, nevertheless, in the organization of the said BancoKentucky Company, intentionally undertook to evade the provisions of said sections of the Acts of Congress by deliberately omitting from the Articles of Incorporation any provision for the payment of the liability upon national and state bank stocks provided by the laws of the United States, the Commonwealth of Kentucky and other states, and deliberately and intentionally sought to evade said liability by including the Articles of Incorporation of BancoKentucky Company the following language:

"VIII. The private property of the stockholders shall not be subject to the payment of corporate debts to any extent whatever," and by printing in its certificates of stock the words "full paid and non-assessable," and in so attempting to evade such assessment liability perpetrated a fraud upon the depositors and creditors of the National Bank of Kentucky for whose benefit this action is brought.

XVII

By reason of all of the foregoing, the defendants are not entitled in equity and good conscience to the immunity recognized by law which stockholders of a bona fide lawfully formed and conducted corporation ordinarily have and defendants are not entitled in equity and good conscience to shield themselves from the assessment imposed upon them by law with said corporate form the Banco-Kentucky Company. By reason of the foregoing, the defendants are the real, true and beneficial shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky and have promised to pay said assessment and are stopped to deny said assessment liability, and are the owners of shares of stock of the National Bank of Kentucky and each of the defendants appearing to be stockholders of the BancoKentucky Company is liable for the payment of the assessment levied by the Comptroller of the Currency hereinbefore referred to, individually, ratably and proportionately to the extent that the number of shares of stock held by him bears to the total number of shares issued and outstanding.

XVIII

Acting pursuant to the authority and direction of the Comptroller of the Currency, the Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky, on or about March 20th, 1931, sent and served upon each of the defendants and all the other shareholders of the BancoKentucky Company, the following assessment notice:

"Office of The Receiver
THE NATIONAL BANK OF KENTUCKY

Louisville, Ky., March 20, 1931

"As a stockholder in The BancoKentucky Company, you will please take notice, that the Comptroller of the Currency has on February 20, 1931, levied an assessment upon the stockholders of The National Bank of Kentucky, Louisville, Ky., on the par value of each and every share, payable at the Office of the Receiver, on or before April 1, 1931. A notice of such assessment and a demand for payment of the same has been served upon the Receiver of The BancoKentucky Company as the holder of 540,484 trustees' participation certificates, issued under a certain trust agreement of April 22, 1927, which trustees' participation certificates represent the ownership of 37,721.624 shares of stock in The National Bank of Kentucky. You will, therefore, take notice that it is the intention of the undersigned, as Receiver of The National Bank of Kentucky, to proceed against you for the collection of the aforesaid assessment liability represented by the said trustees' participation certificates held by said BancoKentucky Company, to the extent that the undersigned, as Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky, is unable to collect said assessment from The BancoKentucky Company or its Receiver.

Paul C. Keyes
Receiver of The National Bank of Kentucky
Louisville, Kentucky

Registered Letter
Return Receipt Requested."

Enclosed therewith and attached thereto was a copy of the order of assessment upon shareholders made by the Comptroller of the Currency of the United States hereinabove described.

XIX

Thereafter, the receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky secured leave of the Jefferson County Circuit Court, which had previously appointed a receiver for the Banco-Kentucky Company, to file an action against the receiver of the BancoKentucky Company to collect said assessment and leave having been secured, the receiver, on October 31, 1931, filed an action in this court against Joseph S. Laurent, Receiver of the BancoKentucky Company, praying for judgment by reason of the assessment in the amount of $3,772,162.40. Said cause being docketed in the United States District Court for the Western District of Kentucky as No. 1383. Thereafter, the cause was heard and on September 14, 1932, the Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky recovered judgment for the full amount of the assessment, plus interest at the rate of six per cent (6%) per annum. Said judgment was entered September 14, 1932. Said judgment has been affirmed by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals and said judgment has become final and except for a credit of $90,745.17 hereafter described is wholly unpaid and unsatisfied.

XX

On December 18th, 1934, the Receiver of the BancoKentucky Company paid to the plaintiff, as Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky, the sum of $90,745.17, said payment being made to plaintiff as a creditor of Banco-Kentucky Company by reason of the judgment mentioned above and said payment is the only money paid to the plaintiff on account of the judgment for stock assessment up to the present time. The plaintiff says that there are other moneys which he may collect from the Receiver of the BancoKentucky Company, before the assets in the hands of said Receiver are completely exhausted, but plaintiff says that there are numerous controversies with respect to the distribution of the assets of the BancoKentucky Company and says that for this reason he is unable to state at the present time what if any further sum may eventually be paid by the Receiver of the BancoKentucky Company on account of said judgment, but plaintiff alleges that BancoKentucky Company is hopelessly insolvent and any payment that might be made will be relatively small and that said judgment will remain substantially unsatisfied.

XXI

Plaintiff says that the depositors and creditors of the National Bank of Kentucky have only been paid up to the present time, sixty-seven (67%) per cent of the face amount of their deposits and claims.

XXII

Plaintiff further says that there is due him as Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky by reason of the stock assessment on the 37,714.6422 shares of National Bank of Kentucky stock held by the BancoKentucky Company as the agency and instrumentality of the defendants and other shareholders of said company, and in accordance with their plan adopted as aforesaid, the sum of $3,771,464.22, less $90,745.17 paid on December 18th, 1934.

XXIII

On January 14th, 1930, the Articles of the BancoKentucky Company were amended and the authorized capital stock in said company was increased from 2,000,000 to 5,000,000 shares, each share having a par value of $10.00. At the time of the closing of the National Bank of Kentucky, there were issued and outstanding 2,072,468 shares of the capital stock of the BancoKentucky Company.

XXIV

Each of the defendants and each stockholder of the BancoKentucky Company not named a defendant herein is individually liable to pay said assessment in the proportion that his shares of stock of the BancoKentucky Company bears to the total number of shares of the BancoKentucky Company issued and outstanding at the date of the closing of the National Bank of Kentucky. The plaintiff is informed and believes that the sum due from each stockholder of BancoKentucky Company, including interest to the date of the filing of this petition, amounts to approximately $2.304909 for each share of stock of the BancoKentucky Company registered in his name or owned by him at the time of the closing of the National Bank of Kentucky.

XXV

The several defendants named herein are holders of the number of shares of BancoKentucky Company stock set opposite their respective names on the schedule and list hereto attached, made a part hereof, and marked "Exhibit A," and are each indebted to the plaintiff as Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky in the estimated amounts set opposite their respective names on said Schedule A, in the column thereof designated "Amount of Assessment," together with interest at the rate of six per cent (6%) per annum.

XXVI

Plaintiff therefore prays:

1. That a subpoena be issued according to the course and practice of this court, requiring the defendants to appear and answer this Bill of Complaint, but not under oath, answer under oath being hereby expressly waived according to the rules and practice of this court.

2. That an accounting be made and stated to determine the number of shares of the stock of BancoKentucky Company that were issued and outstanding at the date of the failure of the National Bank of Kentucky; to determine the number of shares of the capital stock of the National Bank of Kentucky that were represented by the Trustees Participation Certificates held by the BancoKentucky Company as the agency and instrumentality of the defendants and the other stockholders of the BancoKentucky Company; to determine the proportionate part of a share of stock of the National Bank of Kentucky which was represented by a share of stock in BancoKentucky Company; to determine the proportionate amount of the assessment for which each holder of the stock of the BancoKentucky Company is liable giving due and proper credit to said defendants and the other stockholders of BancoKentucky Company for such part of the assessment that the Receiver has collected, or may hereafter collect, and for which said defendants and other shareholders are entitled to credit.

3. That the court fix and determine the number of shares of National Bank of Kentucky stock of which the several defendants were the real and beneficial owners, and the assessment liability thereon, and that upon such accounting, the plaintiff be awarded a judgment and decree against the several defendants for the amount, by said accounting found to be due from each of them.

4. That plaintiff may have such further, other and different relief in the premises to which he may be entitled, and as shall be agreeable to equity and good conscience.

AMENDED AND SUPPLEMENTAL BILL OF COMPLAINT

The allegations of the original Bill and "Exhibit B," attached to the Amended Bill and listing defendants therein named, their BancoKentucky shareholdings and their alleged assessments, are omitted.

Said amendment sets forth 195 separate paragraphs each alleging that the person or company therein named had been appointed the personal representative of some person who had appeared as record owner of BancoKentucky Company stock at the time of the closing of the Bank, that distribution of such shareholder's estate had been made to named distributees and that liability was asserted against such personal representative and such distributees.

The following are typical paragraphs from said Amended and Supplemental Bill of Complaint:

Plaintiff states that at the time of the closing of the National Bank of Kentucky, as hereinbefore stated, Charles C. Mengel was the owner and holder of 5,760 shares of stock of BancoKentucky Company; since that time said Charles C. Mengel died and Arthur D. Allen was appointed Executor of his estate and proof of claim has been filed with said Executor. Plaintiff states that by reason of the foregoing, the defendant, Arthur D. Allen, Executor, is indebted to the plaintiff in the amount set out in Item 25 of Exhibit 'A' of the original Bill of Complaint." (Amended and Supplemental Bill of Complaint.)

Plaintiff states that at the time of the closing of the National Bank of Kentucky, as hereinbefore stated, Addison Dimmitt was the owner and holder of 500 shares of stock of BancoKentucky Company; that since that time said Addison Dimmitt died and Helen W. Dimmitt was appointed Executrix of his estate. Proof of claim has been filed with said Executrix. Said estate has been settled and distributed and Helen W. Dimmitt was the heir, devisee and/or distributee. By reason of the foregoing, the defendant, Helen W. Dimmitt, Executrix and distributee, is indebted to the plaintiff in the amount set out in Item 596 of Exhibit 'A' of the original Bill of Complaint." (Amended and Supplemental Bill of Complaint).

Plaintiff states that at the time of the closing of the National Bank of Kentucky, as hereinbefore stated, George M. Clark was the owner and holder of 11,410 shares of stock of the BancoKentucky Company, and that he made an assignment for the benefit of creditors to the Kentucky Title Trust Company as assignee. Proof of claim has been filed with said assignee. Plaintiff states that by reason of the foregoing the defendant, Kentucky Title Trust Company, assignee of George M. Clark, is indebted to the plaintiff in the amount set out in Item 1399 of Exhibit 'A' of the the original Bill of Complaint." (Amended and Supplemental Bill of Complaint.)

"PARAGRAPH 122

Plaintiff states that at the time of the closing of the National Bank of Kentucky, as hereinbefore stated, Herbert Tashgian was the owner and holder of 1,000 shares of stock of BancoKentucky Company; that since that time said Herbert Tashgian died and K. A. Tashgian was appointed Executor of his estate. Proof of claim has been filed with said Executor. Said estate has been settled and distributed and K. A. Tashgian is the heir, devisee and/or distributee. By reason of the foregoing the defendants, K. A. Tashgian, Executor, and K. A. Tashgian, distributee are indebted to the plaintiff in the amount set out in Item 2559 of Exhibit 'A' of the original Bill of Complaint." (Amended and Supplemental Bill of Complaint.)

Plaintiff states that at the time of the closing of the National Bank of Kentucky, as hereinbefore stated, Gustave A. Wesch was the owner and holder of 500 shares of stock of BancoKentucky Company; that since that time said Gustave A. Wesch died and Elizabeth Wesch was appointed Executrix of his estate. Proof of claim has been filed with said Executrix. Said estate has been settled and distributed and Elizabeth Wesch is the heir, devisee and/or distributee. By reason of the foregoing, the defendants, Elizabeth Wesch, Executrix, and Elizabeth Wesch, distributee, are indebted to the plaintiff in the amount set out in Item 2817 of Exhibit 'A' of the original Bill of Complaint." (Amended and Supplemental Bill of Complaint.)

"PARAGRAPH 135

Plaintiff states that at the time of the closing of the National Bank of Kentucky, as hereinbefore stated, John B. Pirtle was the owner and holder of 7,920 shares of stock of BancoKentucky Company; that since that time said John B. Pirtle died and the Louisville Trust Company was appointed Executor of his estate and proof of claim has been filed with said Executor. Plaintiff states that by reason of the foregoing, the defendant, the Louisville Trust Company, Executor of the Estate of John B. Pirtle, deceased, is indebted to the plaintiff in the amount set out in Item 2978 of Exhibit 'A' of the original Bill of Complaint." (Amended and Supplemental Bill of Complaint.)

SECOND AMENDED AND SUPPLEMENTAL BILL OF COMPLAINT

(Filed March 30, 1936)

All of said Second Amended and Supplemental Bill of Complaint, except the following typical paragraph, is omitted.

Plaintiff states that at the time of the closing of the National Bank of Kentucky, as hereinbefore stated, Belle W. Zellner was the owner and holder of 1,980 shares of stock of the BancoKentucky Company. Thereafter said Belle W. Zellner died, and Carl W. Zellner was appointed Executor of her Estate, and claim has been filed with said Executor. Said estate has been closed and settled, and Carl W. Zellner, Henrietta Zellner Nairin, were the heirs, devisees, and/or distributees thereof. By reason of the foregoing, the defendants, Carl W. Zellner, Executor of the Estate of Belle W. Zellner, deceased, and Carl W. Zellner, individually, and Henrietta Zellner Nairin, are indebted to the plaintiff in the amount set out in Item 2968 of Exhibit 'A' attached to the original Bill of Complaint." (Second Amended and Supplemental Bill of Complaint.)

THIRD AMENDED AND SUPPLEMENTAL BILL OF COMPLAINT

(Filed April 11, 1936)

All except following two paragraphs omitted.

"PARAGRAPH I

Now comes A. M. Anderson, Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky, an insolvent national banking association, organized under the laws of the United States, Louisville, Kentucky, and by way of further amendment to his original Bill of Complaint, amends Item 1627 of Exhibit 'A' attached to the original Bill of Complaint, so that it will read '1627, Kentucky Title Trust Company, Trustee under the Will of B. F. Guthrie, 500 Shares, $1,152.45.'

Plaintiff further amends his Bill of Complaint by stating that at the time of the closing of the National Bank of Kentucky, the Louisville Trust Company, as Trustee under the Will of B. F. Guthrie, was the holder of 500 shares of stock of BancoKentucky Company. Thereafter the Kentucky Title Trust Company succeeded the Louisville Trust Company as Trustee. By reason thereof, the defendant, Kentucky Title Trust Company, Trustee under the Will of B. F. Guthrie, is indebted to the plaintiff in the sum of $1,152.45, with interest, as set out in the original Bill of Complaint." (Third Amended and Supplemental Bill of Complaint.)

"PARAGRAPH II

Plaintiff states that at the time of the closing of the National Bank of Kentucky, Mrs. Sallie S. Withers was the owner and holder of 192 shares of stock of the Banco-Kentucky Company. Since that time, Mrs. Sallie S. Withers died and Spence S. Carrick was appointed either Administrator or Executor of her estate and proof of claim has been filed with said Administrator or Executor. Plaintiff states that by reason of the foregoing, the defendant, Spence S. Carrick, as personal representative of the estate of Mrs. Sallie S. Withers, is indebted to the plaintiff in the sum of $442.54 with interest as set forth in the original and amended Bills of Complaint." (Third Amended and Supplemental Bill of Complaint.)

FOURTH AMENDED AND SUPPLEMENTAL BILL OF COMPLAINT

(Filed June 9, 1936)

All except following paragraph, amending Paragraph V of the original Bill of Complaint, is omitted.

SUB-PARAGRAPH 5—PARAGRAPH I

"5. Plaintiff states that at the time of the closing of the National Bank of Kentucky, Charles Kobert was the owner and holder of 2084 shares of stock of BancoKentucky Company, that since that time said Charles Kobert died and that on August 5, 1935 the will of said Charles Kobert was admitted to probate in the County Court of Marion County, Kentucky, and that on said date the defendants, Charles B. Kobert, Lula K. Steeman and C. J. Edmonds qualified in said court as the executors of the will of said Charles Kobert, deceased, and that said Charles B. Kobert, Lula K. Steeman and C. J. Edmonds are now and ever since said date have been acting as such executors.

Plaintiff states that said defendants are residents of the State of Kentucky and the Western District of Kentucky, and that proofs of claim properly verified for the amounts due him, as hereinafter set out, have been filed with said executors and payment of same has been demanded of them; and plaintiff states that the claims herein sued on are a just demand against said estate and have never been paid, and that there is no offset or discount against same or any usury therein." (Fourth Amended and Supplemental Bill of Complaint.)

Amendment to Bill of Complaint

FIFTH AMENDED AND SUPPLEMENTAL BILL OF COMPLAINT

(Filed January 5, 1937)

Alleges that Fannie Owen Woolfolk, listed as a defendant in the original Bill of Complaint, died testate February 18, 1936, prior to service, that Matalea Mourning Bickel was appointed executrix of her estate on March 26, 1936, and that claim is made against the executrix.

AMENDMENT TO BILL OF COMPLAINT

(Made part of record August 2, 1939)

All, except following paragraph, omitted.

"Now comes the plaintiff, A. M. Anderson, Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky, an insolvent national banking association, organized under the laws of the United States, Louisville, Kentucky and amends his Bill of Complaint and the previous amendments thereto, and for such amendment realleges all of the allegations contained in his Bill filed herein and amendments thereto and in addition thereto states, with respect to the defendants named in the Bill of Complaint and the amendments thereto as distributees and heirs of various persons who owned stock in the BancoKentucky Company, that such defendants received, as legatees, devisees and distributees, from the estate of persons owning BancoKentucky stock, as listed in the Bill of Complaint and amendments thereto, cash and personal and/or real property in the amounts set out in the Exhibit hereto attached and made a part hereof.

Plaintiff states that said defendants named as legatees, devisees and distributees are liable for the payment of the claim against the person from whom they received such assets as hereinbefore set out.

WHEREFORE: Plaintiff, A. M. Anderson, Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky, an insolvent national banking association, organized under the laws of the United States, Louisville, Kentucky, prays as in his original Bill of Complaint and the amendments thereto."

The exhibit attached to this amendment, listing the ancestor who held the stock, the distributee, the amount claimed from the distributees and the amount received by each distributee as shown by the records of the county court, is omitted with the exception of the information with respect to the estate of Addison Dimmitt, deceased. Information with respect to other estates is of substantially the same nature. The exhibit with respect to Addison Dimmitt, deceased, is as follows:

MOTION TO DISMISS

(Filed April 15, 1936)

Come the defendants whose names are signed hereto by their respective counsel and severally move the court to dismiss the bill of complaint herein as amended upon the following grounds:

(1) Because it appears from the bill of complaint as amended herein that there is an insufficiency of facts to constitute a valid cause of action in equity against these defendants, or any of them;

(2) Because it appears from the bill of complaint herein as amended that there is a misjoinder of parties defendant;

(3) Because it appears from the bill of complaint herein as amended that this suit should have been brought as an action on the law side of the court; that the plaintiff has an adequate remedy at law and that there is a want of jurisdiction in equity;

tion, and that in said action plaintiff recovered a judgment against said Receiver and that on this judgment the plaintiff in this action has collected the sum of $90,745.17 from said Receiver, and it further appears that said judgment was secured by plaintiff's alleging and establishing by proof in said action that BancoKentucky Company was the real, true and beneficial owner of 540,484 Trustees Participation Certificates representing the ownership of 37,721,624 shares of stock of the National Bank of Kentucky, and that said Participation Certificates and shares of stock in the National Bank of Kentucky were and are the same, identical Trustees Participation Certificates and shares of stock of the National Bank of Kentucky as are mentioned and referred to in plaintiff's bill in this action, and that plaintiff's action and conduct in asserting that BancoKentucky Company was the real, true and beneficial owner and holder of said Participation Certificates and said shares of stock in the National Bank of Kentucky, and his prosecution of said claim against the Receiver of the BancoKentucky Company to a judgment, and the collection, in part, of said judgment from said Receiver, constituted an election on the part of the plaintiff herein, and said election now constitutes a bar to plaintiff's asserting in this action that the defendants herein, or any of them, are the real owners or holders of said Participation Certificates or the real owners or holders of any part of said stock in the National Bank of Kentucky, and a bar to plaintiff's asserting or claiming any right to recover any sum from defendants, upon the grounds asserted in plaintiff's bill of complaint herein as amended;

(5) Because it appears from the bill of complaint herein as amended that plaintiff, in the prior suit which he instituted in this court against the Receiver of the Banco-Kentucky Company, procured the entry of a judgment in said action in this court, in which said judgment it was by this court adjudged that the BancoKentucky Company was the real, true and beneficial owner of the Trustees Participation Certificates of the shares of stock of the National Bank of Kentucky mentioned and described in the complaint herein as amended; and it further appears from said bill of complaint as amended that said judgment so holding said BancoKentucky Company to be and to have been the real, true and beneficial holder of said Certificates and said Bank stock, was affirmed by the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit, and that said judgment has become final and binding and is now in full force and effect, and that plaintiff has collected on said judgment the sum of $90,745.17, and plaintiff herein is by said judgment entered in this court and affirmed by said Circuit Court of Appeals, and by his collection, in part, of said judgment estopped from asserting or maintaining in this action that these defendants, or any of them, were or are the real, true or beneficial owners of the shares of stock or Trustees Participation Certificates mentioned and referred to in the bill of complaint herein as amended.

WHEREFORE, the defendants pray that the bill of complaint herein as amended may be dismissed, and that each of these defendants be dismissed hence with his or her costs, and for such other relief as to the court may seem just.

This motion was filed on behalf of approximately 500 defendants. Similar motions were filed by other defendants who adopted it by reference or set out motions similar in substance. By an order of the court, agreed to by plaintiff, all general defenses set up by any one defendant were available to all others.

Answer of Katherine Kirkpatrick Abbott

(Filed August 30, 1938)

Answer was filed on behalf of David J. Abbott on September 28, 1936. This was adopted as a typical answer by other defendants and was incorporated by reference in their answers. This answer was amended on October 27, 1936. Plaintiff's reply to said answer was filed on February 16, 1937. Abbott died and his widow, who was appointed administratrix of his estate, was made a party by order of revivor entered on June 24, 1938. Thereafter this Substituted Answer was filed on her behalf on August 30, 1938.

SUBSTITUTED ANSWER OF DEFENDANT, KATHERINE KIRKPATRICK ABBOTT, ADMINISTRATRIX OF DAVID J. ABBOTT, DECEASED

The defendant, Katherine Kirkpatrick Abbott, Administratrix of David J. Abbott, deceased, for answer to the Bill of Complaint herein, (in referring to the Bill of Complaint the references are to the paragraphs marked in Roman numerals by the plaintiff) admits the allegations of Paragraph 1, page 3, Paragraph II., page 3, and so much of Paragraph III., page 3, as is contained on page 3 of the printed Bill.

Defendant denies the following portions of Paragraph IV., page 4, that the plaintiff has not an adequate remedy at law, or that an accounting is necessary to determine the proportionate part of the aggregate liability claimed against this defendant, or any of the defendants, or to determine the credit to which defendant may be entitled.

Defendant denies that the matters set forth herein involve complicated interests or degrees of interest among approximately six thousand stockholders, or any stockholder, of Banco Kentucky Company, other than between the plaintiff and himself.

Defendant denies that equitable determination in one action of the questions of common interest will avoid a multiplicity of suits and circuity of actions, or the unreasonable expense of thousands of separate suits, or that the trust fund will be dissipated, or that the plaintiff has any ground in equity, or that plaintiff will suffer irreparable or any damage or injury by reason of separate suits, as required by law; denies that the plaintiff has no adequate remedy at law, or that this court, sitting in equity, has any jurisdiction of this suit.

As to Paragraph V., page 4, this defendant has no knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to whether the other defendants are residents of the State of Kentucky, or the Western District of Kentucky, nor whether the corporate defendants were organized or existing under the laws of the State of Kentucky, or were doing business within said state.

Defendant admits the allegations of Paragraph VI., page 4, of the Bill.

Defendant admits the allegations of Paragraph X., page 6, of the Bill.

Defendant admits the allegations of Paragraph XI., page 6, of the Bill, except in the following particulars: defendant denies that the plan proposed on July 19th, 1929, to the then holders of Trustees Participation Certificates, or to prospective purchasers of Banco stock was that a corporation would be organized. Defendant says that the Banco Kentucky Company was organized prior to July 19, 1929. Defendant denies that it was proposed that such Banco Kentucky Company should be a holding company. Defendant says that said corporation was to be an active corporation, doing business as provided in its Charter, as will be fully shown hereafter.

In regard to Paragraph XII., pages 6 and 7 of the Bill, defendant denies that the holders of 95 per cent of the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company caused said Banco Kentucky Company to be organized; admits that it was organized at the instance of persons who were officers and members of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company; denies that said Banco Kentucky Company was organized as a holding company, or as the agency or the instrumentality for the use of enrichment or furtherance of a scheme to engage in unlawful acts to enable the trustees to unlawfully acquire any property whatsoever, or in defiance of the meaning, or spirit or intent of the laws of the United States or the Commonwealth of Kentucky, or any other state, relating to the ownership or operation or supervision of banks or trust companies. The defendant denies that the Banco Kentucky Company was organized by any one as an agency or instrumentality, or for any other purpose, than as a bona fide corporation to conduct the business provided for in its Charter. The defendant admits that the capital stock of Banco Kentucky Company was as set out in Paragraph XII., and that the Articles of Incorporation of said company contained the provisions quoted in Paragraph XII.

For answer to Paragraph XIII., pages 7 and 8 of the Bill, defendant denies that the incorporators or stockholders of Banco Kentucky Company had formulated any unlawful plan, or proceeded to unlawfully acquire, or own, or hold, or operate a group of state or national banks and trust companies contrary to or in defiance of the meaning, or spirit, or intent of the laws of the United States, or of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, or of other states, relating to the ownership or operation or supervision of banks or trust companies, or unlawfully to use the assets of said banks or trust companies in speculative financial transactions prohibited by law, or to unlawfully use the assets or property of one or more of said banks in making loans on the security of the holding company stock in violation of law.

In answer to Paragraph XIV., page 8 of the Bill, defendant denies that after the exchange of trustees participation certificates for stock of the Banco Kentucky Company, the holders of the stock of the Banco Kentucky Company continued to be the actual or real or beneficial holders of approximately 95 per cent of stock of the National Bank of Kentucky, or any of said stock, or that the stockholders of Banco Kentucky Company had any interest in the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky per se, or any other interest in Banco Kentucky Company other than that of stockholder.

Defendant denies that, after the organization of Banco-Kentucky Company and after the acquisition by the stockholders of Banco Kentucky Company of their stock in that corporation, such stockholders continued to receive all or any of the benefits or advantages incident to the ownership of stock in the National Bank of Kentucky.

In answer to Paragraph XV., page 8 of the Bill, defendant denies that at the time of the organization of the Banco Kentucky Company, or at any or all times thereafter, the persons who appeared as stockholders of said Banco Kentucky Company exercised all or any of the privileges of shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky, or of other banks or trust companies, whose capital stock was held by Banco-Kentucky; denies that the persons who appeared as shareholders of the Banco-Kentucky Company secured or retained to their own use or enrichment all the benefits or advantages of shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky, or were from the time of the organization of the Banco-Kentucky Company up to the time of the closing of the National Bank of Kentucky, or at any time, the real or actual or beneficial owners of the Trustees Participation Certificates, which represented shares of the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky. Defendant denies that from the time of the organization of Banco-Kentucky Company to the date of the closing of the National Bank of Kentucky, or at all, the Banco-Kentucky Company acted as a corporate agency or instrumentality for the persons, or any of them, whose names appeared as stockholders of said company, or as such corporate agency or instrumentality for said owners of said Banco-Kentucky Company it held Trustees Participation Certificates, or that the persons whose names appeared as stockholders of the Banco-Kentucky Company were the actual, or real, or beneficial owners of the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky.

Defendant denies the following allegations of Paragraph XVI., page 8 of the Bill, that the holders of Trustees Participation Certificates, or any of them, organized the Banco-Kentucky Company as a holding corporation for their bank stock, or at all; denies that the organizers of said Banco-Kentucky Company intentionally, or at all, undertook to evade the provisions of Sections 5151 and 5234 of the Revised Statutes by omitting from the Articles of Incorporation any provision for the payment of liability of national or state banks, provided by the Laws of the United States, as against the stockholders of Banco, or in providing that the private property of the stockholders shall not be subject to the payment of corporate debts to any extent whatever, or inserting in the Banco-Kentucky certificates of stock the words, "fully paid and nonassessable"; denies that they attempted to evade any assessment liability, or denies that they perpetrated a fraud upon the depositors or creditors of the National Bank of Kentucky.

In answer to Paragraph XVII., page 9 of the Bill, defendant denies that by reason of anything theretofore alleged in the Bill, the defendants, or any of them, or this defendant, are not entitled in equity or good conscience to the immunity recognized by law which stockholders of a bona fide lawfully formed or conducted corporation ordinarily have, or that defendants, or any of them, or this defendant, are not entitled in equity or good conscience to shield themselves from the assessment imposed upon them by law with said corporate form of the Banco-Kentucky Company.

Defendant denies that there was any assessment imposed upon them, or any of them, by law.

This defendant denies that the defendants, or any of them, or this particular defendant, was, or is, the real, or true, or beneficial stockholder or shareholder of the National Bank of Kentucky, or had promised to pay said assessment, or was estopped to deny said assessment liability, or are the owners of the shares of stock of the National Bank of Kentucky, or that this defendant, or any defendant appearing to be stockholders of the Banco-Kentucky Company is liable for the payment of the assessment levied by the Comptroller of the Currency thereinbefore referred to in the Bill of Complaint, individually, or ratably, or proportionately to the extent that the number of shares held by him bears to the total number of shares issued and outstanding of Banco-Kentucky stock, or at all.

Defendant admits the allegations of Paragraph XVIII., page 9, of the Bill.

Defendant admits the allegations of Paragraph XIX., pages 9 and 10, of the Bill.

Defendant has no knowledge or information as to the allegations of Paragraph XX., page 10, of the Bill.

Defendant admits the allegations of Paragraph XXI., page 10, of the Bill.

Defendant has no knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the allegations of Paragraph XXII., page 10, of the Bill.

Defendant admits the allegations of Paragraph XXIII., page 10, of the Bill.

In answer to Paragraph XXIV., page 10, of the Bill, defendant denies that this defendant, or each of the defendants, or each stockholder of Banco-Kentucky Company not named a defendant herein, is individually liable to pay said assessment referred to in the Bill of Complaint in the proportion that his shares of Banco-Kentucky stock bears to the total number of shares issued and outstanding at the date of the closing of the National Bank of Kentucky, or at all.

Defendant denies that there is due from him, or from each stockholder of Banco-Kentucky Company the sum of $2,304,909, or any sum, per share of stock of Banco-Kentucky Company held or registered in his name or owned by him at the time of the closing of the National Bank of Kentucky.

In answer to Paragraph XXV., page 11 of the Bill, defendant admits that at the time of the closing of National Bank of Kentucky he owned the number of shares of Banco-Kentucky stock listed in the Exhibit, but denies that he is indebted to the Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky in the amount set opposite his name, or in any amount whatsoever, either with or without interest.

PARAGRAPH II.

The defendant, Katherine Kirkpatrick Abbott, Administratrix of David J. Abbott, deceased, says that the Banco-Kentucky Company was incorporated under the laws of Delaware on July 16th, 1929.

Defendant says that said Banco-Kentucky Company was not incorporated as a holding company, but was incorporated to do the business set out in its Articles of Incorporation.

Paragraph 3 of the Articles of Incorporation of said company provided that said company had the following powers:

> "Third: The nature of the business or objects or purposes proposed to be transacted, promoted or carried on are:
> The acquiring by purchase or otherwise of all or any portion of the capital stock, property, assets and franchises of any or all corporations transacting business in any State of the United States; the purchasing, mortgaging, pledging or otherwise disposing of shares of the capital stock of or any bonds, securities or evidence of indebtedness created by or issued by any other corporation or corporations organized under the laws of any State of the United States or of any foreign country and while the owner thereof to exercise all the rights, powers and privileges of ownership; the purchasing or otherwise acquiring of any promissory notes or other evidence of indebtedness executed by any person, firm, association or corporation; the financing, managing or operating of any commercial or manufacturing business or enterprise; the underwriting of any issue of stocks, bonds, deben-

tures or other securities issued by any corporation; the charging of fees or commissions for any or all services rendered or advice or assistance given to any person, firm, association, or corporation, acquiring and paying for in cash, stocks or bonds of this corporation or otherwise, the good will, rights, assets and property of any person, firm, association or corporation and to undertake or assume the whole or any part of the obligations or liabilities of any person, firm or corporation.

The corporation shall have power to act as registrar or transfer agent for any other association or corporation and to act as agent in general for any other person, firm, association or corporation.

The corporation shall have full power to issue bonds, debentures or obligations of this corporation from time to time, for any of the objects or purposes of the corporation and to secure the same by mortgage, pledge deed of trust or otherwise. The corporation shall have full power to purchase, hold, sell and transfer the shares of its own capital stock; provided it shall not use its funds or property for the purchase of its own shares of capital stock when such use would cause any impairment of its capital; and provided, further, that shares of its own capital stock belonging to it shall not be voted upon directly or indirectly.

The corporation shall have full power to guarantee the obligations of any other person, firm, association or corporation and to become surety therefor and to become joint maker, endorser or acceptor of any such obligations and to charge fees and commissions for such services.

The corporation shall have full power without restriction or limit as to amount to purchase or otherwise acquire, hold, own, mortgage, sell, convey or otherwise dispose of real and personal property of every class and description in any of the States of the United States, or any foreign country, subject to the laws of such States or foreign countries.

In general, the corporation shall have full power to carry on any other business in connection with the foregoing whether commercial, manufacturing, financial or otherwise, and to have and exercise all the powers conferred by the laws of Delaware upon corporations formed under the act hereinafter referred to and to do any or all of the things hereinbefore set forth to the same extent as natural persons might or could do.

The foregoing clauses shall be construed both as objects and powers and it is hereby expressly provided that the foregoing enumeration of specific powers shall not be held to limit or restrict in any manner the powers of this corporation."

Said corporation had an authorized capital stock of $20,000,000, divided into shares of $10.00 each.

Paragraph 8 of the Articles of Incorporation provided:

"Eighth: The private property of the stockholders shall not be subject to the payment of corporate debts to any extent whatever."

Defendant says that said paragraph of the Articles of Incorporation of said company was not peculiar to the Banco-Kentucky Company, but was the usual and customary provision placed in Articles of Incorporation of Delaware corporations, and was not placed therein by the organizers of the Banco-Kentucky Company for any unlawful purpose.

Defendant says that her intestate at no time owned any stock of the National Bank of Kentucky, or any Trustees' Certificates, representing any portion of any stock of the National Bank of Kentucky.

Defendant says that her intestate became a stockholder of the Banco-Kentucky Company by subscribing for and paying for the shares obtained by him at the rate of $25.00 per share. Said payment was called for as of October 1st, 1929.

Defendant further says that it was the plan and intention of the incorporators of said Banco-Kentucky Company to not only acquire Trustees' Certificates of stock, evidencing ownership in the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company, but to also purchase other property with its stock or with cash, and in addition to sell a large portion of its capital stock for cash. In pursuance of this plan said Banco-Kentucky Company had prior to October 1st, 1929, secured bona fide subscriptions for approximately 400,000 shares of Banco-Kentucky stock at $25.00 per share, and thereafter collected upon said subscriptions exceeding $9,869,650.

Defendant further says that from October 1st, 1929, said Banco-Kentucky Company, through its officers and Board of Directors, functioned as a separate, distinct and independent corporation and continued to do so until after the closing of the National Bank of Kentucky, when said Banco-Kentucky Company was placed in receivership by the Jefferson Circuit Court, of Jefferson County, Kentucky, a Court of original and general jurisdiction in the State of Kentucky.

Joseph S. Laurent was appointed receiver of said Banco-Kentucky Company and continued to act as such during the occurrence of the suit mentioned below.

Defendant says that the National Bank of Kentucky was closed by resolution of its directors on November 16, 1930; that thereafter on November 17, 1930, the Comptroller of the Currency appointed Paul C. Keyes, as receiver of said Bank. Said Keyes immediately took charge of the affairs of the National Bank of Kentucky and employed, among others, as an assistant, W. T. Zur Schmiede, who was prior to the failure of the National Bank of Kentucky Cashier of said Bank and was also Secretary of the Banco-Kentucky Company.

Said Keyes, almost immediately following his appointment as receiver, had the books and records of said Banco-Kentucky Company fully examined and at all times had access to all the records and papers of said company. Prior to the time of the filing of his suit against the Banco-Kentucky Company, to recover upon the assessment theretofore made by the Comptroller, which is the identical assessment involved in this suit, said A. M. Anderson, who succeeded Keyes as receiver, had become thoroughly familiar with the plan and method and organization of the Banco-Kentucky Company, had a list of the stockholders of same, knew of whatever connection there was between Banco-Kentucky Company and the National Bank of Kentucky, and was fully cognizant of all operations of the Banco-Kentucky Company from its formation to the appointment of its said receiver.

Defendant says that the Comptroller of the Currency on the 20th day of February, 1931, by virtue of the authority vested in him by law, did levy and make an assessment of one hundred per cent, amounting to $4,000,000 upon the shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky.

Defendant says that there were registered holders on the records of the National Bank of Kentucky three classes of stockholders:

1. directors having qualifying shares;
2. individuals, not directors, owning bank stock outright; and
3. six trustees, holding in a trust capacity Trustees' Participation Certificates, representing ownership of stock in the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company.

Defendant says that neither Banco-Kentucky Company, nor any of the stockholders of Banco-Kentucky Company were listed on the books of the National Bank of Kentucky as stockholders of said National Bank of Kentucky, except the directors of said National Bank of Kentucky, who held qualifying shares in the National Bank of Kentucky.

Defendant says that following said assessment the plaintiff attempted to collect said assessment from all the stockholders listed in the records of the National Bank of Kentucky, including the directors and the other individuals registered as holding stock.

Defendant says that plaintiff did not attempt to collect said assessment from the six trustees holding stock under a Trust Agreement, for the reason that said plaintiff was thoroughly familiar with the Trust Agreement under which said stock was held by said Trustees and which agreement charged the true owners thereof with liability.

Defendant says that, as neither the Banco-Kentucky Company, nor its stockholders (other than such as may have held National Bank stock as qualifying shares for directorship), were listed as holders of said National Bank of Kentucky stock on the latter's records, for plaintiff to hold either Banco-Kentucky Company, or any of its stockholders, for said assessment, it was necessary for said plaintiff to prove that either Banco, or its stockholders, were the true and beneficial owners of said National Bank of Kentucky stock.

With full knowledge of all the foregoing facts hereinabove set out, the plaintiff elected to, and did, proceed to attempt to hold the Banco-Kentucky Company as the true owner of all the National Bank of Kentucky stock involved in this action, and in pursuance of said election brought an action in this Court, numbered 1383, styled Paul C. Keyes (later succeeded by A. M. Anderson), Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky, against Joseph S. Laurent, Receiver of Banco-Kentucky Company, for $3,772,162.40 on account of said assessment against said Banco-Kentucky by reason of its ownership of Trustees' Participation Certificates issued by the six Trustees hereinabove referred to, which Trustees' Certificates in turn represented an indivisible interest in the trust estate held by said Trustees.

This defendant says that prior to the institution of said suit against Joseph S. Laurent, as Receiver of the Banco-Kentucky Company, it was necessary for said Receiver to show to the Jefferson Circuit Court some cause for obtaining permission to sue said Laurent, as Receiver, and pursuant to this Paul C. Keyes, as Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky and with full knowledge of all the foregoing facts concerning the relation of Banco-Kentucky Company to its stockholders and Banco-Kentucky Company to the National Bank of Kentucky, filed a Petition in the Jefferson Circuit Court on October 24, 1931, in which he set out in his request for permission to sue, the following paragraph:

> "Your petitioner further represents that at the time of the closing of said National Bank and the appointment of your Petitioner as Receiver, the defendant, The Banco-Kentucky Company, was the owner and holder of 540,484 Trustees' Participation Certificates, representing the ownership by said The Banco-Kentucky Company of 37,721,624 shares of the capital stock of the National Bank of Kentucky and by reason of the aforesaid mentioned assessment there is due your Petitioner as Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky the sum of Three Million, Seven Hundred and seventy-two thousand, one hundred sixty-two and 40/100 ($3,772,162.40) Dollars from The Banco-Kentucky Company."

A certified copy of said Petition is filed herewith and made a part hereof, marked Exhibit "A."

Defendant says that on the same day that said Petition was filed the plaintiff in said Petition presented to the Court for signature an order construing his own Petition, which was signed by the Chancellor of the Jefferson Circuit Court and duly entered of record on the same day.

Defendant says that said Order granted said Keyes the permission to bring said suit upon the ground that Banco-Kentucky Company was the owner of stock in the National Bank of Kentucky. Said Order contained the following statement:

> . . . "And it appearing that said action is an action arising under the laws of the United States and that it is proper and appropriate that leave should be granted to said Paul C. Keyes, as Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky, to institute an appropriate action at law or equity in the Courts of the United States UPON HIS CLAIM OF $3,772,162.40, or such other amount as he may claim to be due from The Banco-Kentucky Company AS HIS ASSESSMENT upon the capital stock of the National Bank of Kentucky, owned by said company at the time its assets were placed in the hands of the Comptroller of the Currency of the United States."

A certified copy of said Order is filed herewith and made part hereof, marked Exhibit "B."

Pursuant to said Order the Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky brought the aforesaid suit numbered 1383 and in his complaint in said cause made, among others, the following allegations:

> "Plaintiff says that said money is due him as an assessment upon the shares of stock of The National Bank of Kentucky owned by The Banco Kentucky Company at the time plaintiff was appointed Receiver or upon certain Trustees' Participation Certificates representing The National Bank of Kentucky stock owned by The Banco-Kentucky Company at the time of said appointment of plaintiff as Receiver."

Again,

"The Banco-Kentucky Company was at the time of the closing of The National Bank of Kentucky and the appointment of the plaintiff as Receiver, the holder of record of five hundred forty thousand four hundred eighty-four (540,484) Trustees' Participation Certificates, having a par value of $10.00, which Trustees' Participation Certificates were issued under the terms of a certain Trust Agreement of April 22nd, 1927, and which Trustees' Participation Certificates represent the ownership of 37,721,624 shares of stock of The National Bank of Kentucky of Louisville, as hereinafter more fully set forth."

Again,

"Acting pursuant to the authority and direction of the Comptroller of the Currency aforesaid, the plaintiff, as Receiver of The National Bank of Kentucky served notice upon the defendant, by registered letter, that the Comptroller of the Currency did levy an assessment as aforesaid upon the stockholders of The National Bank of Kentucky of Louisville, Kentucky, payable at the office of the plaintiff as Receiver on or before April 1, 1931, and advising the defendant that the Banco-Kentucky Company was the holder of Five hundred forty thousand and four hundred eighty-four (540,484) Trustees' Participation Certificates, issued under the terms of said Trust Agreement of April 22, 1927, which said Trustees' Participation Certificates represent the ownership of 37,721,624 shares of stock in The National Bank of Kentucky, and making demand upon the defendant to pay the assessment on 37,721,624 shares of The National Bank of Kentucky, represented by the aforesaid trustees' Participation Certificates, in accordance with said order and assessment of the Comptroller of the Currency and said notice. Notwithstanding said assessment notice and demand upon the defendant, no part of said assessment has been paid and said defendant has refused to pay said assessment or any part thereof and there is now due and owing to the plaintiff as Receiver of The National Bank of Kentucky the sum of Three Million Seven Hundred seventy-two Thousand, One hundred sixty-two and 40/100 ($3,772,162.40) Dollars as the assessment and requisition duly made upon the defendant as a shareholder of The National Bank of Kentucky by the Comptroller of the Currency as aforesaid."

Again,

"Said Trust Agreement, dated April 22, 1927, hereinabove referred to, was an agreement between SUCH OWNERS AND HOLDERS of the capital stock in The National Bank of Kentucky of Louisville, Kentucky, as united therein, by signing it or a counterpart thereof, or by depositing THEIR STOCK, as therein provided, referred to therein as 'Bank stockholders' and such OWNERS AND HOLDERS of the capital stock of the Louisville Trust Company of Louisville, Kentucky, as united by signing it or a counterpart thereof, or by depositing their stock as therein provided, therein referred to as 'Trust Company stockholders,' and Henry Vogt," etc.

Again,

"The Banco-Kentucky Company and/or Joseph S. Laurent ever since September 19, 1929, has been and is the OWNER and HOLDER of said Trustees' Participation Certificates for Five Hundred forty Thousand Four Hundred eighty-four (540,484) shares, of the par value of $10, per share each of said trust estate, and by uniting said Trust Agreement and by accepting said certificates, The Banco-Kentucky Company accepted, consented to and adopted said Trust Agreement and all of the terms thereof, including the agreement to pay the same liability upon each Trustees' Participation Certificate as The Banco-Kentucky Company would have been subject to IN THE CASE THE BANCO-KENTUCKY COMPANY HAD BEEN THE OWNER OF RECORD of such proportionate part of the shares held by the 'Trustees' in The National Bank of Kentucky as the number of shares called for by The Banco-Kentucky Company's Trustees' Participation Certificate bore to the whole number of shares covered by all outstanding Trustees' Participation Certificates, as provided in Article IX, of said Trust Agreement, hereinabove fully set forth."

Defendant says that said action was defended, but plaintiff prosecuted said action to a judgment and secured a judgment of $3,772,162.40, with interest, against the Banco-Kentucky Company, as the true and beneficial owner of the shares of stock of the National Bank of Kentucky, registered on the books of the National Bank of Kentucky in the name of the six Trustees above referred to.

Defendant says that plaintiff also in said action secured a finding of fact as follows:

"(8) On September 19, 1929, the Banco-Kentucky Company became the owner of trustees' participation certificates issued by the trustee under the agreement of April 22, 1927, certifying that the defendant was the owner of 540,484 shares of the par value of $10.00 each of said trust estate, consisting of shares of capital stock of the National Bank of Kentucky, and the Louisville Trust Company of Louisville, Kentucky."

"(10) At the time of the appointment of Paul C. Keyes, as Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky, the Banco-Kentucky Company was the owner and holder of 540,484 shares of the trust estate, each share having a par value of $10.00. The 540,484 shares of trustees' participation certificates owned by the defendant represented 37,721,624 shares of the capital stock of the National Bank of Kentucky, having a par value of $100.00."

"(12) The Banco-Kentucky Company received dividends in proportion to its interest in the National Bank of Kentucky."

Defendant says that plaintiff also secured in said action a finding of law as follows:

"(1) That the Banco-Kentucky Company and the defendant, Joseph S. Laurent, its receiver, was the actual and real owner of 37,721,624 shares of stock of the National Bank of Kentucky, having a par value of $100.00 per share on November 17, 1930."

Defendant says that thereafter the Banco-Kentucky Company appealed said case to the Circuit Court of Appeals, for the Sixth Circuit, and in the brief upon said appeal the plaintiff herein insisted that the Banco-Kentucky Company was the true and beneficial shareholder of all the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky involved in this action.

Thereafter the Circuit Court of Appeals, for the Sixth Circuit, affirmed said decision below (70 Fed. [2d] 819), on the ground that the Banco-Kentucky Company was the true and beneficial owner of the shares of the National Bank of Kentucky involved in this action and therefore liable for the assessment upon same, even though said Banco-Kentucky was not listed as a stockholder on the records of the National Bank of Kentucky.

Defendant pleads and relies upon the actions of the plaintiff above referred to as an election of remedies and parties in bar of any suit against this defendant on the stock assessment of the Comptroller in regard to shares of the National Bank of Kentucky.

PARAGRAPH III.

Defendant, for further answer herein, says that the Banco-Kentucky Company was a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Delaware on July 16th, 1929, and thereafter continued to function as an independent corporation.

Defendant says that the Articles of Incorporation of said Banco-Kentucky Company contain the following provision:

> "Third: The nature of the business, or objects or purposes proposed to be transacted, promoted or carried on are:
> "The acquiring by purchase or otherwise of all or any portion of the capital stock, property, assets and franchises of any or all corporations transacting business in any State of the United States; the purchasing, holding, selling, assigning, transferring, mortgaging, pledging or otherwise disposing of shares of the capital stock of or any bonds, securities or evidence of indebtedness created by or issued by any other corporation or corporations organized under the laws of any State of the United States or of any foreign country and while the owner thereof to exercise all the rights, powers and privileges of ownership; the purchasing or otherwise acquiring of any promissory notes or other evidences of indebtedness executed by any person, firm, association or corporation; the financing, managing or operating of any commercial or manufacturing business or enterprise; the underwriting of any issue of stocks, bonds, debentures or other securities issued by any corporation; the charging of fees or commissions for any or all services rendered or advice or assistance given to any person, firm, association or corporation; acquiring and paying for in cash, stock or bonds of this corporation or otherwise, the good will, rights, assets and property of any person, firm, association or corporation and to undertake or assume the whole or any part of the obligations or liabilities of any person, firm or corporation."

Defendant says that the Banco-Kentucky Company, pursuant to the authority contained in its Articles of Incorporation above quoted, acquired by purchase or exchange all of the Trustees' Participation Certificates, representing stock in the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company held by Henry Vogt, Thomas J. Minary, Stuart E. Duncan, Allen P. Dodd, Charles H. Bohmer and Ben J. Metcalfe, as Trustees under a certain Trust Agreement, dated April 22nd, 1927.

Defendant says that the National Bank of Kentucky was and is a national banking association, organized under the laws of the United States, and on November 16, 1930, by resolution of its Board of Directors said bank was closed, and on November 17, 1930, the Comptroller of the Currency of the United States appointed Paul C. Keyes, Receiver of said bank. Said Keyes later resigned as receiver and A. M. Anderson was appointed by the Comptroller in said Keyes' place and substituted as a party in the suit hereafter referred to.

Thereafter on the 20th day of February, 1931, J. W. Pole, as Comptroller of the Currency of the United States, levied and made an assessment upon the stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky of one hundred per cent, amounting in all to $4,000,000.

On the 24th day of November, 1930, the Jefferson Circuit Court, Chancery Branch, Second Division, sitting at Louisville, Kentucky, in the case pending before said Court, appointed Joseph S. Laurent, Receiver of the Banco-Kentucky Company, and said Laurent thereafter qualified and gave bond in the amount required by the Court and continued to act as said receiver.

Thereafter said Paul C. Keyes, as Receiver, filed an action against Joseph S. Laurent, Receiver of the Banco-Kentucky Company, on said assessment and in said action claimed that the Banco-Kentucky Company was the holder and owner of 540,484 Trustees' Participation Certificates, which Trustees' Participation Certificates were issued under the terms of a certain Trust Agreement of April 22nd, 1927, and sought judgment for the full amount of said assessment.

Defendant says that these are the identical Trustees' Participation Certificates issued by the six Trustees above named.

Defendant says that none of the National Bank of Kentucky stock, represented by said 540,484 Trustees' Participation Certificates, stood in the name of the Banco-Kentucky Company, but all of said stock was registered on the books of the National Bank of Kentucky in the name of the six Trustees above referred to.

Defendant says that said action of Paul C. Keyes, as Receiver, involved the liability of said Banco-Kentucky Company in its corporate matters, which were within its charter powers.

Defendant says that said action was defended by Banco-Kentucky Company, by said Laurent, Receiver of the Banco-Kentucky Company, but an opinion was rendered in said action, holding that the Banco-Kentucky Company was the actual and real owner of all of said National Bank of Kentucky stock represented by said 540,484 Trustees' Participation Certificates and therefore liable to said assessment, and a finding of fact was made therein to the same effect, and a judgment rendered against said Banco-Kentucky Company of one hundred per cent assessment against all the National Bank of Kentucky stock represented by said Trustees' Participation Certificates.

Thereafter said action was appealed by the Banco-Kentucky Company to the Circuit Court of Appeals, for the Sixth Circuit, and the holding of the lower court, to the effect that the Banco-Kentucky Company was the beneficial owner of all of said National Bank of Kentucky stock represented by said Trustees' Participation Certificates, approved and said judgment of assessment affirmed.

Defendant says that he owned no stock in the National Bank of Kentucky, and that his only relationship, if any, to any National Bank of Kentucky stock was the ownership of stock in the Banco-Kentucky Company.

Defendant says that the assessment sought to be maintained against him and other defendants in this action arises out of the identical shares of stock held and owned by the Banco-Kentucky Company involved in the suit of Keyes (later Anderson) against Laurent, and for which a judgment was rendered in favor of said plaintiff.

Defendant pleads and relies upon the judgment as rendered in the above case as determinative of the ownership of the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky involved in this action.

PARAGRAPH IV.

The defendant says that the cause of action set out in the Bill of Complaint is barred by Section 2515, Kentucky Statutes, which requires that an action upon a liability created by statute, when no other time is fixed by the statute creating the liability, and an action for relief on the ground of fraud shall be commenced within five years next after the cause of action accrued, and she pleads and relies upon said statute in bar of plaintiff's action.

WHEREFORE, having fully answered, the defendant prays to be hence dismissed, with her costs herein expended, and for all further and proper relief.

REPLY OF A. M. ANDERSON TO ANSWER OF DAVID J. ABBOTT

(It is agreed that this Reply shall be considered Plaintiff's Reply to the Substituted Answer of Katherine Kirkpatrick Abbott.)

(Filed February 16, 1937)

Plaintiff, A. M. Anderson, Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky, for reply to the allegations of the twenty-seven grammatical paragraphs set out in Paragraph II (pp. 7 to 16) of the answer of the defendant, David J. Abbott, says:

(1st Gram. Par., p. 7.) Plaintiff admits the allegations in the 1st grammatical paragraph.

Reply to Answer of David J. Abbott

(2nd Gram. Par., p. 7.) Plaintiff states that the Banco-Kentucky Company was incorporated pursuant to the plan and for the purpose alleged in Paragraphs XI, XII, XIII and XIV, of plaintiff's bill of complaint.

(3rd Gram. Par., p. 8.) Plaintiff admits the allegations contained in said paragraph.

(5th Gram. Par., p. 9.) Plaintiff admits the allegations contained in said paragraph.

(6th Gram. Par., p. 9.) Plaintiff denies the allegations contained in said paragraph.

(7th Gram. Par., p. 9.) Plaintiff states that the defendant was one of the real, true and beneficial shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky. Plaintiff admits that said defendant never had any certificates of stock issued by the National Bank of Kentucky registered in his name or any trustees certificates registered in his name. Plaintiff states that the defendant by virtue of his ownership of stock of the BancoKentucky Company and by reason of the facts alleged in the petition was a real, true and beneficial shareholder of stock of the National Bank of Kentucky.

(8th Gram. Par., p. 10.) Plaintiff admits the allegations contained in said paragraph.

(9th Gram. Par., p. 10.) Plaintiff states that the plan and intention of the organizers of BancoKentucky Company is set out in Paragraphs XI, XII, XIII and XIV of the petition. Plaintiff admits that approximately 400,000 shares of BancoKentucky Company stock was subscribed for at Twenty-five ($25.00) Dollars per share and plaintiff admits that Nine Million, Eight Hundred Sixty-nine Thousand, Six Hundred and Fifty ($9,869,650.00) Dollars was received by the BancoKentucky Company by virtue of such subscriptions. Plaintiff denies all other allegations contained in said paragraph.

(11th Gram. Par., p. 11.) Plaintiff denies that after the receivership of the National Bank of Kentucky W. T. ZurSchmiede was cashier of the bank and plaintiff denies that after the appointment of a receiver for the BancoKentucky Company said W. T. ZurSchmiede was secretary of said BancoKentucky Company. Plaintiff admits all of the other allegations contained in said paragraph.

(13th Gram. Par., p. 11.) Plaintiff says that his predecessor, Paul C. Keyes, had access to many of the books and records of said BancoKentucky Company and examined such books and records as were available and plaintiff admits that as such receiver his predecessor had a list of the stockholders of the BancoKentucky Company. Plaintiff denies that he or his predecessor had access to all of the records and papers of the BancoKentucky Company. Plaintiff denies all other allegations contained in said paragraph.

(15th Gram. Par., p. 11.) Plaintiff denies that the records of the National Bank of Kentucky showed three classes of stockholders, if by said allegation defendant intends direct and immediate holders of certificates of stock issued by said National Bank of Kentucky. Plaintiff states that the stock register of the National Bank of Kentucky shows that the stock was outstanding in the names of the individuals serving as directors and in the names of six trustees. Plaintiff states that the stock registered in the names of the directors was transferred to them for the simulated purpose of complying with the National Banking Act but plaintiff states that said directors agreed at the time of said transfer to endorse said stock and to re-deliver the same to said six trustees, and plaintiff says that said directors did actually endorse said stock and re-deliver the same to said six trustees, and plaintiff states that said directors signed agreements transferring the dividends on said certificates to said trustees. Plaintiff states that said transfer and re-transfer was in violation of the National Banking Act and was all performed for the purpose of consummating the control and ownership of the National Bank of Kentucky by the defendants and other shareholders of the BancoKentucky Company who were the real and beneficial owners of stock of said national bank.

(16th Gram. Par., p. 12.) Plaintiff admits the allegations contained in said paragraph but plaintiff states that the books and records of said bank showed who were the holders of Trustees Participation Certificates and also showed who were the stockholders of the BancoKentucky Company.

(17th Gram. Par., p. 12.) Plaintiff admits the allegations contained in said paragraph.

(18th Gram. Par., p. 12.) Plaintiff admits that no attempt was made to collect said assessment from the trustees but plaintiff denies that the reason therefor was properly or correctly set out in the answer of the defendant.

(20th Gram. Par., p. 12.) Plaintiff admits that his predecessor, Paul C. Keyes, filed an action in this court, numbered 1383, but plaintiff denies all other allegations contained in this said paragraph and plaintiff specifically denies that any election was made by virtue of the filing of said suit or by virtue of the proceedings taken in said action.

(21st Gram. Par., p. 13.) Plaintiff admits that the quoted matter appearing at pages 13, 14 and 15 of the defendant's answer are excerpts from the petition in said action No. 1383. For fuller reference to said petition, plaintiff refers to the printed copy of the transcript of record in said cause which has been filed in this court by the defendant along with his amended answer, but plaintiff denies that the allegations contained in said previous action are material to the present suit and plaintiff moves to strike from the record all reference to said prior suit.

(22nd Gram. Par., p. 15.) Plaintiff admits that judgment was secured in the sum of Three Million, Seven Hundred Seventy-two Thousand, One Hundred Sixty-two and 40/100 ($3,772,162.40) Dollars, with interest in the action above referred to. For further particularity concerning said judgment plaintiff refers to the record in said action. Plaintiff says that the allegations of the paragraph in defendant's answer herein referred to are immaterial and irrelevant to the issues and plaintiff moves the court to strike said paragraph.

(23rd Gram. Par., p. 15.) Plaintiff denies that it secured a finding of fact as set out in said paragraph but plaintiff admits that the court made such a finding of fact and plaintiff further says that said findings are immaterial and irrelevant to the issues in the present suit and plaintiff moves that said allegations be stricken.

(24th Gram. Par., p. 16.) Plaintiff denies that it secured a finding of law as set out in said paragraph but plaintiff admits that the court made such a finding of law and plaintiff states that the allegation in said paragraph is immaterial and irrelevant to the issues set forth in plaintiff's bill of complaint and moves the court to strike said allegations.

(25th Gram. Par., p. 16.) Plaintiff admits that the Receiver of BancoKentucky Company appealed said action to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit and plaintiff states that the argument on said appeal was in accordance with the allegations set out in the petition filed in said previous action; plaintiff further says that the allegations contained in the paragraph of defendant's answer herein referred to are immaterial and irrelevant to the issues set forth in the bill of complaint in this suit and plaintiff further moves the court to strike said paragraph.

(26th Gram. Par., p. 16.) Plaintiff admits that the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit affirmed the decision in said action at law. Plaintiff refers the court to the opinion of said Circuit Court of Appeals, reported in 72 Fed. 2nd 819, for the reasons assigned by said court in affirming said judgment. Plaintiff says that the allegations of said paragraph are immaterial and irrelevant to the issues in the present suit and therefore moves the court to strike said paragraph.

(27th Gram. Par., p. 17.) Plaintiff denies that any action of this plaintiff or his predecessor, Paul C. Keyes, constituted an election of remedies or a bar to this suit against the defendant, David J. Abbott.

PARAGRAPH III.

For reply to the allegations set out in the 15 grammatical paragraphs contained in Paragraph III (pages 17 to 20) of the answer of the defendant, David J. Abbott, plaintiff says:

(1st Gram. Par., p. 17.) Plaintiff admits that Banco-Kentucky Company was organized under the laws of Delaware on July 16, 1929, but plaintiff denies that said corporation ever functioned as an independent corporation and plaintiff says that said corporation was organized and conducted as a corporate entity and instrumentality of the shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company.

(2nd Gram. Par., p. 17.) Plaintiff admits the allegations contained in said paragraph.

(3rd Gram. Par., p. 17.) Plaintiff denies the allegations contained in said paragraph. Plaintiff states that 540,384 Trustees Participation Shares out of a total of 570,550 of said Trustees Participation Shares were transferred by the holders thereof for stock in the BancoKentucky Company pursuant to the plan and for the purposes set out in Paragraphs XI, XII and XIII of the plaintiff's bill of complaint and plaintiff states that said transferors remained at all times the real and beneficial owners of the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky.

(5th Gram. Par., p. 18.) Plaintiff admits the allegations contained in said paragraph.

(7th Gram. Par., p. 18.) Plaintiff admits that Paul C. Keyes as Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky filed an action against Joseph S. Laurent, Receiver, to recover on an assessment and plaintiff states that said action was docketed in this court as No. 1383; for more complete reference thereto plaintiff refers to the allegations contained in the petition in said action as set out in the transcript attached to defendant's answer.

(8th Gram. Par., p. 19.) Plaintiff admits that the Trustees Participation Certificates referred to in said prior action are the 540,484 Trustees Participation Certificates referred to in Paragraph II of plaintiff's bill of complaint.

(9th Gram. Par., p. 19.) Plaintiff admits that the certificates of stock issued by said National Bank of Kentucky, represented by said Trustees Participation Certificates, stood in the name of said Trustees upon the books of said bank.

(10th Gram. Par., p. 19.) Plaintiff states that the 10th grammatical paragraph contained in defendant's answer contains a question of law and plaintiff neither denies nor admits the same, but plaintiff refers to the transcript of record in said cause. Plaintiff says that said allegation is irrelevant and immaterial to the issues in this suit and moves the court to strike the same.

(11th Gram. Par., p. 19.) Plaintiff admits that said action was defended by Laurent as Receiver of Banco-Kentucky Company and that an opinion was rendered in said action and that a finding of fact was made therein and that a judgment was rendered against the BancoKentucky Company. Plaintiff refers the court to said opinion and the record in said cause for more complete answer to the allegations contained in the petition referred to but plaintiff says that the allegations in said paragraph are immaterial and irrelevant to the issues in this suit and moves the court to strike the same.

(12th Gram. Par., p. 19.) Plaintiff admits that said action was appealed to the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit of the United States and that the findings of fact and conclusions of the trial court were approved and the judgment affirmed. Plaintiff refers the court to the transcript of the record in said action and to the opinion of the Circuit Court of Appeals for the matters therein determined. Plaintiff further says that the allegations set forth in said paragraph are immaterial and irrelevant to the issues in this suit and moves the court to strike the same.

Plaintiff states that the defendant was the real, actual and beneficial owner of stock of the National Bank of Kentucky, as set out in plaintiff's bill of complaint. Plaintiff admits that the defendant never had any certificates of stock issued by the National Bank of Kentucky recorded in his name.

(14th Gram. Par., p. 20.) Plaintiff admits that the claims sought to be enforced against the defendant, David J. Abbott, and the other defendants in this action arises out of the same stock of the National Bank of Kentucky represented by the Trustees Participation Certificates registered in the name of the BancoKentucky Company and involved in the action styled Keyes v. Laurent, in which action judgment was rendered in favor of the plaintiff.

(15th Gram. Par., p. 20.) Plaintiff denies that the judgment in said action was determinative of any of the issues involved in this suit and moves the court to strike from the answer of the defendant, David J. Abbott, all reference to said action or to any proceedings had therein.

Wherefore, having fully replied, plaintiff renews the prayer set forth in his bill of complaint.

ANSWER OF G. A. HEUSER, EXECUTOR OF THE ESTATE OF HENRY VOGT, DECEASED, WILLIAM S. SPEED, SAUNDERS P. JONES, ALLAN P. DODD, ET AL., SIMILARLY SITUATED

(Filed December 7, 1937, and refiled February 3, 1939)

Paragraphs I and II of this answer are substantially the same as Paragraphs I and II of the substituted answer of Katherine Kirkpatrick Abbott, Administratrix of the Estate of David J. Abbott, deceased, and are, therefore, omitted.

PARAGRAPH III

Defendant, for further answer herein, says that the BancoKentucky Company was a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Delaware on July 16th, 1929, and thereafter continued to function as an independent corporation.

Defendant says that the Articles of Incorporation of said BancoKentucky Company contain the following provision:

> "Third: The nature of the business or objects or purposes proposed to be transacted, promoted or carried on are:
> "The acquiring by purchase or otherwise of all or any portion of the capital stock, property, assets and franchises of any or all corporations transacting business in any State of the United States; the purchasing, holding, selling, assigning, transferring, mortgaging, pledging or otherwise disposing of shares of the capital stock of or any bonds, securities or evidence of indebtedness created by or issued by any other corporation or corporations organized under the laws of any State of the United States or of any foreign country and while the owner thereof to exercise all the rights, powers and privileges of ownership; the purchasing or otherwise acquiring of any promissory notes or other evidences of indebtedness executed by any person, firm, association or corporation; the financing, managing or operating of any commercial or manufacturing business or enterprise; the underwriting of any issue of stocks, bonds, debentures or other securities issued by any corporation; the charging of fees or commissions for any or all services rendered or advice or assistance given to any person, firm, association or corporation; acquiring and paying for in cash, stock or bonds of this corporation or otherwise, the good will, rights, assets and property of any person, firm, association or corporation and to undertake or assume the whole or any part of the obligations or liabilities of any person, firm or corporation."

Defendant says that the BancoKentucky Company, pursuant to the authority contained in its Articles of Incorporation above quoted, acquired by purchase or exchange all of the Trustees' Participation Certificates, representing stock in the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company held by Henry Vogt, Thomas J. Minary, Stuart E. Duncan, Allen P. Dodd, Charles H. Bohmer and Ben J. Metcalfe, as Trustees under a certain Trust Agreement, dated April 22nd, 1927.

Defendant says that the National Bank of Kentucky was and is a national banking association, organized under the laws of the United States, and on November 16, 1930, by resolution of its Board of Directors said bank was closed, and on November 17, 1930, the Comptroller of the Currency of the United States appointed Paul C. Keyes, Receiver of said bank. Said Keyes later resigned as receiver and A. M. Anderson was appointed by the Comptroller in said Keyes' place and substituted as a party in the suit hereafter referred to.

Thereafter on the 20th day of February, 1931, J. W. Pole, as Comptroller of the Currency of the United States, levied and made an assessment upon the stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky of one hundred per cent, amounting in all to $4,000,000.

On the 24th day of November, 1930, the Jefferson Circuit Court, Chancery Branch, Second Division, sitting at Louisville, Kentucky, in the case pending before said Court, appointed Joseph S. Laurent, Receiver of the Banco-Kentucky Company, and said Laurent thereafter qualified and gave bond in the amount required by the Court and continued to act as said receiver.

Thereafter said Paul C. Keyes, as Receiver, filed an action against Joseph S. Laurent, Receiver of the Banco-Kentucky Company, on said assessment and in said action claimed that the BancoKentucky Company was the holder and owner of 540,484 Trustees' Participation Certificates, which Trustees' Participation Certificates were issued under the terms of a certain Trust Agreement of April 22nd, 1927, and sought judgment for the full amount of said assessment.

Defendant says that these are the identical Trustees' Participation Certificates issued by the six Trustees above named.

Defendant says that none of the National Bank of Kentucky stock, represented by said 540,484 Trustees' Participation Certificates, stood in the name of the Banco-Kentucky Company, but all of said stock was registered on the books of the National Bank of Kentucky in the name of the six Trustees above referred to.

Defendant says that said action of Paul C. Keyes, as Receiver, involved the liability of said BancoKentucky Company in its corporate matters, which were within its charter powers.

Defendant says that said action was defended by Banco-Kentucky Company, by said Laurent, Receiver of the BancoKentucky Company, but an opinion was rendered in said action, holding that the BancoKentucky Company was the actual and real owner of all of said National Bank of Kentucky stock represented by said 540,484 Trustees' Participation Certificates and therefore liable to said assessment, and a finding of fact was made therein to the same effect, and a judgment rendered against said BancoKentucky Company of one hundred per cent assessment against all the National Bank of Kentucky stock represented by said Trustees' Participation Certificates.

Thereafter said action was appealed by the Banco-Kentucky Company to the Circuit Court of Appeals, for the Sixth Circuit, and the holding of the lower court, to the effect that the BancoKentucky Company was the beneficial owner of all of said National Bank of Kentucky stock represented by said Trustees' Participation Certificates, approved and said judgment of assessment affirmed.

Defendant says that his testator owned no stock in the National Bank of Kentucky, and that testator's only relationship, if any, to any National Bank of Kentucky stock was the ownership of stock in the BancoKentucky Company.

Defendant says that the assessment sought to be maintained against his testator and other defendants in this action arises out of the identical shares of stock held and owned by the BancoKentucky Company involved in the suit of Keyes (later Anderson) against Laurent, and for which a judgment was rendered in favor of said plaintiff.

Defendant pleads and relies upon the judgment rendered in the case herein referred to as a conclusive determination of the ownership of the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky involved in this case and as an estoppel by judgment of record or res judicata of the claims asserted herein.

WHEREFORE, having fully answered, defendant prays that the Bill of Complaint be dismissed, for his costs herein expended, and for all proper relief.

PARAGRAPH IV

The first literary paragraph of Paragraph IV of said answer alleges that the defendant was a director of the National Bank of Kentucky prior to the closing of said Bank November 16, 1930; that on that date he owned ten shares of the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky and that, upon the levying of the assessment upon the shareholders of said Bank, he paid the assessment on the said ten shares.

Paragraph IV of said answer continues as follows:—

Defendant says that following the closing of the National Bank of Kentucky Paul C. Keyes was appointed by the Comptroller of the Currency as receiver of said National Bank of Kentucky. This is the same Keyes referred to on page 3 of the Bill of Complaint herein.

Thereafter, to wit, on March 30, 1931, said Paul C. Keyes, as Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky, brought an action in the United States District Court, for the Western District of Kentucky, numbered 649 in Equity, against this defendant, and the other directors of said National Bank of Kentucky.

Said action sought to recover a judgment against this defendant and the other directors of the National Bank of Kentucky on account of various loans made and transactions entered into by said bank.

Defendant says that among the issues raised in said suit was the issue of whether the BancoKentucky Company was a corporation independent of the National Bank of Kentucky and whether the stock of said BencoKentucky Company was the same in law or equity as the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky, and whether the BancoKentucky Company was merely the alter ego of the Bank of Kentucky, or was a sham corporation that a court would look through in order to determine whether the stock of said BancoKentucky Company was the equivalent of the stock of said National Bank of Kentucky.

The issues so raised are fully set out in Paragraphs 328 to 385, inclusive, in the Bill of Complaint filed in said action.

Defendant says that thereafter proof was heard on said questions and a decision was rendered upon same by the Master appointed by the Federal District Court holding that said BancoKentucky Company was not the same as the National Bank of Kentucky and that the stock of said BancoKentucky Company was not the same as the stock of said National Bank of Kentucky.

Thereafter the District Court for the Western District of Kentucky in the same cause held that loans made upon the stock of BancoKentucky Company were in violation of Section 5201 Revised Statutes, Section 83, Title 12, U. S. C. A., providing that "no association shall make any loan or discount on the security of the shares of its own capital stock," as being loans on the security of its own capital stock and rendered a judgment against this defendant's testator and the other directors on the basis of their participation in a violation of the statute by the approval of said loans.

Defendant says that this defendant and the other directors of the National Bank of Kentucky appealed said holding to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, for the Sixth Circuit, and on said appeal said Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the ruling of the District Court and held, among other things, the following (Opinion pp. 27-33):

> "On July 16, 1929, Banco was incorporated under the laws of Delaware, and authorized to issue two million shares of the par value of $10.00 each. The broadest powers available under the laws of Delaware were obtained, and on July 19th the officers and directors of the bank and those of the Louisville Trust Company, addressed to holders of trust participation certificates a letter setting forth the plan of organization. Banco stock was to be sold at not less than $25.00 per share, but two shares of Banco were to be exchanged for each trust participation certificate. Since these certificates represented bank and trust company stock having a book value of $16.46, the proposal was an attractive one, resulting in the great majority of participation certificate holders making the exchange. There followed also an active campaign by officers and employees of both the bank and the trust company to promote the sale of Banco shares, as a result of which 394,786 shares of Banco were sold, and $9,869,650 paid into the treasury of the new corporation. Its stock was listed upon the Chicago Exchange, and reached $33.00 per share, though inference is warranted that market quotations were considerably influenced by transactions manipulated by Brown through Wakefield & Company.

"From September 26, 1929, to the date of the Bank's suspension, numerous loans were made by the bank, approved by its directors, to finance the purchase of Banco shares. In all, approximately $4,000,000 was loaned by the bank on notes secured wholly or in part by shares of Banco, most of the loans being approved after October 1, 1929.

"Prior to September 11, 1929, negotiations had been begun by the BancoKentucky Company for the purchase of two Cincinnati banks, the Pearl Market Bank & Trust Company and the Brighton Bank & Trust Company, and on September 25, 1929, a contract for the purchase of a controlling interest in each was concluded—though they were actually taken over some time later. The consideration included shares of Banco, which on the basis of $25.00 per share represented a total of $2,159,875. When most of the assailed loans were made on Banco stock the situation was substantially as follows: Banco owned 470,000 of a total of 575,000 trust participation certificates representing ownership of stock in the Bank and in the Louisville Trust Company, it had subscriptions to its own stock in the amount of $10,000,000, on which $5,784,875 had been paid by October 1, 1929, and $9,222,451.21 by October 10, 1929, and it had concluded the purchase of a controlling interest in the two Cincinnati banks. The master accordingly found that 'It was thus clearly not contemplated in the beginning, or intended at any time, that the BancoKentucky Company should be organized merely as a holding company for the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky,' a finding not rejected by the District Judge.

"The failure of the BancoKentucky Company followed by but a few days the closing of the Bank. Whether the second catastrophe was a consequence of the first, or both the inevitable result of the financial debacle of the period invites interesting but for our purpose idle speculation. What is important is that many of the loans made on Banco stock became uncollectible and the security insofar as it consisted of such stock worthless. The legal basis for the liability asserted against the appellants for resulting loss is Sec. 5201 R. S., being Sec. 83, Title 12, U. S. C. It provides that 'No association shall make any loan or discount on the security of the shares of its own capital stock, nor be the purchaser or holder of any such shares, unless such security or purchase shall be necessary to prevent loss upon a debt previously contracted in good faith.' While Sec. 83 provides no penalty, Sec. 93, already recited in another connection, is applicable to all violations of the statute. It imposes a civil liability on all directors who knowingly violate or knowingly permit a violation of any of its provisions.

"It has been said that, 'Where a statute creates a duty and prescribes a penalty for non-performance, the rule prescribed in the statute is the exclusive test of liability.' Yates v. Jones National Bank, supra, 179. Whether these sections of the statute are therefore penal, requiring strict construction, as has sometimes been indicated (Chase v. Curtis, 113 U. S. 452; Park Bank v. Remsen, 158 U. S. 337), or whether, since they give a civil remedy at the private suit of the receiver for the benefit of stockholders and depositors, with damages measured by the losses consequentially suffered, they are in this respect remedial (Huntington v. Attrill, 146 U. S. 657; cf. Brady v. Daly, 175 U. S. 148, 155), we need not determine. In either view a statute that is clear and unambiguous requires, under familiar rules, no straining of its terms, either to include within its condemnation offenses or persons other than those which are clearly prescribed and provided for, or to exclude from its operation offenses which the words, in their ordinary acceptation, would comprehend.

"The decree awarded damages for all losses suffered by the bank in consequence of loans made on Banco stock, not only on the court's assumption that the relation of the two corporations was such that equity must ignore the separate corporate existence of Banco and treat its stock as in substance and effect the stock of the bank, but also on the ground that the very words of the statute require an adjudication of liability. The latter conclusion was based on the use in the statute of the phrase 'on the security of the shares of its own capital stock.' If we follow the argument in this respect, it means that all loans are invalid whose security is supported to any extent by the value of the stock of the lending bank, whether deposited as collateral or not, for the point is made that loans are forbidden not merely on certificates representing shares of the bank's capital, nor yet on the shares themselves, but on the security of its shares. Statutory construction, however, even where required, must by all accepted canons of interpretation be reasonable, and even were we to assume ambiguity, a reading of the words of the act must be rejected which leads upon analysis to unreasonable if not indeed to absurd results, and establishes such standard of duty for bank directors that either compliance becomes wholly impossible or risk of violation so great that honest men will not assume it.

"If invalidity attaches to every loan for the repayment of which recourse may ultimately be required to assets of the debtor which include stock of the lending bank, and that is in essence the meaning sought to be given to the phrase 'on the security of the shares of its own capital stock' then all loans are suspect, regardless of the financial standing of the debtor or the intrinsic worth of his collateral. The directors must at their peril ascertain whether securities offered as collateral, including not only stocks but bonds and mortgages, are those of a corporation owning stock of the bank or of a corporation which holding no bank stock itself, owns shares in other corporations which do. The bank may not loan to its own stockholders, individual or corporate, with or without security, for ultimately it may have to acquire its own stock either by foreclosure of collateral or upon execution levy. That no such meaning may, however, be ascribed to the phrase in question is indicated by the very language which follows it, to wit, 'unless such security or purchase shall be necessary to prevent loss upon a debt previously contracted in good faith.'

"It is common knowledge that when in 1933 the banks were closed by executive order, some never to reopen, a number of large industrial corporations relieved the financial paralysis induced thereby in localities within their sphere of influence by establishing new banks, with the aid and encouragement of the banking authorities. Had it been thought at that time that the stock of such corporations, by reason of their ownership of bank stock, would be made unavailable as collateral with the banking facility thus provided, especially at a time of greatest necessity for stockholders, there is reason to doubt that this aid to stricken communities would have been forthcoming, for the interpretation now urged if then accepted would have inevitably prevented the exercise of private corporate initiative in the public interest, and have accentuated consequences already grievous. We are unable for another reason also to conclude that Sec. 83 in terms forbids loans on corporate securities other than the shares of the bank's own capital stock whatever may be the holding of such stock by the corporation issuing such securities. Section 5137 of the Banking Act, Title 12, Sec. 29, U. S. C., until amended in June 1933, prohibited loans on the security of real estate. National Bank v. Mathews, 98 U. S. 621. It had not been thought, however, that this prohibition extended to the stock of corporations owning real estate. Baldwin v. Canfield, 26 Minn. 43; Western Improvement Co. v. Des Moines National Bank, 103 Ia.

455; cf. National Bank v. Mathews, supra; National Bank v. Whitney, 103 U. S. 109; Fortier v. New Orleans Bank, 112 U. S. 439; Gamble v. Brown, 29 Fed. (2d) 366 (C. C. A. 4), cert. denied 279 U. S. 366. Nor can any distinction be made between the shares of corporations holding a little stock in the bank and those holding much, for as the court below well said: 'This statute does not deal with degrees . . . the prohibition (if it exists) is absolute.'

"We come then to the question whether the relation between the bank and the BancoKentucky Company was such that a court of equity would be warranted in disregarding the existence of Banco as a separate corporate entity. It is true that Banco was conceived in the vaulting imagination of the president of the bank; that it was promoted and fostered by the appellants; that the directorates of the two corporations, though not identical, overlapped; that the great majority of trust participation certificates representing stock in the bank became the property of Banco, and that there is a suggestion of identity in the name adopted for the new company. But Banco was not a mere holding company for the bank's stock. It was organized for clearly defined purposes, too optimistically conceived, perhaps, but neither illegitimate nor unlawful. It had its own capital with cash resources at one period almost twice the entire capital and surplus of the bank. While in the very beginning the bank stock may, as found by the court, have been its principal asset, and may have continued thereafter to be its most valuable single asset, it had other assets of very substantial value, and it was warrantable inference at the time of its organization and for a substantial period thereafter that it could well meet any assessment that might be levied upon it as a stockholder of the bank. At any rate there is nothing in the record to point to its creation for the purpose of escaping such assessment. Indeed when the assessment was finally made by the Comptroller it was enforced against Banco and not against the stockholders. See Laurent v. Anderson, supra. Its separate corporate existence was recognized by the very receiver on whose behalf we are now asked to ignore it.

"The circumstances under which one corporation will be held to be but the alter ego of another were recently fully considered by us in Shepherd, Trustee, v. Banking & Trust Co., 79 Fed. (2d) 767, 769. We there approved the doctrine of Pittsburgh & Buffalo Co. v. Duncan, 232 Fed. 584, 587 (C. C. A. 6), to the effect that: 'The mere fact that the stockholders in two or more corporations are the same, or that one corporation exercises a control over the other through ownership of its stock, or through identity of its stockholders, does not make either the agent of the other, nor does it merge them into one . . . where each corporation is separately organized under a distinct charter' and likewise gave approval to the exceptions to this general rule announced in New York Trust Co. v. Carpenter, 250 Fed. 668, 672 (C. C. A. 6), and approved in Hooper-Mankin Co. v. Mathew Addy Co., 4 Fed. (2d) 187, 189 (C. C. A. 6), where it was said:

> "'From an examination of many decisions, we venture to say that no corporation acting within its powers has been held liable for the debts of another corporation legally organized, because it controls such corporation by reason of ownership of its stock, or otherwise, except by reason of contract or on grounds of agency, or of estoppel, or because the controlled corporation has been used in such a way that the maintenance of its character as a separate and distinct entity would work injustice.'

"The principle has been affirmatively stated in the Ninth Circuit (Martin v. Development Co. of America, 240 Fed. 42) thus: 'A holding corporation has a separate existence and is to be treated as a separate entity, unless facts are averred which show that such separate corporate existence is a mere sham, or has been used as an instrument for concealing the truth, or where the organization and control are shown to be such that it is but an instrumentality of another corporation.'

"The BancoKentucky Company was certainly not a sham, for nearly ten million dollars of actual cash paid for its stock attest its reality, and there is nothing in the record to point to it as an instrumentality of the bank. Nor was it organized for a fraudulent purpose or to conceal secret or sinister enterprises conducted for the benefit of the bank. The master absolved the appellants of all suspicion of bad faith and the court approved his finding in the last of three carefully reasoned opinions (11 Fed. Supp. 9, 14). Certainly we must accept this as the deliberate judgment of the court rather than as a euphemism, easing the blow to the sensibilities as it fell heavily upon the purse.

"The decree must be reversed insofar as it awards damages against any of the appellants for losses suffered by the bank in consequence of loans on shares of the BancoKentucky Company."

Further amending their answer herein, and for supplement thereto, the defendants file herewith as a part hereof a complete copy of the pleadings and exhibits filed in Equity Action No. 649, and mark the same for identity Exhibit "A." (See Dfts. Exhibit 1.)

In said bill in action No. 649, the plaintiff, among other things, sought recovery against the defendant directors of the National Bank of Kentucky, as one of his causes of action therein asserted, for $2,250,000.00 upon the ground that said directors had approved loans made by the National Bank of Kentucky on the security of the capital stock of the BancoKentucky Company in violation of Section 83, Title "Banks and Banking" of the United States Code, in that loans upon BancoKentucky Company stock were loans upon stock of the National Bank of Kentucky, and that thereafter the said defendants filed an answer to said bill, denying the allegations of the bill with respect to each and every matter set forth therein in that particular, including the allegations of the bill with reference to the question as to whether or not the stock of the BancoKentucky Company was the same as the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky; likewise in said bill recovery was sought on the ground that the BancoKentucky Company was organized in fraud and promoted for the use and benefit of the stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky, and for the personal benefit of the directors and stockholders of said company, and for the purpose of evading other sections of the United States Statutes; that said BancoKentucky Company was a mere holding company for the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky and Louisville Trust Company, the purpose of which was to divert funds from the bank for the enrichment of the stockholders engaged in ventures not permitted to said national bank under the laws of the United States. A true and correct copy of the original bill, giving the names of all the defendants, is set forth in Exhibit "A," beginning at page 1 thereof, the allegations with reference to BancoKentucky Company being Paragraphs 328 to 385, both inclusive, and appear at pages 104 to 121, both inclusive, of said Exhibit "A."

Upon the issues thus joined, proof was taken in support of said bill with reference to said BancoKentucky Company stock, and in support of the defenses interposed thereto by the directors of said bank, involving said questions and issues aforesaid, the Transcript of which proof is filed herewith as a part hereof and marked for identity Exhibits "B" and "B-1." (See Dfts. Exhibit 1.)

Exhibit "A" aforesaid was authenticated as being a true and correct copy of all the pleading and exhibits contained in the original bill, together with the answer and the matters therein set forth, by the plaintiff in said cause, who is the same person as the plaintiff in this cause, and likewise Exhibits "B" and "B-1" were authenticated as being a true and correct copy of the evidence heard with reference to BancoKentucky Company loans by the plaintiff in said cause.

They further say that after the said bill was filed and answer thereto filed, the said cause was referred to the Hon. William P. Sandidge, Special Master, who heard all of the proof in said cause and finally made his report on the issues of fact and questions of law presented with reference to said BancoKentucky Company aforesaid, which report of the Special Master is in Exhibit "A" aforesaid, and recorded at pages 236 to 533, both inclusive.

Both plaintiff and defendants filed exceptions to the report of the Special Master, and said cause came on to be heard before the Hon. Arthur J. Tuttle, sitting as Special Judge of the Federal District Court for the Western District of Kentucky, and after a full and complete hearing, rendered his opinion, which opinion with reference to said BancoKentucky Company matters hereinabove referred to is recorded in Exhibit "A" hereto, beginning at page 823.

The plaintiff in said suit against said directors aforesaid, as shown from Exhibit "A" at page 663, set forth his conception of the questions for decision by the District Court aforesaid as follows:

> "(a) That all loans secured by BancoKentucky Company stock were illegal because in fact constituting loans on the security of stock of the Bank, within the meaning of the prohibition contained in Section 83 of the title Banks and Banking of the United States Code; and that defendant directors are liable for all resulting losses under Section 93 of such title Banks and Banking; and this, as decided by the courts in respect to other violations of law, without regard to the financial condition of the borrower, or the value of the security at the time the loan in question was made (subdivision 1-2, 34, Sec. 29 of Plaintiff's Bill);

"(b) That all loans on BancoKentucky Company stock, made to finance subscriptions and the payment of subscriptions to such stock, were illegal, because constituting temporary or permanent diversions of the funds of the Bank into the treasury of another corporation to enable such corporation to transact a business for the profit of the persons directly or indirectly owning the stock of the Bank, beyond the scope of the permission of the National Banking Act, and without the restrictions of such act, and ultra vires of the powers of a national bank;

"(c) That loans on BancoKentucky Company stock made to finance subscriptions and the payment of subscriptions to such stock, constituted temporary or permanent diversions of the funds of the bank, for the promotion and assistance of a corporation in which such defendant directors were pecuniarily largely interested, and which such defendant directors similarly directed and controlled, and from the payment to which of the subscription price ($25) of each share of stock each defendant director individually profited because, among other reasons, he himself possessed a large quantity of such stock, the book or asset value of which was substantially increased by such cash payment of $25.00 for the same, and constituted violations of the fiduciary duty of the defendant directors, inconsistent with ordinary care and fidelity in the handling of the funds of the Bank, and visiting upon them the consequences of all ensuing losses on such loans, irrespective of the financial condition of the borrowers at the time the loans were made (Subdivisions 34, 42, 44 of Sec. 29, and subdivision (n) of Sec. 293 of Plaintiff's Bill)."

They further say that pursuant to the opinion of said Judge of the Western District Court of Kentucky, certain findings of fact and conclusions of law were entered, and a decree based thereon, which findings of fact, conclusions of law and decree are found in Exhibit "A" hereto; the basis for the findings of fact and conclusions of law as well as for the decree with reference to loans on Banco-Kentucky Company stock was substantially as outlined and copied hereinabove.

Copies of all of the proceedings had in said court, all of the pleadings filed in said court, as well as all decrees entered in said court in said cause are set out in the Transcript marked Exhibit "A."

They further say that as shown from said Exhibit "A," an appeal was prosecuted to the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit, came on to be heard before said Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit, and, on appeal, an opinion was rendered by said Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals, copy of which opinion is set forth in the Transcript of Record of the proceedings had in said cause in said Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals, which is filed herewith as a part hereof and marked for identity Exhibit "C"; that Exhibit "C" was likewise authenticated as a true and correct copy of said proceedings by the plaintiff in said equity action No. 649 aforesaid.

That thereafter an appeal was prosecuted from the judgment of the aforesaid Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals to the Supreme Court of the United States, and as result the said Supreme Court of the United States reversed said cause and remanded it to the said Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals with directions to take up and consider, among other things, the question of negligence with reference to loans made upon the stock of the BancoKentucky Company; a copy of the opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States is filed herewith as a part hereof and marked for identity Exhibit "C-1"; and the said Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals rendered its opinion on said question on the 16th day of November, 1938, copy of which opinion is filed herewith as a part hereof and marked for identity Exhibit "D."

Thereafter, and pursuant to the opinion of said Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit, the mandate was duly issued thereon and said cause was remanded to the District Court for the Western District of Kentucky, and an amended decree was entered pursuant to the aforesaid opinions of said Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit in the following language, to wit:

> "It is adjudged that none of the nonofficer-directors of the National Bank of Kentucky of Louisville are liable to the plaintiff, under Section 93 of Chapter 2 of the Title, Banks and Banking of the United States Code, or on common law principles of negligence for the losses sustained by the Bank on account of moneys supplied on loans collateraled, in whole or in part, by stock of the BancoKentucky Company and set out in Paragraph 45 of the original decree herein."

Defendants file herewith as a part hereof copy of said amended decree and mark the same for identity Exhibit "E."

They further say that said judgment so entered was a final judgment, is still in full force and effect and has never been modified or set aside, and no appeal has been prosecuted therefrom.

They further say that in the bill so filed, the said plaintiff, Paul Keyes, in the first instance, and A. M. Anderson, in the second instance, brought said suit for the use and benefit of the depositors and creditors of the National Bank of Kentucky, and that the said A. M. Anderson, who finally prosecuted said suit, as such Receiver, to its finality aforesaid, is the same A. M. Anderson who is prosecuting this suit, and that this suit was filed by A. M. Anderson for the use and benefit of the same persons for whom the said equity action No. 649 aforesaid was filed, and that the questions which were necessary to be determined with reference to BancoKentucky Company stock in said equity action No. 649 were:

(a) Whether or not the stock of the BancoKentucky Company was the same as the capital stock of the National Bank of Kentucky.

(b) Whether or not the BancoKentucky Company was a separate corporation, organized for a bona fide, legal and legitimate purpose, and such a distinct corporation that the courts were powerless to look through the corporate veil of said company to ascertain the character of its assets, or, to state it differently, whether the BancoKentucky Company was the alter ego of the National Bank of Kentucky.

(c) Whether or not the BancoKentucky Company was merely a holding company organized for the purpose of holding the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky and Louisville Trust Company.

(d) Whether or not the BancoKentucky Company was organized, came into existence and performed in violation of any of the Statutes of the United States of America.

(e) Whether or not the owners of the Trustees' Participating Receipts, issued under the Trust Agreement referred to in said proceedings, organized the BancoKentucky Company for their own personal and private enrichment and for the purpose of evading double assessment upon the Trustees' Participating Receipts.

(f) Whether or not the BancoKentucky Company was a sham corporation.

As is shown from the exhibits filed herewith as a part hereof, the plaintiff in that suit, being the same person as the plaintiff in this suit, introduced in support of the position of the plaintiff in that suit, all of the records of the National Bank of Kentucky, the records of the Banco-Kentucky Company, and substantially the same proof as has been introduced by plaintiff in support of his cause in this case, and that the foregoing issues and questions necessary to be decided in said action No. 649 aforesaid are the same issues that the plaintiff in this action is undertaking to relitigate in this proceeding, and the court, in said action No. 649, which court had jurisdiction to hear and determine all of said questions, decided each and all of said questions finally against the contentions and adverse to the plaintiff in that cause, and the plaintiff in that case represented, as such Receiver, all of the creditors and depositors of the National Bank of Kentucky at that time, who, and all of them, are the same persons who are depositors and creditors of the National Bank of Kentucky for and in whose behalf this proceeding was filed, and the decision of each and all of the foregoing questions of law and issues of fact by the court in that case was a complete adjudication by the court, which is binding and conclusive upon the plaintiff in this case, all of which questions are more particularly shown in said exhibits filed herewith; that by reason of all the foregoing facts the said plaintiff in that cause, who is the plaintiff in this cause, is now forever estopped from again relitigating each or any of said questions of law and issues of fact, which estoppel and res judicata these defendants now plead in bar of the plaintiff's right to further prosecute this action as against any of the defendants, non-officer directors in action No. 649, or against the personal representatives of any of said directors who have, since the filing of said action No. 649, died; that each and all of said non-officer directors sued in this cause are the same persons whose names appear herein and who were sued in the aforesaid action No. 649.

PARAGRAPH V

Defendant says that after the closing of the Bank on March 30th, 1931, Paul C. Keyes, as Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky, who has been succeeded as Receiver by A. M. Anderson, plaintiff herein, filed an action against this defendant and the other directors of the National Bank of Kentucky, in which some of the same issues that were involved in this suit were involved, that among other things was the solvency of the Bank at all times subsequent to 1926 and prior to and including October 1st, 1930; that the question arose in that case on the right of the directors of the National Bank of Kentucky to declare and pay dividends of $160,000 each on April 1st, 1927, July 1st, 1927, October 1st, 1927, January 2nd, 1928, April 1st, 1928, July 1st, 1928, October 1st, 1928, January 2nd, 1929, April 1st, 1929, July 1st, 1929, October 1st, 1929, January 2nd, 1930, April 1st, 1930, July 1st, 1930, and October 1st, 1930.

Defendant says that the National Bank of Kentucky at all times during the above period had a capital stock of $4,000,000 and a surplus of $2,000,000, in addition to undivided profits; that the contention was made by the Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky, that each of the dividends above declared was unlawful in that they violated Sections 56 and 60 of Title 12 of the United States Code, by paying a dividend out of the surplus of the Bank intead of out of undivided profits of the Bank. Evidence was offered upon said issue as to each dividend by both plaintiff and defendants in said cause and, after a full hearing before William P. Sandidge, the Special Master in said cause, said Special Master adjudged that said dividends had all been legally paid.

Thereafter exceptions were filed to said report by the Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky and, after full arguments and briefs, the District Court of the United States, for the Western District of Kentucky, in which Court said suit was pending, likewise adjudged that said dividends were all properly paid, saying:

> "The Master disallowed this claim in its entirety, finding that the evidence failed to show any facts indicating any statutory violation by any of the directors or any negligence on their part in connection with these dividends. The Master discussed and analyzed, at great length and in much detail, numerous debts which the plaintiff claims should have been charged off as statutory bad debts, and after painstaking and thorough consideration of such debts and of the other relevant facts and circumstances the Master found that the evidence did not sustain this claim of the plaintiff. To recite or review these details would unduly prolong this opinion and would serve no useful purpose. It is sufficient to say that the findings of the Master are convincingly supported by the record. It is entirely clear, and I find, that the witnesses on whom the plaintiff relied in this connection had no personal knowledge of the facts concerning which they assumed to testify. There is no competent evidence sufficient to sustain the burden resting on the plaintiff of proving that any of these dividends were paid out of capital of the bank or were not paid out of its net profits after deducting therefrom its losses and bad debts, including all debts on which interest was past due and unpaid for a period of six months and which were not well secured and all debts in process of collection." . . .

Defendant further says that there was no appeal from said judgment by the Receiver and that same is in full force and effect and is conclusive of the issue between the Receiver in this case and the parties to that suit.

Defendant further says that, among other issues tried in said cause, was the correctness of the Minute Book of the National Bank of Kentucky, covering the period from 1927 to the close of the Bank, whether certain parts of the National Bank Examiners' reports had been read to the directors, whether various letters written by the Comptroller, or any of the letters written by the Comptroller, had ever been read or seen by the defendants, and whether certain other data concerning the condition of the Bank had been fraudulently concealed from the non-officer directors of the Bank, defendants herein, by the officer directors of said Bank, and evidence was heard upon all of said issues. The Master found such concealment had been made and that the directors were ignorant, without fault upon their part, of many things affecting the Bank, including those above stated.

After the Master's report was filed, exceptions to this were filed by the Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky and, after a full hearing before the District Court of the United States, for the Western District of Kentucky, where said action was pending, the District Court found as follows:

> "The Special Master found that all of these loans were secured, when made, by proper and sufficient collateral; that, because the defendant Brown was using Wakefield & Company as a means of obtaining the proceeds of these loans for his own personal benefit, he fraudulently caused to be concealed, from the non-officer directors, reports of bank examiners, letters from the Comptroller of the Currency, and other information which would have disclosed the character of such loans as loans to Wakefield & Company in excess of the statutory limit; that such directors did not have such information, had no reason to doubt the propriety of such loans, and, in approving them, relied on the officers of the bank to whom they had entrusted the administration of the details of its affairs; that such directors were not guilty of negligence in connection with such loans; and that, although the defendant officers were liable for the loss resulting from the making of these loans because they knew that such loans, should be grouped together as Wakefield & Company loans and, when so grouped, were in excess of the said statutory limit, yet the other defendants, being without that knowledge, were not so liable. Except as hereinafter pointed out, I am satisfied by the record that the findings of the Master just mentioned are supported by substantial evidence and that the Court would not be warranted in setting such findings aside. The nature and basis of these findings are indicated by the following quotations from the Master's report (pages 84-88), which I adopt:

" 'Of course, a bank president who has deliberately made up his mind to use the bank's funds in his personal business and speculations must think out a plan or scheme by which he imagines he can safely do this. . . . Brown clearly determined to use Wakefield & Company in his scheme for making personal use of the bank's money. . . . It is perfectly apparent that Brown and Jones, without protest from any member of the loan committee, were designedly omitting to read parts of the reports of the Examiners, concealing letters from the Comptroller, fraudulently evading the demands of that office, and continuously misleading the non-officer directors. The covering up which Brown and Jones were guilty of, and their acts of concealment in the presence, and with the acquiescence, of the other officers while the board of directors was in session, strongly indicates collusion between these parties, the purpose of which was to enable Brown, without the knowledge of the non-officer directors, to successfully extract funds from the bank in the name of Wakefield & Company, or its employes. . . . It is claimed that certain letters addressed by the Comptroller to the directors furnished actual notice to the members of the board of the fact that debts of Latta, Greer, Harris, Schweitzer, and Meagher were to be included with the debts of Wakefield & Company, and that there was consequently an excessive loan to that company. I do not think that any of these letters reached the board of directors notwithstanding the recitation in the minutes to that effect. . . . It is satisfactorily established that the minutes, after being read to the board, were fraudulently altered so as to show the presentation and consideration of these letters. The concealment of these letters from the board, and the fact that such questionable, not to say dangerous, means were resorted to to accomplish it, demonstrates the character of the collusion with which the directors were unknowingly surrounded. . . . There was ample motive for withholding the letters from the board of directors. The great weight of the proof is that they were withheld, and the alteration of the minute book, clearly established, is really a potent circumstance to prove that the letters were in fact withheld. The fabrication of evidence to show that they were presented to the board shows they were withheld. It seems to me that there was a concerted plan to do this because Brown and Jones did it successfully in the presence of others who knew and at the same time allowed it to be done without protest. Also this alteration in aid of the concealment of the letters from the board fits in with the claim that Brown did not read to the board any part of the bank examiner's reports reflecting on this indebtedness or in fact criticising any other loan which he desired to conceal. Going back to the reading of the examiner's reports by Brown to the board, it will be remembered that these reports were made in duplicate, one copy being furnished to the bank and the other to the Comptroller. Difficulty was encountered after the bank closed in finding or getting together the bank's copies. Some of them were found in Mr. Jones' safe, as were also the letters above referred to. Some of the reports had been taken apart and sheets removed. The defendants, after a time, secured certified copies of all reports from the Comptroller's office. Comparing these with the bank's copies of reports, it was found, and is established in the record, that the missing sheets in the bank's copies related to loans which had been severely criticised by the examiner.' "

Defendant says that a Motion for Rehearing was filed to this finding by the Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky, which was overruled and judgment entered thereon in accordance with these findings of fact and said findings of fact and said judgment have never been reversed or set aside and are still in full force and effect.

Defendant pleads and relies upon the findings of fact and the judgment hereinabove referred to as a bar to a retrial of the same issues in this cause.

Defendant also pleads the above facts set out in this paragraph, not only for himself, but for all others similarly situated and those in privity with them.

WHEREFORE, the defendants pray that their plea of res judicata and estoppel be sustained; and that the Bill of Complaint be dismissed, for their costs herein expended and for all proper relief.

MOTION OF DEFENDANTS PURSUANT TO EQUITY RULE No. 29

(Filed December 7, 1937)

"Pursuant to Equity Rule 29, defendants move the court

"(1) to hear and dispose of the Motion heretofore made by certain defendants to dismiss the Bill of Complaint, because same is insufficient in law and does not constitute a valid cause of action against the defendants;

"(2) to hear and dispose of, before the trial of the case, the legal validity of Paragraph II of the Answer of David J. Abbott;

"(3) to hear and dispose of, before the trial of the case, the legal validity of Paragraph III of the Answer of David J. Abbott; and

"(4) to hear and dispose of, before the trial of the case, the legal validity of Paragraph IV of the Answer of G. A. Heuser, as Executor of the estate of Henry Vogt, deceased.

"Defendants also move the court to strike from the Reply of A. M. Anderson, Receiver,

"(1) Paragraph numbered I, because same is not sufficient in law to support a claim against the defendant, David J. Abbott, or constitute an avoidance of Paragraph II of the Answer of said David J. Abbott;

"(2) Paragraph numbered III, because same is not sufficient in law to support a claim against the defendant, David J. Abbott, or constitute an avoidance of Paragraph III of the Answer of said David J. Abbott."

(Filed May 13, 1938.)

SWINFORD, Judge.

This case is before the court on motions that present the following questions for determination: The sufficiency of the bill of complaint; the legality of the defenses presented in paragraphs one and two of the answer.

On April 22, 1927, the stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company entered into an agreement whereby a majority of the capital stock of each company was transferred to six trustees. In lieu of the bank stock the beneficial owners of the stock were issued trustees' participation certificates, of the par value of $100 each. Later each share of the trust estate was divided into 10 shares of a par value of $10 each. There was issued and outstanding at the time the National Bank of Kentucky closed 570,550 such shares which represented 39,820 shares of the capital stock of the National Bank of Kentucky and 17,235 shares of the capital stock of the Louisville Trust Company.

In 1929 a third corporation known as BancoKentucky was organized under the laws of the state of Delaware. It had an authorized capital stock of 2,000,000 shares, of the par value of $10 each. The trustees' participation certificates held by the original stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company were exchanged for shares of the stock of BancoKentucky at the rate of two for one.

This exchange culminated in the owners of the trustees' participation certificates holding 1,080,768 shares of the capital stock of BancoKentucky. Of the remaining shares of stock 394,786 shares were sold and $9,869,650 paid into the treasury of BancoKentucky.

It is alleged that BancoKentucky was organized at the instance of the officers and directors of the National Bank of Kentucky and the officers and directors of the Louisville Trust Company and the trustees under the trust agreement of April 22, 1927, and proposed by them to the holders of the trustees' participation shares in the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company; that the holders of the trustees' participation shares represented approximately 95 per cent of the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company and that these trustees caused Banco Kentucky to be organized as their agency and instrumentality.

A receiver was appointed for BancoKentucky in November, 1930. The National Bank of Kentucky was closed by a resolution of its board of directors on November 16, 1930, and on the following day the Comptroller of the Currency appointed a receiver for the National Bank of Kentucky. This receiver, Paul C. Keyes, was later succeeded by the present receiver, A. M. Anderson.

On February 20, 1931, the Comptroller of the Currency levied an assessment upon the stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky payable not later than April 1, 1931.

On October 31, 1931, the receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky filed an action to recover the amount of the assessment against the receiver of BancoKentucky, and obtained a judgment for the amount of the assessment, to wit, $3,772,162.40. The judgment was entered on September 14, 1932. On appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals the judgment of the lower court was affirmed. Laurent v. Anderson, 6 Cir., 70 F. (2d) 819.

Under the judgment the receiver of BancoKentucky paid to the receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky the sum of $90,745.17 to be credited on the judgment. Thereafter, on February 17, 1936, the receiver for the National Bank of Kentucky brought this suit in equity against the stockholders of BancoKentucky, alleging individual liability to pay the assessment against shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky in the proportion that the respective shares of the BancoKentucky company bear to the total number of shares of BancoKentucky issued and outstanding at the date the National Bank of Kentucky closed.

The receiver here seeks to recover the sum of $3,771,464.22, subject to the credit of $90,745.17, paid on December 18, 1934, by the receiver of BancoKentucky.

The defenses to this bill of complaint raised by the motion to dismiss are as follows: (1) That it does not state a cause of action; (2) that it is barred by the statute of limitations; (3) that there is a misjoinder of parties defendant; (4) that by a judgment in the case of Laurent v. Anderson supra, there is res judicata, by reason of the fact that in that case BancoKentucky was adjudged to be the actual owner of the shares of stock involved; (5) that by a proceeding against BancoKentucky and alleging and establishing that BancoKentucky was the actual owner of the capital stock of the National Bank of Kentucky, by a judgment in the case of Laurent v. Anderson, supra, the receiver made an election of persons and an election of remedies and is bound thereby.

[1] This opinion will be confined strictly to a consideration of these points on the assumption that the facts well pleaded are true.

The sufficiency of the bill of complaint under the first heading is determined by a consideration of the subsequent four questions. It is my opinion that the bill states a cause of action and the motion to dismiss should be overruled.

[2] The statute of limitations is not a defense. The Kentucky Statute, § 2515, provides certain character of actions that must be brought within five years. This suit is based on the assessment and not on any agreement that was made whether fraudulent or not fraudulent. It is true the bill alleges fraud in the creation of the corporation Banco-Kentucky, but it does not seek to nullify that action or to hold all transactions of that corporation void for fraud. It says that the creation of a holding company as an instrumentality for the shareholders does not preclude a recovery of the assessment, under the provisions of the federal statute, 12 U. S. C. A. § 63, providing double liability, from the actual owners of the bank stock.

To apply the theory of the defendants would be to hold the transfer of stock to the alleged holding company fraudulent and void.

It is alleged that Banco was formed for one purpose and that was to shield stockholders in the National Bank of Kentucky from double liability. There is no definite reason why Banco failed. Possibly from general economic conditions. If we assume that these economic conditions had not become acute for six years after the incorporation of Banco, then according to counsel for defendants the receiver could have proceeded against no one for the assessment.

[3, 4] An action against shareholders for an assessment does not accrue until the assessment is due and payable. The assessment was levied on February 20, 1931, and payable on April 1, 1931. This proceeding was instituted on February 19, 1936. It was April 1, 1931, that the right of action accrued. Strasburger v. Schram, App. D. C., 93 F. (2d) 246; Barbour v. Thomas, 6 Cir., 86 F. (2d) 510; McDonald v. Thompson, 184 U. S. 71, 22 S. Ct. 297, 46 L. Ed. 437.

In a brief addressed to the defense of misjoinder of parties, counsel have argued that there is an entirely adequate remedy at law and a court of equity has no jurisdiction; that the defendants will be embarrassed in presenting their respective defenses by the great number of defendants and variety of defenses.

[5, 6] The cases referred to by counsel will establish the rule that the true test is whether defendant will be prejudiced by the alleged multifariousness of the bill. Slater v. Ruggles, 1920, 49 App. D. C. 277, 263 F. 1021. The very nature of this proceeding, however, warrants the court in overruling the motion to dismiss on this ground. There can be no real prejudice to any defendant by proceeding in equity. The interest of the parties under the allegations of the bill are necessarily common in most respects. To dismiss the bill and require the receiver to sue each separate defendant at law would be to destroy the very essence of equity and be a gross injustice to all parties. It would involve years of litigation and expense over the determination of questions which must of necessity apply to each individual defendant.

While many authorities have been called to the court's attention supporting the position of counsel for defendants on this point, each case must manifestly stand on its own merit and precedent can be of little value.

In the case of Hale v. Allinson, 188 U. S. 56, 23 S. Ct. 244, 47 L. Ed. 380, it is stated (page 253): "the defendants have no common interest in these questions, or in the relief sought by the receiver against each defendant." This is certainly not true of the case at bar, as the defendants are all in one class in so far as many of the principal defenses are concerned: Sufficiency of the bill of complaint, election of parties and remedies, and limitation.

The mere computation of liability is not necessarily complicated but this is a minor detail in the joining of the whole number of defendants in one bill in equity. Equity Rule 23, 28 U. S. C. A. following section 723, will adequately protect the individual defendants in the presentation of their several defenses. The Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit in the case of Ullrich v. Thomas, 86 F. (2d) 678, 679, said: "The contention that equity was without jurisdiction because appellee had an adequate remedy at law is unavailing, first, because appellee was enjoined from enforcing the assessments at law; second, because an accounting was required to determine the interests of appellants in the bank as represented by their holding certificates; and, third, because the cross-bill was permissible under Equity Rule 23."

In the recently decided case of A. M. Anderson, etc. v. Elizabeth Atkinson et al., D. C., 22 F. Supp. 853, in the Northern District of Illinois, wherein there were joined one hundred defendants, and in which the same questions here presented were involved, it was held there was a community of interest between the defendants on all material questions of law and fact and that equity could more efficiently, promptly, inexpensively, and practically attain the ends of justice.

In a case presenting a similar question the Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit said: "And these circumstances, namely, the great number of the parties on one side or the other, the identity of the question of law, and the similarity of the facts in the several controversies between the respective parties, are the basis on which the jurisdiction rests. The object is to minimize litigation, not only in the interest of the public, but also for the convenience and advantage of the parties. If the receiver was compelled to bring separate suits, it would entail a vast expense upon the fund in trying over and over again the identical questions of law and fact with each stockholder, and with no substantial advantage to him, but injury, rather, in the increased cost in the immediate suit, and the larger burden upon the fund, created by the many suits against the others." Bailey et al. v. Tillinghast, 99 F. 801, 806.

In the opinion in the case of Hale v. Allinson, supra, the court well stated the real test of equity jurisdiction: "Each case, if not brought directly within the principle of some preceding case, must, as we think, be decided upon its own merits and upon a survey of the real and substantial convenience of all parties, the adequacy of the legal remedy, the situations of the different parties, the points to be contested and the result which would follow if jurisdiction should be assumed or denied; these various matters being factors to be taken into consideration upon the question of equitable jurisdiction on this ground, and whether within reasonable and fair grounds the suit is calculated to be in truth one which will practically prevent a multiplicity of litigation, and will be an actual convenience to all parties, and will not unreasonably overlook or obstruct the material interests of any."

The defense of res judicata is here so closely related to the defense of election of remedies that it hardly admits of separate discussion.

[7] It is sometimes very difficult to decide what is res judicata and what is not. Usually the matter is determined by the simple test prescribed by the rule laid down in 15 R. C. L. § 429: "The judgment of a court of concurrent jurisdiction directly upon the point, is as a plea, a bar, or as evidence, conclusive, between the same parties, upon the same matter, directly in question in another court."

[8] In the case of Laurent v. Anderson, supra, the same matters were not directly in question. The plea is that Banco was set up as an instrumentality or agency of the stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky. We have for determination a question that has not been finally determined in any other proceeding. The cases of Hawkins v. Glenn, 131 U. S. 319, 9 S. Ct. 739, 33 L. Ed. 184, and Supreme Council of the Royal Arcanum v. Green, 237 U. S. 531, 35 S. Ct. 724, 59 L. Ed. 1089, L. R. A. 1916A, 771, relied upon by counsel for defendants, are authority for the proposition that a corporate liability is a stockholder's liability, but what the court is called upon to determine here is whether or not the corporation was set up as an instrumentality or agency for an express purpose.

[9, 10] The scope of estoppel by judgment is set out in the case of Tait, Collector of Internal Revenue, v. Western Maryland Railway Co., 289 U. S. 620, 53 S. Ct. 706, 707, 77 L. Ed. 1405: "The scope of the estoppel of a judgment depends upon whether the question arises in a subsequent action between the same parties upon the same claim or demand or upon a different claim or demand. In the former case a judgment upon the merits is an absolute bar to the subsequent action. In the latter the inquiry is whether the point or question to be determined in the later action is the same as that litigated and determined in the original action, Cromwell v. County of Sac, 94 U. S. 351, 352, 353, 24 L. Ed. 195; Southern Pacific R. Co. v. United States, 168 U. S. 1, 48, 18 S. Ct. 18, 42 L. Ed. 355; United States v. Moser, 266 U. S. 236, 241, 45 S. Ct. 66, 69 L. Ed. 262."

[11] The Supreme Court in the case of Lyon v. Perin & G. Mfg. Co., 125 U. S. 698, 8 S. Ct. 1024, 31 L.Ed. 839, lays down the following rule (page 1025): "It is well settled that, in order to render a matter res adjudicata, there must be a concurrence of the four conditions, viz: (1) Identity in the thing sued for; (2) identity of the cause of action;

(3) identity of persons and parties to the action; and (4) identity of the quality in the persons for or against whom the claim is made."

The sole question presented in Laurent v. Anderson, supra, was whether Banco was the actual owner of the shares involved.

A reading of the bill shows that the exact question presented here is not that alone, but, further, that Banco was created as an agency and instrumentality to hold the shares of stock for the express purpose of avoiding the double liability provisions of the statute.

I am of the opinion that res judicata is not a good defense.

[12] To sustain the defense that the receiver is bound by his election of remedies and persons on the record as it now stands is to hold that the purpose of the statute fixing double liability may be nullified by the concurrence of two things: The organization of a holding company to whom the bank stock is transferred for the purpose of defeating double liability and the bad judgment of a receiver who proceeds against an insolvent holding company rather than against solvent individuals. To so hold would be to substitute the plain and unequivocal language of a good law for the frailties of human judgment.

Why quibble over the question of who is the beneficial owner, BancoKentucky or the individuals who own the stock of BancoKentucky, where it is admitted that BancoKentucky was a mere instrumentality to perpetrate a fraud upon the depositors and creditors of the National Bank of Kentucky.

The defendants contend that there can be but one beneficial and true owner of the bank stock; that Banco has been adjudged the owner and consequently no other person can be the owner.

[13] This is pure legal fiction. Banco was the record holder and technical beneficiary of the proceeds from the stock. But, according to the allegations in the bill, was merely the tainted channel through which the benefits went to the actual beneficiaries. The Supreme Court in the case of Christopher v. Norvell, 201 U. S. 216, 26 S. Ct. 502, 506, 50 L. Ed. 732, 5 Ann. Cas. 740, said: "The statute, in effect, says to all who become owners of national bank stock, no matter in what way they become shareholders, that they cannot enjoy the benefits accruing to shareholders, and escape liability for the contracts, debts, and engagements of the bank."

This prevailing interpretation of the application of the double liability statute has been announced repeatedly. See Ohio Valley National Bank v. Hulitt, Receiver, 204 U. S. 162, 27 S. Ct. 179, 51 L. Ed. 423; Corker v. Soper, 5 Cir., 53 F. (2d) 190; Metropolitan Holding Company v. Snyder, 8 Cir., 79 F. (2d) 263, 103 A. L. R. 912.

[14] The case of Davis v. Wakelee, 156 U. S. 680, 15 S. Ct. 555, 39 L. Ed. 578, cited by counsel for defendants with reference to election of persons states the following rule (page 558): "It may be laid down as a general proposition that, where a party assumes a certain position in a legal proceeding, and succeeds in maintaining that position, he may not thereafter, simply because his interests have changed, assume a contrary position, especially if it be to the prejudice of the party who has acquiesced in the position formerly taken by him."

There can be no controversy as to the reason or justice of this well-established rule. There is no confusion of the rule with equitable estoppel.

Here, however, we are confronted with an entirely different case. The receiver is not compelled to make a choice but has the right to pursue either or both ways of collecting the assessment. In the case of Continental National Bank

& Trust Company v. O'Neill, 7 Cir., 82 F. (2d) 650, the court said (page 652): "If it be assumed that both the settlor and the trust estate be liable for the assessment, a suit against one alone would not effect a release of the other obligor, and for an additional reason where it appears that one obligor is a non-resident. Bigelow v. Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co., 225 U. S. 111, at page 127, 32 S. Ct. 641, 56 L. Ed. 1009, Ann. Cas. 1913E, 875. See, also, Kline v. Burke Construction Co., 260 U. S. 226, 43 S. Ct. 79, 67 L. Ed. 226, 24 A. L. R. 1077."

[15] If section 5151 of the Revised Statutes, 12 U. S. C. A. § 63, is to have any force whatsoever, it is to assure those who do business with a national bank that the beneficial owner of the stock of the bank shall be assessable to double the amount of the stock subscribed. The question of whether or not BancoKentucky was a separate entity is not presented for determination. From the allegations in the bill of complaint it was organized for the sole purpose of owning bank stock, and especially the bank stock involved here, to carry on an alleged unlawful enterprise. This is not the simple proposition of determining whether or not a corporation may own bank stock. The allegations in the bill of complaint are: "Pursuant to the above described plan, the holders of the Trustees Participation shares representing 95% of the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company, caused said holding corporation to be organized as their instrumentality, for their own use and enrichment and in furtherance of a scheme to engage in unlawful acts and to enable them through said corporate agency and instrumentality unlawfully to acquire, own, hold control and operate a group of state and national banks and trust companies contrary to and in defiance of the meaning, spirit and intent of the laws of the United States and the Commonwealth of Kentucky and other states relating to the ownership, operation and supervision of banks and trust companies."

[16] Counsel in their brief for defendants Tashgian et al. state that there were persons who bought stock in BancoKentucky who knew little or nothing of the National Bank of Kentucky. Regardless of their knowledge, they must of necessity be the part owners of the bank stock and consequently beneficial and true owners and charged with the liability under the allegations of the bill of complaint.

[17] Counsel seek to distinguish the case at bar from Barbour v. Thomas, 6 Cir., 86 F. (2d) 510. I cannot agree that simply by contracting for the statutory liability and so advertising there was anything added to the force of the statute. Neither do I agree that the statement in that opinion (page 517) that "none of its stock was sold to the public nor issued to any persons other than the stockholders of the banks or their assignees," destroys it as an authority here.

[18] Counsel for defendants make the distinction that in the case at bar that many of the stockholders of Banco have never owned any of the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky and could not possibly have been a party to an attempt to avoid double liability as owners of bank stock.

BancoKentucky was a holding company for bank stock and was the record owner of 95 per cent. of the shares of the National Bank of Kentucky, all of the stockholders of Banco profited from the dividends produced by the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky, and they should be charged with knowledge of the assets of a corporation (Banco) in whose stock they invested and from which assets they derived benefits.

The motion to dismiss the petition is overruled and orders may be drawn accordingly.

ORDER OVERRULING MOTIONS TO DISMISS

(Entered July 12, 1938)

This cause came on to be heard at this term on the Bill of Complaint, as amended and supplemented, and on MOTIONS TO DISMISS, MOTIONS TO TRANSFER THIS CAUSE TO THE LAW SIDE OF THE COURT, MOTIONS FOR AN ORDER OF SEVERANCE, requiring plaintiff to proceed separately against defendants, and on the MOTIONS UNDER EQUITY RULE 29 requesting the Court to Hear and Dispose of DEFENSES set forth in PARAGRAPHS II AND III of the answers of Katherine Kirkpatrick Abbott, Admx. of the ESTATE OF DAVID J. ABBOTT, DEC'D., and FIDELITY & COLUMBIA TRUST COMPANY, EXECUTOR OF THE ESTATE OF MARY E. REED, DEC'D. and PARAGRAPHS II, III and IV OF THE ANSWER OF G. A. HEUSER, EXECUTOR OF THE ESTATE OF HENRY VOGT, DEC'D., and on the MOTIONS TO MAKE PLAINTIFF'S BILL OF COMPLAINT, as amended and supplemented, DEFINITE AND CERTAIN, the arguments of counsel and briefs.

Upon consideration of the Motions to Dismiss, asserting the following defenses:

(1) that the Bill of Complaint, as amended and supplemented, does not state a cause of action in equity;
(2) that plaintiff's claim is barred by the statute of limitations;
(3) that there is a misjoinder of parties defendant;
(4) that the judgment of this court in the case of Laurent v. Anderson (reported on appeal, 70 Fed. [2d] 819) is res judicata of the defendants' liability as shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky;
(5) that the prosecution of said action (Laurent v. Anderson) to judgment by plaintiff constituted a binding election of persons and remedies;

the Court finds that none of said motions are well taken and all of said motions are hereby overruled, to which ruling defendants filing said motions except.

On consideration of defendants' motions to hear and dispose of the legal validity of Paragraphs II and III of the answers of Katherine Kirkpatrick Abbott, Admx. of the estate of David J. Abbott, dec'd., Paragraphs II and III of the answers of Fidelity & Columbia Trust Company, Ex. of the Estate of Mary E. Reed, dec'd., and Paragraphs II, III and IV of the answer of G. A. Heuser, Ex. of the estate of Henry Vogt, dec'd., the Court finds that the allegations of said paragraphs are insufficient in law to constitute any defense to plaintiff's Bill of Complaint, as amended and supplemented, and it is ordered, adjudged and decreed that said paragraphs be and they hereby are stricken from said answers, to which said defendants except.

On consideration of the Motions to Make Definite and Certain, to Transfer This Cause to the Law Side of the Court, and for Orders of Severance, requiring plaintiff to proceed separately against defendants, the Court finds that none of said motions are well taken. It is Ordered, Adjudged and Decreed that all of said motions be and the same are hereby overruled, to which defendants filing said motions except.

It is further ordered that all defendants whose motions are hereby overruled and who have not heretofore answered, fully answer plaintiff's Bill of Complaint, as amended and supplemented, within sixty (60) days from the entry of this order.

It is further ordered that any defendant may, in answering said Bill of Complaint, adopt and incorporate by reference any defense set forth in any answer filed herein, provided that so much of this order as rules upon the sufficiency of such defenses shall apply to such adopting answers with like exceptions to such adopting defendants.

Attached hereto and made a part hereof is a list of defendants whose motions are hereby overruled with respect to the above issues of law.

(List referred to omitted from transcript.)

SEPARATE ANSWER, COUNTERCLAIM AND CROSS ACTION OF HENRY M. JOHNSON, SUSIE E. TELLMAN, FRIEDA GUDEX, ADMINISTRATOR OF ESTATE OF EMILY E. BISCHOFF, AND MARY CHRISTINE COTTELL WATKINS, DE BONIS NON WITH THE WILL ANNEXED OF THE ESTATE OF P. A. GAERTNER, DECEASED.

(Filed September 8, 1938)

Come the defendants, Henry M. Johnson, Susie E. Tellman, Frieda Gudex, Administrator of Estate of Emily E. Bischoff, and Mary Christine Cottell Watkins, De Bonis Non with the will annexed of the estate of P. A. Gaertner, deceased, and for answer to so much of the Bill of Complaint herein as they are advised is necessary for them to answer and for counterclaim and cross claim herein, say,

I.

That the amount of stock they owned in BancoKentucky Company at the time of the closing of the National Bank of Kentucky is correctly stated in the Bill of Complaint herein; that they acquired their stock solely by original subscription and payment for the said shares of the BancoKentucky Company and that none of their stock represents any transfer of trustees participation certificates for stock in BancoKentucky Company, nor any transfer of stock of National Bank of Kentucky for stock of BancoKentucky Company.

Separate Answer of Henry M. Johnson, et al.

II.

Defendants admit the allegations in Paragraphs I, II, III, IV, VII, VIII, IX, X, AND XXI of the Bill of Complaint.

Defendants admit the allegations of Paragraph V of the Bill of Complaint, except that they deny that the claims asserted against them and sued on herein are a just demand against them, and they deny that there is no offset or discount against said claims.

Defendants say that with respect to the following fifteen paragraphs of Plaintiff's Bill of Complaint, to-wit:—VI, XI, XII, XIII, XIV, XV, XVI, XVII, XVIII, XIX, XX, XXII, XXIII, XXIV, and XXV, that they do not know whether they are true or false, but that one or the other is a fact, viz, that they are either true or they are false, and these defendants therefore plead in the alternative with respect to them as follows:

III.

Either these defendants deny that they are without knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of the averments in said fifteen paragraphs of plaintiff's Complaint, set out in paragraph II herein, or

IV.

These defendants say that the said averments of the said above referred to fifteen paragraphs of plaintiff's Bill of Complaint are true.

V.

Defendants say that if said averments in said last mentioned fifteen paragraphs of plaintiff's Bill of Complaint are not true, then these defendants adopt paragraph II of the answer of Thomas Trammel, et al., filed herein, except in the manner which Thomas Trammel, et al., acquired their stock, as paragraph V of this answer, the same as if copied at length herein, and rely upon the defense set out in paragraph II of said Thomas Trammel, et al., answer as a full defense of the cause of action sued on herein.

VI.

These defendants say that if said averments in the said fifteen paragraphs of plaintiff's Bill of Complaint are not true, then these defendants adopt paragraph III of the answer of Thomas Trammel, et al., filed herein, except in the manner which Thomas Trammel, et al., acquired their stock, as paragraph VI of this answer, the same as if copied at length herein, and rely upon the defense set out in paragraph III of said Thomas Trammel, et al., answer as a full defense of a cause of action sued on herein.

VII.

Come defendants and for answer to the Bill of Complaint filed herein, say that the cause of action set out in the Bill of Complaint is barred by Section 2515 of the Kentucky Statutes, which requires that an action upon a liability created by a statute, when no other time is fixed by the statute creating the liability, and an action for relief on the ground of fraud shall be commenced within five years next after the cause of action accrued, and that the cause of action attempted to be asserted by plaintiff against these defendants herein accrued more than five years next before the bringing of this action and defendants plead and rely upon such statute in bar of plaintiff's action.

VIII.

These defendants say that defendant's equitable cause of action is as plaintiff alleges in paragraph IV and in the prayer of his Bill of Complaint, "a case for winding up the affairs of a National Banking Association"; that said National Banking Association is the Bank of Kentucky; and (quoting from plaintiff's petition) "to determine the proportionate part of the aggregate liability claimed against the defendants named herein for which each individual is severally liable," and to determine certain credits defendants might be entitled to, and to obtain "the equitable determination in one action of the questions of common interests" and to "avoid a multiplicity of suits and circuity of actions and the unreasonable expense of thousands of separate suits, which would dissipate the trust fund herein sought to be recovered," and to prevent "inseparable damage and injury"; that the Judicial Code of the United States expressly gives jurisdiction to this District Court to "wind up the affairs" of the National Bank of Kentucky; that in this equitable action, to so wind up the affairs of said Bank, this Court, in administering equity, has full and plenary power to, and justice and equity require that it shall, hear, determine and decide all questions, matters and rights affecting all persons involved in such winding up the affairs of said Bank and shall bring same to a final, speedy and inexpensive conclusion; that the claims of plaintiff arise out of a transaction or occurrence, to-wit:—the organizing, incorporating and launching of the Banco-Kentucky Company, which constitutes the subject matter of plaintiff's claim; that any defendants having a defense, by way of counterclaim against plaintiff or a cross claim against co-defendants, are required to plead same in this action under the law and rules of Civil Procedure applying to the District Courts of the United States; that said law is well expressed in Rule XIII of the New Rules of Civil Procedure for District Courts of the United States in Sections A, B, C, and G, as follows:

"(a) COMPULSORY COUNTERCLAIMS. A pleading shall state as a counterclaim any claim, not the subject of a pending action, which at the time of filing the pleading the pleader has against any opposing party, if it arises out of the transaction or occurrence that is the subject matter of the opposing party's claim and does not require for its adjudication the presence of third parties of whom the court cannot acquire jurisdiction.

(b) PERMISSIVE COUNTERCLAIMS. A pleading may state as a counterclaim any claim against an opposing party not arising out of the transaction or occurrence that is the subject matter of the opposing party's claim.

(c) COUNTERCLAIM EXCEEDING OPPOSING CLAIM. A counterclaim may or may not diminish or defeat the recovery sought by the opposing party. It may claim relief exceeding in amount or different in kind from that sought in the pleading of the opposing party.

(d) CROSS-CLAIM AGAINST CO-PARTY. A pleading may state as a cross-claim any claim by one party against a co-party arising out of the transaction or occurrence that in the subject matter either of the original action or of a counterclaim therein. Such cross-claim may include a claim that the party against whom it is asserted is or may be liable to the cross-claimant for all or part of a claim asserted in the action against the cross-claimant."

That defendants' counterclaim and cross claim asserted herein arise out of the said same transaction or occurrence which is the subject matter of plaintiff's claim.

IX.

That said allegations in above referred fifteen paragraphs of plaintiff's Complaint, to-wit:—Paragraphs VI, XI, XII,

XIII, XIV, XV, XVI, XVII, XVIII, XIX, XX, XXII, XXIII, XXIV, and XXV, are true and that the said officers, directors and stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky, and the National Bank of Kentucky itself, were guilty of fraud, deceit and misrepresentation in organizing, forming, incorporating and launching a Corporation, BancoKentucky Company, for the illegal and unlawful purpose of acquiring, holding, owning, controlling and operating a group of State and National Banks and Trust Companies contrary to and in defiance of the meaning, spirit and intent of the laws of the United States and of the Commonwealth of Kentucky and of other States relating to the ownership, operation and supervision of Banks and Trust Companies and unlawfully to use the assets of said Banks and Trust Companies in speculative transactions prohibited by law and unlawfully to use the assets and property of one or more of said Banks in making loans on the security of the holding company stock, namely the BancoKentucky Company in violation of law, and in further placing in the Articles of Incorporation of the said BancoKentucky Company the false and fraudulent statement that

> "The private property of the stockholders shall not be subject to the payment of corporate debts to any extent whatever."

and in the certificate of Stock, the false and fraudulent statement that said stock was

> "full paid and non-assessable"

and in selling said stock and delivering said Certificates of same in the BancoKentucky Company to these innocent defendants upon the false and fraudulent representation, statement and implication that said Corporation was lawfully and legally authorized for lawful and legal purpose, and was conducting a legal and lawful business, and the false and fraudulent statements and representations contained in said Certificates of Stock that the private property of the stockholders were not subject to the payment of the corporate debts to any extent whatever, and that said stock was full paid and non-assessable, all of which statements, and representations and implications were false and were known by the said Bank of Kentucky and its officers, directors and stockholders to be false, or should have been known by them to have been false; that defendants did not know of the falsity of the above representations, statements and implications and believed same were true; that believing same were true, defendants relied on same and in reliance on same, purchased stock in said Banco-Kentucky Company and suffered loss in the total purchase price they paid for said stock, and the interest thereon from the date of said payments, and defendants are further threatened herein with an additional loss of an assessment against said stock; that said loss was occasioned by illegal formation and operation of BancoKentucky Company, that the said losses occasioned to these defendants and threatened to them are $25.00 per share for stock set out in plaintiff's Bill of Complaint as owned by these defendants, the amount these defendants paid in value for said stock, and any additional amount, if any, these defendants may be held herein to pay on plaintiff's claim asserted herein.

Defendants say that they were innocent purchasers for value of stock in the BancoKentucky Company; that they paid value for same; that they did not trade or exchange any National Bank of Kentucky stock for same; that the BancoKentucky Company was conceived, planned, incorporated and launched by the Bank of Kentucky and by the holders of 95% of the stock in the National Bank of Kentucky, and its officers and directors; that these innocent defendants, with respect to the wrongs perpetrated by the National Bank of Kentucky and its stockholders and officers and directors in selling them stock in the said illegal Banco-Kentucky Company were as innocent as any other creditor of said National Bank of Kentucky; that by reason of said wrong-doing, defendants suffered loss and thereby came possessed of a just and legal claim against National Bank of Kentucky and against its said officers and directors and stockholders, who perpetrated said wrong, and that these defendants thereby became creditors of National Bank of Kentucky, its stockholders, officers and directors; that these defendants as such innocent creditors and claimants have and possess claims of equal dignity and priority as any other creditor of the National Bank of Kentucky.

Defendants say that, on account of the above facts, defendants have rescinded their said purchases of said stock in the said BancoKentucky Company, and call and demand upon the plaintiff, receiver of National Bank of Kentucky, and upon all these defendants' co-defendants hereto to pay to these defendants the amounts they paid for said Banco-Kentucky stock, and interest thereon from date of payment, and for any additional amounts the Court herein may adjudge herein against them and which amount they may be compelled to pay.

Defendants say that they did not learn of the said fraud, misrepresentation and deceit practiced on them by National Bank of Kentucky and by the said 95% of the stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky, and by the said officers and directors of the National Bank of Kentucky until this Bill of Complaint was filed, and that these defendants under the circumstances existing were not guilty of any laches or negligence in promptly and seasonably asserting their right and determination and action in rescinding the purchase of said stock and claiming recovery of their said payments and losses; that any delay in these defendants such rescinding and claiming payments has not injured or been prejudicial to the interests of any of the parties to this action or involved therein.

These defendants file herewith the said Certificates of Stock in the BancoKentucky Company and tender same to plaintiff and cross defendants as a surrender to the latter of the stock bought by these defendants under the circumstances and conditions and upon the false representations above set out.

These defendants say that the stockholders of Banco-Kentucky Company may be classified as follows:

1. Guilty organizers.
2. Innocent non-organizers and purchasers of Banco-Kentucky stock.

that the creditors of Banco-Kentucky may be classified as follows:

1. Guilty organizers and creditors.
2. Innocent creditors.

Defendants make this pleading a counterclaim against plaintiff and a cross claim against all these defendants' co-defendants herein to the end that plaintiff may effect no recovery against these defendants and that these defendants may recover a judgment against such of defendants as are guilty organizers of the BancoKentucky Company.

X.

These defendants say that the laws of the United States provide that each National Banking Association shall cause to be kept at all times a full and correct list of the names and residences of all the shareholders in the Association, and the numbers of shares held by each, in the office where its business is transacted; that such list shall be subject to the inspection of all the shareholders and creditors of the Association. See U. S. C. A. Title 12—Banks and Banking, Section 62; that the purpose of said Statute has specifically held by the United States Courts, including the Supreme Court of the United States, is as follows: to give creditors of the Association "information as to the shareholders upon whom, if the Association becomes insolvent, will rest the individual liability for its contracts, debts and engagements" (Pauly v. State Loan, etc., Co., 165 U.S. 606, 17 S. Ct. 465, 41 L. Ed. 844), that the said records and books of the National Bank of Kentucky showed nowhere these defendants as stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky, and that at no time were any creditors of the National Bank of Kentucky, for whose benefit plaintiff, Receiver, brings this action, deceived or misled into believing that these defendants were stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky, or that any creditors were prejudiced or injured by acting upon such belief.

XI.

Defendants pray that Court

1. Appoint a Master under proper Order of Reference to take proof and hear testimony and have an accounting as to
   - A. All creditors of the National Bank of Kentucky and classification of same as to
     - a. who are "guilty organizers" of BancoKentucky Company.
     - b. who are "innocent non-organizers" of Banco-Kentucky Company.

     as referred to in this pleading,
   - B. All stockholders of BancoKentucky Company and classification of same as to
     - a. who are "guilty organizers" of BancoKentucky Company,
     - b. who are "innocent non-organizers and purchasers" of BancoKentucky Company Stock,

     as referred to in this pleading.

C. The amount of damages and losses the innocent stockholders of the BancoKentucky Company shall recover against the guilty organizers of BancoKentucky Company.

2. Give judgment that no recovery be had by plaintiff against those who are innocent non-organizers and purchasers of stock in BancoKentucky Company.
3. Give judgment in favor of the innocent non-organizers and purchasers of stock in BancoKentucky Company against the guilty organizers of BancoKentucky Company who are parties to this action, either as plaintiff or as defendants.
4. Give proper and appropriate judgments and orders in all other matters between plaintiff and defendants so as to effect and work out equity and justice between the parties, and for all other proper and equitable relief to which these defendants may be entitled.

AMENDED ANSWER, COUNTERCLAIM AND CROSS PETITION OF SUSIE E. TELLMAN, FRIEDA GUDEX, EXECUTRIX OF ESTATE OF EMILY E. BISCHOFF, AND MARY CHRISTINE COTTELL WATKINS, DE BONIS NON WITH THE WILL ANNEXED OF THE ESTATE OF P. A. GAERTNER, AND MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT.

(Filed November 1, 1938)

Come defendants and treating the procedure now in process in this action in the nature of a Pre-Trial Procedure, as provided for in Rule 16 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and treating the pending statement made by plaintiff's counsel and taken down by the official reporter of this Court, as part of the record herein, as in the nature of a "Bill of Particulars" or "A More Definite Statement" of "Matter which is not averred with sufficient definiteness and particularity" in plaintiff's Bill of Complaint, and calls attention of the Court to the statements of said plain-tiff's counsel in stating the case to the Court substantially as follows:

1. That plaintiff's contention was that BancoKentucky Company's status was a false and fraudulent agency and instrumentality of the National Bank of Kentucky in all the acts undertaken, committed and perpetrated by the said BancoKentucky Company.

Plaintiff's counsel quoting freely from Judge Sullivan in another jurisdiction so holding BancoKentucky as such agency and instrumentality and plaintiff in this action adopting same as plaintiff's allegation and contention.

2. That the only stock of the National Bank of Kentucky held by BancoKentucky Company was the stock which stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky exchanged for stock in the BancoKentucky Company.

3. That BancoKentucky Company never invested in stock of the National Bank of Kentucky a single dollar of the BancoKentucky Company's money obtained from any source, including money paid into BancoKentucky Company by the purchasers of BancoKentucky Company stock.

4. That the BancoKentucky Company never came to be an operating company at all.

5. That BancoKentucky Company never qualified to do business in Kentucky or elsewhere.

Defendants say that if Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 are correct and that the BancoKentucky Company was merely a fraudulent agency and instrumentality of the National Bank of Kentucky, then the National Bank of Kentucky received all the money paid by the purchasers of stock in the BancoKentucky Company and paid for same for the use and benefit of the said purchasers of said stock and that the National Bank of Kentucky promised to pay said purchasers of said stock the amount they paid for same, together with interest thereon from the date of payment until paid, and that the said stockholders and purchasers of said stock thereby have a just and equitable claim against the National Bank of Kentucky and its assets in the hands of plaintiff receiver herein, which claim, held by said parties is of equal dignity and priority as any depositor of money in the National Bank of Kentucky; that the laws of the United States applicable to national banks, providing that the double liability of shareholders is for "all contracts, debts and engagements" of national banks. See Sec. 64 of U. S. C. A. to any "creditor" of such Bank Sec. 65 U. S. C. A. and all claims "adjudicated in a court of competent jurisdiction" Sec. 194 U. S. C. A.

Defendants say that none of the money so promised was ever paid by the the National Bank of Kentucky or the plaintiff receiver herein and that said moneys, together with interest thereon, constitutes a just claim against the said assets; there is no usury thereon or offset thereto.

Defendants further say that there are a great number of purchasers of stock of the BancoKentucky Company, who paid for same in cash or its equivalent, who are similarly situated as these defendants.

WHEREFORE: THESE DEFENDANTS move the Court at this time for a summary judgment in their favor and in favor of those similarly situated against plaintiff receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky herein, adjudging that defendants who paid for their stock in cash or equivalent in the BancoKentucky Company and did not exchange same for any stock in the National Bank of Kentucky, have a just and lawful claim against the plaintiff receiver herein, and the assets of the National Bank of Kentucky in his hands for the amount they so paid for their said stock and interest thereon from the date of payment until paid; that defendants and those similarly situated with them as purchasers and buyers of stock of the BancoKentucky Company have judgment against plaintiff herein for their costs herein expended and for all further, proper and equitable relief to which they may appear entitled.

PLAINTIFF'S REPLY TO COUNTER-CLAIM OF HENRY M. JOHNSON, SUSIE TELLMAN, FRIEDA GUDEX, ADMX. ESTATE OF EMILY E. BISCHOFF, AND MARY CHRISTINE COTTELL WATKINS, D. B. N. WITH THE WILL ANNEXED OF THE ESTATE OF P. A. GAERTNER, DECEASED

(Filed November 15, 1939)

Plaintiff, A. M. Anderson, Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky, for reply to the counter-claim and cross action of the above named defendants, says:

1. That said counter-claim and cross action fails to allege a right or a claim against plaintiff upon which relief can be granted.

2. Plaintiff denies the allegations of Paragraph III of said pleading.

3. Plaintiff denies the allegations set forth in Paragraph VIII of said pleading that this court has jurisdiction to hear, determine or decide all questions, matters and rights of persons interested in the winding up of the affairs of the National Bank of Kentucky, and denies that this court has a right to assume jurisdiction over the winding up of the affairs of said bank except with respect to suits by or against plaintiff as receiver of said bank and counter-claims or cross claims maintainable therein under the Rules of Civil Procedure; and denies that defendants' "counter-claim and cross claim" arises out of the transaction or occurrence, the subject of plaintiff's claim.

Plaintiff's Reply to Counter-claim

4. Plaintiff denies the allegations of Paragraph IX of said pleading, that defendants are innocent purchasers of stock of BancoKentucky Company or that defendants were induced to purchase said stock by any false or fraudulent representation with respect thereto; that defendants suffered any loss or are possessed of any claim against the National Bank of Kentucky or that defendants are creditors of the National Bank of Kentucky in any amount; that defendants have rescinded their purchase of stock in BancoKentucky Company or have made demand upon plaintiff or anyone to pay defendants the amounts invested by them in BancoKentucky Company; and that defendants were not fully informed of the actions of officers, directors and stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky, in connection with BancoKentucky Company until this action was commenced. Further replying to said paragraph, plaintiff says that defendants may not avoid liability to assessment, as stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky by asserting the right to rescind their subscription or purchase of their share interest in said bank, for any wrong alleged to have been perpetrated upon them by said bank or its officers or directors.

5. Plaintiff denies the allegations set forth in Paragraph X of said pleading.

WHEREFORE, having fully replied, plaintiff prays that said counter-claim and cross action of the above named defendants be dismissed and that judgment be entered against them as prayed for in plaintiff's bill of complaint as amended.

ORDER MAKING OBJECTIONS AND EXCEPTIONS OF ONE DEFENDANT AVAILABLE TO ALL

(Entered October 31, 1938)

Upon motion of counsel for defendants, it is ordered, adjudged and decreed as follows:

1. Objections made and exceptions taken before, during or at the conclusion of the trial, shall inure to the benefit of all defendants as to whom they shall be applicable or relevant.

2. The response of the members of the Defense Counsel Committee to Plaintiff's Request for Admissions, served on plaintiff October 27, 1938, shall be considered as the response of all defendants, except those who have heretofore otherwise responded.

3. Defendants' request upon plaintiff for admissions served on plaintiff October 22, 1938 shall be considered the request of all defendants and plaintiff's response thereto filed and served October 21, 1938 shall inure to the benefit of all defendants.

4. All pleadings and motions heretofore filed by any defendant, which relate to the merits of the case in general and not to some special fact or decision applicable to the particular defendant filing such pleadings, shall inure to the benefit of all defendants.

5. All defenses which may be designated as special defenses, in that they are not defenses common to the majority of the defendants, shall be taken up for consideration for a hearing on the merits of so much of the case as is common to a majority of the defendants.

MAC SWINFORD,

Judge

ORDER AS TO TESTIMONY OF CERTAIN DEFENDANTS

(Entered February 3, 1939)

On the Court's own motion, it is considered, ordered, adjudged and found that each of the defendants herein, save and except those who were officers, directors or employees of the National Bank of Kentucky and Louisville Trust Company, or officers or directors of Banco Kentucky Company, if called as a witness in his own behalf, would testify, over plaintiff's objections, that each of them acquired their respective shares of stock in Banco Kentucky Company, believing, as distinguished from whatever constructive knowledge may be imputed to them as a matter of law, that the Louisville Trust Company and the National Bank of Kentucky were both solvent and sound financial institutions, and that they did not even remotely suspect that either of said banking institutions were in a questionable financial condition, if such they were, and that they acquired their stock in Banco Kentucky Company in the belief that they were making a sound financial investment in a separate corporation, and that the BancoKentucky Company was to do the things authorized by its corporate charter, as indicated in the letter of July 19, 1929.

All defendants who acquired stock in the BancoKentucky Company in exchange for Trustees' Participation Certificates executed a writing in the form of plaintiff's Exhibit 24-4 (top) and all defendants who subscribed for stock in the BancoKentucky Company executed a writing in the form of plaintiff's Exhibit 24-4 (Bottom). Should any defendant who acquired stock in BancoKentucky Company by exchange of Trustee's Participation Certificates, or by subscription for stock to BancoKentucky Company, desire so to do, he may, by testimony introduced on his behalf, establish the fact or attempt to establish the fact, that such defendant or defendants did not execute a writing in the form of plaintiff's Exhibit 24-4 (Top), or plaintiff's Exhibit 24-4 (Bottom).

It is further considered, ordered and adjudged that this order may be read in evidence by the defendants herein as the testimony of the aforesaid defendants.

STATEMENT AS TO SPECIAL DEFENSES

Certain of defendants filed pleadings setting up special defenses. Since the Court dismissed the case on the ground that none of defendants were liable he did not pass on these special defenses or make any findings of fact or conclusions of law on the special situations which these defenses presented. It is recognized by all parties that, in the event of reversal of the ruling of the lower court, this cause will be remanded for the purpose of a further consideration by the District Court of these special defenses, the pleadings and the stipulations of fact regarding these special defenses are omitted from this record.

The appellees covered by this statement include the Fidelity & Columbia Trust Company as agent for various individuals, Jennie K. Selligman, and Jennie K. Selligman, Executrix of Alfred Selligman, deceased, Louisville Trust Company, Executor of the estate of John B. Pirtle, John C. Thompson, Administrator of the estate of Nannie C. Thompson, Kentucky Title Trust Company, assignee of George M. Clark, W. J. FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW REQUESTED BY PLAINTIFF

FINDINGS OF FACT

(Filed with the Court January 5, 1940)

1. The National Bank of Kentucky is a national banking association organized under the laws of the United States, domiciled in Louisville, Kentucky.[1] On November 16, 1930 it had issued and outstanding 40,000 shares of capital stock of the par value of $100.00 each.[2]

2. On Sunday, November 16, 1930 the National Bank of Kentucky closed pursuant to a resolution duly adopted by its board of directors.[3]

3. This is a civil action involving the winding up of the affairs of the National Bank of Kentucky. The Court has jurisdiction thereof in equity because of the community of interest between defendants on the material questions of law and fact, complicated interests are involved, an accounting is necessary, to avoid a multiplicity of suits and for the convenience of all parties. Plaintiff has no adequate remedy at law.

4. The citizenship and residence of the defendants is correctly set forth in the Bill of Complaint and amendments thereto.[4]

5. On November 17, 1930 the Comptroller of the Currency, having found the National Bank of Kentucky insolvent and unable to pay its debts, appointed Paul C. Keyes Receiver therefor. Said Receiver qualified, entered upon and continued the performance of his duties until succeeded on December 15, 1932 by A. M. Anderson as Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky, who ever since has been and now is the duly appointed, qualified and acting Receiver.[5]

6. On November 17, 1930 ten shares of the capital stock of the National Bank of Kentucky were registered in the names of each of the eighteen Bank Directors and all the remaining shares of its issued and outstanding stock (39,820) were registered in the names of Vogt, Minary, Duncan, Dodd, Bohmer and Metcalfe, as Trustees under a Trust Agreement dated April 22, 1927.[6] On said date BancoKentucky Company, a Delaware corporation, was the registered owner of 94.73% of the Trustees' Participation Certificates, issued by the Trustees under said Trust Agreement, which certificates represented 37,721.6214 shares or approximately 95% of the capital stock of the National Bank of Kentucky.[7] Each $10.00 par value Trustees' Participation Certificate represented .0697923 of a share of the capital stock of the National Bank of Kentucky of the par value of $100.00 per share.[8]

7. On February 20, 1931 the Comptroller of the Currency of the United States made an assessment and requisition upon the shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky for $4,000,000.00, the par value of its authorized, issued and outstanding 40,000 shares of capital stock, payable on or before April 1, 1931. On March 20, 1931 the Receiver served the following notice,[9] to which was attached a copy of Comptroller's order of assessment,[10] on all holders of shares of BancoKentucky Company;

> "As a stockholder in The BancoKentucky Company, you will please take notice, that the Comptroller of the Currency has on February 20, 1931, levied an assessment upon the stockholders of The National Bank of Kentucky, Louisville, Ky., on the par value of each and every share, payable at the Office of the Receiver, on or before April 1, 1931. A notice of such assessment and a demand for payment of the same has been served upon the Receiver of The BancoKentucky Company as the holder of 540,484 trustees' participation certificates, issued under a certain trust agreement of April 22, 1927, which trustees' participation certificates represent the ownership of 37,721.624 shares of stock in The National Bank of Kentucky. You will, therefore, take notice that it is the intention of the undersigned, as Receiver of The National Bank of Kentucky, to proceed against you for the collection of the aforesaid assessment liability represented by the said trustees' participation certificates held by said BancoKentucky Company, to the extent that the undersigned, as Receiver of The National Bank of Kentucky, is unable to collect said assessment from The BancoKentucky Company or its Receiver.

Court, which had appointed a Receiver for BancoKentucky Company, to sue the Receiver of BancoKentucky Company in this Court. Plaintiff's predecessor began an action in this Court and, on September 14, 1932, recovered a judgment in the principal sum of $3,772,162.40 and for interest in the sum of $331,320.97 from the date the assessment was payable to the date of the judgment. This judgment is final and, except for a dividend thereon in the sum of $90,745.17, paid by the Receiver of the BancoKentucky Company on December 18, 1934, is unsatisfied.[12]

9. The Trust Agreement of April 22, 1927 was the outgrowth of a plan formulated by officers, directors and shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky, and the Louisville Trust Company, a trust company organized under the laws of Kentucky also domiciled in Louisville, to expand the business of the two institutions and to make the investments of the shareholders therein more profitable by converting the share interests in each into certificates representing an indivisible voting share interest in both, and by operating the Bank and the Trust Company under a common board of directors,[13] for the benefit of identical shareholders.[14]

10. Ultimately all the certificates for shares, issued by the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company, (except five shares of the latter) were deposited with the Trustees under said agreement.[15] Said Trustees issued one $100.00 par Trustees' Participation Certificate to the Bank and Trust Company shareholders for each share of Bank and Trust Company stock deposited with them. The Trustees were directors of the Bank and Trust Company and were under the immediate control of an "Advisory Committee," consisting exclusively of the directors of the Bank and Trust Company, under the terms of the Trust Agreement.[16] The Trustees caused ten shares of the Bank's stock and ten shares of the Trust Company's stock to be registered in the names of each director of the Bank and Trust Company to qualify them as directors. The Trustees at all times retained the certificates for such shares in their possession and control [17] and secured agreements from each director under the terms of which each director waived the dividends and all rights of ownership with respect to such shares and agreed to accept in lieu thereof Trustees' Participation Certificates of the equivalent par value.[18]

11. The only property ever in the possession of the Trustees were certificates for shares issued by the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company. The Trust Agreement of April 22, 1927 provided that the Trustees should hold only such shares and shares of other banks and trust companies which might later be acquired by the Trustees, with the consent of said Advisory Committee, and secured through the issuance of additional Trustees' Participation Certificates.[19]

12. In order to assure depositors and creditors of banks and trust companies, the shares of which were or might be registered in the names of the Trustees, that the security and protection intended for their benefit under federal and state laws imposing personal liability to assessment on shareholders of national and state banks and trust companies would be continued, the officers, directors, attorneys and shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company provided for and secured the following express written agreement of every Trustees' Participation Certificate holder that would be answerable for any assessment levied against shareholders of any bank or trust company, the shares of which might be registered in the names of the Trustees;

> "Each owner of a Trustees' Participation Certificate issued hereunder shall be subject to the same liability thereon as he would have been subject to in case he had been the owner of record of such proportionate part of the shares held by the Trustees in any corporation as the number of shares called for by his Trustees' Participation Certificate bears to the whole number of shares covered by all outstanding Trustees' Participation Certificates; and to such extent he shall indemnify and hold harmless the Trustees owning such stock from any loss or liability on account of being the holders or owners thereof. The measure of liability assumed hereunder shall be the same as that provided by law with reference to the holders of stock in any particular corporation in which the Trustees may hold stock as is provided by law with reference to the holders of such stock, and no more." [20]

Each Trustees' Participation Certificate certified that the holder was the owner of a certain number of "shares of the par value of $100" (later $10) "each of the indivisible trust estate consisting of shares of the capital stock of The National Bank of Kentucky, of Louisville, and The Louisville Trust Company, also of Louisville, Kentucky, and of any other corporation acquired by the Trustees under the agreement between stockholders of said institutions and said Trustees, which agreement is dated April 22, 1927, and is on file with said institutions. cate is issued under the terms of the aforesaid agreement, and the holder hereof, by accepting same, consents to and adopts said terms as if fully written here."[21] The shareholders designated the Louisville Trust Company as Transfer Agent for T.P.C.s and the National Bank of Kentucky Registrar thereof. The Trust Agreement provided that the trustees and the transfer agent should certify to the Bank and Trust Company a copy of the trustees' register of Trustees' Participation Certificate-Holders from time to time.[22]

13. So far as the rights and obligations of the shareholders of the unified Bank-Trust Company were concerned, the unification was in fact a merger or a consolidation.[23] All directors of the Bank were elected to the Trust Company board and all directors of the Trust Company were elected to the Bank board, and the two institutions were thereafter managed under a common board of directors until January, 1930. The shareholders of each became the common shareholders of the unified Bank-Trust Company[24] and continued to receive the same amounts in dividends[25] and to exercise the same rights and privileges and continued subject to assessment liability in the same amount and of the same character after the exchange of Bank and Trust Company stock for Trustees' Participation Certificates as before.[26]

ing association domiciled in Louisville, Kentucky, and its subsidiary, the Louisville National Company, a Kentucky corporation, following negotiations begun early in 1929 by officers of the National Bank of Kentucky.[27] Said Louisville National Company was created by the officers, directors and shareholders of Louisville National Bank and Trust Company (many of whom participated in the Banco-Kentucky Plan) in November, 1927, as part of a "plan of reorganization," to take over that bank's bond department, to conduct a mortgage finance business and such other business as its directors, who were bank directors, might determine from time to time.[28] The capital of the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company was $750,000.00, represented by 7500 shares of the par value of $100.00 each, which shares also represented the actual ownership of the shares of the Louisville National Company.[29] The board of directors of the Bank-Trust Company, acting as the Advisory Committee and through the Trustees, increased the capital of the Louisville Trust Company from $1,000,000.00 to $1,750,000.00, secured for it the right to engage in the banking business, transferred the newly authorized 7500 shares to the Trustees who issued 7500 additional Trustees' Participation Certificates to the holders of the unified stock of the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company and the Louisville National Company in exchange for all said unified stock of the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company.[30]

15. In June, 1929 each outstanding $100.00 par Trustees' Participation Certificate was divided into ten Trustees' Participation Certificates having a par value of $10.00 each.[31] The Trustees issued the new $10.00 par Trustees' Participation Certificates to the holders of the unified shares of the Bank-Trust Company in the same form as the $100.00 par Trustees' Participation Certificates and the holders of the $10.00 par Trustees' Participation Certificates, by the acceptance thereof, reiterated their agreement to be subject to the liability of a record owner of the shares of the Bank and Trust Company stock standing in the names of the Trustees, in proportion to the outstanding Trustees' Participation Certificates, as previously set forth under finding 12.

16. After the time of the National Bank of Kentucky's unification with the Trust Company, during the months preceding the organization of BancoKentucky Company and while it was being considered by officers, directors and shareholders of the Bank, and until the Bank's failure, November 16, 1930, the financial condition of the Bank became progressively worse. The Comptroller's and National Bank Examiner's criticisms of the management of the bank and the unsatisfactory and dangerous trend in its affairs became increasingly severe. The Comptroller and the Bank Examiner were insistent on action being taken to reduce overdrafts and statutory bad debts and to eliminate millions of dollars of substandard assets.[32]

17. From the time of the unification of the Bank with the Trust Company until the organization of Banco-Kentucky Company, July 16, 1929, the bank's deposits had diminished 38%,[33] while total bank deposits in Louisville were increasing,[34] and its borrowings had increased from two hundred thousand to over fifteen millions.[35] From February 1, 1929 to May 31, 1929 the bank's average daily borrowings had increased from about three and three-quarters millions to twelve and one-half millions of dollars.[36] The Bank was deficient in its legal reserves on 72 days from January 4, 1929 to July 15, 1929, in amounts up to nearly two millions.[37] The Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank for the Sixth District conferred with officers of the Bank in February, 1929 and again in August, 1929 regarding the Bank's continuous borrowings, and suggested liquidation, but the Bank's borrowings instead increased while the amount of its assets acceptable to the Federal Reserve Bank for rediscount steadily decreased.[38]

18. Prior to the organization of BancoKentucky Company and as part of the Plan for the Reorganization of the business of the Bank[39] and for the purpose of escaping federal regulation and supervision, the officers and directors of the Bank decided to denationalize the Bank[40] by surrendering its national charter and transferring all its assets to a new Kentucky corporation organized under Kentucky banking laws[41] and to withdraw from membership in the Federal Reserve System.[42]

19. The officers and directors of the Bank, acting as the "Advisory Committee" to the Trustees,[43] caused the incorporation of "Bank of Kentucky" under Kentucky banking laws [44] and executed an agreement and conveyance transferring all the assets of the National Bank of Kentucky to a new state bank in consideration of the latter's assumption of the national bank's liabilities.[45] Because of the distressed financial condition of the National Bank of Kentucky, the necessity for its retaining a source of funds through uninterrupted rediscounting privileges with the Federal Reserve Bank,[46] the inability of the officers and directors to secure a waiver of examination of the new Bank of Kentucky by Federal Reserve Examiners [47] after the transfer of assets and the inability of the management of the bank to eliminate over $4,000,000 of sub-standard assets and to reduce a large concentration of loans on the security of BancoKentucky Company stock,[48] it became necessary to abandon the plan to denationalize the Bank and to withdraw from membership in the Federal Reserve System.[49]

20. During the examination of the Bank by national bank examiners, begun May 25, 1929 and completed June 15, 1929, its officers prevailed upon the Chief National Bank Examiner in charge of the examination to waive recommended charge-offs of losses upon the representations that they would soon form a holding company to hold the stock of the Bank-Trust Company and to take over and work out certain of the Bank's sub-standard assets which were most severely criticized by the Comptroller and examiners.[50] The management also proposed to consolidate the denationalized Bank of Kentucky with the Louisville Trust Company.[51] Such a consolidation would have permitted a reduction of capital, releasing four or five millions of dollars to eliminate sub-standard assets.[52]

21. Officers of the Bank were fully informed of the condition of its affairs. Reports of the semi-annual examinations by National Bank Examiners, submitted to the Bank's directors,[53] pointed out the unsatisfactory state of its affairs and the sub-standard assets which were sources of potential danger to it. The Bank's officers knew, and its directors knew, or in the exercise of ordinary care should have known, of the possibility of an assessment against holders of Trustees' Participation Certificates in the event of the inability of the bank to continue as a national banking institution and/or in the event of loss to its depositors due to its closing.

22. From time to time, after the unification of the Bank and Trust Company, further expansion[54] of the Bank's business was discussed and considered by officers and directors. From January 1929 to July 12, 1929 the entire management of the Bank and its affiliated trust company considered and discussed a plan finally known as the "Plan for the Reorganization of the National Bank of Kentucky and Louisville Trust Company." [55] These officers, directors and attorneys were holders of the Trustees' Participation Certificates, were aware of their personal liability to assessment thereon,[56] and the officers and the directors and attorneys knew, or in the exercise of ordinary care should have known, the condition of the Bank. They were desirous to not only strengthen the Bank [57] but to expand its business and the sources of profit to shareholders [58] by means of chain or group banking operations [59] and claim they expected to engage in activities beyond the charter powers of the national or Kentucky banks and trust companies,[60] following the example of other large banks engaged in similar ventures.[61]

23. The Bank's officers, and some of its directors and lawyers knew of various methods under discussion in the American Bankers' Association Journal and by bankers generally for the establishing of chains or groups of banks by means of trust agreements similar to the Trust Agreement of April 22, 1927 and by means of bank stock holding companies.[62] They knew that under such trust agreements, it was the common practice for shareholders to retain their bank stock or to exchange it for participating certificates or receipts representing deposited bank stock and bearing the same liability.[63] They knew that the protection provided depositors by double liability statutes would be lost to depositors in banks whose shares were held by a bank stock holding company unless shareholders of the holding company either provided it with ample independent assets other than bank stocks from which any assessments on such bank stock could be satisfied, or the holding company shareholders were individually liable to assessment on the bank shares held for their benefit by the holding company.[64]

24. After careful consideration by all the Bank's officers, directors and many of its largest shareholders, with the advice and assistance of lawyers experienced in banking and with the laws relative thereto [65] extending over a period of many months, a Plan was agreed upon for the creation of a holding company under the general corporation laws of Delaware, to be named BancoKentucky Company, after the National Bank of Kentucky, which was commonly known as "Bank of Kentucky," [66] and to be controlled by the stockholders of the unified Bank-Trust Company and managed and operated by its officers and directors.[67] BancoKentucky Company was first to acquire and hold a substantial majority, if not all, the capital stock of the Bank and the Trust Company, evidenced by Trustees' Participation Certificates, through the mere exchange of holding company stock for Trustees' Participation Certifi-

25. The promoters of the holding company claim that the plan was prompted by their desire to compete with other banks which were extending their businesses into fields beyond the charter powers of banks and avoiding the laws restricting branch banking, through holding companies.[73] They claimed that through BancoKentucky Company and the other banking units in the chain they intended to extend the business of the National Bank of Kentucky [74] by engaging in profitable but more hazardous business than permitted by the Bank or Trust Company's charter,[75] to make loans to clients beyond the Bank's legal limits, to apportion business among the controlled banks and trust companies,[76] to use the holding company as a substitute for the Federal Reserve System for the controlled banks [77] and to aid the units of the banking chain with cash when the need arose.[78] Though it was intended that BancoKentucky Company be free from supervision by public banking officials or regulation by state or federal banking laws,[79] the organizers of BancoKentucky Company assert it was to reorganize the business of banking and indirectly to engage in the business of banking.[80]

26. The officers, directors, attorneys and stockholders of the bank who organized and promoted BancoKentucky Company, were substantially the same persons[81] who arranged the unification of the Bank with the Trust Company under the Trust Agreement and under forms of certificates whereby all stockholders of the Bank-Trust Company recognized that after exchanging certificates for shares issued by the Bank or the Trust Company for Trustees' Participation Certificates they continued to be the Bank and Trust Company's real shareholders and proportionately liable to assessment as record owners of the Bank and Trust shares registered in the names of the Trustees.[82] They all knew that persons who should acquire holding company shares either by exchange of Trustees' Participation Certificates or for cash would continue to be or become the ultimate beneficiaries of the dividends and privileges to which shareholders in the Bank-Trust Company would be entitled. They all knew that unless the holding company was provided with ample independent assets, other than assessable bank or trust company shares, in an amount sufficient at all times to enable it to satisfy any assessment on such shares; or the shareholders of the holding company were proportionately and personally liable for any assessment which might be levied on the shares held by the holding company, the protection, theretofore existing, intended for depositors and creditors of the banks controlled by the holding company under federal and state laws, would be of no practical value to such depositors and creditors.

27. The officers, directors and stockholders of the Bank and Trust Company who organized and promoted BancoKentucky Company caused to be inserted in its charter Article VIII—"the private property of the stockholders shall not be subject to the payment of corporate debts to any extent whatever" [83] and caused the form for subscriptions for holding company stock,[84] and the holding company's temporary [85] and permanent stock certificates [86] to recite that the shares of BancoKentucky Company were "fully paid and non-assessable."

28. The organizers and promoters of BancoKentucky Company inserted Article VIII in the company's charter and the words "non-assessable" in all subscription and stock forms for the purpose of effecting the termination of the previously existing personal liability to assessment of all holders of Trustees' Participation Certificates who exchanged such Certificates for BancoKentucky Company stock,[87] and the limitation of the personal liability to such assessments, on the part of all persons otherwise acquiring holding company stock, to the value of the property or

29. Everything actually done or claimed to have been contemplated to be done by or through BancoKentucky Company could have been accomplished by and on behalf of the holders of the Trustees' Participation Certificates through the Trustees under the terms of the Trust Agreement of April 22, 1927, or through the Louisville National Company except that the shareholders of the Bank-Trust Company would have retained certificates subjecting them proportionately to the liability of a record owner of the Bank and Trust Company's shares registered in the names of the Trustees.

30. Some of the officers, directors and attorneys of the Bank who participated in the organization of Banco-Kentucky Company claim that the corporation was not intended to be merely a bank stock holding company, but that through it they expected to engage in the investment banking business,[88] to originate and sell first mortgage bonds,[89] to underwrite securities,[90] to make loans beyond the legal limitations imposed upon the Bank and Trust Company,[91] and to use that company as a sort of private federal reserve system for the banks controlled by it.[92] Banco-Kentucky Company never undertook any of these activities. The organizers of BancoKentucky Company knew that neither a Kentucky general business corporation, nor a general business corporation organized under the laws of any other state[93] could lawfully engage in such activities in the State of Kentucky. They knew that the Kentucky statutes authorized the formation of corporations to engage in any lawful business "but banking . . . ,"[94] that general business corporations could not "directly or indirectly, engage in or carry on in any way the business of banking, of any kind, unless it has become organized under the laws relating to banking. . . ."[95] Organization of corporations or trust companies either under federal or Kentucky law would subject shareholders to personal liability to assessment to the extent of the par value of their investment in the corporation,[96] and would subject the corporation to supervision and regulation under the National Bank Act or the Kentucky Department of Banking.[97] They also knew that stockholders in banks, trust companies, guaranty companies, investment companies were liable to assessments to the extent of the par value of their investment in such companies,[98] that transfers of such stock did not release shareholders from their personal liability,[99] and that transferees thereof succeeded to the transferor's personal liability.[100] They also knew that a foreign general business corporation could not undertake any business or activity in Kentucky not permitted to Kentucky business corporations.[1]

31. The officers, directors and attorneys of the Bank knew that it was illegal for any corporation to hold, either directly or indirectly, more than one-half of the capital stock of any bank[2] or trust company.[3] They also knew that Section 36 of the National Bank Act[4] prohibited member banks of the Federal Reserve System from establishing branches outside city limits, but they hoped that no action would be taken to prevent the holding company's violation of the laws relating to the amount of bank or trust company stock to be held by one person [5] and intended to circumvent the laws against branch banking and prohibiting a national bank from purchasing bank stocks [6] by acquiring controlling interests and operating a chain of banks through the holding company.[7]

32. The officers, directors, shareholders and attorneys of the Bank who participated in the organization and promotion of BancoKentucky Company sought to avoid the operation and effect of the Kentucky statutes designed to protect bank and trust company depositors, creditors and the public from loss, by organizing the holding company under the general corporation laws of Delaware, which did not prohibit companies incorporated thereunder from engaging in activities illegal for Kentucky general business corporations but which Kentucky corporations could undertake only by submitting to supervision of banking officials and by subjecting their shareholders to personal liability to assessment.

33. On July 16, 1929 the officers, directors and attorneys and certain of the large stockholders of the Bank caused the Articles of Incorporation of BancoKentucky Company to be filed and secured a charter therefor under the general corporation laws of Delaware.

34. BancoKentucky Company never filed a statement with the Secretary of State of Kentucky as required by law,[8] and never paid a license tax or filed a report with the

35. On July 19, 1929 the officers and directors of the bank sent to all shareholders of the Bank-Trust Company a BancoKentucky Company prospectus called a Plan of Reorganization, over the signatures of all the officers and directors of the Bank-Trust Company and the Trustees for the Trustees' Participation Certificate holders.[11] Enclosed therewith was a form providing for the subscription for BancoKentucky Company shares by the exchange of Trustees' Participation Certificates or for cash, which form referred to the Reorganization Plan outlined in the prospectus[12] and to "non-assessable" feature of the shares to be issued thereunder.

36. The Reorganization Plan [13] explained to shareholders that the officers and directors of the Bank-Trust Company had studied the changing conditions in the banking business for the purpose of preparing the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company to take advantage of new opportunities and had unanimously concluded that the two banks and their business should be reorganized by adding a third corporation, BancoKentucky Company, for the purpose of making the operations of the two banks more profitable for the shareholders. The stockholders were informed that BancoKentucky Company could exercise many profitable and important functions beyond the powers of either the Bank or the Trust Company. The Plan of Reorganization provided that BancoKentucky Company's 2,000,000 voting shares of the par value of $10.00 each should be sold in accordance with the Plan of Reorganization at a valuation of $25.00 each. The Plan was expressly conditioned upon BancoKentucky Company's stock, or at least a substantial majority of it, being owned by Trustees' Participation Certificate holders, upon the company's acquisition of at least a majority of the Trustees' Participation Certificates and upon BancoKentucky Company's being managed and operated by the Boards of Directors and officers of the Bank-Trust Company. BancoKentucky Company's entire stock was offered to and preempted in favor of the Trustees' Participation Certificate holders through the Trustees as agents for the Trustees' Participation Certificate holders.[14] The Trustees' Participation Certificate holders were given the right to desposit their Trustees' Participation Certificates in exchange for BancoKentucky Company shares, by September 19, 1929 on the basis of two $10.00 par shares of Banco for each

$10.00 par Trustees' Participation Certificate. Each depositing Trustees' Participation Certificate holder was offered the right to subscribe for additional Banco stock at $25.00 per share.

37. It is conceded that full publicity was given the Plan for the reorganization of the National Bank of Kentucky—Louisville Trust Company and to the activity of the holding company in acquiring shares of other banks and trust companies in the public press and in various financial and investment publications throughout the country.[15] Publicity of every kind was given to every step from the time the Plan was announced July 19, 1929 until just before the failure of the Bank-Trust Company and the holding company.[16]

38. The Reorganization Plan was printed and published in full in the public press. The substance of the information published was that the National Bank of Kentucky had organized BancoKentucky Company, a Delaware corporation, as a holding company to reorganize the National Bank of Kentucky and its business, to hold the stock of the Bank and to acquire control and operate a chain of banks and trust companies in the Middle West under the management of the officers and directors of the National Bank of Kentucky. BancoKentucky Company was to function as a holding company for bank stocks and to engage in activities along banking lines.[17] The plan was referred to as a "merger"[18] and a financial "combination"[19] of the National Bank of Kentucky, Louisville Trust Company and Banco-Kentucky Company. The Trustees' Participation Certificates were referred to as the "old" stock of the Bank and Banco shares as the "new" stock.[20] All the holding company stock was offered to and preempted in favor of National Bank of Kentucky shareholders in exchange for their bank stock and cash.[21] The cash[22] paid into the holding company and the later increase in its authorized capital stock[23] were intended to be used and were used primarily to acquire controlling stock interests in other banks. The holding company limited its investments principally and primarily to bank shares[24] and was a bank holding corporation, not an ordinary business corporation.[25] It was referred to as a banking institution, a banking company, en-

39. Immediately after the public announcement of the Bank's Plan of Reorganization, its officers, directors and employees began an intensive campaign to secure the exchange of all outstanding Trustees' Participation Certificates for holding company stock and subscriptions for its stock.[27] Copies of the Plan were distributed to prospective purchasers and used as a prospectus.[28] Shareholders who inquired were advised that one of the advantages of exchanging their Trustees' Participation Certificates for holding company shares was the avoidance of double liability.[29] Prospective shareholders were informed that the holding company would receive and distribute dividends from the Bank-Trust Company to its shareholders;[30] that the holding company would be operated and managed by the officers and directors of the Bank-Trust Company[31] and that cash subscribed to the holding company would be used to acquire controlling share interests in other banks.[32]

As soon as the Reorganization Plan was declared operative and before the subscriptions to holding company stock became payable, negotiations begun by the president of the Bank were concluded for acquiring controlling stock interests in the Pearl Market Bank and Trust Company of Cincinnati, Ohio and the Brighton Bank and Trust Company, also of Cincinnati, Ohio.[35] Thereafter the holding company acquired 47,854 shares of Pearl Market Bank stock (out of a total of 60,000 shares) for $2,200,388.30 in cash and 54,936 shares of BancoKentucky Company stock. It also acquired 43,290 shares of Brighton Bank stock for $3,323,409.90 in cash and 31,459 shares of BancoKentucky Company stock.[36]

All of the certificates issued by the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company evidencing shares of their capital stock were deposited with the Trustees under the Trust Agreement of April 22, 1927, except a trust company certificate for 5 shares. Under the Plan of Reorganization the shareholders of the Bank-Trust Company exchanged 540,484 Trustees' Participation Certificates, representing 37,721.62 shares of the Bank-Trust Company stock for certificates issued by BancoKentucky Company. BancoKentucky Company became the record owner of 95% of the Trustees' Participation Certificates and subject to the liability of a record owner of that percentage of the Bank and Trust Company's stock.[37]

42. Superficially it appeared that the Trustees voted the Bank and Trust Company's stock, that the holding company voted the Trustees' Participation Certificates and that defendants and other holding company shareholders voted the stock of BancoKentucky Company. However, under the Trust Agreement the voting rights in all the Bank-Trust Company stock was vested in the six Trustees, directors of the Bank-Trust Company, subject to direction by the Advisory Committee, consisting of the entire board of directors of the Bank-Trust Company. All members of the Advisory Committee were directors of BancoKentucky Company and exercised voting rights of the holding company as registered holder of 95% of the Trustees' Participation Certificates. BancoKentucky Company and its directors and officers were controlled by defendants and all other holders of its shares. All directors of the Bank-Trust Company were, in accordance with the Plan of Reorganization, directors of the holding company.[38] The president, vice-president and secretary-treasurer of the holding company were the president, vice-president and cashier of the Bank.[39] Pursuant to the Plan of Reorganization the shareholders of BancoKentucky Company elected the directors of the Bank-Trust Company directors of the holding company. The directors of the holding company, by reason of its record ownership of 95% of the Trustees' Participation Certificates, then elected themselves directors of the Bank-Trust Company, and appointed the officers of the holding company, the officers of the Bank and the Trust Company, with whom they managed and controlled BancoKentucky Company, the Bank-Trust Company and the other banks and trust companies in which the holding company acquired controlling stock interests.[40] Persons who had previously held certificates issued by the Bank or certificates issued by the Trustees at all times held at least 66.68% of the holding company's stock, the percentage held by them when the Bank closed.[41]

43. After the unification of the Bank and Trust Company, dividends were distributed to shareholders through the Trustees.[42] From the time the Plan of Reorganization became operative until the failure of the Bank 95% of the dividends declared by the directors of the Bank-Trust Company were distributed to holding company shareholders through the Trustees and the holding company.[43] The Bank, the Trust Company and the holding company dividends were all declared by the directors thereof and were payable at the same times.[44] From the unification of the Bank and Trust Company to their closing, November 16, 1930, each paid annual dividends equal to 16% of the par value of their capital. The annual dividend rate of the holding company was 8% of the par value of its outstanding stock. One $100.00 par Trustees' Participation Certificate or the ten $10.00 par Trustees' Participation Certificates into which the former was converted, paid dividends of $4.00 per quarter. A shareholder of the Bank, who deposited $100.00 in par value of Trustees' Participation Certificates under the Plan received twenty $10.00 par shares of Banco and thereafter received thereon dividends of $4.00 per quarter. The few who retained Trustees' Participation Certificates continued to receive only their proportionate part of the dividends paid by the Bank and the Trust Company. received a smaller proportionate share of the dividends paid by the Bank and the Trust Company but they participated in the dividends paid by the other eight banks and trust companies in the holding company chain.[45] All of the income of the holding company (except $750.00 in dividends on insurance stock and $2707.40 as interest on stock subscriptions) came from the banking units in the holding company chain.[46] Three-quarters of its income came from the Bank-Trust Company. Defendants and other shareholders in BancoKentucky Company received all the dividends paid by the Bank, the Trust Company and the other bank and trust company units in the holding company chain on the shares registered in the name of the holding company.[47]

44. When the Bank failed 88.71% of Banco's 2,072,468 issued and outstanding shares were [48] held by persons who had participated in the Plan for Reorganizing the Bank by exchanging Trustees' Participation Certificates, or Interim Receipts (representing certificates deposited with the Trustees as agents for shareholders under the Plan) or shares of other banks which became units in the Banco chain, for Banco shares or had subscribed for Banco shares under said Plan. 66.68% of Banco's outstanding shares were then held by persons who had exchanged Trustees' Participation Certificates, or Interim Receipts for Banco shares. 10.56% of all outstanding Banco shares were held by persons whose shares were otherwise acquired.[49]

45. Persons who exchanged Trustees' Participation Certificates for holding company shares had contracted and promised to respond to the liability of a record owner for any assessment levied on the Bank's shares and registered in the names of the Trustees, in proportion to their holdings of Trustees' Participation Certificates, in addition to their liability as actual or beneficial owner of the Bank's stock.[50] Each executed a Subscription and Exchange form by which he acknowledged that he had deposited his Trustees' Participation Certificates with the Trustees, as his Agents, under the Plan of Reorganization.[51] Each received an Interim Receipt for the Trustees' Participation Certificates deposited with the Agent Trustees providing for their acceptance of holding company stock or the return of the Trustees' Participation Certificates depending upon the completion of the Plan of Reorganization.[52] Each knew that, as a holder of Trustees' Participation Certificates, he was personally liable to any assessment which might be levied on National Bank of Kentucky shareholders or Louisville Trust Company shareholders to the extent of the par value of his Trustees' Participation Certificates.[53] Each regarded Trustees' Participation Certificates as representing National Bank of Kentucky shares,[54] and the holding company stock received in exchange therefor as the same property in a different form.[55] None considered that he had received a taxable capital gain or suffered a deductible capital loss by reason of the exchange,[56] and in exchanging Trustees' Participation Certificates for holding company shares no out and out transfer was either contemplate dor effected. These exchanges were not sales and did not divorce the persons who had theretofore owned the Bank's stock from dividends and benefits of the ownership thereof.

46. All defendants who subscribed for holding company shares signed a Subscription and Exchange form [57] acknowledging that such subscription was under the Plan for Reorganization of the unified banks and their business, under the prospectus.[58]

47. All defendants who transferred to BancoKentucky Company shares of banks, other than the National Bank of Kentucky or the Louisville Trust Company, in exchange for holding company shares, knew that before such exchange they were shareholders in one bank and personally liable to assessment for the benefit of the creditors of such bank and that after such exchange they had proportionate interests in the banking units of the BancoKentucky Company chain, evidenced by certificates purporting to be non-assessable. They knew that their investment had changed from a share interest in one bank to a beneficial share interest in all banks in the chain.

48. It is conceded that defendants and all other BancoKentucky Company shareholders acquired their holding company shares in the belief that BancoKentucky Company would do the things indicated in the Plan of Reorganization [59] and with the expectation of securing a share in the profits resulting from the operations of the National Bank of Kentucky-Louisville Trust Company under the Plan of Reorganization. They all knew the primary purpose for the organization of BancoKentucky Company was to own, operate and control a chain of banks under the management and direction of the officers and directors of the National Bank of Kentucky and that the cash subscribed for holding company shares was to be used primarily and principally in the acquisition of additional banks.

49. BancoKentucky Company was not an operating company. It had no office or officers other than the office and officers of the National Bank of Kentucky. It had no directors or employees other than the directors and employees of the Bank-Trust Company.[60] During its corporate life it primarily and principally acted as a holding company for the stock of banks from which it received 99.73% of its income.[61]

50. The directors of the National Bank of Kentucky-Louisville Trust Company directed the affairs of these two banking associations. The same men were directors of the BancoKentucky Company [62] and through its stock control they nominated the directors and controlled the affairs and policies of all bank subsidiaries in the BancoKentucky Company chain.[63] The president of the Bank and of BancoKentucky Company was on the board of directors of all banks in the chain.[64] They declared the dividends to be paid by the unified Bank-Trust Company, controlled the dividend policies of the other units in the chain and paid all dividends received from said banking units to the holders of BancoKentucky Company shares.[65] The holding company engaged in no activity other than the control and operation of banks and trust companies [66] except that, just before the collapse, it took over some of the Bank's worthless and most severely criticized assets at the insistence of National Bank Examiners.[67] The directors of the Bank considered Bank assets as holding company assets and vice versa,[68] and were frequently unable to distinguish between their actions as directors of the Bank and their actions as directors of the holding company.[69] BancoKentucky Company functioned only as a holding company for bank shares, dividends from which, with interest on holding company deposits in controlled banks, constituted its sole source of income.[70]

51. When the National Bank of Kentucky failed November 16, 1930, the holding company had no assets of any substantial value other than shares of bank and trust company stock.[71] It held shares in ten banks and trust companies on which it was liable, as owner of record, to stock assessments in the sum of $7,770,780.00.[72] BancoKentucky

Company was further indebted in the sum of $1,734,296.16 on notes payable, overdrafts and taxes.[73] Its only assets, outside of shares of bank and trust company stock, were 625 shares of Union Central Life Insurance Company stock, a $2,000,000.00 note of James B. Brown, President of the Bank and of the holding company, 10,000 shares of Caldwell & Company, $580,000.00 in notes of Murray Rubber Company and a $20,000.00 participating interest in notes of Louis Humphrey.[74] The insurance company stock was worth about $25,000.00,[75] the Brown note about $442,580.75, the value of the collateral.[76] The Caldwell & Company stock,[77] the Murray Rubber Company notes and the Louis Humphrey participation were worthless[78] when the holding company acquired them and the transaction through which Banco received the Caldwell stock was never consummated.

54. On November 24, 1931, the officers and directors of the Bank-Trust Company, acting as officers and directors of the holding company, filed a petition in the Jefferson County Circuit Court praying for the appointment of a Receiver.[82] The allegations of the petition were confessed by the holding company,[83] approved by the board of directors [84] and are admitted to be true in this case.[85] The petition asserted, among other things, that prior to the failure of the National Bank of Kentucky substantially all of the property and assets of BancoKentucky Company consisted of bank stock; that the failure of the bank made it impossible to continue the holding company for the purposes for which it was organized; that the holding company had immediately disposed of its stock in the Brighton Bank and Trust Company and Pearl Market Bank and Trust Company of Cincinnati, the Peoples Liberty Bank and Trust Company and Central Savings Bank and Trust Company of Covington, Kentucky, and stock of the Ashland National Bank, Ashland, Kentucky; that the stock of the First National Bank of Paducah was of doubtful value; that the proceeds of said sales with the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky and Louisville Trust Company constituted the only assets of the holding company. able bank stock were made for nominal amounts, for the purpose of preventing assessments against the holding company [86] and the sums received therefor by the holding company, with sums realized upon the sale of the holding company's other assets, have been only sufficient to pay a 7% dividend, in December, 1934, to creditors of the holding company.[87]

55. On November 20, 1930, the Bank and Trust Company directors, acting as holding company directors, authorized proceedings for the dissolution of the Trust under the Agreement of April 22, 1927, and the distribution of the Bank and Trust Company shares registered in the name of the Trustees to BancoKentucky Company.[88] Thereafter the Trust was dissolved on December 26, 1930,[89] and, in an action instituted by the Receiver of the holding company against the Trustees, the Jefferson Circuit Court directed the Trustees to distribute to the Receiver for the holding company 37,721.624 shares of the stock of the Bank and 16,326.77 shares of the Trust Company.[90] The bank was authorized to cancel 38,820 shares of its stock registered in the names of the Trustees and in lieu thereof to issue certificates for 37,721.624 shares to BancoKentucky Company as owner thereof.[91]

56. The Trustees, under the Trust Agreement of April 22, 1927, held the capital stock of the National Bank of Kentucky as agents for the registered holders of Trustees' Participation Certificates who were at all times subject to the liability of an owner of record of stock of the National Bank of Kentucky.

57. BancoKentucky Company was organized by the officers, directors and the Trustees' Participation Certificate holders of the National Bank of Kentucky and Louisville Trust Company as a holding company, for their convenience, profit and advantage, and said company was the corporate agency and instrumentality of the shareholders thereof to hold bank stocks.

58. The holders of shares of BancoKentucky Company had and exercised, through the corporate agency of the holding company, all the rights and benefits of shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky and of the Louisville Trust Company, to the extent of the Trustees' Participation Certificates and bank and trust company shares nominally registered in the name of the holding company, and used the holding company as a mere instrumentality and agency to own, control and operate a group of state and national banks.

59. At the time of the closing of the National Bank of Kentucky there were issued and outstanding 2,072,468 shares of BancoKentucky Company stock. The holders of said shares were the real, actual and beneficial owners of 37,721.6214 shares of the capital stock of that bank. Each of said BancoKentucky Company shares represented .01820130462 of a share of National Bank of Kentucky stock and the assessment thereon, with interest at 6% per annum, to the date this action was commenced, and less the dividend paid by the holding company, is 2.305386 per share.[92]

60. At the time of the levy of said assessment and requisition, upon shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky, defendants were the record owners of the number of shares of stock of BancoKentucky Company set opposite their respective names on a schedule and list hereto attached and marked Exhibit A. The proportionate part of said assessment against each defendant is in the amount set opposite their respective names on said schedule.

61. In a suit filed by plaintiff's predecessor, Laurent v. Anderson,[93] plaintiff's predecessor recovered a judgment in an action at law against the Receiver of BancoKentucky Company for the assessment on the 37,721.6214 shares of National Bank of Kentucky stock by reason of the fact that the holding company was the holder of record of 540,484 Trustees' Participation Certificates ($10.00 par) issued under the terms of the Trust Agreement of April 22, 1927. The pleadings, evidence and opinions of the trial and appellate courts in that case show that the question presented for decision was whether BancoKentucky Company, by reason of its record ownership of Trustees' Participation Certificates, was liable as a shareholder of the Bank under Section 64 of the National Bank Act, or whether Section 66 of that Act exempted BancoKentucky Company, as a beneficiary under said Trust Agreement, from liability. BancoKentucky Company, and the four other Trustees' Participation Certificate holders involved in that case, were held liable to assessment. The claim of the plaintiff in that case is consistent with one of plaintiff's claims here, namely, that BancoKentucky Company held the Trustees' Participation Certificates as the corporate agency and instrumentality of the holders of shares issued by BancoKentucky Company who were the real and beneficial owners of the Trustees' Participation Certificates and the shares of the Bank's stock represented thereby. No claim of plaintiff in that case is inconsistent with any of plaintiff's claims here. None of the issues here presented for decision were involved in or decided by the decision and judgment in Laurent v. Anderson.

62. The case of Anderson v. Atherton[94] involved the Bank's claim against its directors for the recovery of losses alleged to have been sustained by the Bank on loans secured by stock of BancoKentucky Company and by reason of the alleged illegal payment of dividends in violation of Sections 56 and 60 of the National Bank Act. The plaintiff alleged, and defendants denied, that the directors were liable for losses sustained by the Bank on such loans under Section 93 of the Act, subjecting directors to personal liability for damages sustained through their knowing violation or their having knowingly permitted bank officers or agents to violate provisions of the Act, because such loans were made "on the security of the shares of its (the Bank's) own capital stock" within the prohibition of Section 83 of the Act. The Court of Appeals for this Circuit noted in its opinion[95] that it was only passing upon the question of whether or not there had been a violation of the express terms of the National Bank Act. As to the non-officer directors it found none. The officer directors were held responsible to repay the Bank's loss on such loans to the extent of $1,636,613.14.[96] The District Court dismissed plaintiff's petition as to all directors with respect to the claim that they were liable under Section 93 of the Act for violating Sections 56 and 60 of the Act in declaring and paying dividends and that claim was not further litigated.[97] are present here but such evidentiary facts were offered and considered in connection with entirely different issues. Much of the evidence in this case was not before the court in the Atherton case. None of the issues here presented for decision were necessarily or actually adjudged in that case. Plaintiff's claims in this case are consistent with all the issues decided in the Atherton case.

63. BancoKentucky Company was not a mere holding company for stock of the National Bank of Kentucky. It was created and conducted as a holding company for the shares of many banks. The purposes for its organization, as disclosed by its charter, were neither illegitimate nor unlawful. The use intended to be made of the corporation was not indicated by its charter powers. It was created primarily for the purpose of holding shares of National Bank of Kentucky and Louisville Trust Company stock and the shares of other banks and trust companies in the Ohio Valley to be acquired as units in the Banco group or chain of banks. The holding company secured cash subscriptions in the total amount of $9,869,650.00 but before those subscriptions were callable on October 1, 1929, the company had committed itself to purchase controlling stock interests in the Brighton Bank & Trust Company and the Pearl Market Bank & Trust Company in Cincinnati, Ohio, for which it paid a total of $5,523,798.20 in cash. By November 4, 1929, the holding company's cash was represented by a deposit in the National Bank of Kentucky in the sum of $3,300,000.00 and a deposit in the Louisville Trust Company in the sum of $550,000.00,[98] an amount insufficient to have responded to a full assessment on National Bank of Kentucky shareholders aside from the holding company's assessment liability of over $1,600,000.00 as a shareholder of the Louisville Trust Company and its assessment liability on the shares of the two Cincinnati banks it then held. Pursuant to this purpose, Banco ultimately acquired controlling share interests in ten national and two state banks and trust companies, eight of which were in Kentucky and two were in Ohio. When the Bank and Trust Company failed the holding company was subject to assessment liability on all its bank and trust company shares of over seven and three-quarter million dollars and its liability for borrowed money, taxes and bank overdrafts were about one million and three-quarters. Aside from bank stocks it had no assets of any substantial value.

BancoKentucky Company was a separate legal entity. It was neither the bank's alter ego nor instrumentality, but the corporate entity of this Company was designed to be used and was used as an agency and instrumentality to hold bank stock for the use and benefit of the persons holding shares of BancoKentucky stock. The purpose for the organization of the company and the use made of its corporate entity were in direct violation of the Kentucky statutes prohibiting the ownership of more than fifty per cent of any bank or trust company stock by one person or corporation, were contrary to the purpose and policy of the Federal statutes limiting branch banking, were in direct violation of the Kentucky statute prohibiting non-banking corporations from either directly or indirectly engaging in the banking business in any way and were constructively fraudulent as to the creditors and depositors of the National Bank of Kentucky, in that the effect of the use of a holding corporation in this manner and as a non-conductor of liability for assessment would be to circumvent and evade Section 64 of the National Bank Act and the statutes of Kentucky and Ohio, imposing double liability on shareholders of bank and trust companies.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

1. The Court has jurisdiction over this suit in equity.

2. There has been no misjoinder or improper joinder of parties defendant in this action.

3. The action and proceedings by the Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky against BancoKentucky Company and its Receiver to collect the assessment upon the shares of the Bank, the findings and judgment therein and the recovery of a dividend on said judgment are not inconsistent with the facts upon which plaintiff's cause of action is based or the issues here and the defenses of election of persons, election of remedies, estoppel, res judicata and prior adjudication, allegedly arising because of the decision in Laurent v. Anderson and the recovery of a dividend on the judgment therein, are insufficient in law to constitute any defense to this suit.

4. No issue of fact or law here presented for decision has been decided or adjudged adversely to any claim made by plaintiff by the judgment and decision in Atherton v. Anderson, in which case the Bank, by its Receiver, sought to recover Bank losses incurred by reason of the violation of provisions of the National Bank Act by directors of the Bank. The decision, that shares of BancoKentucky Company stock were not shares of the Bank's own capital stock, within the prohibition of Section 83 of the National Bank Act, and that the Bank's non-officer directors were not liable for the losses sustained by the Bank on loans secured by BancoKentucky Company stock, under Section 93 of the National Bank Act, has no bearing on the question of the liability of any defendant in this case under Section 64 of said Act. Defendants here, who were directors of the Bank and defendants in the Atherton case, have not established any defense on the theory of res judicata or estoppel by judgment.

The principles of law laid down by the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals in Barbour v. Thomas[99] under the doctrine of stare decisis, are equally applicable here since the controlling facts in the two cases are substantially the same with one exception. In that case the holding company certificates for shares contained an express recognition of the owner's personal liability to assessment on the bank stocks nominally held by the holding corporation while here the holding company certificates and charter contain provisions of contrary import. This difference is not favorable to defendants.

5. The holders of Trustees' Participation Certificates, issued under the Trust Agreement of April 22, 1927, under which the shares of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company were unified, were shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky under Section 64 of the National Bank Act and, after the exchange of their Trustees' Participation Certificates for shares of stock in Banco-Kentucky Company, they continued their proportionate ownership of National Bank of Kentucky stock in a different form but, disregarding mere form for substance, they continued to be shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky and subject to proportionate individual liability to assessment under said federal statutes. Furthermore, since such exchange was not a sale or out and out transfer, whereby they divorced themselves from all interest in the Trustees' Participation Certificates, the liability to assessment for which they had expressly contracted by the acceptance of Trustees' Participation Certificates also continued in effect.

6. BancoKentucky Company was a corporate convenience, agency and instrumentality created and controlled by the real shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky and held Trustees' Participation Certificates, representing 37,721.6214 shares of the capital stock of the National Bank of Kentucky as such agent, and trustee, or instrumentality for the persons who held certificates for shares issued by BancoKentucky Company.

7. The holders of certificates for shares issued by Banco-Kentucky Company were the real, actual and beneficial owners and holders of the 37,721.6214 shares of the capital stock of the National Bank of Kentucky represented by the Trustees' Participation Certificates registered in the name of BancoKentucky Company, and were the real and actual beneficial shareholders of said National Bank of Kentucky stock under Section 64 of the National Bank Act and are liable for the assessment levied upon the shareholders of said Bank in the proportion that the number of Banco-Kentucky Company shares held by them on November 17, 1930, or within sixty days prior thereto, bears to the total number of BancoKentucky Company shares then issued and outstanding, to wit: the sum of $2.305386 for each share of BancoKentucky Company stock.

8. The holders of certificates for shares issued by Banco-Kentucky Company, having voluntarily placed themselves in position to receive and exercise, and having received and exercised, the benefits and rights of shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky with respect to 37,721.6214 shares of the capital stock of said Bank, are estopped to deny their personal and proportionate liability to pay the assessment upon shareholders of said Bank as to the depositors and creditors thereof.

9. The use of the corporate entity of BancoKentucky Company by the holders of shares of its stock as an agency and instrumentality to hold the legal title to assessable Trustees' Participation Certificates representing the assessable stock of the National Bank of Kentucky and the legal title to the assessable capital stock of other banks and trust companies, and to own, operate and control a group or chain of state and national banks and trust companies for their use and benefit, without making provision for the protection of depositors and creditors of the National Bank of Kentucky in the event of an assessment upon its shareholders, and without providing BancoKentucky Company with substantial assets other than assessable bank shares or by BancoKentucky Company shareholders expressly assuming a proportionate personal liability to assessment, was and is constructively fraudulent as to the depositors and creditors of the National Bank of Kentucky. The holders of shares of BancoKentucky Company cannot shield themselves from personal liability to assessment as the actual, real, and beneficial shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky by interposing the corporate entity of their agency and instrumentality, BancoKentucky Company, and declaring its shares to be non-assessable and their private property exempt from its debts.

10. BancoKentucky Company was created and conducted so that it in effect circumvented and violated state and federal laws based on sound public policy and designed for the protection of bank depositors and creditors. The shareholders of BancoKentucky Company are chargeable with knowledge of the use of this corporate entity to deny personal liability to assessment imposed by federal and state laws upon shareholders of national and state banks and trust companies, and its use to circumvent federal laws relating to branch banking, and state and federal laws providing for the supervision and regulation of the banking business. Said shareholders are chargeable with knowledge that said corporate entity was used to violate the laws of Kentucky with respect to the extent of the ownership of bank or trust company stock by one person or corporation and the laws of Kentucky which prohibit any corporation either directly or indirectly engaging in any way in the banking business unless organized under banking laws. The shareholders of BancoKentucky Company are not entitled to the immunity from personal liability of shareholders of lawfully organized and conducted business corporations and are proportionately liable for the indebtedness of BancoKentucky Company, as registered owner of Trustees' Participation Certificates.

MOTION OF THE PLAINTIFF REQUESTING THE COURT TO MAKE CERTAIN SPECIFIED FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

(Overruled in Open Court on June 5, 1940)

Now comes the plaintiff and respectfully moves the court as follows, to-wit:

1. To make each and all of the findings of fact and conclusions of law heretofore filed by the plaintiff and made a part of the record in this case in connection with the motion of the plaintiff for findings of fact and conclusions of law;

2. To make certain additional and supplemental findings of fact and conclusions of law in accordance with (a) the opinion of the court handed down May 13, 1938 (23 Fed. Sup. 265) overruling the motions to dismiss filed by the defendants, which proposed supplemental findings of fact and conclusions of law are hereto attached and marked Exhibit A; and (b) the opinion of this court handed down and filed in this cause on March 23, 1940, on the merits, which proposed supplemental findings of fact and conclusions of law are hereto attached and marked Exhibit B.

EXHIBIT A

SUPPLEMENTAL CONCLUSIONS OF LAW REQUESTED BY PLAINTIFF IN CONFORMITY WITH OPINION ON MOTION TO DISMISS

1. The statute of limitations is not a defense. An action against shareholders for an assessment does not accrue until the assessment is due and payable, in this case, on April 1, 1931.

2. As to the alleged multifariousness of the bill—the very nature of this proceeding warrants the court in overruling the motion to dismiss on this ground. There can be no real prejudice to any defendant by proceeding in equity. The interest of the parties under the allegations of the bill are necessarily common in most respects. To dismiss the bill and require the receiver to sue each separate defendant at law would be to destroy the very essence of equity and be a gross injustice to all parties. It would involve years of litigation and expense over the determination of questions which must of necessity apply to each individual defendant. There is a community of interest between the defendants on all material questions of law and fact and equity can more efficiently, promptly, inexpensively, and practically attain the ends of justice. A. M. Anderson, etc. v. Elizabeth Atkinson et al., 22 F. Supp. 853.

3. As to res judicata—in the case of Laurent v. Anderson, the same matters were not directly in question. We have for determination a question that has not been finally determined in any other proceeding. I am of the opinion that res judicata is not a good defense.

4. Laurent v. Anderson does not fall within the scope of estoppel by judgment. Tait, Collector of Internal Revenue, v. Western Maryland Railway Co., 289 U. S. 620, and Lyon v. Perin & G. Mfg. Co., 125 U. S. 698.

5. The defense of election of remedies and persons is not sustained.

6. Counsel for defendants seek to distinguish the case at bar from Barbour v. Thomas, 86 F. (2d) 510. I cannot agree that simply by contracting for the statutory liability and so advertising there was anything added to the force of the statute. Neither do I agree that the statement in that opinion that "none of its stock was sold to the public nor issued to any persons other than the stockholders of the banks or their assignees" destroys it as an authority here.

7. BancoKentucky was a record owner of ninety-five per cent of the shares of the National Bank of Kentucky. All of the stockholders of Banco profited from the dividends produced by the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky, and they should be charged with knowledge of the assets of a corporation (Banco) in whose stock they invested and from which assets they derived benefits.

EXHIBIT B

SUPPLEMENTAL FINDINGS OF FACT AND LAW SUGGESTED BY PLAINTIFF IN CONFORMITY WITH OPINION

1. This is a stock assessment suit.

2. The plaintiff is the Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky, hereafter referred to as the Bank.

3. The defendants are stockholders in BancoKentucky.

4. The officers and directors of the Bank, a national banking corporation, in conjunction with the officers and directors of the Louisville Trust Company, caused to be organized the BancoKentucky Company as a Delaware corporation.

5. At the suggestion of and through information furnished them by the officers and directors of the Bank and Trust Company and the Trustees under the trust agreement of April 22, 1927, the stockholders of National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company ratified the formation of said BancoKentucky Company by depositing their Trustees' Participation Certificates, which represented 95% of the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky and exchanged the same for the stock of the BancoKentucky Company, receiving two shares of Banco stock, having a par value of $10.00, for one Trustees' Participation Certificate, having a par value of $10.00.

6. The National Bank of Kentucky was one of the largest and oldest banks in the South. Early in 1927 its capital, surplus and undivided profits were shown by its books to be $6,800,000 represented by 25,000 shares of stock with a par value of $100.00 per share.

7. In April of 1927, by an arrangement with the Louisville Trust Company under a unification plan, all of the stock of the Bank was transferred to six trustees. Shareholders were given in lieu thereof Trustees' Participation Certificates. The Bank, in November of the same year, entered into a unification agreement or reorganization plan with the Louisville National Bank & Trust Company, which finally resulted in a merger in 1929.

8. As early as October, 1927, the National Bank Examiner began to criticize certain large loans made by the Bank as sources "of potential danger of the bank," and suggested that diligent efforts be made to collect "these substandard assets."

9. The Comptroller of the Currency on December 12, 1927, addressed a letter to the Board of Directors of the Bank in which he stated the report of examination shows the Bank to be in a most unsatisfactory condition and seemed to be growing worse. He then pointed out many things which should be corrected and called attention to abnormal overdrafts and items of credit which were dangerous.

10. In the examination of the Bank in March, 1928, many of these criticisms were repeated and emphasized. In October of the same year the Chief National Bank Examiner in a report listed the more dangerous items and pointed out that there were overdrafts aggregating $271,502.88, the largest amount of published overdrafts that had ever come to his attention. Overdue loans amounted to $1,768,112.28. This item was much too large. Slow and doubtful loans over $6,000,000 should receive vigorous attention. These and many other criticisms were directed to the attention of the Directors by the National Bank Examiners in the office of the Comptroller in reports and letters.

11. From February 11, 1927, when the merger of the Bank and Trust Company started, to May 25, 1929, the bank's deposits had shrunk from $56,736,000 to $35,089,000, a decrease of $21,647,000 or 38 per cent.

12. The average daily borrowings went from $3,830,018 during February, 1929, to $12,546,262. The Bank was deficient in its legal reserves on 72 days from January 4, 1929, to July 15, 1929, in amounts up to $1,972,385.

13. It was during this time, beginning in February, 1929, that Banco was conceived in the minds of the officers and directors of these unified banking houses. This proposed new corporation was discussed and organized throughout the months from February to September, 1929. It was incorporated under the laws of the State of Delaware on July 16, 1929.

14. On July 19, 1929, there was sent out to all holders of Trustees' Participation Certificates a letter which is Exhibit 24-3. This letter was signed by James B. Brown as President of the National Bank of Kentucky, Mr. Richard Bean, as President of the Louisville Trust Company, by the six Trustees and all of the Directors of the merged Bank and Trust Company.

15. Complying with the recommendation contained in this letter the stockholders of 95% of the stock of the Bank exchanged their T. P. Cs., representing the stock of the Bank, for the stock of Banco.

This was done by September 16, 1929.

16. The Directors of Banco were all directors of the Trust Company and of the Bank. The trustees were directors either in the Trust Company or the Bank, or both, and were also directors of Banco.

17. In statements and letters of the directors and officers of the Bank and the Trust Company, Banco was referred to as a holding company and the suggested preface to the prospectus which it was proposed to send to the shareholders recited that the officers and directors had been "considering a reorganization of your banking institutions . . . in which the first step to be taken by our shareholders in this reorganization is the creation of a third corporation."

18. It was provided in Banco's charter, "The private property of stockholders shall not be subject to the payment of corporate debts to any extent whatever."

19. After being launched in September, 1929, the Banco-Kentucky Company immediately proceeded to purchase stock in other banks.

20. On November 16, 1930, the directors of the Bank resolved to suspend the further operation of the Bank. The following day, November 17, 1930, the Comptroller appointed a receiver.

21. As a result of the closing of the Bank, Banco was placed in a precarious position which resulted in the filing of a petition on November 24, 1930, by six stockholders of Banco, individually and as executive committee of Banco against Banco praying that a receiver be appointed for Banco.

22. Banco entered its appearance and confessed the allegations of the petition and a receiver was appointed. The receiver of the Bank proceeded against the receiver of Banco for the amount of the assessment and secured a judgment.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

1. If the stockholders of BancoKentucky Company are in reality stockholders of the Bank they are subject to the assessment in this case, regardless of an intermediate corporation.

2. Courts are slow to recognize any corporation that has apparently defeated the purpose of the statute. The general public is invited to deposit its money in banks and thus place it in the care of those charged with the affairs of the bank. But the law requires that a bank should be a bank and not a business house. Deposits are made and credit extended to banks with utmost confidence. The depositor and creditor know, either actually or with some general understanding that if those in charge of the affairs of the bank or those who profit as stockholders by reason of that deposit lose the depositor's money through credits or investments they are required to put back from their private estates a certain amount to cover, or at least partially cover, the loss.

3. Efforts have been made repeatedly to avoid the provisions of the double liability statutes. The courts have consistently upheld the statutes both in the letter and in the spirit. Stockholders cannot accept the benefits derived from bank stock on the one hand and avoid the statutory liability on the other. Barbour v. Thomas, 86 F. (2d) 510 (6 C. C. A.).

4. The courts will lift the veil of a bank stock holding corporation and find the beneficial and true owners of the bank stock.

5. Stockholders who protest that they had no knowledge of any fraudulent purpose in the setting up of such a corporation will not be excused. Metropolitan Holding Company v. Snyder, 79 Fed. (2d) 263 (8 C. C. A.); Fors v. Ferrell, 271 Mich. 358.

6. The officers and directors of the Bank who suggested the formation of Banco were looking for an associate corporation of the Bank with unlimited charter powers through which they could express financial genius unknown hitherto in the Ohio Valley in an extension of the Bank's business.

7. The decision in the case of Atherton v. Anderson, 86 Fed. (2d) 518, is not res adjudicata of this case.

8. There were in fact interlocking directorates and Banco controlled the Bank, but this identity of stockholders and ownership of stock does not merge them into one corporation.

9. Banco's contract to purchase a half interest in Caldwell and Company was never consummated.

OPINION OF THE COURT

This is a stock assessment suit. Section 64 National Banking Act (12 U. S. C. A. 64). The Plaintiff is the Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky (hereafter referred to as The Bank). The defendants are stockholders in BancoKentucky (hereafter referred to as Banco).

The officers and directors of The Bank, a national banking corporation, in conjunction with the officers and directors of The Louisville Trust Company caused to be organized Banco, a Delaware corporation. At the sugges-of and through information furnished them by these same officers and directors the stockholders of The Bank exchanged 95% of the stock of The Bank for the stock of Banco.

The Plaintiff contends that Banco was organized as a holding company for the stock of The Bank and that its stockholders are in reality stockholders of The Bank and subject to double liability. The Defendants contend that Banco was not a holding company but an operating corporation organized to engage in extensive business enterprises and that while the buying and holding of bank stock was to be one of its functions that was only incidental. In order for the plaintiff to recover he must sustain the burden of proof. Schlener v. Davis, 75 F. (2d) 371 (5 C. C. A.).

The proof must establish that Banco was a holding company for the bank stock of The National Bank of Kentucky. Whether it was such a holding company by reason of a fraudulent design to avoid a stock assessment or was organized with the purest of motives is of no consequence. The question is was it a holding company for this particular bank stock.

The record discloses a great mass of evidence, both oral and documentary. It is neither practical nor necessary to review all of it in this opinion.

The National Bank of Kentucky was one of the largest and oldest banks in the South. Early in 1927 its capital, surplus and undivided profits were $6,800,000.00, represented by 25,000 shares of stock of the par value of $100.00 per share.

In April of 1927 by an arrangement with the Louisville Trust Company (hereafter referred to as the Trust Company) under a unification plan all of the stock of The Bank was transferred to six trustees. Shareholders were given in lieu thereof Trustees' Participation Certificates (T. P. Cs.). The Bank, in November of the same year, also entered into a unification agreement or reorganization plan with the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company, which finally resulted in a merger in January, 1929.

As early as October, 1927, the National Bank examiner began to criticize certain large loans made by The Bank as sources "of potential danger to the bank," and suggested that diligent effort be made to collect what he termed "these substandard assets."

The Comptroller of the Currency on December 12, 1927, addressed a letter to the Board of Directors of The Bank in which he said the report of examination shows The Bank to be in a "most unsatisfactory condition" and seemed to "be growing worse." He then pointed out many things that should be corrected and called attention to "abnormal" over-drafts and items of credit which were termed "dangerous."

In the examination of The Bank in March, 1928, many of these criticisms were repeated and emphasized. In October of the same year the Chief National Bank Examiner in a report listed the more dangerous items and pointed out that there were overdrafts aggregating $271,502.88, "the largest amount of published overdrafts" that had ever come to his attention. That overdue loans amounted to $1,768,112.28, and that this item was "much too large." Slow and doubtful loans of over six million dollars should receive "vigorous attention." These and many other criticisms were directed to the attention of the directors by the National Bank Examiners and the office of the Comptroller in reports and letters.

Evidence is produced to show that from February 11, 1927, when the merger of The Bank and Trust Company started, to May 25, 1929, the bank's deposits had shrunk from $56,736,000.00 to $35,089,000.00, a decrease of $21,647,000.00, or 38 per cent.

The average daily borrowings went from $3,830,018 during February, 1929, to $12,546,262. The Bank was deficient in its legal reserves on 72 days from January 4, 1929, to July 15, 1929, in amounts up to $1,972,385.

It was during this time beginning in February, 1929, that Banco was conceived in the minds of the officers and directors of these unified banking houses. This proposed new corporation was discussed and organized throughout the months from February to September, 1929. It was incorporated under the laws of the State of Delaware on July 16, 1929.

On July 19, 1929, there was sent out to all holders of Trustees' Participation Certificates a letter advising them of the formation, incorporation and avowed purposes of Banco. This letter was signed by Mr. James B. Brown, as President of The National Bank of Kentucky, Mr. Richard Bean, as President of The Louisville Trust Company, by the six Trustees and by the directors of the merged Bank and Trust Company.

I quote this letter in full as I feel it is important to an understanding of this opinion:

This letter is as follows:

> "To the Holders of Trustees' Participation Shares, National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company:
>
> "1. Your Officers and Directors have studied the rapidly changing conditions in the banking business in America, with a view to preparing the two banking institutions under their management, to meet these changed conditions, and to take early advantage of new opportunities presented thereby.

business conducted by them, should be reorganized by adding to this group a third corporation, which will make the operations of these banking institutions more profitable, expand their facilities, and thus develop for the entire group new and profitable financial opportunities and connections.

"3. Such a reorganization is in line with the trend of business and finances in this country; and the strength and influence of the new corporation will not only greatly benefit the two banks and the territory they now serve, but will also be a stabilizing influence in banking circles throughout this section of the country. The new corporation can exercise many profitable and important functions which neither a bank nor a trust company has authority to exercise, and can take advantage of many sound and profitable financial opportunities, frequently presented in the course of business of the two banks, but not available to them, because of the restrictions upon their powers and activities.

"4. The following is the Plan of Reorganization agreed upon by the Officers and Directors of the two banks, and approved by formal Resolutions of the Trustees, under the Trustees' Agreement for the National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company.

"5. There has been organized under the laws of the State of Delaware, a corporation known as The Banco-Kentucky Company, with an authorized capital of 2,000,000 shares, having a par value of Ten ($10.00) Dollars each. The stock will be exchanged or sold, in accordance with this Plan, on the basis of Twenty-five ($25.00) Dollars per share, which will give the Company a capital of Twenty Million ($20,000,000.00) Dollars, and a surplus of Thirty Million ($30,000,000.00) Dollars, or a total capital and surplus of Fifty Million ($50,000,000.00) Dollars. No stock will be sold by the Company at less than Twenty-five ($25.00) Dollars per share.

"6. The corporation is given broad charter powers, including the right to acquire stocks, bonds and other securities of other corporations, and evidences of indebtedness created or issued by other corporations; the power to underwrite securities and take part in syndicate management, and to charge fees and commissions for its services in connection with the reorganization of financing of other corporations; the power to issue bonds and to guarantee the obligations of others and to become surety, guarantor and endorser thereof. The foregoing is merely a brief summary of the broad powers given the corporation; complete details of these powers appear in the Certificate of Incorporation of the Company, copies of which may be examined at the offices of the two banks by any one interested.

"7. It is an essential part of this reorganization that the shares of this corporation (or at least a substantial majority thereof) be owned by the Trustees' Participation Shareholders, and that it be managed and operated by the Boards of Directors and the officers of the two banks. The BancoKentucky Company, therefore, offers to the Trustees' Participation Shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company, through the Trustees as agents in the transaction, its entire capital stock, on the bases and subject to the terms and conditions hereinafter set out;

"8. It is an essential part of this Plan that:

"(a) On or before September 19, 1929, the holders of the Trustees' Participation Shares must deposit their certificates with the Trustees for exchange into the shares of The BancoKentucky Company; and for each Participation Share thus deposited, the Trustees will cause to be issued to the holder thereof, Two (2) shares of the stock of the new corporation. In addition thereto the depositing shareholder will have the right to subscribe for as many additional shares of the stock of The BancoKentucky Company as he may desire at the price of Twenty-five ($25.00) Dollars per share subject to allotment ratably if oversubscribed. Trustees' Participation Shareholders who fail to deposit their shares on or before September 19, 1929, will be deemed to have waived their rights to thus exchange their shares and subscribe for stock in the new Company, unless the Trustees shall extent the time for deposit and subscription (as they may do in their discretion), in which event the Trustees' Participation Shareholders will be deemed to have waived their rights, unless their shares are deposited within the extended time.

"(b) The entire Plan of Reorganization, and the deposit and subscription privileges and rights hereinabove set out, are all, and each of them is conditioned expressly upon the acquisition by the Trustees' Participation Shareholders, either by deposit for exchange, or by direct subscription as above, of at least a majority of the shares of The BancoKentucky Company; and further conditioned upon the acquisition by The BancoKentucky Company of at least a majority of the Trustees' Participation Shares issued and outstanding as of September 19, 1929.

"9. It is the unanimous recommendation of your Officers, Directors and Trustees of the National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company, that the Trustees' Participation shareholders immediately deposit their shares under this Reorganization Plan, and that they exercise their right to subscribe to the additional shares of stock of the BancoKentucky Company.

"10. There is enclosed herewith a subscription from covering this transaction, which you are asked to sign at your earliest opportunity and deposit with the Trustees, at their office, 421 West Market Street, together with your Certificate or Certificates for Trustees' Participation Shares, endorsed in blank and witnessed. There will be issued to you an Interim Receipt for the shares deposited which, when the Plan has become effective as above set forth, may be presented for exchange for the permanent certificates of the BancoKentucky Company, in accordance with the Plan of Reorganization."

Complying with the recommendation contained in this letter the stockholders of 95% of the stock of the Bank exchanged their T. P. Cs., representing the stock of the Bank, for the stock of Banco.

This was done by September 16, 1929, and on September 19, 1929, Banco was launched for business.

The directors of Banco were all directors of the Trust Company and of the Bank. The trustees were directors either in the Trust Company or the Bank, or both, and were also directors of Banco.

It is further pointed out that in statements and letters of the directors and officers of the Bank and the Trust Company, Banco was referred to as a holding company and the suggested preface to the prospectus which it was proposed to send to the shareholders recited that the officers and directors had been "considering a reorganization of your banking institutions . . . in which the first step to be taken by our shareholders in this reorganization is the creation of a third corporation."

It was provided in Banco's charter, "The private property of stockholders shall not be subject to the payment of corporate debts to any extent whatever."

It is not contended by the plaintiff that the Bank was insolvent in any sense of the word when Banco was organized or the holders of T. P. Cs. exchanged them for stock of Banco with knowledge of the impending failure of the Bank or that they actually knew of the condition of the Bank in 1929. But, that the officers and directors of the Bank, organizers of Banco, did know that it was in a failing condition and that T. P. C. holders are chargeable with constructive knowledge.

In his report of October 27, 1928, just before Banco was first discussed in February, 1929, National Bank Examiner, John S. Wood, estimated losses in the Bank as of that time at $115,761. This amount was charged off during the examination leaving in the Bank its capital of $4,000,000.00, surplus of $2,000,000.00, and undivided profits and reserves of $771,010.00.

The regular quarterly dividend of $160,000.00 had been declared through May, 1929, without criticism of the bank examiner.

Banco secured from T. P. C. holders and the stock buying public $10,000,000.00 for 400,000 shares of stock, and after being launched in September, 1929, immediately proceeded to purchase stock in other banks. It also bought a small amount of insurance stock.

In January, 1920, it increased its capital to $50,000,000.00. This was made necessary partially by a sale of 250,000 shares to one customer.

In May, 1930, Banco entered into a contract with Caldwell and Company for a half interest in that company. Caldwell and Company was generally known to be the largest investment and securities house in the South and its financial soundness was unquestioned. The Secretary of Caldwell and Company testified that it did a gross business in 1929 of $75,000,000.00, and of $37,000,000.00 in the first five months of 1930.

Banco had its own capital and cash resources much larger than the capital and total resources of the Bank. Six hundred and forty-six T. P. C. holders bought Banco stock. The total amount of certificates owned by this number of shareholders was 143,762 of the par value of $10.00 per share. The same individuals purchased or subscribed for an additional 178,878 shares of Banco stock at a price of $25.00 per share. The directors, who were the organizers of Banco, had a total of 76,115 T. P. Cs. of the par value of $10.00 per share. They subscribed for 47,188 shares of Banco at $25.00 per share.

On November 16, 1930, the directors of the Bank resolved to suspend the further operation of the Bank. The following day, November 17, 1930, the comptroller appointed a receiver.

As a result of the closing of the Bank, Banco was placed in a precarious position which resulted in the filing of a petition on November 24, 1930, by six stockholders of Banco, individually and as executive committee of Banco against Banco praying that a receiver be appointed for Banco.

Banco entered its appearance and confessed the allegations of the petition and a receiver was appointed. The receiver of the Bank proceeded against the receiver of Banco for the amount of the assessment and secured a judgment.

The record further contains evidence of the following facts urged by the defendants as positive proof that Banco was not merely a holding company but was an operating business corporation and that owning the stock of the Bank was only incidental to its avowed and actual purposes and functions.

That at all times prior to the formation of Banco and during the months it was under discussion that the Bank was in such a sound financial condition that future insolvency of the Bank never occurred to anyone connected with it. That the capital and surplus were intact and in addition it had undivided profits of never less than $234,000.00.

That the report of National Bank Examiner Wood of May 25, 1929, which is strongly urged upon the attention of the Court by the plaintiff, was not reported to the Board of Directors until August 23, 1929.

That there was a general belief that the locality needed a business house such as the proposed Banco to do a so-called general investment banking business, to underwrite and float bond and stock issues, and to carry on many legitimate business enterprises to make money but which were prohibited to the banks.

I have in this statement of facts undertaken to give many of the important features of the evidence on which each side relies to sustain its case. I have not undertaken to set out all of the facts or all of the important facts. The record is so voluminous and there are so many details from which inferences have been drawn in briefs that it would be entirely impracticable to state all of them. Much of the evidence is wholly irrelevant and immaterial to the issues presented.

The liability of the defendants is entirely statutory. They must be stockholders in the Bank. If they are stockholders in reality, regardless of an intermediate corporation, they are subject to the assessment. They are not stockholders in the Bank if Banco was an operating company and not merely a holding company.

Courts are slow to recognize any corporation that has apparently defeated the purposes of the statute. The general public is invited to deposit its money in banks and thus place it in the care of those charged with the affairs of the bank. But the law requires that a bank should be a bank and not a business house. Deposits are made and credit extended to banks with utmost confidence. The depositor and creditor know, either actually or with some general understanding that if those in charge of the affairs of the bank or those who profit as stockholders by reason of that deposit lost the money through credits or investments they are required to put back from their private estates a certain amount to cover or at least partially cover the loss.

Efforts have been made repeatedly to avoid the provisions of the "double liability" statutes. The Courts have consistently upheld the statutes both in the letter and in the spirit. Stockholders cannot accept the benefits derived from bank stock on the one hand and avoid the statutory liability on the other. Barbour v. Thomas, 86 F. (2d) 510 (6 C. C. A.).

The courts will lift the corporate veil of a sham corporation and find the beneficial and true owners of the bank stock. Laurent v. Anderson, 70 F. (2d) 819 (6 C. C. A.); Pauly v. State Loan & Trust Co., 165 U. S. 606; Early v. Richardson, 280 U. S. 496; Nettles v. Rhett, 94 F. (2d) 42; Ohio National Bank v. Hulitt, 204 U. S. 162; Christopher v. Norvell, 201 U. S. 216, 5 Am. Cas. 740; O'Keefe v. Pearson, 73 F. (2d) 673 (1 C. C. A.); Corker v. Soper, 53 F. (2d) 190 (5 C. C. A.).

Stockholders who protest that they had no knowledge of any fraudulent purpose in the setting up of the corporate shell have not been excused. Metropolitan Holding Company v. Snyder, 79 F. (2d) 263, 103 A. L. R. 912 (8 C. C. A.); Fors v. Farrell, 271 Mich. 358, 260 N. W. 886.

Each case must, of course, rest on its own facts. I do not believe that the proof in the case at bar brings it within the rule. On the contrary I am of the opinion that Banco was established for its avowed purposes, with no thought, on the part of any of its organizers, of avoiding double liability on their bank stock.

The Court takes cognizance of the fact that at the time of the organization this country was probably in the highest state of credit inflation it has experienced. I do not think that the officers of the bank who suggested the formation of Banco entertained any suspicion that the Bank would ever fail. They were not looking for a holding company for the stock of the Bank, but for an associate corporation of the Bank with unlimited charter powers through which they could express financial genius hitherto unknown in the Ohio Valley. They were suffering not so much from fear of impending disaster, but from a Napoleonic complex not uncommon to the times.

The stockholders and directors obligated themselves to pay more for the new issues of stock than their liability would have been on the stock of the Bank they held. The holders of T. P. Cs. had at the time Banco was formed a potential assessment liability of $1,437,620.00 in the event both the Bank and Trust Company failed. Their obligation for new stock purchased in addition to that exchanged was $4,471,950.00. The directors' greatest potential assessment on the T. P. Cs. held was $761,150. The directors purchased new stock in Banco for $1,179,750. They thus actually paid out or were obligated to pay more than their full assessment could have been.

I do not believe the decision in the case of Atherton v. Anderson, 86 F. (2d) 518, is res judicata of this case but it is certainly strong authority for the proposition that Banco was in reality what its sponsors claimed it to be in their letter of July 19, 1929. Kentucky Coal Lands Co. v. Mineral Development Co., 219 Fed. 45 (6 C. C. A.).

I quote certain language of the opinion in the Atherton case which I consider very appropriate:

> "We come then to the question whether the relation between the bank and the BancoKentucky Company was such that a court of equity would be warranted in disregarding the existence of Banco as a separate corporate entity. It is true that Banco was conceived in the vaulting imagination of the president of the bank; that it was promoted and fostered by the appellants; that the directorates of the two corporations, though not identical, overlapped; that the great majority of trust participation certificates representing stock in the bank became the property of Banco, and that there is a suggestion of identity in the name adopted for the new company. But Banco was not a mere holding company for the bank's stock. It was organized for clearly defined purposes, too optimistically conceived, perhaps, but neither illegitimate nor unlawful. It had its own capital with resources at one period almost twice the entire capital and surplus of the bank. While in the very beginning the bank stock may, as found by the court, have been its principal asset, and may have continued thereafter to be its most valuable single asset, it had other assets of very substantial value, and it was warrantable inference at the time of its organization and for a substantial period thereafter that it could well meet any assessment that might be levied upon it as a stockholder of the bank. At any rate there is nothing in the record to point to its creation for the purpose of escaping such assessment. Indeed when the assessment was finally made by the Comptroller it was enforced against Banco and not against the stockholders. See Laurent v. Anderson, supra. Its separate corporate existence was recognized by the very receiver on whose behalf we are now asked to ignore it."

The facts do not establish that Banco was an empty shell, but a very real entity actively acquiring capital assets. To hold otherwise is to deny an established fact. Laurent v. Anderson, 70 F. (2d) 819.

There were in fact interlocking directorates and Banco controlled the Bank, but this identity of stockholders and ownership of stock does not merge them into one corporation. Pittsburgh & Buffalo Co. v. Duncan, 232 Fed. 584 (6 C. C. A.); Kentucky Electric Power Co. v. Norton Coal Mining Co., 93 F. (2d) 923.

Although never consummated, Banco's contract to purchase a half interest in Caldwell and Company was a step toward carrying out its avowed purposes.

A review of the record is convincing that while there were irregularities in the handling of some of the credit accounts and some of these accounts had become much too large the soundness of the Bank and its ability to meet its obligations could not be questioned until long after the formation of Banco.

Courts should not lose sight of the fact that many things which occurred in the late twenties may appear now to be both careless and corrupt. Many small men were pushed into positions of great power. Many men of character and ability were lulled into a false sense of security.

In the financial world apparently everything succeeded. Success was measured in terms of bigness and mass production. Unfortunately banks which we had learned to think of as safe investments for stockholders and security for savings in many instances led the parade in speculating with the funds entrusted to them.

The crash of October, 1929, was inevitable, but unexpected. We must realize that after all many institutions that failed would have been heralded as great successes for a few years at least had they been started in 1926 or 1927. Take for example the complex financial structure built up as Caldwell and Company. I am inclined to believe that Banco-Kentucky would have had a brilliant career of a few months if it had been launched in 1927 instead of 1929.

I do not mean that the courts should modify their judgment or depart from time honored principles of equity by constantly referring to the distinction between the fanciful prosperity of the late twenties and the grim realities of the early thirties.

We have used the "depression" as an excuse for too many things already. It should, however, be borne in mind in considering the motives in the minds of the organizers of Banco at the time it was discussed and finally chartered.

Interlocking directorates may not contribute to the free competition so necessary to the health and well being of the body politic, but they were not unlawful. It may not have been good business to organize Banco and purchase its stock with T. P. Cs., but there was nothing in the law that prohibited it. A corporation could buy bank stock, either with money or by an exchange of stock. Citizens Bank of Shelbyville v. Mutual Trust Co., 206 Ky. 86.

It is my opinion that Banco was not merely a holding company, but was formed for the purposes set out in the letter of July 19, 1929, and for no other purpose. That it was not formed as a medium or agency through which to avoid double liability on the stock of the Bank. The stockholders of Banco are not stockholders of the Bank within the meaning of the Statute.

The plaintiff's bill should be dismissed. Counsel will submit findings of fact, conclusions of law and judgment in accordance with this opinion.

March 23, 1940.

FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW ENTERED JUNE 29, 1940

(Filed June 29, 1940)

1. The National Bank of Kentucky was, at all times mentioned in the Bill of Complaint, a national bank; The Louisville Trust Company was a State Bank and Trust Company organized under the laws of Kentucky. These corporations will be referred to as the Bank and the Trust Company, respectively.

2. The BancoKentucky Company was a corporation organized under the General Corporation Law of the State of Delaware and will be referred to as Banco.

3. The Trust Agreement was entered into as of April 22, 1927. In order that the Bank might have $4,000,000.00 outstanding capital as of April 22, 1927, by resolution of its directors, and on approval of the Comptroller, it declared and paid a stock dividend of 60%, increasing its original capital from $2,500,000.00 to $4,000.000.00.

4. All of the stock of the Bank as well as all of the stock of the Trust Company, except five shares, were transferred to the Trustees under the trust aforesaid, of record, except qualifying shares of the directors of both institutions, and the directors of the Trust Company were elected as Directors of the Bank. Also, the Directors of the Bank were elected as directors of the Trust Company, immediately following the execution of the trust, and pursuant to its terms.

5. The directors of both institutions at that time, deposited their qualifying shares with the Trustees, upon an agreement in writing that these shares would be surrendered to the directors on demand, and these qualifying shares remained with the Trustees under the above agreement until the close of the Bank. Each director signed an agreement with the Trustees that upon his death, insolvency, attachment, or upon ceasing to be a director in either of the institutions, they or their heirs, assigns or personal representatives, would transfer their shares to the Trustees, and receive therefor Trustees' Participating Certificates. The directors regularly received the dividends on their shares from that time forward and during their terms of office. For each share of stock deposited with the Trustees of either the Bank or the Trust Company, they issued what is known in the record as Trustees' Participating Certificates or Receipts, par for par, and subsequently the Trustees reduced the par value of these Trustees' Participating Receipts from $100.00 per share to $10.00 per share. The Trustees' Participating Receipts will be hereinafter referred to as T. P. C.'s.

6. The Bank was one of the largest and oldest banks in the South. Early in 1927, its capital, surplus and undivided profits were $6,800,000.00, represented by 25,000 shares of stock of the par value of $100.00 per share.

7. In January, 1929, a consolidation was entered into between the Trust Company and the Louisville National Bank, another bank in Louisville, under the terms of which the Trust Company increased its capital from $1,000,000.00, divided into 10,000 shares, to $1,750,000.00, divided into 17,500 shares, and issued to the Trustees the increase of 7,500 shares, who, in turn, issued T. P. C.'s, against the same, which were delivered to the stockholders of the Louisville National Bank aforesaid, for this stock, and as a part of the merger, the directors of the Louisville National Bank were elected to the board of the Trust Company, and elected to the board of Banco, but were never elected to the board of the Bank.

8. Beginning as of July 1, 1927, and thereafter during the entire period from that time to November 16, 1930, the Bank and Trust Company regularly declared and paid dividends at the rate of $4.00 per share quarterly. The Trustees received these dividends, except on the qualifying shares of Directors, and made distribution thereof to the T. P. C. holders.

9. In 1927 and thereafter, the National Bank Examiners, in their reports, and the Comptroller of the Currency, in his letters addressed to the board, criticized certain large loans and overdrafts made by the Bank as sources of potential danger to the Bank, and made various suggestions as to, what was termed as, "substandard assets." The Bank was deficient in its legal reserves on seventy-two days, from January 4, 1929, to July 15, 1929, in amounts up to $1 /2,358.00. During the period from May 25, 1929, to the date of the close of the Bank, its deposits varied in accordance with the following amounts:

10. Beginning in February, 1929, the officers and directors of the Bank and Trust Company, along with the Trustees under the unification plan, discussed and later organized the BancoKentucky Company, hereinafter referred to as Banco. It was organized under the laws of the State of Delaware on July 16, 1929.

11. The charter of Banco provided for the issues of 2,000,000 shares of its common capital stock of the par value of $10.00 each, and the scope of its business, under its charter, was:

> "The acquiring by purchase or otherwise of all or any portion of the capital stock, property, assets and franchises of any or all corporations transacting business in any State of the United States; the purchasing, holding, selling, assigning, transferring, mortgaging, pledging or otherwise disposing of shares of the capital stock or any bonds, securities or evidence of indebtedness created by or issued by any other corporation or corporations organized under the laws of any State of the United States or of any foreign country and while the owner thereof to exercise all the rights, powers and privileges of ownership; the purchasing or otherwise acquiring of any promissory notes or other evidences of indebtedness executed by any person, firm, association or corporation; the financing, managing or operating of any commercial or manufacturing business or enterprise; the underwriting of any issue of stocks, bonds, debentures or other securities issued by any corporation; the charging of fees or commissions for any or all services rendered or advice or assistance given to any person, firm, association or corporation; acquiring and paying for in cash, stock or bonds, of this corporation or otherwise, the good will, rights, assets and property of any person, firm, association or corporation and to undertake or assume the whole or any part of the obligations or liabilities of any person, firm or corporation.

"The corporation shall have power to act as registrar or transfer agent for any other association or corporation and to act as agent in general for any other person, firm, association or corporation.

"The corporation shall have full power to issue bonds, debentures or obligations of this corporation from time to time, for any of the objects or purposes of the corporation and to secure the same by mortgage, pledge, deed of trust or otherwise. The corporation shall have full power to purchase, hold, sell and transfer the shares of its own capital stock; provided it shall not use its funds or property for the purchase of its own shares of capital stock when such would cause any impairment of its capital; and provided, further, that shares of its own capital stock belonging to it shall not be voted upon directly or indirectly.

"The corporation shall have full power to guarantee the obligations of any other person, firm, association or corporation and to become surety therefor and to become joint maker, endorser or acceptor of any such obligations and to charge fees and commissions for such services.

"The corporation shall have full power without restriction or limit as to amount to purchase or otherwise acquire, hold, own, mortgage, sell, convey or otherwise dispose of real and personal property of every class and description in any of the States of the United States, or any foreign country, subject to the laws of such States or foreign countries.

"In general, the corporation shall have full power to carry on any other business in connection with the foregoing whether commercial, manufacturing, financial or otherwise, and to have and exercise all the powers conferred by the laws of Delaware upon corporations formed under the act hereinafter referred to and to do any or all of the things hereinbefore set forth to the same extent as natural persons might or could do.

"The foregoing clauses shall be construed both as objects and powers, and it is hereby expressly provided that the foregoing enumeration of specific powers shall not be held to limit or restrict in any manner the powers of this corporation."

15. Section VIII of Banco's charter provided:

"The private property of the stockholders shall not be subject to the payment of corporate debts to any extent whatsoever."

12. After a prospectus of Banco had been prepared, and on July 5, 1929, following a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Bank, James B. Brown, President of the Bank, requested of Robert F. Vaughan, member of the Board of the Trust Company and an attorney, an opinion as to whether there would be a taxable gain upon the exchange of Banco shares (it having been agreed that Banco would issue two of its shares for one T. P. C.).

13. On July 6, 1929, Vaughan addressed a letter to James B. Brown, President of the Bank, in which he called attention to certain provisions of the Federal Revenue Act and then said:

"(2) We believe that the BancoKentucky Company will be treated as a reorganization, provided it acquires not less than a majority of the Trustees' Participating Shares. A reorganization is defined in the Revenue Act as a merger or consolidation, including the acquisition by one corporation of at least a majority of the voting stock of another corporation. For the purposes of our transaction, it is our opinion that the Trustees for the National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company will be treated as an Association or corporation. This opinion is based upon two facts:

> "'a. Because the Rules and Regulations Section of the Income Tax Unit have held that Trustees, under similar trust agreements, are to be treated as an association or corporation for income tax purposes; and
> "'b. Because under Section 701 of the Revenue Act of 1918, the term, corporation, is defined to include "association."'

"Assuming that we are right in the foregoing conclusions, then, no taxable gain will be realized as a result of the exchange of the shares, under Subsection 3 of Section 112, Revenue Act of 1928, which reads as follows:

> "'No gain or loss shall be recognized if stock or securities in a corporation, a party to a reorganization, are in pursuance of the plan of reorganization, exchanged solely for stock or securities in such corporation, or, in another corporation, a party to the reorganization.'

"Of course, the foregoing section would apply only in the event the department should treat the Trustees, for the National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company, as a corporation, for, in that event, the Trustees would be a 'party to the reorganization' within the meaning of the above section, and the BancoKentucky Company would be the other party thereto. It is our best opinion, as above stated, that the Trustees would be so treated by the department, and, therefore, that no taxable gain would result from these transfers.

"In order to clinch our right, as far as possible, to claim for our stockholders the immunity provided for in the above section, we believe it will be necessary to add a clause to the prospectus, providing that, the offer of the BancoKentucky Company stock on the plan outlined is conditional upon the acceptance thereof by at least a majority in interest of the Trustees' Participation Shareholders."

14. Before the opinion of Vaughan was written to Brown, a prospectus of Banco had been prepared, and did not contain any reference therein to the word "reorganization," nor did it provide for the necessity of securing a majority of the T. P. C.'s.

15. The Trustees under the Trust Agreement aforesaid, and following the opinion of Robert F. Vaughan aforesaid, employed Miller & Chevalier as attorneys in fact "for the purpose of obtaining a ruling as to whether the trust, created by said Trust Agreement, is an 'association' within the meaning of the Revenue Act of 1928, as applied to the provisions relating to stamp tax and income tax levied under the acts with powers of revocation and substitution."

16. An information ruling was obtained from the Revenue Department, and was reported to the Trustees as follows:

"The gentleman gave as his opinion (without opportunity to study the history of the entire transaction) that it was highly important that every preliminary paper, resolution, etc., dealing with this company and its reorganization, should clearly recite that the Company is a 'reorganization' within the purview of the Revenue Act of 1928.

"In other words, the issue and delivery of two shares of stock of the Company, for one Trustees' Participating Share, must be made to appear (so far as the Bank's stockholders are concerned) as a mere receipt of the same property in another form, and not as a closed transaction wherein they part with one species of property in exchange for an entirely different species of property.

"I believe we can accomplish this result, without in any wise impairing the structure of the set-up already agreed upon, by prefacing the prospectus with some general remarks, as per the enclosed draft herewith submitted for your criticism."

17. Mr. Vaughan then drew a preface to the suggested prospectus, conforming with the foregoing opinions as to the provisions of the income tax law.

18. The prospectus of the company was then rewritten in the form of a letter to the T. P. C. holders, dated July 19, 1929, which letter was as follows:

"OFFICE OF TRUSTEES
Louisville, Ky.
July 19, 1929.
Reorganization Plan
for National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company
In connection with
The BancoKentucky Company.

"To the Holders of Trustees' Participation Shares, National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company:

"Your officers and directors have been studying the rapidly changing conditions in the banking business in America, with a view of preparing the two banking institutions under their management to meet these changed conditions, and to take early advantage of new opportunities presented thereby.

"The conclusion unanimously reached as a result of these deliberations, is that the two banks and the business conducted by them, should be reorganized by adding to this group a third corporation, which will make the assets of these banking institutions more profitable, expand their facilities, and thus develop for the entire group new and profitable financial opportunities and connections.

"Such a reorganization is in line with the trend of business and finance in this country; and there can be little doubt that the assets of the new corporation will not only greatly benefit the two banks and the territory they now serve, but will also be a stabilizing influence in banking circles throughout this section of the country. The new corporation can exercise many profitable and important functions which neither a bank nor a trust company has authority to exercise, and can take advantage of many sound and profitable financial opportunities frequently presented in the course of business of the two banks, but not available to them because of the restrictions upon their power and activities.

"The following is the Plan of reorganization agreed upon by the officers and directors of the two banks, and approved by formal Resolution of the trustees, under the Trustees' Agreement for the National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company.

"1. There has been organized under the laws of the State of Delaware a corporation known as the Banco-Kentucky Company with an authorized capital of 2,000,000 shares, having a par value of ten ($10.00) dollars each. The stock will be exchanged or sold in accordance with this Plan on the basis of twenty-five ($25.00) dollars per share, which will give the Company a capital of twenty million ($20,000,000.00) dollars, and a surplus of thirty million ($30,000,000.00) dollars, or a total capital and surplus of fifty million ($50,000,000.00) dollars. No stock will be sold by the company at less than twenty-five ($25.00) dollars per share.

"2. The corporation is given broad charter powers, including the right to acquire stocks, bonds and other securities of other corporations and evidences of indebtedness created or issued by other corporations; the power to underwrite securities and take part in syndicate management and to charge fees and commissions for its services in connection with the reorganization or refinancing of other corporations; the power to issue bonds and to guarantee the obligations of others and to become surety, guarantor and endorser thereof. The foregoing is merely a brief summary of the broad powers given the corporation; complete details of these powers appear in the Certificate of Incorporation of the Company, copies of which may be examined at the offices of the two banks by any one interested.

"3. It is an essential part of this reorganization that the shares of this Corporation (or at least a substantial majority thereof) be owned by the Trustees' Participating Shareholders, and that it be managed and operated by the Boards of Directors and the Officers of the two banks. The BancoKentucky Company, therefore, offers to the Trustees' Participating Shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company through the trustees as Agents in the transaction, its entire capital stock on the basis and subject to the terms and conditions hereinafter set out;

"It is an essential part of this Plan that:

"(a) On or before September 19, 1929, the holders of the Trustees' Participating Shares must deposit their certificates with the Trustees for exchange into the shares of the BancoKentucky Company; and for each Participating Share thus deposited, the Trustees will cause to be issued to the holder thereof, two (2) shares of the stock of the new corporation. In addition thereto, the depositing shareholder will have the right to subscribe for as many additional shares of the stock of the BancoKentucky Company as he may desire at the price of Twenty-five ($25.00) Dollars per share, subject to allotment ratably if over-subscribed. Trustees' Participating Shareholders who fail to deposit their shares on or before September 19, 1929, will be deemed to have forfeited their rights to thus exchange their shares and subscribe for stock in the new company, unless the trustees shall extend the time for deposit and subscription (as they may do in their discretion), in which event the Trustees' Participating Shareholders will be deemed to have waived their rights, unless their shares are deposited within the extended time.

"(b) The entire Plan of Reorganization and the deposit and subscription privileges and rights hereinabove set out are all, and each of them, is conditioned expressly upon the acquisition by the Trustees' Participating Shareholders either by deposit for exchange, or by direct subscription as above, of at least a majority of the shares of the BancoKentucky Company, and further conditioned upon the acquisition by the BancoKentucky Company of at least a majority of the Trustees' Participating Shares issued and outstanding as of September 19, 1929.

"4. It is the unanimous recommendation of the Officers, Directors and Trustees of the National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company, that the Trustees' Participation Shareholders immediately exchange their shares under this Reorganization Plan and that they exercise their right to subscribe to the additional shares of stock of the BancoKentucky Company.

"There is enclosed herewith a subscription form covering this transaction, which you are asked to sign at your earliest opportunity and deposit with the Trustees at their office, 421 West Market Street, together with your certificate or certificates for Trustees' Participation Shares endorsed in blank and witnessed. There will be issued to you an Interim Receipt for the shares deposited, which when the Plan has become effective as above set forth may be presented for exchange for the permanent Certificates of the Banco-Kentucky Company, in accordance with the Plan of Reorganization."

19. Banco was established for its avowed purposes with no thought on the part of any of its organizers of avoiding double liability on their Banco stock.

20. The prospectus of date July 19, 1929, was mailed to each T. P. C. holder.

21. On September 20, 1929, the day after the closed date for deposit and subscription for Banco stock, a meeting of its Directors was held. At this meeting it was reported to the Board that as a result of the efforts of the organizers of the Company, Six hundred thousand (600,000) shares of its stock had been subscribed for at $25.00 a share; that the deposit of T. P. C.'s for exchange was almost unanimous and the Board then reserved for exchange so as to cover all of the T. P. C.'s 1,150,000 shares of Banco stock, which, with the sale of 600,000 disposed of 1,750,000 shares, leaving 250,000 shares of the authorized issue undisposed of. Mr. Brown, President, asked the Board for and was granted authority to sell the 250,000 shares left at $25.00 per share.

22. When the Board ascertained that the deposit of T. P. C.'s for exchange for Banco stock on the ratio of two shares of Banco for one Participating Share was almost unanimous, it set in motion plans to amend the charter of Banco increasing its capital from 2,000,000 shares to 5,000,000 shares.

23. In January 1930, the charter of Banco was amended and its authorized capital increased from 2,000,000 shares to 5,000,000 shares, which was pursuant to the plans to that effect.

24. On September 27, 1929, and at a meeting of the Board of Banco, a minute was made authorizing a contract with Blyth & Company and H. M. Byllesby & Company for the sale of 250,000 shares of Banco stock at $25.00 per share.

25. Banco collected on call, and from the subscribers to its stock, in cash $9,869,650.00 or $25.00 per share for 394,786 shares.

26. Although the prospectus of July 19, 1929, and subscriptions for stock thereunder were confined to the T. P. C. holders, the public generally subscribed for or bought stock of Banco, and the organizers of the company sought to sell stock generally to the public.

27. The Directors of Banco, at the time of the formation of that company, owned 76,115 T. P. C.'s, which they exchanged for 152,230 shares of Banco. The maximum possible assessment liability on these T. P. C.'s was $761,150.00.

28. In addition to the T. P. C.'s exchanged, the directors of Banco subscribed for 47,188 shares and paid to the company in cash $1,179,750.00.

29. Prior to the organization of Banco there were 2,225, in number, T. P. C. holders.

30. On January 1, 1930, Banco had 5,660 stockholders; on April 1, 1930, Banco had 5,717 stockholders; on July 1, 1930, Banco had 6,000 stockholders and on October 1, 1930, Banco had 5,930 stockholders.

31. Of the 2,225 T. P. C. holders, and as of October 21, 1929, 646 of them subscribed for 178,878 shares of Banco at $25.00 per share and paid to Banco in cash $4,471,950.00, in addition to the stock exchanged.

32. Between September 25, 1929, and November 22, 1930, Banco acquired either by cash or exchange of stock the following property:

540,484 T. P. C. shares of the Bank and Trust Company; 47,854 shares of Pearl-Market Bank and Trust Company, Cincinnati, Ohio; 44,290 shares of capital stock of Brighton Bank & Trust Company of Cincinnati, Ohio; 548 shares of Central Savings Bank & Trust Company of Covington, Kentucky; 2,099 shares of Peoples-Liberty Bank & Trust Company of Covington, Kentucky; 6,925 shares of First National Bank of Paducah, Kentucky; 7,125 shares of Ashland National Bank of Ashland, Kentucky; 2,713 shares of Security Bank of Louisville, Kentucky; 575 shares of Mechanics Trust & Savings Bank of Paducah, Kentucky; $2,000,000.00 note of James B. Brown; 625 shares of Union Central Life Insurance Company; 10,000 shares of Caldwell & Company; $580,000.00 note of Murray Rubber Company of Trenton, New Jersey; $20,000.00 Participation in note of Louis C. Humphrey.

33. The condition of Banco, as shown by its records, as of December 31, 1929, was, as follows:

Investments (all bank stock)	$34,643,376.21
Bills Receivable	2,000,000.00
Cash	3,012,478.14
Total	$39,655,854.35
Liabilities:
Capital	$15,326,690.00
Surplus and Profits	23,329,164.35
Bills Payable	1,000,000.00
Total	$39,655,854.35

34. A statement of the Bank was printed showing its capital, surplus and undivided profits, as follows:

Capital	$4,000,000.00
Surplus and Profits	3,235,673.27
Total	$7,235,673.27

35. A statement was printed showing the capital and surplus of the Trust Company as of December 31, 1929, as follows:

Capital	$1,750,000.00
Surplus	1,506,269.11
Total	$3,256,269.11

36. From the date of the organization of Banco to the date it contracted for an interest in Caldwell & Company, its directors regularly met separately, and had reports from its officers. Minutes were kept of its board meetings, and the directors continued throughout said period their endeavors to carry forward the original plan they had in mind for forming the company.

37. On June 1, 1930, Banco contracted for 10,000 shares of the capital stock of Caldwell & Company, which had an issued and outstanding capital of 20,000 shares of the par value of $100.00 each. At that time Caldwell & Company was engaged generally in the business of underwriting first mortgage bonds, financing, and was known as the largest and strongest investment house in the South.

38. In 1926 Caldwell & Company had sold and distributed about $40,000,000.00 in securities, and from then on, to and including 1929, its distribution had increased to where it sold and distributed $75,000,000.00 in securities in 1929, and for the first five months of 1930 its sales and distributions were around $37,000,000.00.

39. The contract for the acquisition of a one-half interest in Caldwell & Company was entered into in June, 1930, but the amount to be paid by Banco was subject to an ascertainment of the asset value of Caldwell & Company.

40. The contract between Caldwell & Company and Banco was, as follows:

> "MEMORANDA OF AGREEMENT, made this 28th day of May, 1930, by and between the BANCO-KENTUCKY COMPANY, a Delaware Corporation, as first party, and CALDWELL & COMPANY, a Tennessee Corporation, as second party.

WITNESSETH:

For and in consideration of the mutual promises and covenants of the parties hereinafter contained, it is agreed:

1. The second party has increased its authorized capital stock from $1,000,000.00, divided into 10,000 shares of the par value of $100.00 each, to 20,000 shares of the par value of $100.00 each.

2. The first party will issue and deliver to the second party 900,000 shares of the par value of $10.00 each of its presently authorized but unissued stock for the additional 10,000 shares of stock of the second party, as provided in Section 1 hereof, which said 10,000 shares the second party will issue and deliver to the first party at the time of delivery to it of the aforesaid 900,000 shares of stock of the first party. Upon such mutual delivery of stock the second party will deposit 200,000 shares of the said 900,000 shares of capital stock of the first party with the Louisville Trust Company, Louisville, Kentucky, to be held by said Trust Company for redelivery to the second party upon the joint order of the presidents of the respective parties, pending such examinations and investigations as the first party may desire to make under Sections 7 and 8 of this agreement and as security of performance by the second party under said Sections 7 and 8.

3. At the time of such mutual delivery of stock, the first party will have 5,000,000 shares of stock of the par value of $10.00 each authorized, of which, exclusive of the aforesaid 900,000 shares to be issued to the second party 1,633,705 shares shall have been issued, and there is no option or contract of sale of stock of the first party outstanding (with exception of options on an aggregate amount of 250,000 shares of Common Capital Stock to H. M. Byllesby & Company, Blythe & Company, and Wakefield & Company at $26.50 per share, such option expires June 1, 1930).

4. At the time of said mutual delivery of stock, the second party will have an authorized capital stock of 20,000 shares of the par value of $100.00 each, of which, exclusive of the 10,000 shares to be issued to the first party, 10,000 shares shall have been issued.

5. Neither party, pending consummation of this transaction by the mutual delivery of said stocks, will make any disposition of any material portion of its assets nor take any unusual step or one other than in the due course of busines except with the written consent of the other.

6. The first party covenants that it owns the following amounts of the total issued and outstanding stock of the following banks:

NAME	LOCATION	TOTAL CAPITAL PAR VALUE	AMOUNTS OF STOCK OWNED
National Bank of Ky. Louisville Trust Co.	Louisville	5,750,000.00	5,391,190.00
The Brighton Bk. & Tr. Co.	Cincinnati, Ohio	500,000.00	442,900.00
The Pearl-Market Bk. & Tr. Co.	Cincinnati, Ohio	600,000.00	472,160.00
Peoples Liberty Bk. & Tr. Co.	Covington, Ky.	650,000.00	169,800.00
Cent. Sav. Bk. & Tr. Co.	Covington, Ky.	60,000.00	54,800.00
Ashland National Bank	Ashland, Ky.	800,000.00	626,300.00
First National Bank	Paducah, Ky.	150,000.00	136,500.00
Security Bank	Louisville, Ky.	300,000.00	209,000.00

"The first party represents that on May 1, 1930 the combined or total capital, surplus and undivided profits of the aforesaid banks, as shown by their books, were $17,192,870.76, and that the total assets of said banks, as shown by their books, were $124,129,966.95; that the first party had no liabilities and on said date it had cash to the amount of $1,297,893.47 and good and collectible notes in the principal amount of not less than $2,000,000.00.

7. The second party represents that, as of May 28, 1930, its assets were of such fair aggregate value that, after deducting therefrom all of its liabilities, it had a net worth of not less than $9,000,000.00.

8. The first party shall within twelve (12) months from the date hereof, satisfy itself as to the valuation of the assets of the second party in the computation of the net worth of the second party, as set forth in Section 7, of this agreement.

The President of BancoKentucky Company and the President of Caldwell & Company will determine the valuation of such assets in the computation of the net worth of the second party with the right in either party to have competent assistants in reaching a determination. If the Presidents of the respective parties are unable to agree upon the valuation of any asset or assets, then and in that event, they will select a third party as arbitrator, who will then determine said valuation. If the Presidents of the respective parties are unable to agree upon a third party to act as arbitrator as aforesaid, then and in that event they will select Mr. Whiteford R. Cole who will, in turn, select an arbitrator.

If the net worth of the second party is ascertained to be less than $9,000,000.00 based upon such valuation of its assets, then and in that event the second party at its option will deliver to the first party $2.22 in cash or stock of the first part (on basis of $25.00 per share) for each $1.00 of such deficit or the second party may forfeit any dividends on such part of its stock as is not owned by the first party until an amount equivalent to such deficit is accumulated in the treasury of the second party (provided its stockholders other than the first party shall agree to such forfeiture of dividends). If the net worth of the second party is ascertained to be more than Ten Million ($10,000,000.00) Dollars, then and in that event the first party will deliver to the second party $1.00 of its capital stock (on basis of $25.00 per share) for each $1.00 of such excess.

9. The first party agrees that in the event it desires to sell or otherwise dispose of all or any part of its stock interest in the second party at any time subsequent to the consummation of this contract, that it will not sell or otherwise dispose of said stock without first offering same to Rogers Caldwell, his successors and assigns, for an amount not in excess of bona fide offers obtained for such stock from other parties.

10. The first party agrees to establish and maintain a co-operative working agreement between the security departments of its several banks and the second party in the distribution and underwriting of securities.

11. The second party will retain a substantial investment in the insurance business and may carry further its program to acquire, direct and develop insurance companies.

12. The general spirit and purpose of this agreement and the consolidation of the interests of the first and second parties is to further the development of each company and to create a vehicle for further extension and development in the commercial and investment banking and insurance fields.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties hereto have executed this instrument in duplicate through their officers duly authorized to act by their respective boards of directors on the day and date first above written.

THE BANCOKENTUCKY COMPANY
(Signed) By JAMES B. BROWN,
President First Party

CALDWELL & COMPANY
(Signed) By ROGERS CALDWELL,
President Second Party

(Handwritten initials, "J. B. B." and "R. C." on margin.)"

The above contract was never fully consummated.

41. The total resources of Banco, according to its Balance Sheet, as of September 18, 1930, were $62,936,724.23, and its net worth $61,886,724.23.

42. The published statements of the Bank, beginning on January 11, 1927, and ending on October 11, 1930, showed the capital of the Bank to be intact, and in addition thereto, surplus, undivided profits and reserves as follows:

July 11, 1927	4,601,379.47
April 2, 1927	4,678,416.90
July 12, 1927	3,082,438.49
October 21, 1927	3,105,662.87
January 11, 1928	3,096,290.51
March 16, 1928	3,007,996.91
July 28, 1928	2,901,899.65
October 18, 1928	2,817,753.00
January 13, 1929	2,855,342.40
April 8, 1929	2,918,910.53
July 11, 1929	2,929,034.48
October 18, 1929	2,838,539.96
July 15, 1930	3,011,826.23
April 9, 1930	2,835,656.80
July 11, 1930	2,658,133.68
October 11, 1930	2,728,745.29

The capital of the Bank, as shown by the statements, at the date of the publication of the statements of January 11, 1927, and April 2, 1927, was $2,500,000.00, with a surplus of an equal amount. Thereafter, the capital was $4,000,000.00, with a surplus of $2,000.000.00.

43. The bank declared and paid dividends amounting to $160,000.00 a quarter to its stockholders, beginning June 10, 1927, and ending September 17, 1930. Following each dividend declared and paid, and pursuant to the United States Revised Statutes, the Cashier of the Bank, under oath, filled in a form provided by the Comptroller of the Currency showing the net earnings available for dividends in excess of the capital and surplus of the Bank, and after deducting known losses and statutory bad debts, and in each instance said report showed that there were sufficient net earnings available for dividends to leave the capital of $4,000,000.00 and the surplus of $2,000,000.00 intact, each of which reports was received by the Comptroller.

44. The Bank was examined twice a year, beginning April 23, 1927, and ending September 17, 1930, by a representative of the Comptroller's office. Each of said reports was on a form prepared by the Comptroller of the Currency and contained a questionnaire as to dividends and surplus, requiring the Examiner to give the date of the declaration of the last dividend, the amount of same, and to state whether the last report of earnings and dividends was correct, and in each instance the Examiner reported in each of said reports that all earnings and dividends were correct. A copy of each of said reports was sent to the Comptroller by the Examiner directly upon its completion and was received by him.

45. Not one of the dividends declared and paid by the Bank during the period from April, 1927 to September, 1930, was criticized by the Comptroller of the Currency, either in the letters of the Comptroller to the Bank or in the reports of the Examiners.

46. Caldwell & Company failed on the 5th day of November, 1930, and following that failure $12,000,000.00 was withdrawn by the depositors of the Bank from the Bank.

47. On November 17, 1930, the Comptroller of the Currency appointed Paul C. Keyes as Receiver of the Bank.

48. On November 24, 1930, a petition was filed in the Jefferson Circuit Court, for the appointment of a receiver for Banco, and thereafter Joseph Laurent was appointed Receiver.

49. On February 20, 1931, the Comptroller of the Currency, upon an accounting had by the Receiver of the Bank, and upon a valuation of the uncollected assets of the Bank remaining in his hands, determined that it was necessary to enforce the individual liability of the stockholders thereon under Sections 5151 and 5234 of the Revised Statutes, and thereupon made an assessment upon the stockholders of the Bank of the full par value thereof of $4,000,000.00.

50. On March 20, 1931, Paul C. Keyes, then Receiver of the Bank, sent by registered mail to the stockholders of Banco the following notice:

"Louisville, Ky., March 20, 1931.

"As a stockholder in The BancoKentucky Company you will please take notice, that the Comptroller of the Currency has on February 20, 1931, levied an assessment upon the stockholders of The National Bank of Kentueky, Louisville, Kentucky, on the par value of each and every share, payable at the office of the Receiver, on or before April 1, 1931. A notice of such assessment and a demand for payment of the same has been served upon the Receiver of the BancoKentucky Company as the holder of 540,484 Trustees' Participating Certificates, issued under a certain trust agreement of April 22, 1927, which Trustees' Participation Certificates represent the ownership of 37,721,624 shares of stock in The National Bank of Kentucky. You will, therefore, take notice that it is the intention of the undersigned, as Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky, to proceed against you for the collection of the aforesaid assessment liability represented by the said Trustees participation certificates held by said BancoKentucky Company, to the extent that the undersigned, as Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky is unable to collect said assessment from The BancoKentucky Company or its Receiver."

51. On March 31, 1931, the said Paul C. Keyes, as Receiver of the Bank, filed Equity Action No. 649 in the Federal District Court for the Western District of Kentucky, in which he sought to recover more than $14,000,000.00 from those who were directors of the Bank from 1926 to 1930, the date of its close.

52. In the suit filed by Paul C. Keyes, as aforesaid, the basis for the recovery against the directors was: (a) For common law negligence, and (b) violation of the federal statutes.

53. The defendant directors in said action No. 649 filed an answer controverting the allegations of the Bill of Complaint.

54. After the issues were joined on the various allegations of the Bill of Complaint in equity action No. 649 aforesaid, an order was made referring the case to the Hon. W. P. Sandidge, Special Master, with directions to make findings of fact and conclusions of law and to file his report with the court.

55. The Special Master made his report consisting of 362 printed pages.

56. The T.P.C.'s before the par value was reduced and after the consolidation of the Trust Company and Louisville National Bank, were currently selling at $460.00 per share.

57. After the par value of these certificates was reduced from $100.00 to $10.00, they were currently selling at $46.00 per share, and this price advanced until October 1st, when they were selling at $50.00 per share.

58. On December 27, 1929, certain directors of the Bank executed a surety bond guaranteeing certain City of Louisville deposits in the Bank, which bond was for $500,000.00.

59. At the time of the exchange of Banco shares for T.P.C.'s, the latter had a market in Louisville of "46 bid and 48 asked."

60. The stockholders of Banco had, at the time the Bank and Trust Company closed, deposits, in the Trust Company of $858,093.71, of which the deposits of approximately 80% of the stockholders were net, after offsets, and the balance of 20% were gross deposits of stockholders, or before offsets; and net deposits, after offsets, in the Bank of $1,254,783.27, or a total in both of $2,112,876.98.

61. Banco was organized in good faith.

62. Banco was "certainly not a sham."

63. Banco was "not organized for a fraudulent purpose or to conceal secret or sinister enterprises conducted for the benefit of the Bank."

64. Banco was not a mere holding company.

65. Banco "was formed for the purpose set out in the letter of July 19, 1929, and for no other purpose."

66. Banco "was not formed as a medium or agency thorough which to avoid double liability on the stock of the Bank."

67. There were irregularities in the handling of some of the credit accounts of the Bank, but the soundness of the Bank and its ability to meet its obligations could not be questioned, until long after the formation of Banco.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

1. The alleged liability, if any, of the defendants, is entirely statutory.

2. Before they can be held subject to assessment, they must, in effect, be stockholders of the Bank.

3. The burden of proof was on the plaintiff.

4. Banco was not an empty shell, but was a very real entity, actively acquiring capital assets.

5. Banco directors controlled the Bank, but the identity of directors of ownership of stock did not merge them into one corporation.

6. It was legal for Banco to purchase T.P.C.'s by exchange of its stock or for cash.

7. Banco was not a mere holding company, but was formed for the purpose set out in the letter of July 19, 1929, and for no other purpose.

8. Banco was not formed as a medium or agency through which to avoid double liability on the stock of the Bank.

9. Banco was the true, legal and beneficial owner of the stock of the Bank.

10. The transfers of the T.P.C.'s to Banco were out and out transfers, and Banco thereby acquired full legal title thereto.

11. The stockholders of Banco were not stockholders of the Bank within the meaning of the statute.

12. Plaintiff's Bill should be dismissed.

13. The judgment in Atherton v. Anderson, 86 F. (2d), 518, is not res judicata of this case, and defendants' pleas of res judicata, election, estoppel and estoppel by judgment should be overruled.

14. In view of the conclusion reached, to dismiss the Bill, it becomes unnecessary to consider the many special defenses interposed by a great number of the defendants.

Exceptions are reserved for the plaintiff to each and all of the foregoing Findings and Conclusions, and to the defendants as to legal conclusion No. 13.

DEFENDANTS' MOTION FOR ADDITIONAL FINDINGS OF FACT

(Filed June 29, 1940)

Come the defendants, by their counsel, and move the Court for further and additional Findings of Fact in the following particulars, to-wit:

1. The stockholders of the Bank and Trust Company, agreed, prior to April, 1927, to unify their stock by creating a trust, consisting of the capital stock of both institutions, to be deposited thereunder. The par value of the shares of each institution was $100.00. The basis of contribution to the trust was 4 shares of Bank stock to 1 share of Trust Company stock. The net worth of the Bank at that time was $7,189,292.25, and the net worth of the Trust Company was $1,830,123.32. The issued and outstanding capital of the Bank at the time of the unification was 40,000 shares, and the issued and outstanding capital stock of the Trust Company was 10,000 shares.

2. Each of these dividends so declared and paid was approved by the National Bank Examiners in their reports down to and including the dividend of July 1, 1930, and the one paid on October 1, 1930, was not criticized.

3. The criticisms of the Bank by the Comptroller of the Currency during the periods above referred to, were concealed from the non-officer Directors, by the officers of the Bank principally Brown, from the dates they were made, down to the close of the Bank.

4. The parties to the Reorganization Plan, referred to in the July 19, 1929, letter, and in the opinions of the attorneys, were "the Trustees for the Trustees' Participation Shareholders under the agreement of April 22, 1927, on the one part, and the BancoKentucky Company on the other," and the purpose of the Trustees in procuring a ruling from the Revenue Department was to ascertain whether or not the Trustees were an "association or corporation within the definition or meaning of the Revenue Act."

5. Neither the Bank nor the Trust Company was a party to any reorganization, and the shares of neither the Bank nor Trust Company were to be or were acquired by Banco in the reorganization.

6. The question of an amendment or reorganization of either the Trust Company or the Bank was not discussed by the directors of the Bank or Trust Company, and those two institutions "were to be left exactly as they were then existing, and they were so left without any authority to change or reorganize them in any manner or form."

7. There was no contract drawn or entered into between the Bank or Trust Company and Banco for the reorganization of the Bank or Trust Company.

8. The directors of Banco did not, in their plans for its organization, contemplate that more than 350,000 shares of the T. P. C.s would be deposited for exchange in response to the letter of July 19th, and fully expected to have, out of the 2,000,000 shares of Banco authorized, approximately 1,300,000 shares for sale at $25.00 per share, so as to provide a working capital in cash of $30,000,000.00 or more.

9. The original plan, as discussed by the Board, was to have in Banco working capital in cash at not less than $30,000,000.00 and when they ascertained on September 20, 1929, that the deposit of the T. P. Cs. for exchange required, to meet those exchanges, approximately 1,150,000 of its shares, they determined that there was not sufficient stock left for sale for cash to provide the working capital thought to be necessary, which prompted the amendment to the charter of Banco, increasing its capital from 2,000,000 shares to 5,000,000 shares.

10. At the time plans were set in motion to increase the capital stock so as to provide additional shares, and in October, 1929, the stock market crash occurred, which made it impossible to sell new issues, and which interfered with the directors in carrying forward the plan to have the working capital above referred to, although it was discussed by the Board of Directors from time to time and the original plan was never abandoned.

11. The purchase of a one-half interest in Caldwell & Company was discussed by the Board over a period of sixty to ninety days, and it was generally believed by the directors that it was an opportunity to do a general investment banking business and in purchasing the half interest it appeared to them that it was a good opportunity to get in the general security business without the expense incident to organization. It was an established business with offices in many cities, with a name and good will and was thought at the time to be doing what Banco was chiefly organized to do.

12. It had theretofore been invited into the general financing field by J. P. Morgan, Halsey Stewart and Dillon Read, and had established a reputation as a distributing house with offices in twenty-two cities in the United States.

13. The investment of Caldwell & Company in bank stocks between January and May, 1930, was not more than 5% of its total investments in securities.

14. Caldwell & Company received 900,000 shares of the capital stock of Banco in exchange for 10,000 shares of its stock, but it was agreed between the parties to the contract that Caldwell & Company was not entitled to any dividends upon Banco stock prior to the valuation of Caldwell's assets.

15. Robert Neill, Chief National Bank Examiner, made a last examination of the bank. He approved the dividend declared June 20, 1930, and paid July 1, 1930. He saw the resolution of the Board declaring the dividend as of September 19, 1930, six days before that dividend was paid. He did not criticize the payment of the dividend and it was subsequently paid.

16. With few immaterial exceptions, all of the proof introduced in this cause was introduced by the plaintiff in Equity Action No. 649.

17. On the claim asserted in the Bill, in Equity Action No. 649, based upon the statutory violations and common law negligence, the two sharp issues of fact were necessary to be determined, and those were:

(a) Whether or not the letters from the Comptroller of the Currency ever reached the non-officer directors of the Bank, or whether they knew of such letters having been written at any time during their terms of office;

(b) Whether or not the minute books of the Bank showing that such letters were read to the Board, were false and fraudulent; and on the issues thus joined the Master found:

> "I don't think that any of these letters reached the board of directors, notwithstanding the recitation in the minutes to that effect. The minute book now indicates that there were six such letters presented and read to the board, namely, December 16, 1927, p. 304, of the minute book; June 1, 1928, p. 318 of the minute book; June 8, 1928, p. 319 of the minute book; June 22, 1928, p. 320 of the minute book; August 31, 1928, p. 325 of the minute book, and December 7, 1928, p. 332 of the minute book. It is satisfactorily established that the minutes, after being read to the board, were fraudulently altered so as to show the presentation and consideration of these letters. The concealment of these letters from the Board and the fact that such questionable, not to say dangerous, means were resorted to to accomplish it, demonstrates the character of the collusion with which the directors were unknowingly surrounded."

18. Another issue presented in Equity Action No. 649, which was necessary to be decided by that Court, in order to determine the claims of the plaintiff therein, was whether or not the criticisms contained in the National Bank Examiners' reports ever reached the board and were known to the board, and on the issue thus joined the Master found:

> "It is perfectly apparent that Brown and Jones, without protest from any member of the loan committee, were designedly omitting to read parts of the reports of the Examiners, concealing letters from the Comptroller, fraudulently evading the demands of that office, and continuously misleading the non-officer directors. The covering up which Brown and Jones were guilty of, and their acts of concealment in the presence, and with the acquiescence, of the other officers while the board of directors was in session, strongly indicates collusion between these parties, the purpose of which was to enable Brown, without the knowledge of the non-officer directors, to successfully extract funds from the bank in the name of Wakefield & Company or its employees."

19. Exceptions were filed to the report of the Master involving the above findings as to the Bank Examiners' reports, and letters from the Comptroller by the plaintiff in said action, No. 649, and the case came on to be heard before the Hon. Arthur Tuttle, sitting by designation, as Judge of the Federal District Court for the Western District of Kentucky, and Judge Tuttle sustained the Master in the above respects in the following language:

"The Special Master found .... further, he fraudulently caused to be concealed from the non-officer directors reports of the bank examiners, letters from the Comptroller of the Currency and other information which would have disclosed the character of such loans, as loans to Wakefield & Company in excess of the statutory limit. That such directors did not have such information, had no reason to doubt the propriety of such loans, and, in approving them, relied on the officers of the bank to whom they had entrusted the administration of the details of its affairs; that such directors were not guilty of negligence in connection with such loans, and that, although the defendant officers were liable for the loss resulting from the making of these loans because they knew that such loans should be grouped together as Wakefield & Company loans, and, when so grouped, were in excess of the said statutory limit, yet, the other defendants being without that knowledge, were not so liable, except as hereinafter pointed out. I am satisfied by the record that the findings of the Master just mentioned are supported by substantial evidence and that the Court would not be warranted in setting such findings aside."

20. An appeal was prosecuted from the judgment entered by the Hon. Arthur J. Tuttle, following his opinion, to the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit, and that Court confirmed and approved the findings of the Master and the District Court, as set forth in the next above two preceding paragraphs on the issues thus joined, and those findings of fact are still in full force and effect.

21. That another issue in said Equity Action No. 649, filed in the District Court of the United States for the Western District of Kentucky against all of the directors of the Bank, was whether or not the dividends declared and paid by the Bank, from June 10, 1927, to September 30, 1930, amounting to $160,000.00 per quarter, or $2,240,000.00 as a whole, had been unlawfully paid, and upon the issue the plaintiff in said action sought judgment against the directors for $2,240,000.00. Upon the issue thus joined, and after a full hearing, the Master, in his report, held that each of said dividends had been lawfully declared and lawfully paid.

22. Thereafter, exceptions were filed to the Master's report by the plaintiff in that cause, and came on to be heard before the Western District Court aforesaid, and the Western District Court affirmed and approved the findings of the Master with reference to the claim of illegality of such dividends in the following language:

"The Master disallowed this claim in its entirety, finding that the evidence failed to show any facts indicating any statutory violation of any of the directors or any negligence on their part in connection with these dividends. The Master discussed and analyzed, at great length and in much detail, numerous debts which the plaintiff claims should have been charged off as statutory bad debts, and after painstaking and thorough consideration of such debts and of the other relevant facts and circumstances, the Master found that the evidence did not sustain this claim of the plaintiff. To recite or review these details would unduly prolong this opinion and would serve no useful purpose. It is sufficient to say that the findings of the Master are convincingly supported by the record. It is entirely clear and I find, that the witnesses on whom the plaintiff relied in this connection had no personal knowledge of the facts concerning which they assumed to testify. There is no competent evidence to sustain the burden resting on the plaintiff of proving that any of these dividends were paid out of capital of the bank or were not paid out of its net profits after deducting therefrom its losses and bad debts, including all debts on which interest was past due and unpaid for a period of six months and which were not all secured and all debts in process of collection. It appearing that the findings of the Master are supported by the record, such findings are affirmed, and no recovery against these directors by reason of the declaration or payment of these dividends will be awarded."

23. Following the opinion of the District Court for the Western District of Kentucky, and on July 8, 1935, a judgment was entered therein dismissing the Bill of Complaint in so far as it sought recovery of the aforesaid dividends, and no appeal has been prosecuted therefrom in that respect, and accordingly it is final.

24. Another issue asserted in Equity Action No. 649, Federal District Court for the Western District of Kentucky, was upon a claim made against the directors of the Bank amounting to more than $1,700,000.00, based upon loans made by the Bank secured by stock of Banco, it being claimed by the plaintiff in said action that loans made on Banco stock was equivalent to loans being made upon the stock of the Bank itself.

25. On the issue as to whether or not Banco was organized as merely a holding company for holding stock of the Bank, and the issue as to whether the Bank could legally take the stock of Banco as collateral security, the Master found:

> "(a) In the organization of the BancoKentucky Company it was contemplated that the company should purchase as many of such participating certificates as possible, paying for same with stock of the Banco-Kentucky Company at $25.00 a share. It was estimated that 350,000 participating certificates would be thus acquired. It turned out, however, that there were turned in for exchange about 470,000 certificates out of a total of 575,000 participating certificates."

(Master's Report, 161.)

> "It was thus clearly not contemplated in the beginning or intended at any time, that the Banco-Kentucky Company should be organized merely as a holding company for the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky.
> "In fact, the participating certificates above referred to represented an interest in the Louisville Trust Company as well as the National Bank of Kentucky. Furthermore, before the BancoKentucky Company acquired title to any of the participating certificates representing the ownership of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company, it had arranged for a sale of a large part of its authorized capital to the public for cash. Shortly after the purchase of the two Cincinnati banks, it proceeded to take over the Central Savings Bank & Trust Company of Covington, Kentucky, certain stock in the Union Central Life Insurance Company of Cincinnati, the Peoples-Liberty Bank & Trust Company of Covington, the Ashland National Bank, Mechanics Savings Bank, the First National Bank of Paducah, Kentucky. . . . The value represented by the ownership of the banks and properties, other than National Bank of Kentucky, soon exceeded the value of the assets represented by its purchase of participating certificates covering its interest in the National Bank of Kentucky.

"I think it goes without saying, or serious argument, that the National Bank of Kentucky could legally take stock of the BancoKentucky Company as collateral security on notes executed to it by borrowers. I think there was in this instance no such identity between the two companies as would make the taking of such stock a violation of Section 83, United States Code, 'Title—Banks & Banking,' Revised Statutes 5201."

26. Exceptions were filed by the plaintiff in Equity Action No. 649 to the report of the Master, making the findings in the next paragraph above stated. On a hearing before the District Court (7 F. Sup. 924), the District Court said:

"The Master, although not making any findings of fact inconsistent with the findings of this Court just stated, held that, on these facts, the plaintiff had not shown such a connection or relation between the Bank and BancoKentucky Company as to render the making of these loans on this collateral a violation of the statute in question. With this conclusion of the Master, I am unable to agree."

"Applying these principles to the situation here presented, the National Bank of Kentucky could not make a loan to itself and could not make loans to anyone else and take its own capital as collateral for such loans. The directors of the National Bank of Kentucky caused to be organized this holding company, to which was given the suggested name of BancoKentucky, which was, indeed, intended to be and was, in many important respects and in a very real sense, as the record abundantly shows, the National Bank of Kentucky Company. It owned, as already indicated, a substantial amount of the stock of the Bank of Kentucky which was in fact, at the outset, its principal asset, and at all times thereafter continued to be its most valuable single asset, so that it was forced to close its doors a few days after the closing of the Bank. During this brief life of the Banco-Kentucky Company, and while the Bank could not loan money on its own stock as collateral, it made the loans now under consideration in the aggregate amount already mentioned, and took BancoKentucky Company, which was, in substance and effect, not only its own holding company but also, at least in equity, its alter ego, so to speak."

27. On July 8, 1935, and following the decision made by Judge Tuttle, sitting by designation as District Judge for the Western District of Kentucky, that Court entered a judgment against the directors for all loans made on the security of Banco stock, which were adjudged to be, in the opinion of the Court, "loans on the security of the Bank's own stock," for approximately $1,600,000.00.

28. An appeal was prosecuted by the directors from that section of the judgment to the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit, and that Court, on the issue thus joined, said:

"Prior to September 11, 1929 negotiations had been begun by the BancoKentucky Company for the purchase of two Cincinnati banks, Pearl-Market Bank & Trust Company, and the Brighton Bank & Trust Company, and on September 25, 1929, a contract for the purchase of the controlling interest in each was concluded—though they were actually taken over some time later. The consideration included shares of Banco, which, on the basis of $25. per share, represented a total of $2,159,875.00. When most of the assailed loans were made on Banco stock, the situation was substantially as follows: Banco owned 470,000 of a total of 575,000 trust participating certificates representing ownership of stock in the Bank and in the Louisville Trust Company, it had subscriptions to its own stock in the amount of $10,000,000, on which $5,784,875 had been paid by October 1, 1929, and $9,222,451.21 by October 10, 1929, and it had concluded the purchase of a controlling interest in the two Cincinnati banks. The master accordingly found that 'It was thus clearly not contemplated in the beginning, or intended at any time, that the Banco Kentucky Company should be organized merely as a holding company for the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky,' a finding not rejected by the District Court."

"We come now to the question whether the relation between the bank and the Banco Kentucky Company was such that a court of equity would be warranted in disregarding the existence of Banco as a separate corporate entity. It is true that Banco was conceived in the vaulting imagination of the president of the bank; that it was promoted and fostered by the appellants; that the directors of the two corporations, though not identical, overlapped; that the great majority of trust participation certificates representing stock in the bank became the property of Banco, and that there is a suggestion of identity in the name adopted by the new company.

"But Banco was not a mere holding company for the bank's stock. It was organized for clearly defined purposes, too optimistically conceived, perhaps, but neither illegitimate nor unlawful. It had its own capital with cash resources at one period almost twice the entire capital and surplus of the bank. While in the very beginning the bank stock may, as found by the court, have been its principal asset, and may have continued thereafter to be its most valuable single asset, it had other assets of very substantial value, and it was warrantable inference at the time of its organization and for a substantial period thereafter that it could well meet any assessment that might be levied upon it as a stockholder of the bank. At any rate there is nothing in the record to point to its creation for the purpose of escaping such assessment. Indeed when the assessment was finally made by the Comptroller it was enforced against Banco and not against the stockholders. See Laurent v. Anderson, supra. Its separate corporate existence was recognized by the very receiver on whose behalf we are now askd to ignore it.

"The Banco Kentucky Company was certainly not a sham, for nearly ten million dollars of actual cash paid for its stock attest its reality; and there is nothing in the record to point to it as an instrumentality of the bank. Nor was it organized for a fraudulent purpose or to conceal secret or sinister enterprises conducted for the benefit of the bank. The master absolved the appellants of all suspicion of bad faith and the court approved his finding in the last of three carefully reasoned opinions (D. C. 11 Fed. Supp. 9, 14).

"Certainly we must accept this as the deliberate judgment of the court rather than as a euphemism, easing the blow to the sensibilities as it fell heavily upon the purse."

29. Following the opinion of the Circuit Court of Appeals aforesaid and after various steps, the Circuit Court of Appeals issued its mandate on the opinion aforesaid, which was filed in the District Court of the United States for the Western District of Kentueky, and pursuant thereto a judgment was duly entered in said Court dismissing so much of the Bill of Complaint as sought judgment against the directors by reason of the loans on the collateral of Banco stock.

30. Among the directors of the bank sued in equity action No. 649, aforesaid, were: Dr. Oscar E. Bloch, Charles H. Bohmer, Anthony J. Carroll, George M. Clark, Samuel W. Coons, Allen P. Dodd, Estate of E. M. Drummond, Stuart E. Duncan, Joseph H. Durham, James Garnett, Angereau

Gray, T. Kennedy Helm, Baylor O. Hickman, Saunders P. Jones, Estate of Milburn P. Kelley, Walter I. Kohn, Estate of Brainard Lemon, Thomas J. Minary, E. J. O'Brien, Jr., Estate of Arthur M. Rutledge, William S. Speed, John Stites, Henry Vogt, Estate of John B. Pirtle and Henry D. Ormsby. These same directors, or the estates of those dying, and the assignee of Director Clark, were used in this action brought by the plaintiff receiver herein, who is the same plaintiff receiver who succeeded Paul C. Keyes, the original receiver.

31. After the notice of assessment was sent to the stockholders of Banco on March 20, 1931, the receiver of the Bank, A. M. Anderson, who had theretofore succeeded Paul C. Keyes, filed a petition in the Jefferson Circuit Court, Chancery Branch, Second Division, being No. 205,223, asking leave to sue Banco as the true, lawful and beneficial owner of the stock of the Bank and was granted leave by the Jefferson Circuit Court to file suit; the petition and order granting the right to bring such a suit having been prepared by the same attorneys who are attorneys for the plaintiff in this suit.

32. Following the order granting authority to bring such a suit, the said A. M. Anderson, Receiver, on October 31, 1931, filed his suit in the District Court for the Western District of Kentucky, in which he, among other things, alleged:

> "Plaintiff says that said money is due him as an assessment upon the shares of stock of the National Bank of Kentucky owned by the BancoKentucky Company at the time plaintiff was appointed Receiver or upon certain Trustees Participation Certificates representing the National Bank of Kentucky stock, owned by the BancoKentucky Company at the time of said appointment of plaintiff as Receiver.

"The BancoKentucky Company was at the time of the closing of the National Bank of Kentucky, and the appointment of the plaintiff as Receiver, the holder of record of five hundred forty thousand four hundred eighty-four (540,484) Trustees Participation Certificates, having a par value of $10.00, which Trustees Participation Certificates were issued under the terms of a certain trust agreement of April 22, 1927, and which Trustees' Participation Certificates represent the ownership of 37,721.624 shares of stock of the National Bank of Kentucky of Louisville, as hereinafter more fully set forth.

"Advising the defendant that the BancoKentucky Company was the holder of five hundred forty thousand four hundred eighty-four (540,484) Trustees Participation Certificates issued under the terms of said trust agreement of April 22, 1927, which said Trustees Participation Certificates represent the ownership of 37,721.624 shares of stock in the National Bank of Kentucky, and making demand upon the defendant to pay the assessment on 37,721.624 shares of the National Bank of Kentucky, represented by the aforesaid Trustees Participation Certificates, in accordance with said order and assessment of the Comptroller of the Currency and said notice."

"Notwithstanding said assessment notice and demand upon the defendant, no part of said assessment has been paid and said defendant has refused to pay said assessment or any part thereof, and there is now due and owing to the plaintiff as Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky the sum of Three Million Seven Hundred Seventy-two Thousand, One Hundred Sixty-two and 40/100 ($3,772,162.40) Dollars as the assessment and requisition duly made upon the defendant as a shareholder of the National Bank of Kentucky by the Comptroller of the Currency, as aforesaid."

In the aforesaid suit, Anderson recovered a judgment against Laurent, Receiver of Banco, for the full amount of the assessment made upon the stock of the Bank as to T. P. C.'s owned by Banco, and from that judgment an appeal was prosecuted to the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit, and that Court affirmed the judgment of the lower Court, awarding a judgment against Banco alone for all of the statutory liability covered by the T. P. C.'s and adjudging it to be the true and lawful owner of such certificates, the Court saying:

> ". . . Banco never held stock in the National Bank of Kentucky, but several years after the date of the agreement purchased the Trustees' Participation Certificates, which had been issued under the agreement.
> "The sole question for determination is whether Banco is liable to respond as a stockholder in the National Bank of Kentucky as the real and beneficial owner of the stock under Title 12, U. S. C. A. Sec. 64, or whether it is exempt from liability under Title 12, U. S. C. A. Sec. 66." (relieving Trustees of personal liability).
>
> "The evidence establishes that Banco was in every sense the true and beneficial owner of the National Bank stock involved.
>
> "The petition and especially the evidence sustain recovery against Banco as the real and beneficial owner under Section 64 of the National Banking Act (12 U. S. C. A.)."

ORDER OVERRULING DEFENDANTS' MOTION FOR ADDITIONAL FINDINGS OF FACT

(Filed June 29, 1940)

This day came on to be heard the defendants' motion for additional Findings of Fact, and the Court being advised, overruled said motion, to which action of the Court the defendants object and except.

It is further ordered by the Court that said motion for additional Findings of Fact is made a part of the record herein.

MAC SWINFORD (signed)
Judge

FINAL JUDGMENT

(Entered June 29, 1940)

This cause coming on to be heard upon the pleadings, proof and exhibits filed, and after hearing oral arguments of counsel for the parties, and considering the briefs on file, together with the record herein, and the Court being sufficiently advised as to all matters in the record contained, delivered his opinion herein, which has been heretofore filed, and now files his separate findings of fact and conclusions of law, which are ordered made a part of the record.

Pursuant to the opinion of the Court and the Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law on file, it is now ordered, adjudged and decreed by the Court, that the Bill herein and the amendments thereto be and the same are dismissed, and that the defendants do have and recover of the plaintiff their costs herein expended, to all of which the plaintiff objects and excepts.

This matter having also come on for hearing on the counter-claim and cross action and amendments thereto of Susie E. Tellman, Frieda Gudex, administratrix of the estate of Emily E. Bischoff, Mary Christine Watkins, Administratrix of the estate of P. A. Gaertner, deceased, Henry M. Johnson, Dr. Charles O. Neff, and Mrs. Pearl G. Shepherd, and on the responsive pleadings of the Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky to said counter-claim and cross action, and the Court being advised, it is now ordered, adjudged and decreed by the court that the counter-claim and cross action filed by the above defendants, be and the same is now dismissed, to all of which the said defendants listed in this paragraph who filed said counter-claim and cross action object and except.

This cause having also come on to be heard on the amended answer and cross complaint of Mrs. Bertha Pottinger, Leonard B. McClellan, Sarah McClellan, Louise M. Nachand, S. H. Armes and R. L. Armes (hereinafter called "six cross-plaintiffs") against The Louisville Trust Company, the amendments and purported amendments to said cross complaint, and the motion to dismiss such cross complaint and the amendments thereto, and the Court being advised, it is ordered and adjudged that the amended cross complaint of said six cross plaintiffs and all amendments and purported amendments thereto be and they are hereby dismissed, to which the said six cross plaintiffs object and except.

MAC SWINFORD,
Judge.

NOTICE OF APPEAL

(Filed July 30, 1940)

Notice is hereby given that A. M. Anderson, Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky, an insolvent national banking association, by direction of the Comptroller of the Currency, Department of the Treasury of the Government of the United States, hereby appeals to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit from the Judgment and decree entered in this action on June 29, 1940, by the Honorable Mac Swinford, District Judge, dismissing plaintiff's bill of complaint and amendments thereto at plaintiff's costs.

STAY OF OPERATION OF JUDGMENT

This day came on to be heard plaintiff's motion for a stay of the operation and enforcement of the judgment entered herein on June 29, 1940, dismissing plaintiff's bill of complaint, at plaintiff's costs, and it appearing to the court that notice of appeal to secure the review of said judgment by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit has been filed with this court by plaintiff, A. M. Anderson, Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky, an insolvent National bank, by direction of the Comptroller of Currency, Department of the Treasury of the Government of the United States:

It is ordered that the operation and enforcement of said judgment and decree be and the same is hereby stayed, without the execution by said Receiver of any supersedeas or other bond, obligation or security to answer for costs or in damages until the final determination of this cause or until the further orders of the Court.

MAC SWINFORD, Judge.

STATEMENT OF THE POINTS ON WHICH APPELLANT INTENDS TO RELY ON THE APPEAL

(Filed September 30, 1940.)

Now comes the plaintiff, having taken an appeal from the judgment and decree entered in this cause on June 29, 1940, dismissing plaintiff's bill of complaint and the amendments thereto at plaintiff's costs, and states that the District Court committed error in rendering said final judgment and decree and that the points on which he intends to rely on said appeal are as follows:

1. The District Court erred in holding that the defendants are not the real, true and beneficial owners of stock of the National Bank of Kentucky in proportion to their respective stock holdings in BancoKentucky Company, and proportionately liable for the assessment levied upon shareholders and stockholders of said National Bank.

2. The District Court erred in holding that the defendants were not estopped, by reason of their receipt of the benefits of the ownership and the control of the stock of said National Bank of Kentucky, from denying their liability to assessment as the real, true and beneficial shareholders and stockholders of said national bank.

Statement of Points on Which Appellant Intends to Rely

3. The District Court erred in holding that the organization and operation of the BancoKentucky Company did not defeat, evade and avoid the spirit and intent of public statutes of the United States, State of Kentucky and State of Delaware, designed for the protection of depositors in national and state banks and trust companies, and that this corporate entity could be interposed by defendants as an insulator or nonconductor of liability for said assessment.

4. The District Court erred in holding that BancoKentucky Company did not hold Trustees' Participation Certificates, representing stock of the National Bank of Kentucky, as the corporate convenience, instrumentality and agency of defendants.

5. The District Court erred in failing to hold that the organization and operation of BancoKentucky Company for the purpose of holding the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky and the stock of other banks and trust companies and the operation of a group or chain of banks in the Ohio Valley, without providing for the continuance or assumption of personal liability to assessment on the part of the holders of shares in said BancoKentucky Company and without provision for the satisfaction of any assessment which might be levied upon shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky or other banks and trust companies operated and controlled through said Delaware corporation, was constructively fraudulent as to depositors and creditors of said National Bank of Kentucky and that said corporate entity should be disregarded.

6. The District Court erred in failing to hold that the directors and shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky and of BancoKentucky Company were chargeable with the knowledge of the officers of the National Bank of Kentucky, who suggested the organization of said BancoKentucky Company and participated in its organization and operation, with respect to the precarious financial condition of said National Bank of Kentucky and with knowledge of their purpose to avoid or limit the personal liability to assessment of shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky by the interposition of the corporate entity of said BancoKentucky Company between defendants and the direct ownership of the shares of said National Bank of Kentucky.

7. The District Court erred in failing to hold that defendants who exchanged Trustees' Participation Certificates for shares of BancoKentucky Company stock did not thereby terminate their statutory and contractual liability to assessment as shareholders and stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky.

8. The District Court erred in failing to follow principles of law decided by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit in Barbour v. Thomas, 86 Fed. 2d 510 and Ullrich v. Schram, 86 Fed. 2d 678.

9. The District Court erred in holding applicable to this case statements appearing in the opinion of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit in Atherton v. Anderson, 86 Fed. 2d 518.

10. The District Court erred in approving and entering the following Findings of Fact, suggested by the defendants, numbered 4, 5, 14, 19, 21, 22, 24, 25, 26, 28, 31, 36, 37, 38, 41, 43, 44, 45, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66 and 67.

11. The District Court erred in adopting the following Conclusions of Law, proposed by defendants, numbered 1, 4, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12.

12. The District Court erred in failing to adopt and enter each of the Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law suggested by plaintiff and in refusing to make each of the additional and supplemental Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law proposed by plaintiff in accordance with the opinions of the Court filed May 13, 1938 (23 Fed. Supp. 265) and March 23, 1940.

13. The District Court erred in overruling plaintiff's objection to the introduction of evidence offered by defendants and in sustaining objections to the introduction of evidence offered by plaintiff.

14. The District Court erred in dismissing plaintiff's Bill of Complaint and the amendments thereto and in refusing to enter judgment in favor of plaintiff and against the defendants as prayed for therein.

Circuit Judge.

NOTICE OF APPEAL TO THE UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE SIXTH CIRCUIT OF SUSIE E. TELLMAN, ET AL.

(Filed Sept. 26, 1940)

Notice is hereby given that Susie E. Tellman, Frieda Gudex, Administratrix Estate of Emily E. Bischoff, and Mary Christine Cottell, Administratrix Estate of P. A. Gaertner, deceased, hereby appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit from so much of the Judgment and Decree entered in this action on June 29, 1940 by the Honorable Mac Swinford, District Judge, as dismissed the Counterclaim and Cross-action filed herein, and amendments thereto, by above named parties against A. M. Anderson, Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky.

TELLMAN, ET AL. DESIGNATION OF CONTENTS OF RECORD ON APPEAL

(Filed Sept. 30, 1940)

STATEMENT OF POINTS ON WHICH APPELLANTS, TELLMAN, ET AL. INTEND TO RELY

(Filed Oct. 4, 1940)

Now comes Susie E. Tellman, Frieda Gudex, Administratrix Estate of Emily E. Bischoff, and Mary Christine Cottell, Administratrix Estate of P. A. Gaertner, deceased, having taken an appeal from a portion of the judgment entered in this cause on June 29, 1940, dismissing their Counterclaim and Cross-action filed herein, and amendments thereto, and state that the District Court committed error in entering final judgment dismissing their Counter-

Statement of Points on Which Appellants Intend to Rely claim and Cross-action herein, and that the points on which Tellman, et al. intend to rely on said appeal are as follows:

In the event on appeal the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit should reverse this case, and hold, as A. M. Anderson, Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky contends, in his statement of Points on which said Receiver intends to rely on appeal, namely, that the organization and operation of BancoKentucky "was constructively fraudulent as to depositors and creditors of the said National Bank of Kentucky, and that said corporate entity should be disregarded," then the Court should hold that the said Corporation's organization and operation and sale of stock to innocent stockholders, such as Tellman, et al. was fraudulent, so as to ground a Cross-action and Counterclaim, in favor of Tellman and others of such innocent purchasers of stock in Banco, against the assets of the National Bank of Kentucky in the hands of A. M. Anderson, Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky, for the amount they lost in purchasing the said fraudulent Banco stock.

OPENING STATEMENT OF MR. MARX ON BEHALF OF PLAINTIFF

Mr. Marx: If the Court please, it is not our purpose to make too elaborate a statement, nor to go into all of the evidential facts which are necessary to support the allegations in the Bill of Complaint. Your Honor has suggested, however, that some outline of the claims of the plaintiff might be helpful, and I will state those verbally and without any detailed notes, facts or figures before me, so that I don't want to be held too closely to any statement of dates or figures, just to the general outline. I had not originally intended to make an opening statement, thinking we might save time by waiving it; I have not prepared a statement and I will just talk ad lib.

The Court: It is not necessary to go into the history of the matter; just state the issue on which you want to introduce proof.

Mr. Marx: Well, I think it is necessary, however, to state very succinctly a little bit of the history in order to bring out the sequence of events, because prior to April 22, 1927, this was just the ordinary relationship of stockholders of a bank of record on one side and the depositors of the bank on the other. I mean by that, in 1925 or 1926 a depositor put his money into the bank and there stood of record a long list of individuals on the Stock Ledger of the bank who had invested their money in the shares of stock in the bank, and who were subject to a stock assessment in the event of the failure of the bank. These individuals, who were the stockholders of the bank and were liable for double assessment were the real, actual, and at that time, prior to April 22, 1927, the record holders on the stock ledger of the bank, and they well knew then and at all subsequent times, that they were liable, under Federal law, to the payment of double the amount of their investment as an assessment.

The proof will show that along in April of 1927 these stockholders, who were the real, true, actual and record holders of the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky, and who were making the profits out of the operation of the bank and the use of the depositors' money, conceived the idea of joining forces with a state institution known as the Louisville Trust Company. They, I think the evidence will show, wrote to the Comptroller of Currency of the United States about it and were advised that under the applicable federal laws there was a legal way by which they could merge or consolidate. However, they chose to do it another way, without going through the process required by law to accomplish a merger or consolidation. They undertook to accomplish indirectly the same thing, and they, the stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky and the stockholders of the Louisville Trust Company, put all of their stock into the hands of six men whom they designated as Trustees. I think the evidence will show that all of the certificates of stock of both the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company were placed in the hands of these Trustees. Subsequently the Trustees caused to be registered in the name of the directors of the bank and the trust company, ten shares of stock apiece, in order to qualify them to act as directors. Whether or not that was a real qualification, as contemplated within the spirit of the law and letter of the law, Your Honor will have to determine, but the physical possession and custody of the stock was in the hands of these Trustees.

I may say the evidence will show there was a formal trust instrument executed, dated April 22, 1927, the detailed terms of which I will omit at this time, except to say that under that instrument the man who owned a $100 stock certificate in the National Bank of Kentucky received in exchange from the trustees a $100 trust certificate. In other words, they exchanged their bank stock for trust certificates par for par. Now, the effect of that exchange, however, was that a man who had been a stockholder in the National Bank of Kentucky continued to be a stockholder in the National Bank of Kentucky, but in a somewhat different proportion. Originally he owned $100 interest in the National Bank of Kentucky, but when he got a Trust Certificate for $100 his interest became relatively about $70 in the National Bank of Kentucky and $30—$20, originally—in the Louisville Trust Company. In like manner, if a man owned only $100 of Louisville Trust Company stock, when he received a $100 Trust Certificate, he acquired a $80 interest, at the start, later reduced to $70, in the National Bank of Kentucky, and a $20 interest in the Louisville Trust Company, so that his proportionate interest changed, but the Trust Certificate at all times represented the bank stock.

Now, while I am on the subject of the difference between $70 and $80, I may say that some time after the organization of this trust, they took in another bank, the Louisville National Bank. They took it in not by purchase money but they took it in simply by an exchange of Trust Certificates for Louisville National Bank stock, of which they issued something like 7,500 shares of the Trust Certificates —that is; 7,500 Trust Certificates in exchange for 7,500 shares of the Louisville National Bank stock, and they merged that Louisville National into the Louisville Trust Company. When that merger or consolidation came about, then the proportionate interest of a certificate holder again changed, so that whereas originally his Trust Certificate represented $80 worth of National Bank of Kentucky and $20 worth of Louisville Trust Company, after they took in the Louisville National his Trustees' Certificates represented $70 in the National Bank of Kentucky and $30 in the Louisville Trust Company. Now, I am giving these figures from memory and they are approximations.

The Trust Certificate represented the bank stock; these six trustees had no real, independent function; they were the trustees of the bank stockholders. For example, the principal reason men invest money in a bank is to derive dividends and earn profits that come from owning bank stock for his own enrichment, and the dividends after the bank stock was trusteed were received by the trustees and then paid out to the bank stockholders without any deduction, even for expenses, so that the bank stockholder continued to get his dividends from his bank stock from the trustees, just the same as he had previously got it from the bank, so that in every sense of the word he was still a bank stockholder. The trustees, of course, acted for the Certificate holders to such an extent that the trustees' certificate holder had a right to vote his trust certificate, directing the trustees how to vote the bank stock, so that though the trustees he even continued to exercise his voting privilege of the bank stock.

That, as stated, happened in April of 1927, and that condition continued until the organization of the BancoKentucky Company about two years later.

Now, if the Court please, the evidence will show beyond any possible dispute, and the other side will have to admit it, that during the years 1927, 1928 and 1929 up to the time they undertook to shake off their double liability these bank stockholders knew that they were liable to a double assessment under the laws of the United States, and they knew they could not shake off that liability by organizing this trust, and have it a valid and legal thing. Whether that trust was a valid method of combining a national and a state bank may or may not be important in this case, depending upon certain rules of law and certain phases of the case, but one thing is clear, that when they organized that trust, and their banks were in whatever condition the evidence will show they were in, these stockholders knew that they were liable for double assessment, and they wrote into the Trust Agreement that they would indemnify these six men who were the trustees against any liability for stock assessment by reason of the fact that the stock in the bank was then registered in the names of the trustees, because from the day they instituted that trust, Your Honor will see immediately that the situation between the depositors, whom we represent on this side of the table, and the shareholders, who are represented on the other side of the table, changed, in this particular, that the depositors could no longer go to the stock ledger and ascertain the names of record of the certificate holders directly; he had to do it indirectly, because when he looked at the stock ledger it stated that all the stock, except the stock in the names of the directors, ten shares each to qualify them, was in the names of these six trustees—all of it, if Your Honor please—there wasn't any outside of the trust, save and except the shares that were registered of record in the names of these directors, ten shares each, but the certificates of which were in a safety deposit box controlled by the trustees.

Furthermore, the evidence will show as to those directors' qualifying shares, that they were under a contract made with the trustees that upon the failure of a director to be elected or his resignation or the attachment of the stock which he claimed, as far as the record showed, to own, by a creditor, he lost those certificates instanter, so that he, in effect, and in reality, was simply a nominee of the six trustees who held his certificates and who held a contract, if Your Honor please, providing that he lost the certificate on death, resignation, failure of election, or even attachment by a creditor.

Now, then, when he looked at the stock record he saw eighteen directors at ten shares each and all the rest of the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky was in the name of six trustees under the trust instrument of April 22, 1927. Now, they kept a stock ledger, however, of those who owned the Trustees' Certificates and a man could go to that record and see who owned the Trustees' Certificates, which represented the stock of the bank, and everybody on that record agreed, in his Trustees' Certificates, to respond to his double liability. He knew from the Trustees' Certificates and knew personally that he was subject to double liability, and that the Trustees' Certificate was subject to double liability, and that the Federal law required him to pay that liability if the bank failed. Furthermore, the depositors who put their money in that bank, and for whose benefit alone this suit is brought, had as their only guarantee in the event of the failure of the bank, the obligation of the shareholders of this bank who now held not stock but Trustees' Certificates to respond to that double liability.

Well, if Your Honor please, the evidence will show that after they organized this trust and combined the National Bank of Kentucky in this method with the Louisville National and Louisville Trust Company, the National Bank of Kentucky was gradually slipping down hill. It is immaterial for this argument or statement of facts I am making whether or not the National Bank of Kentucky was solvent or insolvent in a legal sense; in a factual sense it was going down hill; it was slipping fast; its deposits—how much were they when they started the trust—dropped probably from something like $60,000,000 to something a little over $30,000,000. It was losing deposits rapidly. Furthermore, if the Court please, its asset condition was becoming continually worse. I think the evidence will show here that the amount of money that it was lending to concerns like the Kentucky Wagon Works, Wakefield & Company and Caldwell & Company—loans which proved to be bad—was gradually increasing. I think the evidence will show here that the amount of money that the National Bank of Kentucky was forced to borrow was gradually increased, and I think the evidence will show here that it was unable to maintain its reserves with the Federal Reserve Bank and the amount that it was in default for its reserves was gradually increasing. It could have borrowed money to make good those reserves but its assets which it could have discounted for those loans had all been pledged, so it was required to pay penalties to the Federal Reserve Bank for failure to maintain the reserve required by law. Of course, that Federal Reserve is a requirement for the protection of depositors; they are required—I don't know the exact figures offhand—to have, say, ten per cent—well, the Federal statute covers it, but I think it is ten per cent of certain deposits and three per cent of others. Just what it was at that time will have to be shown to Your Honor by evidence. This reserve is required in order that it may have a liquid condition, so that if a run occurs it will have the resources to pay off the depositors who demand their money, and yet daily its reserve position was getting worse, so that this bank was going down hill, and it went down hill rather rapidly towards the final days, and with that condition staring them in the face, the shareholders of this bank undertook to shake off their double liability on the one hand and unload it on a holding company of their own creation. They undertook to shake off their double liability on the one hand and unload it onto a holding company of their own creation, and on the other hand, while unloading their liability, they held onto every dollar of dividends and profits that came from the bank stock; they kept every benefit of the control of their bank stock while they sought to unload their double liability onto this holding company designed primarily and principally to hold the bank stock, of their own bank stock, and to keep control of their own bank stock, and the Supreme Court of the United States and every Court of Appeals in the country has said that if you hold onto the benefits and you get the dividends and advantages of your investment in bank stock you have to respond to your liability and you cannot say the liability goes on to the holding company whose dividends go into our own pockets, but we will take millions out of the bank in dividends, but if the bank busts, then the depositors can shout for their money because they will have nothing but a busted holding company to look to. That is the law of this land and there wouldn't be a thread of confidence left in a national bank if it wasn't——

The Court: Just confine your statements, Judge, to the facts.

Mr. Marx: Well, that is what they did. Now, how did they do it? They undertook to organize a general corporation under the laws of the State of Delaware, and almost the first article that they wrote into that corporation charter was—these men sitting as bank directors, these men who were the shareholders of that bank, these men who knew that they were subject to double liability, wrote into that article of incorporation "The personal property of the shareholders thereof shall be exempt from the payment of its debts," and then, on top of that, they caused stock certificates in the company to be printed, and put on the face of them "fully paid and non-assessable" and then they said "One of the great advantages now of transferring your Trust Certificates into Banco stock is that you won't have any assessment to pay if the bank fails," and that is their position today.

Now, then, if Your Honor please, in July they organized this Delaware corporation. Who organized it? The shareholders of the bank, of the National Bank of Kentucky, and of the Louisville Trust Company, and the six trustees, and they put up the money to organize it, a $1,000 corporation fee, out of the National Bank of Kentucky, and they sent their lawyer, Mr. Carroll, to Dover, Delaware in order to organize it. He reported back to them that it was done, and then, if the Court please, having done that, they sent out a letter to every shareholder of bank stock—I would like to read that letter to Your Honor.

The Court: That is the same letter that was discussed here on the motion to dismiss, was it not? I am familiar with its contents, having heretofore read it.

Mr. Marx: I won't read it all, then, but I do want to direct Your Honor's attention to certain parts: In the first place, this letter is sent by whom? It is sent by every director of the National Bank of Kentucky and every director of the Louisville Trust Company and every one of the six trustees, and by James B. Brown, President of the National Bank of Kentucky, and by Richard Bean, President of the Louisville Trust Company, as such. I want to stop long enough to say to Your Honor that this—it pertains to some of the defenses that the evidence will show—that this is not like a suit against the directors to recover liability for the mismanagement of their trust, in which event they may plead, say, lack of knowledge and the Court will hold only certain directors who had knowledge and certain officers who had knowledge. A stockholder could himself sue the directors for mismanagement. This is a suit between the depositors only, and they alone can participate in the suit. Against the stockholders on the other side, who chose those officers, James Brown, who signed this, Richard Bean, who signed it, and these directors who signed it, and act as their officers and their agents and their directors in the conduct of the business of this bank, all these allegations with reference to whether an individual director knew or didn't know are wholly immaterial as against the innocent depositor who is suing the corporation and its shareholders to recover what the law provides he shall have. Now, this is addressed to the holders of Trustees' Participation Shares of the National Bank of Kentucky-Louisville Trust Company—to all of them, if the Court please, and it begins "Your Officers and Directors have studied the rapidly changing conditions in the banking business in America, with a view to preparing the two banking institutions under their management, to meet these changed conditions, and to take early advantage of new opportunities presented thereby.

"2. The conclusion unanimously reached, as a result of their deliberations, is that the two banks, and the business conducted by them, should be reorganized by adding to this group a third corporation, which will make the operations of these banking institutions more profitable, expand their facilities, and thus develop for the entire group new and profitable financial opportunities and connections."

Now, I call Your Honor's attention to this reorganization, to the use of this word, because the evidence will show to Your Honor—these gentlemen have asked us to admit and we have denied it, that the BancoKentucky Company —I think Your Honor already knows, although I have omitted it in the statement of facts, that when they organized the BancoKentucky Company they offered to every shareholder in the bank two shares of BancoKentucky Company stock in exchange for one share, for one Trustees' Certificate, and those two shares, they represented, were worth $25 apiece. In other words, they said to the shareholder of the bank, whose share was now represented by a Trustees' Certificate "If you will give us your bank stock in exchange for holding company stock we will give you $50 in holding company stock, two shares of $25 each." Now, mind you, the evidence will show that not a single dollar was ever put up by the BancoKentucky Company for one share of National Bank of Kentucky stock; the BancoKentucky Company never invested a single cent in the National Bank of Kentucky stock; every share of stock it got it got by an exchange of its paper, BancoKentucky Company stock, alleged to be nonassessable, in return for bank stock, which had written on its face that it was assessable.

Now, then, they asked us to admit, and we have denied, that the BancoKentucky Company, by the process of exchanging its paper for the Trust Certificates, became the true and actual owner by sale of the bank stock. Now, Your Honor will observe that under the federal laws as they then stood, if a man purchased his bank stock, say, for $25 and he sold it to BancoKentucky for $50 he made a capital gain of $25, which was taxable income under the revenue laws of the United States, and this proposal was not designed as a sale, but as a reorganization, in order to escape, shall we say, or not, the federal income tax laws.

Now, the facts are that that was what they represented it to be; it was an exchange of one type of paper, representing bank stock, for another type of paper representing bank stock, an exchange of Banco, or as Judge Cochran used to call it "Bunco" shares for Trustees' Certificate Shares. Both were bank stocks, and therefore there was no capital gain, because it was merely the exchange of one form of paper for another form of paper, both of which were identical in the eyes of the law; the only difference was that one was assessable on its face and in the other they undertook to get rid of the assessment. The gentlemen on the other side are in this dilemna: That either they were honestly and seriously doing what their letters say, which we believe, or otherwise they were engaged in a gigantic scheme to cheat and defraud the United States out of hundreds of thousands of justly due income taxes. We don't charge them with any such scheme, but if they say what they got was not in pursuance to a reorganization, that the BancoKentucky Company actually got by sale a good title, and that they lost forever to this corporation their bank stock, then they are liable to the United States Government for those income taxes, which is due, and their plan to simply have a reorganization was a hoax and a fraud, and they cannot hide behind nor shield themselves behind a corporation which was created to defraud the Government of the United States, or which had that effect. So, there are the horns of the dilemma. We charge them with no such fraud; we accept them at their own word and we ask the Court to accept them at their own word, but if they take the other horn of the dilemma, they are equally liable for the assessment, because the law does not allow you to shield yourself behind a corporation which is part of an unlawful scheme.

Now, if Your Honor please, these documents are admitted to be authentic. Mr. Robert F. Vaughan, a distinguished lawyer of this city and a man for whom I personally have a great deal of respect, was attorney for this bank.

He wrote this letter to Mr. James B. Brown, President of the National Bank of Kentucky: "July 9, 1929. Dear Mr. Brown. In re: The BancoKentucky Company"—and he wrote this letter to him, as President of the National Bank of Kentucky, because Banco had not been organized—

> "Supplementing my former letter to you under date of July 6th, on yesterday I had a conversation with a lawyer, representing the Income Tax Unit at Washington, in the General Counsel's Department, who shortly expects to become a member of the firm of Miller and Chevalier, my office associates in Louisville, which firm, as heretofore explained, specializes in Federal Tax cases, with offices in Washington and New York.
> "The gentleman gave as his opinion (without opportunity to study the history of the entire transaction) that it was highly important that every preliminary paper, resolution, etc., dealing with this Company and its organization, should clearly recite that the Company is a 'reorganization,' within the purview of the Revenue Act of 1928.
>
> "In other words, the issue and delivery of two shares of stock of the Company, for one Trustees Participation Share, must be made to appear (so far as the Bank's stockholders are concerned) as a mere receipt of the same property in another form, and not as a closed transaction wherein they part with one species of property in exchange for an entirely different species of property.
> "I believe we can accomplish this result, without in anywise impairing the structure of the setup already agreed upon, by prefacing the prospectus with some general remarks, as per the enclosed draft herewith submitted for your criticism."

And with it was a draft, in substance, of this letter of July 19th. Now, I haven't read it all but there will be a lot of evidence on this income tax subject and there will be a lot of evidence showing that this is what these gentlemen honestly set out to do, exchange one property for another property in the same form and not to close a transaction wherein they parted with one species of property for another, different species of property, but unless they were honest in what they said—and we believe they were sincere in what Mr. Vaughan said, as I believe he was—then, the thing was a scheme to cheat the United States out of more money than, perhaps, is involved in this stock assessment.

Now, when they did that, after that advice, they send this circular out—I have only read, Your Honor, from parts 1 and 2. Here is 3: "Such a reorganization is in line with the trend of business and finance in this country; and the strength and influence of the new corporation will not only greatly benefit the two banks and the territory they now serve, but wil also be a stabilizing influence in banking circles throughout this section of the country. The new corporation can exercise many profitable and important functions which neither a bank nor a trust company has authority to exercise"—proving that these bank directors and stockholders set out, indirectly, to do things forbidden to them by law if they attempted to do them directly—"and can take advantage of many sound and profitable financial opportunities, frequently presented in the course of business of the two banks, but not available to them, because of the restrictions upon their powers and activities.

"4. The following is the Plan of Reorganization agreed upon by the Officers and Directors of the two banks, and approved by formal Resolutions of the Trustees, under the Trustees' Agreement for the National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company.

"5. There has been organized under the laws of the State of Delaware, a corporation known as The Banco-Kentucky Company, with an authorized capital of 2,000,000 shares, having a par value of Ten ($10.00) Dollars each.

The stock will be exchanged or sold, in accordance with this plan, on the basis of Twenty-five ($25.00) Dollars per share, which will give the Company a capital of Twenty Million ($20,000,000.00) Dollars, and a surplus of Thirty Million ($30,000,000.00) Dollars, or a total capital and surplus of Fifty Million ($50,000,000.00) Dollars. No stock will be sold by the Company at less than Twenty-five ($25.00) Dollars per share."

The Court: Does that letter make any reference to a sale of the stock generally?

Mr. Marx: Under the Reorganization Plan yes, and it preempts all the stock for the bank shareholders. In other words, it invites them, as we view it, to increase their investments in bank stock—I will come to that in a minute.

"6. The corporation is given broad charter powers, including the right to acquire stocks, bonds and other securities"—and so forth.

"7. It is an essential part of this reorganization that the shares of this corporation (or at least a substantial majority thereof) be owned by the Trustees' Participation Shareholders, and that it be managed and operated"—by whom, does Your Honor think? It is an essential thing that this new corporation that we are setting up has the majority of its stock owned by the same persons who now own the bank, and that the new corporation be run, managed and operated—this is quoted—"by the Boards of Directors and the officers of the two banks. The Banco-Kentucky Company, therefore, offers to the Trustees' Participation Shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company, through the trustees as agents"—and I call Your Honor's attention to the fact that the trustees are specifically designated to be the agents of the shareholders of the bank who set up this claim—"through the Trustees as agents in the transaction, its entire capital stock, on the bases and subject to the terms and conditions hereinafter set out":

I am emphasizing some of this, Your Honor, because when you come to read the decision in the case of Barbour v. Thomas in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, you will see that it parallels this case as we intend to put the evidence in almost line for line; the scheme there was almost the same as the scheme here, save and except that when they organized the Detroit Bank's Holding Company for the Detroit Bank and other banks, they honestly set out in their Articles of Incorporation that each stockholder would assume his proportionate part of his double liability which necessarily flowed from the ownership of bank stock, but here they set out to escape from that liability. In the Detroit case, the stockholders, when they were asked to make good on their promise, came in and said, "Because we frankly assumed it, we ought not to be held liable, because that means there was no fraud. If we denied our liability, then it would not have been immoral, but it would have been a constructive fraud, because it would have evidenced our intention to escape it." But the Court said there, "Because you were frank and assumed what the law required you to pay is no more reason for you to escape from it than if you had sought to evade it by denying liability as they did in the Metropolitan Holding Company case in the Seventh Circuit Court." They also had a non-assessable stock, and they said, "You can't get out of that," in other words, the Judge said in his opinion the purpose of the bank and trust company stockholders in forming this company was not only to extend the operation of the banks beyond the scope authorized by law under which the banks were organized, but they also deliberately sought to evade the operation of the National Bank Act and avoid liability on the bank stock. Through the Trust Agreement of 1927 the shareholders expressly acknowledged their liability; in the second step involving the reorganization of the bank and trust company and their business, the shareholders deliberately sought to eliminate their individual liability and to defraud depositors and creditors of the bank of the protection contemplated by the statutes, meaning the assessment liability, and we expect to prove just what Judge Sullivan says.

Now, he says the BancoKentucky Company was organized under the general laws of Delaware authorizing it to do any business except banking, and one of its purposes was to engage in speculative enterprises forbidden to banks, and while the bank had apparently a separate existence, it was intended to be and was the agent of the bank, and it was operated by the bank officers. That is what they said in this letter (indicating), that the bank's shareholders were to own the bank, and that the Banco Company was to be operated by the directors and officers of the bank, and through it the bank's shareholders were to engage in general banking, and through it they hoped to defraud the depositors by substituting for the stockholders' personal liability only the bank stock itself.

Now, No. 8 says: "It is an essential part of this Plan that:

(a) On or before September 19, 1929, the holders of the Trustees' Participation Shares must deposit their Certificates with the Trustees for exchange into the shares of The BancoKentucky Company; and for each Participation Share thus deposited, the Trustees will cause to be issued to the holder thereof, Two (2) shares of the stock of the new corporation. In addition thereto the depositing shareholder"—that means the bank shareholder only—"will have the right to subscribe for as many additional shares of the stock of The BancoKentucky Company as he may desire at the price of Twenty-five ($25.00) Dollars per share subject to allotment ratably if over-subscribed.

Trustees' Participation Shareholders who fail to deposit their shares on or before September 19, 1929, will be deemed to have waived their rights to thus exchange their shares and subscribe for stock in the new company, unless the Trustees shall extend the time for deposit and subscription (as they may do in their discretion), in which event the Trustees' Participation Shareholders will be deemed to have waived their rights, unless their shares are deposited within the extended time."

Your Honor will see that they preempted the right of subscription to shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company, and nobody else, until September 19th, could get one share of this stock under this plan.

Now, the evidence will also show that when they sought to induce persons to subscribe for stock of this reorganization, this third company that they were adding to the two banks, that they had in mind that one of its advantages was that you would get out of your stock assessment; so we have Richard Bean, the same Richard Bean the facsimile of whose signature is attached to this letter of July 19th, and one of the organizers, writing a letter over his signature to James B. Brown, the other man a facsimile of whose signature is attached to the letter, and President of the National Bank of Kentucky—the heads of the two banks that were setting up the BancoKentucky Company. This letter is dated July 26th, and reads: "My dear Mr. Brown, before beginning our campaign to get everybody in, I think we will want to send out several letters, because it is utterly impossible for us to handle 1500 people personally.

"I enclose some suggestions, but I have serious doubts about paragraphs 3—6—7."

And well he might have a doubt about including paragraph 7 in any circular broadcast.

"If this general idea appeals to you, please whip it into shape and let me see what it looks like. Very truly yours, Richard Bean, President."

And here is paragraph 7—I might read the beginning; it is on stationery of the Louisville Trust Company and it is addressed "To Our Stockholders:" and says: "Quite a number of our friends are asking questions which doubtless have occurred to others, and we are glad to give this information generally.

"7. Does the 'double liability' apply to BancoKentucky stock as it does to stock in the banks?" Answer: "No; one of the advantages of transferring your bank stock for BancoKentucky Company stock is that you are relieved of the double liability clause which applies under the Kentucky law."

If that had ever been broadcast in that way and had come into the hands of the Federal Government, or if it had been known generally to the depositors of this bank, how it would have shaken, instantaneously, the confidence of those depositors, and yet that was what was in the minds of Mr. Bean and Mr. Brown, as evidenced by this letter. That was in the minds of the stockholders when they bought their stock. As evidence of this, there went out with this letter a so-called subscription, which reads: "Under the Reorganization Plan as outlined in the letter of the Trustees, dated July 19, 1929. To the Trustees of National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company: 1. I hereby deposit with you endorsed in blank and witnessed Trustees' Participation Certificates for an aggregate of ..... Participation Shares of the National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company, in exchange for which you are to cause to be issued to me Two (2) shares of stock of The BancoKentucky Company for each Participation Share herewith deposited, fully paid and non-assessable."

In other words, take my assessable stock and give me back non-assessable bank stock, or an interest in it. Now, I say that it was an interest in bank stock because they said so. He was to get non-assessable shares, not under an outright scheme of sale, but under a reorganization plan, and so he says "cause to be issued to me Two (2) shares of stock of The BancoKentucky Company for each participation share herewith deposited, fully paid and non-assessable, under the terms of the Reorganization Plan as outlined in your letter of July 19, 1929, if, and when and as said Plan shall become effective as therein provided.

"2. In accordance with the privilege given me under said Plan of Reorganization, I hereby subscribe for ..... additional shares of The BancoKentucky Company, at Twenty-five ($25.00) Dollars per share, and agree to pay the purchase price thereof on call of the Company following date said Plan become effective."

Now, if Your Honor please, there were a lot of people who exchanged—ninety-five per cent of them, so that the BancoKentucky Company got, by the process of exchange, and only by that process, ninety-five per cent of the National Bank of Kentucky. The National Bank of Kentucky was at that time represented by, roughly, 570,000 odd shares of Trustees' Certificates, and in exchange there was issued by Banco 1,140,000 shares of BancoKentucky stock certificates.

Now, "(b) The entire Plan of Reorganization and the deposit and subscription privileges and rights hereinabove set out, are all, and each of them is, conditioned expressly upon the acquisition by the Trustees' Participation Shareholders, either by deposit for exchange, or by direct subscription as above, of at least a majority of the shares of the BancoKentucky Company"—in other words, "this Plan is conditioned on the fact that the bank stockholders will own, operate, control and manage this new company we are setting up, and if they don't own, operate and control it, there is no plan." It didn't become effective—it is "further conditioned upon the acquisition by the Banco-Kentucky Company of at least a majority of the Trustees' Participation Shares issued and outstanding as of September 19th, 1929."

The second condition was that the new corporation be managed by the shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky, and this new convenience they were setting up was to be owned by them—they were to own the stock of their bank so they would get the dividends on it. I might cite here that it did have it, and cent for cent the dividends on the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky went into the pockets of the shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky, in exactly the same sum of money as if they had stood of record as the owners of that bank stock on the stock ledger of the bank. In other words, this split-up two for one and the dividend declared on the BancoKentucky Company stock were so devised and arranged that if I was a stockholder and I got $100 as my dividend on National Bank of Kentucky stock, represented by the Participation Shares, I got $100 on my BancoKentucky stock after I had exchanged it. I have a table here, which we will offer in evidence, which shows that quite clearly.

The Court: You mean they made a distinction among the stockholders of BancoKentucky Company between those that had exchanged their Participation Certificates and those that bought theirs in the open market?

Mr. Marx: No, just the opposite: Whether you exchanged or didn't exchange you got exactly the same amount of money in dividends. In other words, my point is that by depositing, exchanging your Trust Certificates for BancoKentucky Company stock you did not give up your dividends or one fraction of a penny of your dividends; you kept them.

The Court: What about the man that bought stock on the open market?

Mr. Marx: I would rather deal with that man somewhat separately, because it is our contention that he bought an interest in that stock.

The Court: Was there any distinction made between him and the man who exchanged his Participation Certificates?

Mr. Marx: No.

The Court: Go ahead.

Mr. Marx: Judge Sullivan dealt with that point, if Your Honor please, in an addenda to his Opinion which said that the entire assets of the holding company consisted of Trustees' Participation Certificates, which in turn represented the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky, and its affiliates, and every one dealing in Banco was bound to know what its assets consisted of. They were, then, bound to know that the statutory liability was imposed upon such stock by statute, and that the Court look through the entire involved financial structure and hold the owners of the stock liable for the statutory assessment. Your Honor, if I am pardoned, dealt with the same thing in a somewhat more extended way in your opinion, and fortified your opinion with a citation of authorities, particularly two cases from the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

We contend that those persons who bought stock in the open market—and they were in the minority—I mean persons who had never owned stock in the National Bank of Kentucky, but just walked in to a broker and bought the stock—knew what it was and that it was bank stock. In the first place, the name "BancoKentucky" challenged their attention that it was bank stock that they were buying.

The Court: My question was not addressed to asking their identity, but I understood you to say there was a table there, and I thought it might be there was something contained in the articles or the by-laws of the corporation which gave in the nature of a preference to dividends, or something of that kind.

Mr. Marx: No, they didn't; the preferred position that they got, that the bank shareholders got, was the guarantee that they would continue to manage, operate and control the BancoKentucky Company through the officers, and directors of their bank, and through the ownership of more than a majority of its shares, and through the preemption of the Banco stock in their favor before the plan started: So, the bank shareholder started out in a preferred position to that extent, but not as to dividends. Now, the table as to dividends will show that on January 2, 1930 the Banco Kentucky Company received from the National Bank of Kentucky and from the Louisville Trust Company, as dividends, $224,620, and disbursed as dividends in the same identical amount to its stockholders on the same day. On April 1, 1930 it got $228,100, and disbursed that amount to its stockholders on the same day; on July 1st it got the same amount and disbursed it to its stockholders on the same day, and on October 1, 1930 the same thing.

The Court: That was the case in every instance where they received stock dividends from the bank? You have read a number of dates: Were they the only dates, or were there others?

Mr. Marx: No, those were the only dates. It was very short lived.

The Court: Those were the only dates on which they received dividends?

Mr. Marx: That is right. Now, then, this letter of July 19th, the organizing letter, says: "9. It is the unanimous recommendation of your Officers, Directors and Trustees of the National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company, that the Trustees' Participation Shareholders immediately deposit their shares under this Reorganization Plan, and that they exercise their right to subscribe to the additional shares of stock of the BancoKentucky Company."

We shall introduce another letter from Mr. Brown in which he said in reality what the bank shareholders are asked to do is to increase their investment in bank stock.

"10. There is enclosed herewith a subscription form covering this transaction, which you are asked to sign at your earliest opportunity and deposit with the Trustees at their office, 421 West Market Street, together with your Certificate or Certificates for Trustees' Participation Shares, endorsed in blank and witnessed. There will be issued to you an interim receipt for the shares deposited which, when the Plan has become effective as above set forth, may be presented for exchange for the permanent certificates of the BancoKentucky Company, in accordance with the Plan of Reorganization."—you don't get the certificates except as part of the reorganization plan; you don't get them as an outright sale.

Now, that plan became effective, as Your Honor knows, and Your Honor also knows that the bank shareholders subscribed some $9,000,000 as an increase in their investment in bank stock, and they subscribed it with the knowledge and the announcement that it was to be used to buy more bank stock in other banks.

Now, we have a lot of evidence which proves, indelibly, irrefragably and indisputably that the purpose and intent of the stockholders and directors of these banks, and the officers of these banks, was to organize the BancoKentucky Company primarily as a bank holding company; it was not to be organized as a general mercantile corporation, although it was organized under general laws, and although its charter powers gave it the right to own all the stock of all the corporations in the United States. Its purpose was to own bank stock, and that purpose was announced to every agency that inquired. We have here the questionnaire of the Federal Reserve Bank on credit and chain banking: "What is your purpose?", and the answer, "To hold the stocks of banks and trust companies." They wanted to register their stock on the Chicago Stock Exchange, and the Chicago Stock Exchange said "What is your purpose?", and they said, "To own and hold bank stock."

Now, if your Honor please, the National Bank of Kentucky was forbidden by Federal law to engage in branch banking; it was forbidden to operate a bank outside of the corporate limits where it was domiciled and chartered. There is a sound policy behind that federal law; it was prohibited from going into partnership with a state bank, which is examined under a different supervisory authority, and subject to different laws, because federal banks are a special depository of the Federal Government, for one thing, and it is prohibited from crossing the state lines and to engage in interstate banking. It is prohibited from engaging in trust business, except as specifically licensed. It has to deposit its monies, a certain percentage of them, in the Federal Reserve Bank as a reserve against runs or other emergencies; it is limited specifically by federal law, and that is what has made the strength of the federal banks in this country and given the people confidence in them. These people undertook to avoid the law, and we can prove it by the records, written records. They set out to do a general banking business—they set out to do indirectly what the law forbade them to do directly, to engage in branch banking. They were not content to go into partnership with a state bank in Louisville, but they wanted to have a chain of banks throughout the country and monopolize banking as far as possible, although the Solicitor General of the United States, Mr. Layman, one of the greatest Solicitor Generals this country has ever known, in a written Opinion, which is recorded—and they could have read it—said that this thing is unlawful, contrary to the public policy of the United States and would inevitably lead to disaster, just as it did lead to disaster. They went ahead anyhow; they went over into Ohio and acquired banks, and towards their dying days they acquired some kind of tenuous interest, which proved to be a will-o'-the-wisp, in a chain of banks in the South.

Now, if Your Honor please, before the $9,000,000 which was subscribed came in they had already pledged it out; they had already contracted to buy the Brighton Bank at Cincinnati; they had already contracted to buy the Pearl Market Bank in Ohio, and subsequently they bought a bank in Covington, one in Newport, one in Ashland, and so on down the line. They bought those banks by an exchange of their own stock and by disbursing the cash they had, so that in a very short time this company, which was avowedly organized as a bank stock holding corporation, owned nothing but bank stock.

Your Honor may say that it had some independent property. In the way of what? It may amuse Your Honor to learn that so far as it was concerned it was no operating company at all; its office, if it had one, was in a drawer in the desk of the cashier of the National Bank of Kentucky. Its books were kept by employees of the National Bank of Kentucky, and it only had skeleton books, three of them, a Ledger, Cash Journal and memorandum book of stock subscriptions. It only had fourteen transactions. It had officers, but it paid them no salaries, and it had no paid employees. It was a holding company for bank stock. Oh, yes, it owned a few other small things—it owned $25,000 worth of stock in the Union Central Life Insurance Company, a business forbidden to banks, and my associate, Judge Wood, reminds me that this corporation, this holding company which had no office, no officers on salary, no employees and not even any independent correspondence files, was not even qualified to do business in the State of Kentucky. Your Honor knows that there are certain laws in the State of Kentucky which require a foreign corporation desiring to engage in business here to pay a certain tax and to file certain reports and to designate an agent for the service of summons. It did none of those things, and was not qualified to do business here.

Now, they owned a few other insubstantial things, but nothing that proved to be of any real value. Their only operations were to buy these banks and hold their stock, and the evidence will show Your Honor here that in absolute defiance of the law against interlocking directorates and in defiance of the law which requires a director of a national bank to take oath that he owns, in his own name, unqualified, unpledged and unassigned, the absolute ownership of ten shares of stock, this holding company proceeded to stick its nominees in all this chain of banks. Why, those nominees did not even get the dividends on the ten shares of stock that stood in their names, and as fast as a bank declared a dividend the BancoKentucky Company wrote the bank directors around the country to send the dividends in to the BancoKentucky Company. They didn't even hold the certificates; they were put in the files of the National Bank of Kentucky and in the desk of its Cashier.

Why, if Your Honor please, theer is a law in the State of Kentucky that forbids a corporation to own—or an individual, I think—more than fifty per cent of the stock of a bank, and yet the BancoKentucky Company proceeded to violate that law with absolute impunity, and to own more than fifty per cent—they owned ninety-five per cent of the National Bank of Kentucky and of the Louisville Trust Company for example—all of which was well known, because it was set forth in this notice that the plan did not go unless that illegal condition came about.

Now, the inevitable results of a bank that was already started downhill—whether solvent or insolvent, it was going downhill in July, 1929 and continued to go downhill during the short year that this bank stock holding company lived—was that within the brief space of one year's time the whole thing folds up. The National Bank of Kentucky fails; the Louisville Trust Company fails; other banks fail, and I might say to Your Honor that before the year's time—in just a few months—this $9,000,000 subscribed as additional investment in bank stock, which they used to buy more bank stock, was gone, but the holding company was borrowing $1,600,000 in New York City. So, it not only was stripped of all tangible assets except bank stock, but it was in debt to the Chemical Bank for $1,600,000, and it pledged as security some of those very bank stocks. It was less than a hollow shell, and so when it busted, or when these banks broke, the very thing that Solicitor General Layman said was bound to happen, the holding company also busted, and its assets were bank stock subject to double liability, so that in a year's time what happened? I have told you all, save and except one thing: In the space of that short year, it is now claimed, the depositors of this bank lost the double liability provided by federal law, and we say that didn't happen.

My partner, Judge Wood, has asked me to call Your Honor's attention to another indisputable, irrefragable, documentary fact, and we expect to show it so overwhelmingly that nobody can deny it: They were going downhill so rapidly at the time of the organization of BancoKentucky, when they tried to shake off this double liability, that they solemnly passed resolutions to get out of the national banking system, so they could escape from the Federal Reserve Bank and escape from the Federal Bank Examiners and escape from the demands of the Comptroller of the Currency that they set their house in order, and they went down to Frankfort and paid $4,000 of the depositors' money to incorporate a state bank called the Bank of Kentucky, and notified the Comptroller of the Currency that they were going into voluntary liquidation, and quit. But, they had obligations to the Federal Reserve Bank, and they could not do business unless their new institution was a member of the Federal Reserve. So, in this very period—the BancoKentucky Company did not start to function until the 15th of October, 1929—in this very period and at that very time when they wrote the Federal Reserve Bank and asked them if they would admit their new bank, the Federal Reserve Bank had written them and sends a letter, I think to Mr. Vaughan and to the Cashier or Vice-President—I don't know who it went to, some officer of the bank, telling them that we can't quit.

Banco began to function October 15th, and this letter is dated October 22nd, and is in reply to a letter from the bank dated October 15th, apparently a coincidence. It is addressed to Mr. Charles F. Jones, National Bank of Kentucky, Louisville, Kentucky. "Dear Mr. Jones: Your attorney, Mr. Robert F. Vaughan, advises us that another stockholders' meeting was held on October 15, 1929, at which it was voted to make the liquidation of the National Bank of Kentucky effective close of business November 15 instead of October 15. He suggested that we make an examination of the Bank within the extended period so that when the transfers are made to the new State bank it will be immediately admitted to membership without interruption of the rediscounting privilege.

"We prefer to defer the examination until the new State bank has received its charter and has taken over such assets and liabilities of the national bank as it is going to have. This will give the management ample opportunity to correct the criticisms contained in the last examination of the national bank as of May 25, 1929. In this connection, I attach a list of the sub-standard assets which we feel should not be taken over by the new State bank."—and that attached list of sub-standard assets is here. It says "Sub-standard assets that apparently should be removed from National Bank of Kentucky, Louisville, Kentucky, based on examination of May 25, 1929 by Chief National Bank Examiner," and the amount of those sub-standard assets which they were asked in June, 1929, just a few days before they organized Banco, to take out of the National Bank of Kentucky totaled $4,023,171.41, and that was more than the entire capital of the National Bank of Kentucky, if Your Honor please. At the very time these men set out to get rid of their stockholders' liability they had been told by the Federal Reserve Bank and the Chief National Bank Examiner that their bank was in such a precarious position that they ought to remove the bad assets and doubtful assets—sub-standard assets, they called them—equal to more than the capital of the bank. No wonder Mr. Bean wrote to Mr. Brown "One of the chief advantages is that you will not be subject to stock assessment if you make the exchange."

The letter goes on: "In the meantime, I suggest that the National Bank of Kentucky make application in behalf of the Bank of Kentucky for membership in the Federal Reserve System if and when the conversion takes place. This could be passed upon by the Federal Reserve Board before November 15, so that if approved there would be no interruption in the membership of the institution.

"I enclose a copy of Form 83a, changed so that application could be made by the National Bank of Kentucky in behalf of the proposed State bank. The resolution embodied therein could be adopted by the Executive Committee provided it has full powers between Board meetings. The application should be accompanied by a copy of the articles of incorporation of the State bank. When it received its charter a copy of it should also be furnished us.

"Of course, if the application is approved it would be done subject to the conditions contained in Regulation H issued by the Federal Reserve Board, Series of 1928, and also upon condition that certain objectionable assets are not taken over by the new institution and other criticisms corrected. Shortly after the new bank opens for business our examiners would make an examination to see that the conditions have been complied with.

"In case you would like to call to discuss the situation in person, we shall be glad to see you at any time.

Yours very truly,

C. M. Stewart.

Asst. Federal Reserve Agent."

Now, Your Honor may wonder what happened to the solemn resolutions to denationalize or liquidate the National Bank of Kentucky. They postponed it from month to month and week to week and finally, unable to remove $4,000,000 worth of sub-standard assets, unable because of the weakened condition of their bank and the criticisms, they rescinded the whole set of resolutions, and on November 15th the Board of Directors of this bank decided they could not go on and voted to close the bank and asked the Comptroller of Currency to liquidate it. The next day the Comptroller of the Currency of the United States found the bank insolvent; and there was no change between that night, when they voted to close, and the next morning, when the Comptroller found it insolvent.

Now, one other word about this new money that went into the BancoKentucky Company by subscription. Apparently the Federal Reserve Board suspected what had happened, because on October 22, 1929 they added a footnote after the $4,000,000 assets they asked to be removed, as follows: "If there is any undue concentration of loans on stock of the new holding company, corporation in which officers and directors are interested, or any other corporations, same should be reduced to within reasonable limits."

The evidence will show Your Honor that when they set out to organize the BancoKentucky Company and to begin this campaign that is referred to in the letters between Mr. Bean and Mr. Brown that the banks undertook to make it possible for this money to go into the holding company to buy more bank stock by making loans on the new holding company stock for the full face value of that stock plus the amount added for surplus; in other words, they loaned $25 on a $10 par certificate issued at a $25 price; and they made many loans on the sole security of that stock, so that at the time the National Bank of Kentucky closed, I think the total of loans on Banco stock, or in which Banco was either sole security or a large part of the security, ran somewhere close to $5,000,000—worthless collateral. And that isn't all; the Louisville Trust Company, the Siamese twin of the National Bank of Kentucky, also made loans totaling $1,700,000, so that means that the money that the holding company got with which to buy bank stock in Cincinnati, Ohio and Newport and other towns came right out of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company, to such an extent, that I think the total loans at one time ran either $7,000,000 or $8,000,000 from the two banks—more than the entire capital of both banks was loaned out on Banco stock and transferred from the banks into the holding company. Hence, the warning of the Federal Reserve Board "If there is any undue concentration of loans on the stock of the new holding company, it should be reduced to reasonable limits."

If I went on I could broaden this, that probably is now already unduly long, but I don't think Your Honor can get this picture unless you hear this evidence in detail, which shows it. I think it should be clear to Your Honor that a holding company for bank stock—the people who own shares of that company own an interest in bank stock; they are the real, substantial or beneficial owners of stock in bank. They get the dividends on the stock in the bank, and when their banks fail they have to respond for their double assessment, and that is true whether they are innocent of any wrongful intent or whether they are guilty of a wrongful intent; the law does not inquire as to your intent when you organize such a company. Broadly stated, although variously expressed, the general ground is that you cannot have the benefits or the profits of bank stock without responding to the liability. You cannot keep the dividends and shake off the liability, and those who are the beneficial owners—what does beneficial mean? Those who get the benefits—they have to respond to the double liability. Another broad ground of liability broadly stated is that you cannot organize a holding corporation for your own bank stock and put that stock in the holding corporation and then shield yourself behind the corporation of your own creation. Now, what Your Honor cannot do as an individual, a thousand people cannot do in the aggregate. If this letter of July 19th had been sent from Tom Jones to Tom Smith, stating "We two fellows are going to organize a company and it is going to own all our bank stock, and we are going to be the Board of Directors; we are going to be the officers," there is not the slightest—there would not be the slightest doubt in Your Honor's mind that they could not shield themselves behind that corporation. That is exactly what one thousand Tom Joneses did here, and the fact that the number of people is large does not make that without the law; and the fact that the people are prominent does not take them without the law, because in a large institution, although the number of stockholders is large, that number is small alongside the thousands who trust their money to the banks as depositors.

There are numerous cases now—five years ago there weren't so many, but now there are legions of them, which state you cannot organize a holding company of your own creation and then shield yourself behind it. Another broad ground of liability, if the Court please, is that you cannot have a corporation as your own convenience or instrumentality, in which you pull the strings, name the officers, name the directors and dictate their movements, and which you control, just like you would control marionettes—you cannot have a corporation as an instrumentality any more than you can have an individual for your agent and escape liability. What you do through this corporate instrumentality the law says you do yourself, fundamentally. Your Honor, you cannot have a corporation—this is another broad ground of liability—you cannot have a corporation which does by circumvention or by indirection or by subterfuge what you cannot do directly. In other words, the law says that when a bank is prohibited from doing certain things—engaging in chain banking or branch banking or owning insurance company stock or making speculative loans—that bank cannot cause a third corporation to be organized and take itself from without the law and do under that third corporation what it could not do under its own name. When men set out to do by circumvention what they are prohibited from doing directly the law disregards the corporate convenience they set up in order to do those things which would otherwise be unlawful, and holds them to the liabilities that the law generally imposes on them. I think it will develop here that there are additional grounds for holding the stockholders.

If the Court please, Judge Wood has called my attention to the fact that I have not stated what I think, however, is implied in what I have stated: That when you set up a holding corporation of this character, in order that it be lawful, you must assume the liability that goes with that stock, and if you set out to evade it or avoid it by denying the liability, the law deems that no matter how innocent your intention, no matter how good your motive, the law says that that denial of assessment liability is an evasion of the federal statute, and the law says the act is a constructive fraud, and that that fraud is committed even though the men who do it are good men, with honest motives. If the effect of their act is to evade or avoid the law, therefore it will be deemed in law a fraud. The best case on that, I think, is the Metropolitan Holding Company, where they didn't want to assume liability and they organized this holding corporation. They chartered it with express powers to do a manufacturing business in addition to all other business. They transferred their bank stocks to it, because they said, "We don't want to increase our interest in bank stock; let this new holding company do it," and the Court said, "the effect of that is constructively fraudulent; you can't do it."

I want to call Your Honor's attention to Judge Hicks' Opinion in Barbour v. Thomas, because that went to the Supreme Court of the United States—particularly the statement of facts. Just as here, there were five independent banks at the outset, in Detroit—here there were three, the Louisville National, the Louisville Trust Company and the National Bank of Kentucky. They organized a holding company, and Judge Hicks says: "1929 was a year of bank consolidations and mergers in Detroit." "In this atmosphere the idea of the formation of the Detroit Bankers Company herein called the 'holding company' was born. It was nurtured by the soaring market price of the stock of the two older companies and by notions of business expedience." And here these stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky—their Trustees' Participation Certificates were soaring in the market; their original investment in bank stock had been small but the market price had increased—"It was thought that smaller independent banks were at a disadvantage in competing for the business of large concerns with huge monetary requirements. To continue to exist, these banks had to have business and to obtain it they had to operate as a unit large enough to meet the demands. The organizers were also impressed with the possibilities of more economical control and operation of grouped units through the elimination of duplicating facilities. Certain of their officers and stockholders believed it would be beneficial to organize a corporation under the general corporation law of the state of Michigan to acquire the stock of each of them. Committees were formed, meetings were held and a plan was formulated." And exactly that occurred here. "The purpose of this new corporation was stated in its articles of association as follows"—they are a little shorter than those set out here, but they are broad. "Under the Michigan statute there was nothing per se illegal in the organization of the holding company for such a purpose.

"It was not difficult for the organizing committee, consisting of two representatives from each of the units, to persuade the boards of directors to endorse the project and the stockholders later to acquiesce therein." Exactly what was done here. "The five boards met separately on September 27, 1929, and recommended the plan to the stockholders"—same here. It called for the same capital as here and the proposed dividend rate was set at 17 per cent, or $3.40 per share, which was slightly in excess of the rate then paid on an equal value of the bank shares. Here they didn't increase the dividend rate but kept it exactly the same.

"On September 27th and 28th, 1929 the organizers announced through the newspapers that the new group would be one of the strongest institutions in the country, with a capital, surplus, and undivided profits of around $90,000,000, and resources of over $725,000,000." The same thing, we will show, happened here; all over Kentucky and the United States, particularly where the stock was sold.

"On October 5, 1929, a joint letter was sent by the officers of the five banks to their stockholders, describing the proposed agreement and recommending the exchange of their stock for that of the holding company, and the signing of the agreement and of a power of attorney to a named committee to put the scheme into effect." Exactly as was done in this case. The Committee was to consist of the directors and President of the bank. "The plan was to become effective," so Judge Hicks says, "as soon as two-thirds in amount of the stock of the united was deposited for exchange." Here the plan was to become effective when a majority was deposited. "More than 97 per cent of the stockholders signed the agreement"—we will show that more than 95 per cent signed, 2 per cent less than in Detroit. "This instrument designated the 'committee' as the agent and attorney of all the stockholders signing it." Here the instrument designated the trustees as agents of the stockholders. "It authorized the committee to organize the holding company for the initial purpose of acquiring the shares of the five several banks." We will show the purpose here to acquire the shares of the Louisville Trust Company, the National Bank of Kentucky, the Pearl Market Bank and two banks across the river--there were six banks, instead of five, here. It provided that the trustees' shares which they had here should not participate in the dividends, and these six trustees did not participate personally in getting any dividend. It provided that only persons holding trustees' shares should be elected directors, and upon the removal of a director or his death, his shares should be surrendered and his successor elected from the unit company which he represented. This was subsequently modified to permit an increase in the directors. We will show that although the Louisville plan was, in its mechanics, slightly different, in substance it was the same as the plan in Detroit with reference to directors.

Then it says: "During its existence the holding company, as authorized by its charter, exchanged its stock for the stock of other banks in and around Detroit and thereafter many of these banks were consolidated with others of the group. Because of its position as the sole stockholder of record of these many institutions, the holding company prior to each annual meeting listed the persons it wished elected to the various boards." And here the BancoKentucky Company told the trustees who it wanted elected as directors. "There was never any doubt that the holding company's slate would be elected. The holding company would issue to newly elected directors qualifying shares of stock but by an agreement with the directors these shares remained the property of the holding company upon which it received dividends." And to a large extent that precise plan was followed by the BancoKentucky Company.

The dividends on the holding company stock were paid out of dividends received from the bank, and "to meet them the directors of the holding company would suggest to the various units the amount each would be expected to pay and with that exception these recommendations were followed by the directors of the individual units, some of whom were always holding company directors." That was not necessary here; the Board of Directors of the Banco-Kentucky Company was the Board of Directors of the bank.

They just told the bank how much money they were to be allowed for expenses each month, and supervised them in other ways. The holding company bought an interest in other banks for $7,200,000, and then the holding company borrowed money in New York to liquidate this indebtedness and made repayments from dividends received from the bank, just like this holding company paid out its money to buy banks and borrowed money in New York on those bank stocks.

"Since the holding company had no substantial assets except the stock of its units, it was manifest that the creditors and depositors of the component banks were afforded no real protection either under the federal statute providing for double liability of shareholders or under a statute of the state of Michigan with similar provisions. This was a matter of vital importance not only to the holding company and the banks, but to the public." So, in Detroit they would not let them function in this way until they assumed such double liability, but Delaware had no such restrictions and had no Attorney General who inquired into it. He didn't notify the State of Kentucky and he didn't require it to put on the certificates that you will pay your proportion of the double liability.

The Receiver of that bank, it recites here that the assessment was levied on the shares of stock of the First National Bank, of which the holding company was the record owner, but the holding company, just like this holding company, when its biggest unit failed—public confidence was gone and the holding company was busted and could not pay the double assessment, because it had no assets—no substantial assets independent of bank stock out of which to pay it. It is quite different when the United States Steel Company buys a few shares of bank stock; it has millions of dollars of assets with which to respond to a double assessment, and its principal business is not that of a holding company of bank stock.

Receiver Thomas announced his intention of collecting about $14 a share from the shareholders of the holding company. Each share represented the ownership of .14055 shares of the First National Bank-Detroit stock. Here the assessment is only $2 something per share.

Then he states here—it is very interesting, and I would like to challenge Your Honor's attention to it—the defenses there—they are too long to read now, but Your Honor will find the defenses set up in Detroit are very similar to the defenses set up in numerous answers here. In Detroit the Comptroller of the Currency himself closed the bank after the Detroit bank holiday. Of course, here the Board of Directors of this bank closed it themselves. They set up there that the Comptroller of the Currency made the bank insolvent. The Court struck them all out; they were not defenses to a stock assessment. It was urged that this was error. Judge Hicks says: "We cannot yield to this insistence. These averments and the evidence offered to sustain them could not have been put in issue here. They constitute a purely collateral attack upon the action of the Comptroller (not a party litigant) in declaring the bank insolvent, and upon his judgment as to the necessity for the assessments and the amount thereof. His determination of these matters was conclusive." And then he cites a long list of cases.

Now, I want to point out in this case that the Comptroller of the Currency is not a party to this case. The Receiver, under the federal law, is the officer of the United States and represents, in this action, the Government in its endeavor to recoup for the depositors their losses, and in this action there can be no attack of any kind on the order of the Comptroller of the Currency. If he were himself a party his action could be directly attacked, on the ground that he was guilty of fraud in levying the assessment, let's say, if that is the charge, or that his finding of insolvency was a fraudulent finding. But, he is not a party and no such attack has ever been made upon him here or any other place, and in this action, in which an officer of the United States is enforcing the federal law, there can be no collateral attack on the Comptroller of the Currency. Therefore, we have refused to admit that this bank was not insolvent, as they have requested, because in an action between the depositors and the shareholders that issue is foreclosed, and we shall contend, at the proper time and place, that Your Honor would be in error receiving any evidence contradicting that ruling.

"Appellants concede the widely adjudicated immunity of the Comptroller from collateral attack on the wisdom of his determination of insolvency, etc., but their argument is that the statute (section 191 supra) should have no application where insolvency was caused by unwarranted interference and control of governmental agencies and where the circumstances were so extraordinary as not to have been anticipated.

"We are not in accord with appellants' contention."

It says here that the liability of the stockholder of the National Bank of Kentucky does not depend upon judicial determination "whether the banking holidays were well advised, whether the conservator discreetly managed the assets, or whether crucial and unforeseen circumstances led to insolvency. His obligation is fixed by statute. When he subscribes for his stock he agrees to be 'responsible for all contracts, debts and engagements of association, each to the amount of his stock therein, at the par value thereof, in addition to the amount invested in such stock.' Upon the insolvency of the bank he agrees to discharge his obligation in such amounts and in such manner as shall be determined by the Comptroller. The statute admits of no exception and we can make none. Creditors and depositors have a right to expect that it will be observed and complied with as it is written.

"The Congress probably did not forsee the cataclysmic conditions existing in and around Detroit in the early part of 1929, but we see no logic in, nor necessity for, abrogating the statute simply because the circumstances were unusual. On the other hand, it seems to us that the more unparalleled the situation, the greater the need for depositors' protection."

Now, then, they say all this as "proceeded upon the assumption that appellants were stockholders of the bank. They insist that they were not, that they had exchanged their certificates for those of the holding company, the stockholder of record. Ninety-one and three-tenths per cent of appellants were signers of the 'Agreement and Power' and owners of their holding company stock by original exchange, one-half of one per cent obtained their stock in exchange for the stock of others of subsequently acquired institutions. The remainder obtained their certificates in other ways." The other ways, if Your Honor please, was purchased in the open market. The Detroit Bankers Company stock was freely traded in up to the day it closed in 1933; this institution here only lived a year, and the one in Detroit lived three years.

Then Judge Hicks says: "But the Statute does not restrict liability for assessments to stockholders of record or to those holding certificates. Congress wisely declined to limit the term 'stockholders.' It recognized that bank stock is capable of ownership without any certificate therefor having been either issued, recorded, or delivered; and, further, that stock might be owned by one person and the certificate registered in the name of another. It has been uniformly and wisely held that the actual owners of the capital of a national bank, that is, those who have their money invested therein, are 'shareholders' and liable to assessment."

The evidence will show that the only persons who invested money in the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky are the people we are suing in this case; there is nobody else. The BancoKentucky Corporation—the holding corporation—never invested a single, solitary cent in the National Bank of Kentucky. The test is "Who invested their money in the national bank stock?" "The law fixes the obligation upon those who profit from the confidence of the depositors and from the use of their money."

The Court: You are pretty far afield along that line. Let's conclude your statement, Judge.

Mr. Marx: I want to show Your Honor the applicability——

The Court: I understand, you are trying to parallel that case to this one, but I think some of those questions might be raised on questions of evidence.

Mr. Marx: Well, I think Your Honor is undoubtedly correct about that, but Your Honor suggested something that caused me to go into this. That was the fact that Your Honor thought perhaps the evidence ought to be circumscribed, and I just wanted to point out that the evidence we are going to offer will follow the evidence that we did offer and that the Court held applicable in the Barbour v. Thomas case.

OPENING STATEMENT OF MR. ALLEN P. DODD, ON BEHALF OF DEFENDANTS

If the Court please, I shall undertake to confine myself to the issues that we are called upon to try, an outline of the facts, and the position of counsel for defendants to those facts, in order that Your Honor may have in advance the position of the defendant. The basis for this lawsuit is a statute. In other words, there would be no lawsuit here against the stockholders, whatever company they held stock in, unless there was a statutory right for a double assessment, and in order, therefore, that we may clearly define the issue at the outset, I want to read the statute, as it presents the issue as I see it. I think it well to get back to fundamental principles at the start. "The stockholders of every national banking association shall be held individually responsible for all contracts, debts and engagements of such association, each to the amount of his stock therein at the par value thereof in addition to the amount invested in such stock. The stockholders in any national bank who shall have transferred their shares or registered the transfer thereof within sixty days next before the date of the failure of such association to meet its obligations, or with knowledge of such impending failure, shall be liable to the same extent as if they had made no such transfer." The statute then proceeds further, but I don't think it material to the issue.

In applying that statute to this case and applying the facts, even as conceded by our opponents, all of this stock—and, by the way, we are talking about National Bank of Kentucky stock—all of it was transferred by all of these defendants more than a year before the National Bank of Kentucky failed, and therefore, if the plaintiff is entitled to recover it comes under the second provision, and that is, if they sold this stock or transferred it with knowledge of impending failure.

Now, what are the major issues you are called on to decide? First, did these stockholders have knowledge of the impending failure of the National Bank of Kentucky—that is secondary—primarily "Was the National Bank of Kentucky insolvent and was its failure impending at the time they transferred their stock?" In other words, the insolvency of the bank. Now, the second proposition presented by the bill is: Did they sell their stock or transfer it to the BancoKentucky Company for the purpose of avoiding double liability—knowing its failure, did they transfer to avoid double liability? Now, third: Was the BancoKentucky Company as organized a bona fide corporation, capable of accepting the transfer, and did it accept the transfer of this stock at the time our opponents speak of?

Now, those are the three things you are called on to decide, and the burden is on the plaintiff to establish those three fundamental facts.

Now comes the proposition of inquiring as to who are the parties here—let's discuss that just a moment: Who are the parties to this lawsuit? There are some 3,200 of them here sued in this jurisdiction as stockholders of the BancoKentucky Company, and various suits are filed in every jurisdiction in this immediate locality against stockholders of the BancoKentucky Company. Now, those are the parties and those are the issues that you are going to be called on to decide. Now, let's trace, as briefly as we can, without any opinion of myself as to the effect of any facts that I may state, or any argument as to the position of the people who were acting parties at the time—trace this situation from—I will accept the date of opposing counsel—the making of the Trustees' Agreement, if you please, April 22, 1927, down to the BancoKentucky Company or its formation first.

Now, this Trust Agreement of April 22, 1927, was entered into between the stockholders of the Louisville Trust Company and of the National Bank of Kentucky. Ultimately all of the stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky deposited their stock under that Trust Agreement, and all of the stock of the Louisville Trust Company, except five shares, was deposited under that agreement. Now, that agreement, as the facts will show, was entered into and before it was completed, was submitted to the Federal Reserve Bank in St. Louis, and to the Comptroller's Office at Washington, and all of its terms were looked into and approved by everyone that came in contact with this proposition, on the proposition as to whether or not any director qualifying, in the light of that agreement, was violating the interlocking directorate provision of the United States statute, and the Federal Reserve System at St. Louis and the Comptroller's Office at Washington approved it.

Now, then, not only that, but the National Bank of Kentucky at the time of this unification had a capital stock of $2,500,000 and the Louisville Trust Company had a capital stock of $1,000,000. The unification was on the basis of three things: Asset value of the stock; earning capacity of the stock; and dividends to be paid. The stockholders, represented by the directors at the time, never left it to their own judgment as to the asset value of the banks at that time; Humphrey Robinson of this city had been a clearing house examiner for years, so the asset value of the two banks was fixed by him; he fixed that asset value at $7,289,316 for the Bank of Kentucky, and of the Louisville Trust Company it was approximately $1,800,000. Therefore, the asset value of the Bank of Kentucky was four times that of the Louisville Trust Company. It became necessary, in order to work out the agreement, that the capital stock of the National Bank of Kentucky be increased to four times that of the Louisville Trust Company. It had a capital of $2,500,000 and a surplus of $2,500,000 and undivided profits of over $1,000,000. Of course, it had to get the Comptroller's consent; that was submitted to the Comptroller and a dividend was declared, by consent of the Comptroller, of sixty per cent, making its capital $4,000,000, and the Louisville Trust Company's capital of $1,000,000, making a total of $5,000;000 of capital that went into this trust estate, and the trustees authorized the issue of Trustees' Participating Receipts, 50,000 shares.

Now, let's devote a moment to the position of the directors. Under the terms of this Trust Agreement there was approved by these different agencies whose duty it was to supervise it—under the terms of that agreement a stockholder signing and depositing his stock automatically transferred his stock to the trustees. A director had the right to have the trustees, under the terms of the instrument, to, in lieu of his stock deposited issued to him, out of his own stock, if you please, ten qualifying shares. That was under the terms of the Trust Agreement, so that his ten qualifying shares that belonged to him would be free and clear and meet all the terms of the statute as to the ownership of qualifying shares of a bank. The facts will show that Judge Alexander Humphrey and Mr. Kennedy Helm drew that Trust Agreement. Judge Humphrey—one of the last things of his lifetime was to carefully provide that the stock that went to the directors to qualify them in these two institutions remained free and clear from any claims of any sort, and that that condition continued, it isn't worth while to refer to it again, down to the close of the bank. The dividends were paid direct to them down to the close of the bank, and they responded in double liability later on.

These trustees received dividends of the banks and distributed them to the holders of the Trustees' Participation Shares. They were under the supervision of an Advisory Committee made up of the directors of these two banks.

In order that you may fully understand the work of that committee, I will give you my own personal experience there on that Board. I had twenty shares of stock of the Louisville Trust Company. I deposited that twenty shares of stock with the trustees and they immediately issued back to me ten shares of stock of the Louisville Trust Company and ten shares of stock of the National Bank of Kentucky. In order that that stock might continue to be free, and in order that the man depositing, like myself, would continue to adhere to the terms of that Trust Agreement, it was provided that if I resigned or if I died or if my stock was attached, it was provided that that stock would go back to the trustees and participating shares would go to the estate, or to me, if I resigned, or to my creditors if it were attached. In other words, it was free stock. That stock was kept in a box in the Louisville Trust Building in the names of the directors and under their control.

Now, let's take the Trust Agreement down to the next step: Under the original agreement, the Bank of Kentucky contributed to the trust estate eighty per cent, or $4,000,000 capital, and the Louisville Trust Company twenty per cent, or $1,000,000 capital. In January, 1929, the Louisville National Bank & Trust Company, another very old institution of this city, came into the group. It was merged into the Louisville Trust Company by the Louisville Trust Company increasing its capital from $1,000,000 to $1,750,000. The independent group owning $750,000 worth of the stock of the Louisville National Bank & Trust Company unanimously approved the merger and surrendered the charter the comptroller had issued to it. That brought the trust estate up to $5,750,000, lacking five shares of the Louisville Trust Company stock.

Now, again, the Louisville National Bank & Trust Company was a national bank, and its directors, also, of course, had submitted again to the Comptroller's Office the plan of denationalization and its entry into this group. I want to call Your Honor's attention again that when the Louisville Trust Company, which was not a national bank, sent its representatives to the Comptroller's Office along with the representatives of the National Bank of Kentucky to the Comptroller of the Currency—those representatives of the Louisville Trust Company being Judge Stites and Kennedy Helm, the Comptroller . the Currency took time to congratulate this group for its affiliation with this splendid bank, the National Bank of Kentucky, and again, in 1929, just a little over a year before the closing of the bank, the same Comptroller's Office through its representative, took occasion—there was no necessity for it, for approving what had already been done—to congratulate Mr. Bean for the splendid affiliation of this splendid group, the Louisville Trust Company and this splendid National Bank.

The trust estate was $5,750,000. Shortly after that it was conceived, and by agreement the par value of the stock—the stock at that time was $100 par—they reduced the par to $10. They reduced it to $10, so the trust estate, represented by the Trustees' Participating Certificates, was authorized to issue 575,000 shares of $10 each. In February and March and April of 1929 the BancoKentucky Company was discussed—the formation of the company, to do and perform certain things that have been gone into. I want to tell Your Honor the facts as they occurred at the time. A man's conduct should be governed by his conduct then, his intentions, as it appears then, and the proof that will come on this witness stand will so advise you.

The Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company, as they then existed, believed, and I mean by that their directors, that there was a field in the Ohio Valley for the underwriting of securities. The investment banking business had grown from 1920 through the prosperity of this country to 1929 to where every banking institution had some kind of affiliates to accompany it, the affiliates engaging in perfectly legitimate business of buying and selling bonds, but no company in this community was going into the business of underwriting securities. To illustrate it briefly, here was the bridge out here, with bridge bonds of $5,000,000 issued just before this, and underwritten by a concern in Cleveland that made a huge underwriter's profit, and the Gas Company and electric companies and various industries who were depositors of the National Bank of Kentucky, some of whom were represented on the Board and found it difficult, due to their requirements, to get sufficient capital to carry on their business. The directors thought that this company could possibly do that. The business of selling first mortgage bonds in this community had not at that time, and was not believed to be even touched. The National Bank of Kentucky was the depository of some 300 country banks, and its depositors were asking for first mortgage bonds, and it could not supply the bonds. The Louisville Trust Company was issuing first mortgage bonds, but it could not supply the market. Both institutions were coming across many people's orders for thousands and thousands of different bonds. It was conceived by the Directors at the Bank of Kentucky that this company could originate mortgages, and that there were large profits to be made by it. It was conceived also that title insurance was a business that was profitable at the time, and that this company could go into that field, and that went so far that Mr. Hugh Fleece who was President of the Bankers Trust Company at that time, gave up his position in order to take a position with the BancoKentucky Company in order to form and work out plans during the organization of BancoKentucky to make a set-up that it might get into the business. In this effort to get an avenue for business for profit that neither bank could do, the Banco-Kentucky Company could furnish that business. It would be interested in or have banks in Ohio. It could place business along that line. It was an underwriter. It could place the business of first mortgage bonds that was well developed at the time. None of that could be done by the banks.

Thus, negotiations started in February, March, April, May and June, and every feature of that business was argued out by the directors in its meetings immediately after the business of the bank of Kentucky was attended to. That was a company, an affiliate of these companies to be formed to meet this competition referred to by Judge Hicks as the prevalent competition that was confronting these two institutions at this time from the East, New York, Chicago. It was a question of meeting that to survive, to meet and conquer and get a part of that business, to exist. Of course, these matters were discussed by the members of the Board of Directors of the National Bank of Kentucky. The BancoKentucky Company was to furnish a service that neither of these two banks could furnish; it was to originate bonds and underwrite them—I am telling you the facts. It came up finally after the Board of Directors of the Bank of Kentucky came to the conclusion in June that the prospective company and the business it would perform would be helpful to the bank. They passed a resolution and placed it on the minutes, and Mr. Brown was authorized to go ahead. Now, the capital structure they had in mind—and there wasn't a thing done that wasn't thought out over weeks of time—was 2,000,000 shares with a par value of $10 and paid in value of $25, or a total capital structure of $50,000,000. It was conceived by the directors that they would get in exchange for Banco-Kentucky stock at least a majority of the Trustees' Participating Receipts of $10 each, and that was the condition upon which the projection of this company was made dependent, and they set aside—the plan was to set aside to make the exchange 750,000 shares of BancoKentucky Company for not less than 350,000 shares of Trustees' Participation Certificates. I am telling you what actually happened. That would dispose of 700,000 shares of their stock with the control of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company. Then, they would have 1,300,000 shares for sale, and I want you to bear those figures in mind, that when this company was launched, fully launched, according to the plans, it would have control of these two institutions and more than $30,000,000 of backlog. I want to say to you that but for that backlog of $30,000,000 this company would never have been formed or proposed. The July 19th letter—take its terms, and all of them comply with the schedule of what had been discussed throughout these meetings. It was sent out to the Trustees' Participation Receiptholders and September 19th was fixed as the last day for the deposit of subscriptions. On September 20th, 1929, a meeting of the directors of the National Bank of Kentucky—the BancoKentucky Company, was held.

Now, let's go back: Much was said about the organization of Banco and the procuring of the charter by counsel for plaintiff. That charter was written and carried by Mr. Carroll, who happened to be in New York—happened to be going to New York on his vacation—he went to Dover and filed the charter and got a certified copy of it and mailed it back to Mr. C. F. Jones, one of the Trusted Officers of the Bank of Kentucky, and one of the officers to be in this company. They said the charter failed to comply with Section 571 of the Kentucky Statutes. Mr. Carroll wrote out a statement to be filed with the Secretary of State, had it prepared and sent it to Mr. Jones with directions that it be filed, and to pay $1 at Frankfort, but that wasn't done.

Another matter that was not done before the September 20th meeting, I should have stated—September 19th being the closing date: The Commonwealth of Kentucky had, since at least prior to 1849, owned stock in the National Bank of Kentucky. In 1927 it exchanged that stock for the Trustees' Participation Receipts, and as I remember had 760 shares of the Trustees' Participation Receipts with a par value of $100. It further exchanged those Participation Receipts for the $10 par shares, and it got this notice; the July, 1929, letter came to it, and Mr. Carroll, Mr. Bean and Mr. Helm went before the Board of Education for the State of Kentucky and there met Judge Cammack in that Board and the whole plan was explained to them, as the testimony will show, and the chief law enforcing agency of the State of Kentucky was present and approved the plan, so far as he could approve. The only reason why that stock was not exchanged for Banco was because the Attorney-General conceived it, under 184 and 185 of the Statutes, necessary to have an enabling act to exchange that. Mr. Helm will be on the witness stand and will tell you about that and will give you the reaction of the Attorney-General about that.

In other words, I want to call your attention to the fact that from the time Banco was conceived and the letter was sent out down to September 20th and afterwards too, and I am pointing your attention to that now, publicity of every kind and character was given to every step. The letter was published. There have been introduced as exhibits here paper after paper showing the outline of this; they are in the record.

Now, September 20th was an important meeting for the BancoKentucky Company. The moment it was organized it had a Board of Directors meeting and the minutes were recorded. The reason it did not meet September 19th, 1929, was because September 19th was the closing date for subscriptions. That meeting had a report from its President, Mr. James B. Brown—its Secretary, Mr. Tom ZurSchmiede, and instead of having deposited for exchange a majority of the Trustees' Participation Receipts there were 520,000 shares of 575,000 Trustees' Participation Receipts Deposited, and it was reported at that meeting by those officers that 600,000 shares had been subscribed for at $25 a share, and in view of the fact that so many Trustees' Participation Receipts were deposited, and there was a great indication that more wanted to exchange, they set aside 1,150,000 shares, and adding 600,000 to that made it 1,750,000, and they only had 250,000 shares left, and asked for authority to sell them through an underwriting company. Now, what else did BancoKentucky Company do? It made a call for subscriptions and listed the stock on the Chicago Exchange and Louisville Exchange, because it was organized and a company on its way from September 20th. Mr. ZurSchmiede listed the stock on the Chicago Exchange under the resolution of the Board. Mr. Brown, the President of that company, after reciting the facts with reference to the subscription said to them, "Our plan can't go through with this limitation; too much of this stock has been taken up in the exchange and we must have more stock to have the backlog of $30,000,000." A plan was set in motion—discussed very quickly and set in motion to increase that capital from 2,000,000 shares to 5,000,000. What became of those directors at that meeting? Those directors had reason to believe and did believe—I was one of them—that that company would have 21,250,000 in cash as quick as the subscriptions were collected.

Now, loans on Banco stock: There hasn't been a syllable of proof ever produced from any responsible source that the Directors of the Louisville Trust Company or of the National Bank of Kentucky ever made the proposition or ever did loan the face amount of BancoKentucky stock on the security of BancoKentucky stock alone. They made many loans for the exact purchase price of the stock, and I want to stop there a moment and call your attention to some other issues of the law. They have proposed to file here a list of loans on Banco by the Bank of Kentucky, and a list of loans on Banco by the Louisville Trust Company. That same thing was made an issue in the suit against the Bank Directors, on the same ground, and after weeks and weeks of trial—and that is one of the points I believe Your Honor can shorten this case—the Master found—what did he find? On the original hearing Judge Dennison, designated by the Circuit Court of Appeals—and this is a fact in that record—as to the Banco loans, made the ruling that the solvency of the maker plus the collateral was a basis for holding the directors not liable. Judge Sandidge held the loans on Banco stock were legal. Judge Sandidge, the Master Commissioner, held that these loans were all legal on the contention and on the issue raised, that the loaning of money on Banco stock was loaning money on Bank of Kentucky stock, the same issue that we have got here, and therefore, violative of another section of the United States Statutes. That case reached the Circuit Court of Appeals and Judge Simons delivered the opinion, and he sustained the Master on that issue and that opinion stands now. I will read it before I get through——

The Court: Do you mean in the Directors' suit?

Mr. Dodd: Yes.

The Court: The same case that went to the Supreme Court?

Mr. Dodd: It went to the Supreme Court on a question of negligence, not violation of statutes.

The Court: It was sent back to determine the question of common law negligence.

Mr. Dodd: That is right.

The Court: Was it in there that they sent it back on that point?

Mr. Dodd: Yes.

The Court: Is that a final determination?

Mr. Dodd: I am satisfied it is. I was present when the argument was made in the Circuit Court of Appeals on the rehearing for negligence, and the attorneys for the Receiver—they were shut off at once on the ground that they were hearing another matter. That opinion stands; it is a further inquiry into the question of negligence that the Court is engaged in now, and that finding, however, concurred in by the Circuit Court of Appeals, now stands. I have got a reference here to show it.

Mr. Marx: I don't want to interrupt, but I don't think that is a correct statement; the Supreme Court reversed the appeal and has granted certiorari in the case and has taken jurisdiction. They have only sent that other back on the ground of common law negligence.

The Court: I have gained the impression that they stated they would not take only part of the case.

Mr. Dodd: They reversed it.

The Court: When it goes to the Supreme Court, after the questions now before the Circuit Court of Appeals are decided, it will then have all questions before it.

Mr. Dodd: There will have to be another petition. I will read it—I have it right here: "October 18, 1937. The Court is of the opinion that the Circuit Court of Appeals was in error in ruling that, in the absence of a cross-appeal, the question of whether common law liability for negligence would support the decree was not before the court for review. The decree of the Circuit Court of Appeals is reversed and the cause is remanded to that court for the determination of that question."

The Court: Then it will go back to the Supreme Court for determination of all questions.

Mr. Dodd: When another certiorari is granted.

The Court: It doesn't automatically go back?

Mr. Dodd: No; that is the point I make.

Now, following September 19th a call was made for the payment of stock subscriptions and there will come before Your Honor the total amount of stock subscribed, the total number of stockholders at that time. In fact, on the first day of October following there were 2,446 people that owned Trustees' Participating Receipts of the Louisville Trust Company—National Bank of Kentucky as it then existed. When you go to count the large number of names and undertake to add them up—I have a list of them here—and ascertaining the exact number of shareholders, you find yourself differing with other people, adding up two shares here and a few there, so in order that Your Honor might know exactly how many shareholders the BancoKentucky Company had after the subscription, we undertook to trace it as best we could, and that was to get the dividend record of the BancoKentucky Company, of dividends it had paid, and the nearest date was January 1, 1930, which was three months after this corporation was organized. On that date there were 5,670 shareholders of the BancoKentucky Company. In other words, there were investors of some character that came into this organization and paying for this stock to the number of 3,226.

Now, let's trace some of the buyers of that stock—in volume only, based upon these figures on the adding machine. We are going to trace the fraud or motives, and let's take the directors first. Mr. Marx said, very correctly, that he is not interested in that case, that he is suing the stockholders and not the directors. The directors of this corporation owned, at the time of the transfer of stock, which was October 1, 1929, 71,757.5 shares with a par value of $717,575. They exchanged this 71,000 shares for 142,000 shares of Banco stock. Now, they went out on the market and bought 53,920 shares for which they paid $1,348,000. There was a double liability on all the Trustees' Participating Receipts they owned of $717,000. If they were undertaking to avoid—the point I am making is that they put up $1,348,000 in order to avoid a total double liability of $717,515. If Your Honor please, I want now to become the candidate for the prize boob of the whole lot, if I was trying to evade something or other in that group, and I am talking from experience. I didn't deposit—and many others didn't—I didn't deposit a share for exchange; I only had 20 shares, as my qualifying shares, and I bought and paid for $20,000 worth at $25 a share. I never exchanged a share. January 1st, when I went off the Board of Directors of the National Bank of Kentucky, then I got 10 shares of Trustees' Participating Receipts, of which I transferred five of them and exchanged five and got one hundred shares of BancoKentucky, and I show up on the record with 900 shares. In other words, I put up $20,000 to avoid a thousand, because I had my other and I had to pay for that when the banks closed.

Let's go one step farther. Of course, the double liability the directors had at that time was $717,000 on both banks. We are talking about the Bank of Kentucky, and as he has told you 70 per cent of that was on the Bank of Kentucky. Seventy per cent of that is $502,000—I don't guarantee these figures, because I added them up, but they are not very far from right. $502,300 was what we were trying to avoid and we put up $1,348,000. Take the whole group together, and my addition in figures—and by the way, if Your Honor please, I want to warn you of this fact, that when they bring their auditors in here with their sharpened pencils they will disagree; they will disagree with me and with each other, but this is approximately right. The Trustees' Participation Receipt holders altogether, bank directors and all, bought and paid for 191,100 shares of this stock, and put up $4,777,500 for it. Now, the double liability of the Bank of Kentucky altogether was only $4,000,000.

Now, then, when it came down to count up for this statement of January 1st, this period ending December 31st, it turned out that instead of 600,000 shares being purchased, as reported, for cash, by Mr. Brown, there was actually purchased for cash 394,000 shares at a total price—the BancoKentucky Company got the money—of $9,862,000, a little less than $10,000,000. Of that, over 200,000 shares were paid for by people who never had a share of stock of the National Bank of Kentucky or Louisville Trust Company, or of the Trustees' Participating Receipts.

The Court: How much was it?

Mr. Dodd: Over 200,000 shares, at $25 a share. Now, there was $9,862,000 paid in in cash as subscriptions. The Trustees' Participating Receiptholders put up $4,000,000. Deduct that and you have got $5,000,000 put up by the man in the street, people here and yonder; clerks and people in every walk of life who had absolutely nothing to do with the bank or the trust company, and their only participation in this company was buying stock and paying cash for it at $25 a share.

Now, let's go along with Banco: One of the two greatest investment houses in the country, the minutes of September 26 show—it is recorded there that it had come in and bought at $25 a share 250,000 shares. It turned out afterwards they had not bought it, but it was so reported and the minutes show it. These stockholders had already bought it.

As a part of the plan, the BancoKentucky Company—we might as well get those facts in now—part of the plan of this group was to denationalize the Bank of Kentucky. The reason for that, as the facts will show, the National Bank of Kentucky at that time being a National Bank and a member of the Federal Reserve System, had what it called a Transit Department, in which it gave twenty-four hour service to its depositors—which handling of money in volume, and for a number of years it had made twenty-five to thirty-five or forty thousand dollars a year out of the Transit Department. The value of the volume of money in collected credit—in other words, if the Bank of Shelbyville sent in $25,000 to be deposited in the five o'clock mail, and a check to go to Chicago. The check was mailed and the money went to the credit of the Bank of Shelbyville. It was the thought that this group would have $30,000,000 and would then organize its own reserve, that it could make its own deposit with its own reserve. To do that it had to be a state bank; they could not be in the National System without being part of the Federal Reserve. Investment in the stock of the Reserve was thought to be a poor investment; it was idle money and had no earning capacity. The figures before the directors showed that the bank could realize, on the present reserves, $250,000 to $300,000 in profits that we were losing. The general situation shows that banks were going out of the national Federal Reserve System at that time. Thus, conditions were reasons for denationalizing. I signed it—I was one of the people who signed the agreement to denationalize. But for the lack of capital they thought it was necessary to have—they conceived the idea of increasing the capital, because of reports coming in that there were a number of underwriters who were anxious to underwrite every share of this stock that was not taken on the first subscription. Notice was sent out September 15th, giving October 15th as the date of liquidation of the National Bank of Kentucky, and steps were taken to denationalize it. You see, I was one of those trustees that had bought that stock and that had signed the agreement to denationalize. Here are the facts about it. They came to me and to the other trustees down there at the bank and told us they wanted to extend the time thirty days, due to unpreparedness at that time, and it was done, extended to November 15th. I don't think Judge Marx ever heard that there was a stock market crash; he didn't mention it. I don't think I have to go into a dissertation and tell Your Honor that there was a crash on October 24, 1935, and I don't have to dissertate about the ability to float new issues of stock following that crash. I think it was Judge Dawson who said out here—it may have been someone else—that the stock market crash of October 24, 1929, was worse than a fire and flood to investments. We know that values before and values after were two different propositions, and the failure to carry this plan through promptly was due entirely to that stock market crash. After that every bank was taking to cover, to protect its loans and collateral. Banco stock was listed on the market. It had gone to 32, showing the public response, and it receded to 24, hovering from 24 to 20 in January. It went back up in January and by March it was 25. That is the history of the stock.

Now, let's come down to the statement of Banco—I believe the statement got out that time by an officer of that company. I called Your Honor's attention to the fact of the stock market crash. The Louisville Trust Company and National Bank of Kentucky—and counsel for plaintiff know this—when the combination was formed had one bank building, the Louisville Trust Building. It was like a turkey; an old fellow said a turkey was an inconvenient bird, too big for one person and too little for two. The Louisville Trust Company Building might have been too big for one bank and too little for two. The purpose was to put both of them in there. Now, the building at 421 Market—Fifth and Market, they didn't own—were unable to settle on that question as between the managing officers of these two concerns until June, 1930. In the meantime the Louisville Trust Company had been surveyed—the third floor of the Louisville Trust Company was picked out to ultimately house—was thought to be the proper place to house the BancoKentucky Company in the Fall of 1929. Between September and December, 1929, it was suggested. Mr. Brown desired to withdraw as President of the Bank and devote all of his time to the BancoKentucky, and our feeling, like all the others', was that prosperity was just around the corner. The reason why it was not located there is because of the situation that followed the stock market crash.

Now, we come down to the first statement got out by Banco. There were three of them. The statement of December 31, 1929, as to earnings and dividends—now, to emphasize what is said here, and let Your Honor know what actually happened—from the statement made here you would get the impression that dividends came out of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company alone, and were finally paid to the stockholders of those banks alone also. At that time the BancoKentucky Company had 525,744 trustees' participation certificates, according to this statement; they had 44,220 shares of the Brighton Bank & Trust Company, 47,216 shares of the Pearl Market Bank & Trust Company, 548 shares of the Central Savings Bank & Trust Company, they had 1,428 shares of the Peoples Liberty Bank & Trust Company; they had 625 shares of the Union Central Life Insurance Company; they had cash in the National Bank of Kentucky, $2,100,000; they had cash in the Louisville Trust Company, $550,000; and they had bills receivable, $2,000,000. Now, the earnings, according to this statement, the gross earnings, were $369,104.23. They had net earnings of $344,103.14, of which, figuring on this statement, they got $210,297.60 from the Bank of Kentucky and Louisville Trust Company, 70 per cent of which was contributed by the Bank of Kentucky, or $147,208.32, leaving the income from other sources, $221,895.91. After deducting expenses they paid the dividend to the stockholders of the Banco-Kentucky Company, $306,553.80, or 20 cents a share, and yet he would have you understand it was just a transfer from one into another. This income, from which was deducted expenses, was then applied to the payment of dividends. That is the statement of January 1, 1930, as of the close of business of December 31, 1929.

We have another statement of the BancoKentucky Company—I am giving you the statements of that company figured at the time by its auditor and signed by its auditor. It gives the total asset value here and the other values that I have read to you, to which was added the shares of the First National Bank of Paducah and the shares of the Ashland National Bank.

The Court: Read the date of it.

Mr. Dodd: I don't know the date; I am just giving you the statement.

The Court: I mean the date of the statement.

Mr. Dodd: September 18, 1930, showing the complete assets of $62,915,919.71, and cash on hand, $20,804.52, bills receivable, still $2,000,000—I will explain that $2,000,000 bills receivable—first, I will explain it to you as I go along. The stockholders of the BancoKentucky Company, exactly like the stockholders and directors of the National Bank of Kentucky, had things put over on them. The inside of this is that Mr. James B. Brown borrowed $2,000,000 of this money on November 13, 1929, and from our investigation and from the proof we had in another case, it was not even entered on the books until November 17, 1930, after the bank was closed. The stockholders, on their side, knew nothing about it, and nobody else except Mr. Brown and Mr. ZurSchmiede. That is that bills receivable; that is the explanation.

Let's stop a moment on Caldwell & Company and give Your Honor the facts as they appeared to the people at the time, what they saw and what they acted upon. That company was bought, that is, 10,000 shares, on May 30th——

The Court: A half interest in Caldwell & Company.

Mr. Dodd: That was on May 30, 1930. It was bought this way: The BancoKentucky Company didn't pay anybody; the purchase price was paid in to Caldwell & Company; they didn't buy it from Rogers Caldwell or any other stockholder; they contributed $2.20 of their stock, of which they would get back one-half through owning the stock of Caldwell, for every dollar of net asset value that Caldwell & Company had. It worked out, according to the contract, they paid for it in stock of the BancoKentucky Company 900,000 shares of that stock for 10,000 shares of Caldwell & Company, which was a half interest. That was set up in its statement as an asset by the auditor, and properly so, and I am going to explain that, just exactly what that is. It was set up in this statement here "Caldwell & Company, $22,500,000." That was the stock. Now, Caldwell & Company as presented to the Board of the BancoKentucky Company, had a sustained net earning over a period of three years of something like $2,300,000 a year; it had $40,000,000 of assets; it had twenty-two officers in the United States engaged in the investment banking business and was known prior to that time as the Morgan of the South all over the country, underwriting and selling securities at huge profits. It was conceived at that time by the Directors of the BancoKentucky Company that this was a place to dispose of these 2,000,000 shares of stock it had, at $25 a share, in the backlog, and that they would get an organized investment business in which they would take a half interest and control, or have a voice in. In other words, they were still pushing the original thought, to get to a place where, stopped only by the depression, where they could do and perform what they said, throughout the South. It turns out now, by an audit that was made in 1930—it was mentioned here—we now find, looking backwards, that Caldwell and Company was insolvent. As I said awhile ago, you will find some strange things.

Now, if Your Honor please, I stated at the outset that one of the prime things in this case to lay at the door of those stockholders with reference to the National Bank of Kentucky is a brief history of the solvency of the National Bank of Kentucky. Let's go back to the solvency of the National Bank of Kentucky for a moment, and the knowledge of these parties as stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky. I don't think anybody will dispute the fact that in construing that section of the statute I read to you, it was unanimously thought, as to the impending failure of a bank, that, in order to hold the stockholder you must show he had a knowledge of it. In the Carson case that was an issue and that is an issue here. I bring it up simply to show it is an issue. Nothing was said responding to that by counsel for plaintiff, except what the proof would show as to knowledge of what went on inside the Bank of Kentucky, but from September, 1929, on what went on inside the bank was unknown, not only to the stockholders, but also to the directors. The question of solvency of the National Bank of Kentucky is no longer an issue in this case, and right here I want to make an observation, and if I am wrong I want to be corrected: I want to comment about this bill and about this lawsuit just a moment, and I think it is pertinent. There isn't an issue raised here on the two urged issues or any sub-issues, or on the testimony coming in, that hasn't been decided by some court adverse to the plaintiff in this case.

Let's start off about the solvency of the Bank of Kentucky. In the bank case this same Receiver sought to recover from the directors dividends beginning July 1, 1927, up to and including the last dividend paid, October, 1930, $2,240,000, on the ground that the bank, as he indicated here, had been drifting down, and therefore had not earned the money, and therefore the directors having paid the money out were liable. Your Honor, we spent some six weeks, in and out, taking proof on that issue. If it earned dividends it could not be insolvent, because its capital always had to be kept intact, and it also had to have a reserve. Issue was joined and proof was had. The capital structure of the Bank was $4,000,000 capital, $2,000,000 surplus and undivided profits and reserve, about $800,000. After putting on experts and fishing around among the assets of the bank and everywhere they could to say it was bad, and calling it a statutory bad debt, the Master found that the dividends had been earned and paid out of the undivided profits of the bank. On exceptions to that finding, which touched the very guts, if you please, of the solvency of this bank, it went up to Judge Tuttle on exceptions filed by this very receiver. Judge Tuttle not only overruled those exceptions, he adopted the Master's findings. Those are the facts, and I think you can shut in a narrow field any testimony on that point. Here is what Judge Tuttle said: "The Master disallowed this claim in its entirety, finding that the evidence failed to show any facts indicating any statutory violation by any of the directors, or any negligence on their part in connection with these dividends. The Master discussed and analyzed, at great length and in much detail, numerous debts which the plaintiff claims should have been charged off as statutory bad debts, and after painstaking and thorough consideration of such debts and of the other relevant facts and circumstances, the Master found that the evidence did not sustain this claim of the plaintiff. To recite or review these details would unduly prolong this opinion and would serve no useful purpose. It is sufficient to say that the findings of the Master are convincingly supported by the record. It is entirely clear, and I find, that the witnesses on whom the plaintiff relied in this connection, had no personal knowledge of the facts concerning which they assumed to testify. There is no competent evidence sufficient to sustain the burden resting on the plaintiff of proving that any of these dividends were paid out of the capital of the bank, or were not paid out of its net profits after deducting therefrom its losses and bad debts, including all debts on which interest was past due and unpaid for a period of six months, and which were not well secured, and all debts in process of collection. It appearing that the findings of the Master are supported by the record, such findings are affirmed and no recovery against these directors by reason of the declaration or payment of these dividends will be awarded."

Judgment was entered dismissing that claim, and this Receiver never appealed from it. That is final.

Now, if Your Honor please, the Receiver never even appealed that and never claimed that that question was involved in the Circuit Court of Appeals or Supreme Court. The bill was dismissed and there was no argument. That is the best measure of the solvency or prosperity of that bank that you could find during this period, because that bank paid $640,000 in dividends through these four years, from net earnings.

The Court: Wasn't that same question raised in the directors' suit?

Mr. Dodd: That is what I am reading from.

The Court: Didn't Judge Tuttle determine the directors were liable?

Mr. Dodd: He held they were not liable; he did not hold them on dividends, no, sir. I saw that judgment written myself "No recovery on dividends." That was an issue, though, and an issue that affected the vital question of the solvency of the National Bank of Kentucky during all that period.

Now, there is one other case where that same question was raised, and that was the Venhoff & Hillen case. On November 15, the last day the bank was open, at 8:30 at night, Venhoff & Hillen took $1100 and deposited it in the bank, which Monday morning did not open. They brought suit in this court to recover from the receiver, Paul Keyes, on the ground that the bank was insolvent. An answer was filed to that denying it and Paul Keyes, the receiver, predecessor to this receiver, and Tom ZurSchmiede and the leading bank examiner, Frank Dugan, all testified that the bank was solvent on the last day it lived. His Honor, Judge A. M. J. Cochran, found it to be solvent and gave this receiver the money put in there by Venhoff & Hillen. So, it was solvent then, and there is no use——

The Court: Did he rule expressly on that point?

Mr. Dodd: Yes; and I have his judgment here and I would be glad to read it to you.

The Court: There is no use going into authorities now.

Mr. Dodd: So, twice the court has passed on that and we think that eliminates from this case the question of any testimony relating to that one question, because we feel that these decisions bind this receiver to the fact that this bank was solvent.

Now, let's go one step further: Let's show what came into that case, the facts. You know, under the banking act, every six months it is the duty of the cashier of the bank to make a report of dividends and earnings and send it in to the Comptroller's Office. In that report he has got to set out the undivided profits and the statutory bad debts, and a report of earnings and the payment of dividends. Those were sent in every year—sent in quarterly on dividends and semi-annually on earnings. Those statements are here and we have certified copies. In every national bank examiner's report the bank examiner is required to certify whether this report is correct, and every one of them, until the bank closed, contained that certification; every dividend was certified as earned after taking into consideration all the facts inside the bank from the examination at the time. Now, if the Court please, we think, for the reasons I have stated, the judgment on dividends, the reports of earnings and the Venhoff & Hillen case, that testimony is precluded in this case on that point. That ought to shorten this case.

We had a notice served on us in this case, if Your Honor please,—and there is another thing we can save time on—notice was served on us with reference to the admission as genuine the minutes of the National Bank of Kentucky, the Board of Directors. The purpose of that is to try to show some kind of notice to the directors about certain letters criticizing the bank and its control. That was an issue in the bank case and the verity of those minutes was challenged by the directors, and it was successfully established that they had been forged in all of them so as to make it appear that the letters criticizing the bank had been read to the Board. Then, there is another one; you will find here they will want to introduce into this case the National Bank

Examiners' reports for five years or four years—the number is immaterial—and in those reports is various criticism that was inserted therein by the Comptroller. The purpose of introducing that is to try to show some kind of notice to the directors of the knowledge of this criticism. That was another issue in the bank case. It was tried out before the Master and resulted in a finding of fact of the Master, confirmed by Judge Tuttle and further approved by the Circuit Court of Appeals, and I want to read you just exactly what that is, to show you the facts that have been found with reference to those matters. I will read you the Master's findings, and it is confirmed all the way through: "I don't think that any of these letters reached the Board of Directors, notwithstanding the recitation in the minutes to that effect. The minute book now indicates that there were six such letters presented and read to the Board, namely, December 16, 1927, page 304 of the minute book; June 1, 1928, page 318 of the minute book; June 8, 1928, page 319 of the minute book; June 22, 1928, page 320 of the minute book; August 31, 1928, page 325 of the minute book; and December 7, 1928, page 332 of the minute book. It is satisfactorily established that the minutes, after being read to the Board were fraudulently altered so as to show the presentation and consideration of these letters."

The Court: What do you mean, that these letters will be offered in this case to prove insolvency?

Mr. Dodd: No, to prove notice to the directors of the bank.

The Court: I can see why it might be competent in the directors' case, but not in this case.

Mr. Dodd: Here is why he is bringing it here: The criticism in the bank report—that criticism in itself might show some evidence of a failing condition of the bank.

The Court: Let's let that go until it is presented.

Mr. Dodd: I am not asking you to pass on it; I am simply stating it.

Now, if Your Honor please, there is one other fact we are going to show in this case with reference to the severability of these corporations, the line of cleavage between the National Bank of Kentucky and the BancoKentucky Company, which started out with its incorporation; its separateness of incorporation and separateness of stockholders and officers. Let's see what was done after the failure: The first thing done after the failure by the receiver was to sue the BancoKentucky Corporation. It filed suit and it had to get consent from the Jefferson Circuit Court to file that suit. It filed a petition setting up that fact, and also the fact that it was the owner of all this stock of the Bank of Kentucky, and they asked permission of the Jefferson Circuit Court to sue the BancoKentucky Company as owner of this stock. The order was entered and that suit was filed, and the Receiver got judgment for the full amount, and finally collected $90,000. I cite that as a fact.

Now, in addition to that, in responding to the statement that it had no expenses and there were no officers: Paul Keyes, the Receiver for the National Bank of Kentucky made and filed a valid proof of claim for all services rendered to Banco for keeping its books, in the amount of $22,000. He treated it as a separate corporation in their way of business. That isn't for money; that is for services performed in keeping the records. The Louisville Trust Company filed a claim for $22,000 for services performed, treating it as a separate institution, and not as an agency or instrumentality of the banks. These exhibits will be offered in this case.

Next we come to the good faith of the BancoKentucky Company. We have said that the facts we have demonstrate the good faith; the investments we have put in, the number of stockholders, and the manner in which it was done. Here are people accused of trying to avoid something—the huge sums they themselves put in disprove any ulterior motive and disprove any idea of fraud, and, like all the other issues brought here, they are all decided one way. There is another issue, this very thing, the good faith of the BancoKentucky Company: That has been decided by Judge Sandidge, first, and by the Circuit Court of Appeals. I don't want to take up Your Honor's time reading it, but the whole good faith of the BancoKentucky Company and the purpose for which it was organized are already passed upon. The fact showing it was in good faith and legal and proper—everything legal about it—it wasn't a sham; it was a bona fide corporation, and that was the finding in the bank case, and that was an issue there.

Now, I don't want to extend this any longer, because I have tried to outline the position of these directors, but let me say this in conclusion, if I may: This suit follows—this is about the ninth suit involving the issues that they have in this case, or some part of them, and this suit is best described, from a fellow who has been on the other side in all of them, as just taking a bite out of each one and putting them together and starting out on a new theory. All these bites or issues have already been decided. This is the third suit filed by the Receiver to recover for the creditors against the directors of the Bank of Kentucky.

The Court: How could the Receiver—you say that question was decided by Judge Tuttle as to solvency: How could he give judgment against them, then?

Mr. Dodd: He could give judgment for statutory violation whether you are solvent or insolvent.

The Court: You say he gave judgment on statutory grounds? Under the statute they were liable for negligence?

Mr. Dodd: No, sir. In several of the cases he said they were free of negligence, but held them for statutory liability. I will illustrate that: The statute of the United States forbids a bank to lend more than ten per cent of its capital to any one person or corporation. All those loans were supposed to be excess loans, ultra vires and beyond the statute. The only liability Judge Tuttle enforced was based upon statutory violation, and not on negligence.

Mr. Crawford: It had nothing to do with the worth of the loan one way or the other. For instance, in the Wakefield matter he grouped together four people and said—four people properly collateraled—and said they should have been grouped together and the directors ought to have known it, and for that reason he held that those loans violated the law and charged it to the directors. Everything he found for the Receiver was of that type.

Judge Deitzman: And but for the subsequent insolvency of the bank that would have gone to the benefit of the stockholders. The statutory liability went to him then because the bank was insolvent; had it not been for that it would have gone to the benefit of the shareholders.

Mr. Dodd: Now, if Your Honor please, we will go back: There are two classes of stockholders here, those who have exchanged—and we describe them that way—those who exchanged their Trustees' Participation Receipts and those who bought their stock. As we see it, whether they paid for it in cash—you see, when the National Bank of Kentucky closed there were 2,000,000 shares out, and over one million were exchanged—some 400,000 bought for cash and the rest were exchanged for bank stock, like the Paducah Bank and Ashland Bank, where they didn't pay them any cash and where they took so many shares for their stock—our contention on this is that there are two classes of stockholders, those who exchanged and those who bought. The only reaction to double liability—the reaction here to the liability that is sought to be imposed is asserted against two separate classes, one accused of having sold its stock—of having transferred its stock, and the other is one who never had stock at all, but purchased it, was never associated with the Bank of Kentucky at all in any capacity, stockholder or otherwise. Now, whatever may be said about the one, if by any stretch of the imagination you could hold the Trustees' Participation Receipt holders——

The Court: You mean there might be a judgment distinguishing between the two groups?

Mr. Dodd: Yes, I am trying to respond to that very proposition.

The Court: And your argument is that they are not charged with any knowledge?

Mr. Dodd: Of anything that happened or any record in the bank.

The Court: Of any record in the bank or any action of any director?

Mr. Dodd: That is right. That is the line of our defense, and those, as briefly and as best I could, charged with this duty of stating the facts, are the issues as we see it.

PLAINTIFF'S EVIDENCE

Plaintiff read into evidence the request which it made on defendants for admission of facts and genuineness of documents under Rule 36 of the Rules of Civil Procedure for the District Court of the United States.

The request for admission contained 184 separate paragraphs and these paragraphs together with the response to the request follows.

1. That The National Bank of Kentucky was, at all of the times referred to in the Bill of Complaint, and is a national banking association, organized under the laws of the United States, commonly known as The National Bank Act, and domiciled at Louisville, Jefferson County, Kentucky.

Admitted in response.

2. That on November 16, 1930 said Bank was closed pursuant to a resolution duly adopted on that date by its Board of Directors. "Exhibit 1" is the resolution.

Admitted in response and the exhibit referred to was admitted in evidence.

3. That on November 17, 1930 the Comptroller of the Currency of the United States found said National Bank of Kentucky insolvent and unable to pay its just and lawful debts and appointed Paul C. Keyes Receiver of said Bank. "Exhibit 2" is the order of appointment of said Paul C. Keyes. Said Paul C. Keyes duly qualified and entered upon his duties as such Receiver and took possession of all the books, records and assets of said Bank and continued in the control and possession thereof as such Receiver until December 15, 1932, on which date he resigned. Thereafter, on December 15, 1932, F. G. Awalt, then Acting Comptroller of the Currency, appointed the plaintiff, A. M. Anderson, Receiver of said National Bank of Kentucky, who forthwith qualified and entered upon the duties of his office, as such Receiver, took possession of all the books, records and assets of said Bank and still is in the possession and control thereof as such Receiver, and is now the duly appointed, qualified and acting Receiver of said bank. "Exhibit 3," is the certificate of appointment of A. M. Anderson, Receiver of said Bank, dated December 15, 1932.

Admitted in response and the two exhibits were admitted in evidence.

4. That the individual defendants named in the caption of the Bill of Complaint are correctly described as to citizenship and residence and that the corporate defendants are correctly described as to corporate organization. That on November 17, 1930, said defendants were severally the owners of record of stock of the BancoKentucky Company, as alleged in the Bill of Complaint, except as otherwise pleaded in the Answers filed herein.

Admitted by defendant with the proviso that Special Pleas as to residence might be later considered and are not to be included in the admission.

5. That on February 20, 1931, the Comptroller of the Currency of the United States levied and made an assessment and requisition upon the shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky for $4,000,000.00, to be paid by them on or before the first day of April, 1931, and made demand upon each and every one of them for the par value of each and every share of the capital stock of said Association held or owned by them respectively at the time of its failure. "Exhibit 5," is the order of assessment referred to. That on March 20, 1931, the Receiver of said National Bank of Kentucky served all defendants and all other BancoKentucky shareholders with notice of said assessment and of intent to proceed against them to recover a proportionate part thereof. "Exhibit 6," is the notice to shareholders referred to in said paragraph. That the allegations of Paragraph XVIII of the Bill of Complaint are true.

Admitted with the provision that Special defenses could be filed as to defendants who had died. Exhibits 5 and 6 were admitted in evidence.

6. That at the time of the closing of the National Bank of Kentucky, it had issued and outstanding 40,000 shares of capital stock of the par value of $100.00 each; that 39,820 of said shares were registered on the stock ledger of said bank in the names of Henry Vogt, Thomas J. Minary, Stuart E. Duncan, Allen P. Dodd, Charles H. Bohmer and Ben J. Metcalfe, as Trustees under Trust Agreement dated April 22, 1927. "Exhibit 7," is the Trust Agreement of April 22, 1927. That the remaining 180 shares of said Bank were registered on the stock ledger of said Bank, 10 shares each, in the names of the eighteen directors of said bank, in order to qualify said directors. "Exhibit 7(a)" shows the directors of the National Bank of Kentucky, the assessment on their respective qualifying shares, the amounts paid and the balance, if any, due thereon.

This paragraph was admitted by the defendants as true with the exception that defendants denied that the words "In order to qualify said directors;" was the purpose of the registration of said stock in their names. Exhibits 7 and 7(a) were admitted in evidence.

Mr. Castleman objected to the introduction of documentary evidence on behalf of defendants who acquired their stock in Banco on the open market, and made a motion that such objection apply to each item of documentary evidence, which motion was granted by the court.

7. "Exhibit 8" is the Minutes of the Trustees under the Trust Agreement of April 22, 1927.

Admitted in response—Exhibit offered in evidence and admitted.

Mr. Dodd objected that every stockholder who bought stock could not be charged with notice of what was shown by the Minute Book of the Trustees of the Bank of Kentucky and Louisville Trust Company.

8. That the certificates representing the directors qualifying shares were kept in a safe deposit box in the Louisville Trust Company, which box was in the name of the six men who were trustees under said agreement of April 22, 1927. The certificates were in the names of the individual owners.

Admitted in response.

9. That at the time of the closing of the National Bank of Kentucky, said Trustees held, under the same Trust Agreement, 17,235 shares of the capital stock of the Louisville Trust Company out of the total issued and outstanding stock of said Trust Company of 17,500 shares. That the remainder of said shares were registered on the stock ledger of said trust company in the names of its directors, 10 shares each. That the qualifying shares of the directors of said National Bank of Kentucky and said Louisville Trust Company were subject to agreements between said directors and the trustees as shown by the Minntes of said trustees. The shares of stock registered in the names of the directors of the Louisville Trust Company representing qualifying shares were also kept in a safe deposit box with the Louisville Trust Company, in the names of the six men who were Trustees under said Agreement of April 22, 1927.

Admitted in response.

10. That pursuant to the terms of said Trust Agreement, the Trustees issued to each stockholder of the National Bank of Kentucky and each stockholder of the Louisville Trust Company whose stock was deposited with said Trustees, a Trustees' Participation Certificate having a par value of $100.00 in lieu of each share of stock of the Bank or Trust Company having a par value of $1000.00. "Exhibit 9" is a Trustees' Participation certificate issued as aforesaid.

Admitted in response. Exhibit 9 admitted in evidence.

11. Thereafter, on June 22, 1927, each share of the trust estate having a par value of $100.00 per share was divided into ten shares of the trust estate each having a par value of $10.00 per share; except for the change in par value, said Trustees' Participation Certificate remained unchanged. "Exhibit 10," is a $10.00 par Trustees' Participation Certificate referred to.

Admitted in response. Exhibit 10 admitted in evidence.

12. Each trustees' participation certificate having a par value of $10.00 represented .0697923 of a share of the capital stock of the National Bank of Kentucky, having a par value of $100.00 per share.

Admitted in response.

13. The following writings relate to the unification of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company and the interests of the stockholders thereof.

Admitted in response.

14. Exhibit 11-1—Letter of March 19, 1927, received by the Comptroller of the Currency from Louisville Trust Company.

15. Exhibit 11-2—Letter of March 22, 1927, received by the Louisville Trust Company from Deputy Comptroller E. W. Stearns.

16. Exhibit 11-3—Letter of March 25, 1927, received by E. W. Stearns, Deputy Comptroller from Louisville Trust Company.

17. Exhibit 11-4—Letter of April 7, 1927, received by the Louisville Trust Company from E. W. Stearns, Deputy Comptroller.

18. Exhibit 11-5—National Bank of Kentucky Directors' Minutes of April 1, 1927, with reference to unification of National Bank of Kentucky with Louisville Trust Company. (See Exhibit No. 21.)

19. Exhibit 11-6—National Bank of Kentucky Directors' Minutes of April 22, 1927, setting forth the plan and Trust Agreement adopted, the form of stockholders' receipt of the Plan of unification and consent thereto, and the letter of April 22, 1927, which was mailed by the National Bank of Kentucky to all of its stockholders. (See Exhibit No. 21.)

20. Exhibit 11-7—Minutes of the Stockholders of National Bank of Kentucky, May 27, 1927, approving declaration of sixty per cent stock dividend and increasing the Board of Directors to forty and electing twenty-one Directors of the Louisville Trust Company to the Directorate of the National Bank of Kentucky. (See Exhibit No. 21.)

Paragraphs 14 through 20, inclusive, were admitted in the response, and the Exhibits referred to in these paragraphs were offered in evidence and admitted by the court.

21. "Exhibit 12," is the Daily Financial Statement Books of the National Bank of Kentucky from February 11, 1927, to November 16, 1930.

Admitted in response and exhibit admitted in evidence.

22. That the National Bank of Kentucky was examined by the National Bank Examiners as of April 23, 1927, October 14, 1927, March 9, 1928, October 13, 1928, May 25, 1929, December 31, 1929, April 26, 1930, September 17, 1930. "Exhibits 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19 and 20" are photostatic copies of the reports of the aforesaid examinations as certified by the Comptroller of the Currency and delivered to said bank.

Admitted in response and exhibits referred to admitted in evidence.

23. That the Minutes of the Meeting of the Board of Directors of the National Bank of Kentucky, held on June 7, 1929, contained the following recital:

> "Mr. Brown's proposition to form a new company with a proposed capital of $20,000,000 organized to own stock of other corporations, all, or in part, buy and sell securities, original and refinancing, etc., was submitted to the Board of Directors and the Board expressed themselves as favorable, and on motion duly seconded and unanimously carried the President was authorized to proceed along the lines outlined."

"Exhibit 21" is the original Minute Book containing the Minutes of the National Bank of Kentucky, as kept and recorded therein from January 14, 1927, to November 16, 1930.

Defendants' response with respect to this paragraph read:

> "Defendants admit all of paragraph No. 23, except the correctness of Exhibit 21 for the reason that in the case of Anderson v. Akers, 7 Fed. Sup. 924, this court has heretofore adjudged that said minutes have been fraudulently altered."

The exhibit was admitted in evidence.

24. "Exhibit 22" is the original letter of Trabue, Doolan, Helm and Helm, attorneys for the National Bank of Kentucky, sent to and received by Charles F. Jones, Cashier of the National Bank of Kentucky, which was signed by T. K. Helm, dated September 5, 1929, and with which was enclosed a true and correct copy of a letter sent by said Helm to and received by the said Jones, as Cashier, dated June 14, 1929.

The statement was admitted in response. Mr. Crawford objected for everybody except Mr. Helm and Mr. Jones on the grounds that none of the stockholders of the bank, even including the directors, are chargeable with any knowledge of interoffice correspondence, or correspondence that comes to the bank, unless it is actually presented to the Board, and then its competency only goes to the Board itself and not to the stockholders.

The exhibit was admitted in evidence.

25. That on July 12, 1929, the Trustees, under the Trust Agreement of April 22, 1927, held a meeting and authorized the organization of the BancoKentucky Company under the laws of Delaware, as shown by the Minutes of said Trustees for said date.

26. That on July 16, 1929, the corporation known as The BancoKentucky Company, was organized under the laws of the State of Delaware. "Exhibit 23," is a complete and correct copy of the Minutes of the BancoKentucky Company, from the time of its organization to and including the last meeting of its Board of Directors on November 19, 1930. The Minutes of the first meeting in said Minute Book contains an authentic copy of the Certificate of Incorporation of the BancoKentucky Company.

27. Mr. A. J. Carroll, a Director of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company, and an attorney for the National Bank of Kentucky, was present at the incorporation of the BancoKentucky Company at Dover, Delaware. "Exhibit 24," is the original copy of his letter, reporting the organization of said Company received by Mr. Charles F. Jones, Cashier of the Bank, contained in the files of said bank.
Ex. 24-1

28. "Exhibit 24-1" is the original telegram from A. J. Carroll, reporting the mailing of the corporation records to Louisville, dated July 17, 1929, and requesting that a copy of the Prospectus be sent to him at Atlantic City, contained in the files of said bank.
Ex. 24-2

29. "Exhibit 24-2" is the original carbon copy of the letter sent to and received by A. J. Carroll, dated July 20, 1929, which enclosed a copy of the printed letter sent to all stockholders.

These five paragraphs were admitted in the response and the exhibits referred to were admitted in evidence.
Ex. 24-3

30. "Exhibit 24-3" is the original printed letter, dated July 19, 1929, which was mailed to all stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky and all stockholders of the Louisville Trust Company, signed by all Directors of the National Bank of Kentucky and by all Directors of the Louisville Trust Company and by the Trustees under the Trust Agreement of April 22, 1927, a copy of which was enclosed with said "Exhibit 24-2."

This paragraph was admitted in the response. Objection to the exhibit was offered by Mr. Van Winkle against use of the letter as against purchasers of stock who were not certificate holders. The exhibit was admitted in evidence.

Ex. 24-4

31. "Exhibit 24-4" is a perforated sheet entitled "Subscription to shares of BancoKentucky Company, Incorporated (Under the Re-organization Plan as Outlined in the Letter of the Trustees dated July 19, 1929)," attached to Exhibit 24-3.

Ex. 24-5

32. "Exhibit 24-5" is the printed letter from BancoKentucky Company of September 12, 1929, sent to all Trustees Participation shareholders, which enclosed a copy of said letter of July 19, 1929.

Ex. 24-6

33. "Exhibit 24-6" is the printed letter from BancoKentucky Company to all subscribers requesting payment of subscriptions on or before October 1, 1929.

These three paragraphs were admitted in the response and the exhibits mentioned were admitted in evidence.

34. "Exhibit 25" is the original opinions of Robert F. Vaughan, one of the attorneys for the National Bank of Kentucky, dated July 6, 1929 and July 9, 1929, with enclosures, contained in the files of said bank.

This paragraph was admitted in the response. Over objection of Mr. Crawford the exhibits were received in evidence. The letter of Robert F. Vaughan, dated July 6, 1929, was marked Exhibit 25. The letter of July 9, 1929, was marked Exhibit 25-5. The enclosures referred to in the letter of July 9, 1929, consisting of "suggested preface to the prospectus"—Exhibit 25-1, and draft of prospectus headed "To the Stockholder Addressed," Exhibit 25-2, and memo from Richard Bean to Mr. Vaughan—Exhibit 25-3, and additional suggestion for draft of prospectus, Exhibit 25-4, were all offered and received in evidence.

35. That on or about July 20, 1929, public announcements were made of the organization of the BancoKentucky Company, which was given wide publicity in the Louisville newspapers. Further publicity was given from time to time to said Company in the public press throughout America and in various financial and investment publications.

36. "Exhibit 26" is a correct photostatic copy of articles with reference to the BancoKentucky Company appearing in the Herald-Post, Courier-Journal and Louisville Times, papers of general circulation in Kentucky and in Indiana, on the following dates:

Exhibit 31 was admitted against Mr. Bean and Mr. Jones and objection sustained as to other defendants.

Exs. 33-1 to 33-25

57. "Exhibits 33-1" to "33-25" are correct photostatic copies of correspondence the originals of which were sent by the Comptroller of the Currency of the United States or his deputies to and received by the National Bank of Kentucky, under the following dates: June 30, 1927, September 7, 1927, December 12, 1927, January 19, 1928, January 27, 1928, April 30, 1928, May 12, 1928, June 2, 1928, June 16, 1928, August 23, 1928, November 27, 1928, January 14, 1929, March 23, 1929, July 12, 1929, August 6, 1929, August 29, 1929, September 17, 1929, February 21, 1930, March 19, 1930, April 11, 1930, June 23, 1930, July 23, 1930, August 9, 1930, September 9, 1930, and November 8, 1930.

Exs. 34-1 to 34-14

58. "Exhibits 34-1" to "34-14," both inclusive, are correct photostatic copies of letters sent by the National Bank of Kentucky, its officers or directors to and received by the Comptroller of the Currency of the United States, said letters being dated: July 23, 1927, September 16, 1927, December 24, 1927, January 24, 1928, February 4, 1928, June 8, 1928—including a certificate of C. F. Jones, Secretary, Board of Directors, National Bank of Kentucky, bearing same date with reference to said letter and a three-page list of loans attached to same; September 11, 1928—to which was attached and enclosed a three-page list of loans referred to in said letter; January 22, 1929, February 4, 1929, April 5, 1929—enclosed with which was a four-page list of items referred to in said letter; September 24, 1929, and the attached and enclosed letter sent out to stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky under date of July 19, 1929; March 21, 1930, August 23, 1930 and October 24, 1930.

These two paragraphs were admitted to be correct in the response and the exhibits mentioned were admitted in evidence over objection of the defendants.

89. "Exhibit 64" is a telegram from F. G. Awalt, Deputy Comptroller of the Currency, sent to and received by the National Bank of Kentucky, dated December 26, 1929.

Paragraphs 64 through 89, inclusive, were admitted in the response. The exhibits were received in evidence. Defendants objected to Exhibit 47 and Exhibit 53. Exhibit 47 was received for identification and Exhibit 53 was received in evidence.

90. That all of the holders of Trustees' Participation Certificates issued under the Trust Agreement of April 22, 1927, approved and adopted the plan, signed the "Subscription to Shares of the BancoKentucky Company (under the Re-organization Plan as Outlined in the Letter of the Trustees dated July 19, 1929)" heretofore attached as Exhibit 24-4, or agreed to exchange of their Trustees' Participation Certificates for shares of the BancoKentucky Company in accordance with said Re-organization plan; except holders of approximately five per cent of said Trustees' Participation Certificates. Subsequently said Trustees' Participation Certificate Shareholders who signed said subscription to shares of the BancoKentucky Company, and/or agreed to exchange their Trustees' Participation Certificates for shares of stock of the BancoKentucky Company, deposited said Trustees' Participation Certificates with the Louisville Trust Company as transfer agent for said Trustees and received a document entitled "Trustees of National Bank of Kentucky and Louisville Trust Company Interim Receipt Issued Pending Completion of the Re-organization outlined in letter of Trustees and Directors dated July 19, 1929." (Exhibit 44.)

91. That subsequently said plan of Reorganization was declared effective and said Trustees' Participation Certificates were exchanged on the basis of two shares of the BancoKentucky Company stock for one Trustees' Participation Certificate and said shares of the BancoKentucky Company stock so exchanged were delivered by the Louisville Trust Company, as transfer agent for said Trustees, to the holders of said interim receipts. Upon delivery of said interim receipts to the said Trust Company as transfer agent, said Trustees' Participation Certificates held by the Louisville Trust Company, as transfer agent for said Trustees, were delivered to the BancoKentucky Company.

92. That the holders of 570,550 shares of the trust estate approved and adopted the plan above described and the holders of 540,484 shares of the trust estate, representing 37,721.6214 shares of stock in the National Bank of Kentucky and stock of the Louisville Trust Company exchanged their Trustees' Participation Certificates for 1,080,968 shares of BancoKentucky Company stock. By reason of said exchange, the BancoKentucky Company received and held approximately 95% (94.73%) of the issued and outstanding Trustees' Participation Certificates, which were also registered in its name on the stock register of said Trustees, and which represented approximately 95% of the shares of stock of the National Bank of Kentucky held by said Trustees.

93. That after the issue of the shares of the BancoKentucky Company in exchange for Trustees' Participation Certificates, a substantial majority of the shares of the BancoKentucky Company was at all times owned by the same persons who previously held Trustees' Participation shares, and the BancoKentucky Company was managed and operated by the same persons who constituted the Board of Directors and the officers of the National Bank of Kentucky-Louisville Trust Company, as set forth in Paragraph 7 of the letter to the holders of Trustees' Participation shares, dated July 19, 1929.

94. That on September 25, 1929, the BancoKentucky Company agreed to purchase capital stocks of the Brighton Bank & Trust Company at Cincinnati, Ohio, a banking corporation organized under the laws of the State of Ohio, and the Pearl Market Bank & Trust Company of Cincinnati, Ohio, a banking corporation organized under the laws of the State of Ohio, in accordance with the offer of purchase set forth in the Minutes of the BancoKentucky Company of September 27, 1929. Subsequently 47,854 shares out of 60,000 shares of the capital stock of the Pearl Market Bank & Trust Company were acquired by the BancoKentucky Company in exchange for 54,936 shares of stock of BancoKentucky Company and $2,200,388.30 paid in cash. The BancoKentucky Company also acquired 44,390 shares out of 50,000 shares of the capital stock of the Brighton Bank & Trust Company in exchange for 31,459 shares of BancoKentucky Company stock and $3,323,409.90 in cash.

95. That for the purpose of this case, it is stipulated and agreed that the Court may take judicial notice of the statute laws and decisions of the States of Ohio, Indiana, Delaware, Tennessee, Arkansas, and Kentucky, and the parties may call to the Court's attention any provisions of said laws deemed pertinent.

96. That on November 22, 1929, the BancoKentucky Company Board of Directors approved the acquisition of capital stock of Central Savings Bank & Trust Company, Covington, Kentucky, a Kentucky banking corporation and, in December, 1929, Banco Kentucky Company acquired 548 shares of said stock, out of a total issue of 600 shares (par value $100.00) for $329,372.51 in cash.

97. That on January 10, 1930, the BancoKentucky Company Board of Directors approved the acquisition of capital stock of Peoples Liberty Bank & Trust Company, Covington, Kentucky, a Kentucky banking corporation and, from December 29, 1929, to November 21, 1930, Banco-Kentucky Company acquired 2,099 shares of said stock, out of a total issue of 6,500 shares (par value $100.00) for $491,136.50 in cash.

98. That on March 7, 1930, the BancoKentucky Company Board of Directors approved the acquisition of capital stock of First National Bank of Paducah, Kentucky, a national banking association, and, on June 30, 1930, Banco-Kentucky Company acquired 6,925 shares of said stock out of a total issue of 7,500 (par value $20.00) by exchanging 24,930 shares of BancoKentucky Company stock therefor.

99. That on March 27, 1930, the BancoKentucky Company Board of Directors approved the acquisition of capital stock of Ashland National Bank, Ashland, Kentucky, a national banking association, and from May 16, to September 18, 1930, BancoKentucky Company acquired 7,125 shares of said stock, out of a total issue of 8,000 shares (par value $100.00) by exchanging 56,920 shares of Banco-Kentucky Company stock and $37.50 in cash therefor.

100. That on March 27, 1930, the BancoKentucky Company Board of Directors approved the acquisition of capital stock of the Security Bank of Louisville, Kentucky, a Kentucky banking corporation and, from April to October, 1930, BancoKentucky Company acquired 2,713 shares of stock out of a total issue of 3,000 shares (par value $100.00) by exchanging 29,294 shares of stock of BancoKentucky Company and paying $217,200.00 in cash therefor.

Plaintiff's Evidence

101. That on September 19, 1930, the BancoKentucky Company Board of Directors approved the acquisition of capital stock of the Mechanics Trust & Savings Bank, Paducah, Kentucky, a Kentucky banking corporation and BancoKentucky Company on said day acquired 575 shares of said stock, out of a total issue of 1,000 shares (par value $100.00) by exchanging 5,175 shares of BancoKentucky Company stock therefor.

102. That the aggregate par value of the bank stocks held by the BancoKentucky Company, November 17, 1930, was $7,770,780.00.

Paragraphs 90 through 102, inclusive, are admitted to be correct in the response filed by the defendant.

Exs. 65, 65-A, 65-B

103. "Exhibits 65, 65-A and 65-B" are the original General Ledger, Cash Journal and Stock Securities Record of BancoKentucky Company containing the original entries.

This paragraph was admitted and the exhibits were received in evidence.

104. That the note of the Murray Rubber Company purchased by the BancoKentucky Company from the National Bank of Kentucky for a cash consideration of $580,000.00 on October 24, 1930, was, at the time of its purchase and ever since has been worthless.

In the response defendants admitted Paragraph 104 except that they denied that the note referred to at the time of its purchase or at any time prior to November 17, 1930, was worthless, for the reason that said company was operating at said time and there was no reason to anticipate that said note did not have real value.

105. That the participation in the note of Lewis C. Humphrey, purchased by the BancoKentucky Company from the National Bank of Kentucky on October 24, 1930, for $20,000.00, was at the time of its purchase, and ever since has been, worthless.

In the response defendants admitted Paragraph 105 but denied that the note referred to therein, at the time of its purchase, or at any time prior to November 17, 1930, was worthless at said time and there was no reason to anticipate that said note did not have real value.

106. That the note of James B. Brown, President of the National Bank of Kentucky and the BancoKentucky Company, dated November 14, 1929, due in six months, payable to Wakefield & Company for the face value of $2,000,000.00, was acquired by the BancoKentucky Company from Wakefield & Company on November 13, 1929, for a cash consideration of $2,000,000.00 and had attached thereto as collateral security 60,000 shares of the BancoKentucky Company stock and only 22,500 shares of the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky stock. No interest was ever paid on this note.

This paragraph was admitted by the defendants in the response. A copy of the note was received in evidence as Exhibit 65 (c). It is not reproduced but can be found with the original exhibits.

107. That nothing was realized from said BancoKentucky Company stock held as collateral and the stock of the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky was sold for $442,580.75 and applied on the note. The maker of the note, James B. Brown, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy on December 23, 1930. No dividends were paid in said bankruptcy proceeding and the bankrupt was duly discharged. Mrs. A. E. Latta did business under the assumed name "Wakefield & Company," and was the sole proprietor of said business. Mrs. A. E. Latta made an assignment for the benefit of her creditors on the 1st day of July, 1931. No cash dividends were paid and the property so assigned has had and has only a nominal value.

This paragraph was admitted in the response except that defendants denied that the property assigned by Mrs. A. E. Latta has had and has only a nominal value.

108. That on December 17, 1929, BancoKentucky Company acquired 625 shares of stock of the Union Central Life Insurance Company for $25,000.00 paid in cash. Said stock was sold by the Receiver of BancoKentucky Company for $21,560.51.

109. That from March 24, 1930, to August 7, 1930, the BancoKentucky Company purchased and retired 106,000 shares of its own capital stock at a cost to said Company of $2,374,137.50. Said purchases were made on behalf of the BancoKentucky Company by Wakefield & Company on the open market.

110. That the BancoKentucky Company became indebted on November 4, 1929, to the Chemical Bank & Trust Company on account of borrowed money in the sum of $1,000,000.00. Said loan was paid off on January 22, 1930, and subsequently, on June 14, 1930, a further loan of $1,000,000.00 was obtained from said Chemical Bank & Trust Company and on October 22nd said loan was increased by the further sum of $600,000.00, making a total of $1,600,000.00 due and owing by the BancoKentucky Company to the Chemical Bank & Trust Company of New York on November 17, 1930. There was pledged to the Chemical Bank, as security for said loan, the following:

26,000 shares of Brighton Bank & Trust Company stock;

24,284 shares of Pearl Market Bank & Trust Company stock;

60,320 shares Trustees' Participation Certificates, National Bank of Kentucky-Louisville Trust Company;

2,713 shares Security Bank stock;

22,500 shares Standard Oil of Kentucky stock;

Said 22,500 shares of Standard Oil of Kentucky was collateral to the note of James B. Brown and was repledged with the Chemical Bank & Trust Company.

Ex. 66.

111. "Exhibit 66" is an authentic copy of the voluntary petition filed November 24, 1930, in the Jefferson Circuit Court of Louisville, Kentucky, by the Executive Committee of the Board of Directors of the BancoKentucky Company for the appointment of a receiver.

Ex. 67

"Exhibit 67" is an authentic copy of the answer filed by BancoKentucky Company, confessing the allegations of the petition. Joseph S. Laurent was appointed Receiver, in accordance with the prayer of said petition.

Paragraphs 108 through 111, inclusive, were admitted in the response. The two exhibits referred to in Paragraph 111 were received in evidence.

112. That thereafter proceedings were had in an action commenced by Paul C. Keyes, Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky v. Joseph S. Laurent, Receiver of the BancoKentucky Company, as set forth in Paragraph XIX of the Bill of Complaint, resulting in the allowance of a claim against the Receiver of said BancoKentucky Company for the sum of $3,772,162.40 and $331,320.97 as interest from April 1, 1931, to the date of judgment, September 14, 1932. From the time of his appointment as Receiver, on November 24, 1930, to date, the only payment made by said Receiver of the BancoKentucky Company to the Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky was $90,745.17. Except for said credit, the amount due and owing the Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky, on account of said claim, is wholly unpaid and unsatisfied.

113. That on December 13, 1929, the National Bank of Kentucky declared a quarterly dividend of $4.00 per share.

On the same day the Louisville Trust Company declared a quarterly dividend of $4.00 per share. On the same day the BancoKentucky Company declared a quarterly dividend of 20¢ per share. All of the foregoing dividends were payable January 2, 1930, and were paid on that date.

114. That on March 14, 1930, the National Bank of Kentucky declared a quarterly dividend of $4.00 per share. On the same day the Louisville Trust Company declared a quarterly dividend of $4.00 per share, and on March 21, 1930, the BancoKentucky Company declared a quarterly dividend of 20¢ per share. All three dividends were payable April 1, 1930, and were paid on that date.

115. That on June 13, 1930, the Louisville Trust Company declared a quarterly dividend of $4.00 per share. On June 18, 1930, the BancoKentucky Company declared a quarterly dividend of 20¢ per share. On June 20, 1930, the National Bank of Kentucky declared a quarterly dividend of $4.00 per share. All three dividends were payable July 1, 1930, and were paid on that date.

116. That on September 12, 1930, the Louisville Trust Company declared a quarterly dividend of $4.00 per share. On September 19, 1930, the National Bank of Kentucky declared a quarterly dividend of $4.00 per share and on the same day the BancoKentucky Company declared a quarterly dividend of 20¢ per share; all three dividends were payable on October 1, 1930, and were paid on that date.

Paragraphs 112 through 116, inclusive, were admitted to be correct in the response.

117. That the dividends on the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company, held by the Trustees of record were paid by the Bank in one check payable to said Trustees, and on the same day said Trustees, without any deduction for expenses or otherwise, paid out the entire sum received by them to the holders of Trustees' Participation Certificates, making the one check for its proportionate share of said dividend to the Banco-Kentucky Company, as the holder of approximately 95% of the Trustees' Participation Certificates. The Banco-Kentucky Company in turn, on the same day, paid its divi-

Ex. 69. 118. Exhibit 69 is a summary of dividends received by the Trustees from the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company and the payment of said dividends out to the holders of Trustees' Participation Certificates.

Defendants admitted paragraphs 117 and 118 in their response except in so far as Exhibit 68 was concerned. Exhibit 68 was admitted in evidence in connection with the testimony of Hugh A. White, the accountant who prepared it. Exhibit 69 was also received in evidence.

119. That the BancoKentucky Company paid no salaries to its officers. It had no salaried employees. It paid no fees to Directors. It had no office. It never complied with the laws of Kentucky applicable to foreign corporations. The only books and records kept by the BancoKentucky Company were a General Ledger, Cash Journal, Minutes of Directors and a record of payments for stock subscriptions. Said books and records were kept by employees of the National Bank of Kentucky under the supervision of W. T. ZurSchmiede, Auditor of the National Bank of Kentucky during 1929, and Cashier of the National Bank of Kentucky during 1930, and at the same times Secretary and Treasurer of the BancoKentucky Company. The Banco-

Kentucky Company files and its correspondence was intermingled with the correspondence of the National Bank of Kentucky.

Defendants admitted the correctness of paragraph 119 in their response except that they denied that BancoKentucky Company had no office; denied, for want of information sufficient to form a belief that BancoKentucky Company's files and its correspondence were intermingled with the correspondence of the National Bank of Kentucky; defendants admitted that BancoKentucky Company paid no salaries, but defendants stated that claims for salaries had been filed with the Receiver of the BancoKentucky Company.

In connection with this paragraph plaintiff offered in evidence affidavit of the Chief Deputy in the office of the Secretary of State of Kentucky to the effect that no reports had been filed by BancoKentucky Company as required by Section 571, Kentucky Statutes. This affidavit was received in evidence as Exhibit 69(a).

An affidavit of the Supervisor of the filing section of the Department of Revenue of the State of Kentucky to the effect that no reports as required by Section 4189-2, Kentucky Statutes, had been filed by BancoKentucky, was received in evidence as Exhibit 69(b).

Mr. Crawford denied the competency of the testimony with regard to the failure to comply with the laws of Kentucky as against people other than the derelict officers. An objection was also made to Exhibits 69(a) and 69(b).

120. That on May 28, 1930, BancoKentucky Company and Caldwell & Company, a Tennessee corporation, entered into a contract for the exchange of 900,000 shares of BancoKentucky Company stock for 10,000 shares of Caldwell & Company stock, on certain conditions. By a supplemental contract between said parties, Caldwell & Company agreed to, and did deliver 100,000 shares of said 900,000 shares of BancoKentucky Company stock to The National Bank of Kentucky. Caldwell & Company also deposited 200,000 shares of said BancoKentucky Company stock with The Louisville Trust Company in escrow, pending the determination of the value of Caldwell & Company, under the terms of said contract of May 28, 1930. On September 8, 1930, Caldwell & Company deposited an additional 200,000 shares of said BancoKentucky Company stock with The Louisville Trust Company in escrow, pending the determination of the value of Caldwell & Company, under the terms of said contract.

121. That in said contract of May 28, 1930, Caldwell & Company represented that it had a net worth of $9,000,000.00. Caldwell & Company owned all of the stock of the Bank of Tennessee and had controlling or substantial interests in the following banks:

Fourth & First National Bank, Nashville, Tennessee
Holston-Union National Bank, Knoxville, Tennessee
Union Planters National Bank & Trust Co., Memphis, Tennessee
Manhattan Savings Bank & Trust Company, Memphis, Tennessee
Exchange National Bank, Little Rock, Arkansas
Nashville Trust Company, Nashville, Tennessee
American Bank & Trust Company, Lebanon, Tennessee
Alexandria Bank & Trust Company, Alexandria, Tennessee
South Knoxville Bank, Knoxville, Tennessee
Holston Trust Company, Knoxville, Tennessee and owned approximately 66⅔% of the Inter-Southern Life Insurance Company. Inter-Southern Life Insurance Company owned approximately 30% of the Missouri State Life Insurance Company, and Missouri State Life Insurance Company owned a controlling interest in the Southwestern Life Insurance Company, Texas.

122. That the quarterly dividends paid July 1 and October 1, 1930, on stock of the Banco Kentucky Company were not paid on the stock issued and outstanding in the name of Caldwell & Company, as the valuations contemplated by the contract had not been made. No dividend was paid on the 100,000 shares of BancoKentucky Company stock delivered by Caldwell & Company to the National Bank of Kentucky, nor did Caldwell & Company purchase from the National Bank of Kentucky the Kentucky Wagon Manufacturing Company and National Motors Corporation obligations as provided in said supplemental contract. 10,000 shares of stock of Caldwell & Company representing 50% of the stock of said company, were issued to the Banco-Kentucky Company. The firm of Price Waterhouse Company, Certified Public Accountants, completed an audit of Caldwell & Company on November 30, 1931, as of May 31, 1930. That audit shows that on May 31, 1930, Caldwell & Company was insolvent to the extent of $1,111,170.33 and that the stock was wholly worthless on said date.

Defendants in their response admitted paragraph 122 except that they denied that Caldwell & Company did not complete the purchase of the Kentucky Wagon Company and National Motors Corporation obligations from the National Bank of Kentucky because said sale was completed.

The words in this paragraph "said stock was wholly worthless" were admitted subject to examination of the audit referred to in the paragraph by defendants' attorneys.

Defendants admitted that the audit was made as of the date set forth.

123. Caldwell & Company was placed in the hands of a Clearing House Committee on November 6, 1930, and a receiver was appointed for said Company on November 14, 1930, by the United States District Court at Nashville, Tennessee, on the filing of a Creditors' Bill. The creditors of said Company have received a final liquidating dividend of less than one tenth of one per cent.

Defendants admitted this paragraph.

Secretary of the State of Delaware, December 31, 1930.

Paragraphs 183 and 184 were not admitted but the exhibits referred to were offered in evidence and received by the court.

Earl R. Muir,

called for Plaintiff, testified as follows:

I have been connected with the Louisville Trust Company since its reorganization and have been President since November, 1937. The Louisville Trust Company failed to open on November 17, 1930, and The Fidelity and Columbia Trust Company, a Louisville bank, was appointed receiver. It continued to act until August 24, 1931. A 100% stock assessment amounting to $1,750,000.00 was levied and a claim in that amount was allowed against the Banco-Kentucky Company. Some of the depositors of the Louisville Trust Company, those that did not consent to the plan of reorganization, received 100% of their deposit in cash on opening date in August, 1931. Those owning $10,000,000.00—between 90% and 95% of the Bank's assets—received 20% in cash on the opening date; 5% in ninety days; 5% in six months; 5% in a year and 20% in two years, a total of 55%. They also received in stock of the reorganized Louisville Trust Company 15% of their deposit, and they received a depositor's refunding certificate representing 30% of what they had in the bank. Nothing has been paid on the refunding certificates. The refunding certificates were payable out of the undesirable assets of the bank. The total cash realized was 55% plus such amounts as might have been realized through sale of the stock, which has ranged in the market price from $3.50 a share to $18.00 a share. At the present time, November 2, 1938, stock is selling at $7.00 per share. In the reorganization of Louisville Trust Company the same corporate entity was retained, and the Trust Company still operates under the same charter. However, it has a different set of stockholders. It took over only the desirable assets. For all practical purposes the present Louisville Trust Company is a new bank.

Cross-examination by Mr. Dodd

The Louisville Trust Company, as of November 17, 1930, owned the real estate on the southwest corner of Fifth and Market Streets, and it has now been determined that it owned the building at 421 West Market Street. As of opening date, August 24, 1931, there were outstanding $9,956,000.00 of 5½% collateral trust notes which were secured by real estate mortgages. There was a substantial decline in the value of real estate securing those bonds as a result of the depression of 1929, which reached such proportions, that during the past several years the Trust Company had to foreclose and acquired a substantial amount of the real estate on which the Trust Company was obliged to take substantial losses before a sale could be effected. This fact was taken partly into consideration when the amount paid depositors was considered in the reorganization. A reserve against real estate of something in excess of $1,000,000.00 was set up in the plan of reorganization.

Fred W. Gates,

called for Plaintiff, testified as follows:

I was Vice-President of the old Louisville Trust Company prior to the reorganization.

Witness produced the minute book of the Board of Directors of Louisville Trust Company from April, 1911, to August 15, 1931, and plaintiff offered in evidence each of the minutes for the period subsequent to January 1, 1927 and up to August 15, 1931. The exhibit was admitted in evidence, over the objection of the defendants, as Exhibit No. 130 (see original exhibits—2 volumes).

Witness also produced the following exhibits, all of which were introduced over the objection of defendants:

Cross-examination by Mr. Dodd

I became connected with the Louisville Trust Company in September, 1912, as a runner and have gone through practically all the cages in the bank, tellers' cages, note cages and trust department. My first official capacity was assistant treasurer, then treasurer, then assistant vice-president. On the reorganization I became secretary of the company.

Q. Did you know or believe that Louisville Trust Company was insolvent, or that its insolvency was impending in any month in the year 1929 from January 1 to July 16?

(Objection to this question overruled and the court held that Mr. Gates became the witness of the defendants for the purpose of this question, subject to the right of the plaintiff to cross-examine him.)

A. I did not.

called for the plaintiff, testified:

I am a certified public accountant and a member of the firm of White, Bower & Prevo. I have been an accountant since 1928 and received my preliminary education and training at the University of Michigan. I worked for approximately six months for the firm of Peyton & Ross in Ann Arbor, Michigan, and for four and one-half years with Lybrand, Ross Bros., and Montgomery. Since 1933 I have been a member of my present firm. We have offices in Detroit and Chicago.

I have personally examined a large number of banks throughout the United States, including, among others, the First National Bank, in Detroit, the Peoples Wayne County Bank and American State Bank, in that city, the Liberty State Bank of Milwaukee, the First Wisconsin National Bank of Milwaukee, the Ottawa State Bank of Ottawa, and certain records of the National Bank of Kentucky.

I started to work on records of the National Bank of Kentucky in 1931 and have done considerable work on those records since that date.

Exhibit 68, prepared by me, is entitled "Report of Operations of BancoKentucky Company for the period of October 1, 1929, to November 22, 1930." This exhibit was prepared from the general ledger and cash journal of the BancoKentucky Company. This exhibit is an analysis of the operations of the company for the period mentioned, as shown by the books of account of the company. It is broken down into quarters. The first period is October 1, 1929, to December 31, 1929, and for each quarter thereafter, and for the short period from October 2, 1930, to November 22, 1930. The last column is the total for the entire period.

The first section shows the income of the BancoKentucky Company, as shown by its books of account. That is classified as to the various classes of income. There are only two classes of income: interest and dividends on bank stock. The interest was paid by the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company on certificates of deposit. There is also an item of interest of $2707.40 paid on stock subscriptions, which were not paid by October 1, 1929.

The item of expenses is broken down into various classes such as interest paid, examiner's fees, etc. The interest paid was on money borrowed by Banco from the Chemical Bank & Trust Company, and for a short period from the National Bank of Kentucky. The money borrowed was deposited in the National Bank of Kentucky and Banco received interest back on this deposit.

I found no item recorded on the books of the company which reflected any payment of salaries to employees or officers. There was no item of office expense in the way of rent, no expenditure for heat, light or telephone.

The total income from the period from October 1, 1929, to November 22, 1930, was $1,307,662.29. The total expense was $97,413.24. The net income was $1,210,249.05.

Total dividends paid to stockholders during the entire period of its existence was $1,253,513.00, which was $43,263.95 in excess of net income received. The money to pay the deficit came from the National Bank of Kentucky. It was met by an overdraft in the sum of $81,537.15 in that bank. Every quarter, after the first quarter, BancoKentucky Company paid out in dividends to its stockholders more than its net income as shown by its books of account. For the quarter ending April 1, 1930, the excess was $23,824.34; for the quarter ending July 1, 1930, the excess was $30,410.64; for the quarter ending October 1, 1930, the excess was $13,212.45; in the short period from October 1, 1930, to November 22, 1930, there were no dividends paid but the expenses exceeded the income for that period by the amount of $1332.47.

The report also shows the excess of amount received for BancoKentucky Company stock over amount paid on retirement of the same. This is shown by quarters and the total equals $275,862.50. That figure represents the difference between the amount paid by the BancoKentucky Company for 106,000 shares of its own stock which was retired, less the amount which BancoKentucky Company had received on the sale of that stock. This figure was placed on this statement in order that the statement will tie-out with the undivided profit account as shown by the books of the BancoKentucky Company. The figure is taken from the books and is there set up as an operating profit. It grew out of the fact that the company bought back its own stock for less than the price for which it sold the stock. In my opinion this is not an operating profit in any sense of the word. It is a capital and surplus adjustment item. However, I place it on the statement to tie-back with the books. The item simply means that by purchase of their own stock they have adjusted their own capital liability.

The exhibit also shows the details of the dividends and from which bank the dividends came. Also, the various details of the expense classifications as shown on the statement.

The percentage of the income received by Banco from dividends as compared to the interest item and the sum received from the Union Central Life Insurance Company dividend was in excess of 90%.

Exhibit 116 is a statement showing comparison of quarterly net earnings, loans charged off, less recoveries and net additions to reserve for taxes with dividends paid as shown by books of the National Bank of Kentucky from April 1, 1927, to September 30, 1930. The tabulation is by quarters.

The black figures in the last column show the excess of the net earnings of the National Bank of Kentucky for the quarter indicated over dividends paid during that quarter. The red figures show the excess of dividends paid during that particular quarter over the net earnings for that period. The final figure in the amount of $500,905.27 is the net total of the items shown for each quarter. It shows that during the period April 1, 1927, to September 30, 1930, the National Bank of Kentucky paid out $500,509.27 in dividends more than their net earnings during that said period. This is shown by the books of the National Bank of Kentucky. The figures only take into consideration such chargeoffs as were actually made on the books of account not those that were requested by the National Bank Examiners in their bank examinations but not made.

Exhibit 120 is a calculation of the proportionate ownership of National Bank of Kentucky stock represented by ownership of each share of BancoKentucky Company and the proportionate part of assessment on National Bank of Kentucky stock allocated to the ownership of each share of BancoKentucky Company stock. It is an arithmetical accounting to determine the percentage of national bank stock represented by a share of holding company stock and allocating the assessment on the bank stock held by the holding company to the shares of the holding company stock. The amount of the calculation is $2.305386. This is somewhat less than the amount for which an accounting was prayed for in the petition. The figure there used is $2.304909. The difference is in favor of the stockholder.

Exhibit 77 is a summary of the interlocking directors of the National Bank of Kentucky, the Louisville Trust Company and BancoKentucky Company for the years 1927 to 1930, inclusive. It was made up from the minutes of the stockholders and directors of the three institutions. Each of the directors is listed in the first column. The second column headed "Elected to Board of Directors" and subheaded "National Bank of Kentucky and Louisville Trust Company," shows the date of election of the individual for the year 1927. The word "yes" shows that the director was elected under the date listed.

The next two columns are for the year 1928 and this is followed by three columns for the year 1929 and three columns for the year 1930 showing the date the directors were elected. The exhibit does not show the interlocking directorate between directors of BancoKentucky Company and any of the banks whose stock was held by BancoKentucky Company other than the Louisville Trust Company and the National Bank of Kentucky.

Exhibit 146 is a report on loans made by the Louisville Trust Company for payment of subscriptions to capital stock of BancoKentucky Company during the period September 25, 1929, to November 7, 1929. The exhibit was prepared from the books of the Louisville Trust Company and the BancoKentucky Company. It shows the amount borrowed from the Louisville Trust Company to pay original subscriptions to capital stock of the BancoKentucky Company. The first column lists the name of the subscriber to Banco stock; the next column is the date on which the subscription was paid; the third column is the amount of the subscription and the last column is the amount borrowed to pay the subscription. The amount borrowed was taken from the books of the Louisville Trust Company. The remaining information came from books of BancoKentucky Company.

The exhibit shows that $1,637,154.62 was borrowed from the Louisville Trust Company to pay for original subscriptions to stock of the BancoKentucky Company.

Exhibit 147 is a report on bills payable and rediscounts of Louisville National Bank & Trust Company and Louisville Trust Company for the period from January 1, 1929, to November 16, 1930. It was prepared from the books and records of the Louisville National Bank & Trust Company and the Louisville Trust Company. It shows for each month in the year 1929 and 1930 until November 16, 1930, the number of days each month the banks were indebted for money borrowed. It also shows the average daily borrowings of the bank for that time.

In January, 1929, the Louisville Trust Company was indebted for money borrowed for 31 days. The average daily borrowing was $709,677.00. At the same time, the Louisville National Bank & Trust Company was indebted for the full month with an average daily borrowing of $678,232.00. The report shows the same information for each month during the period. The exhibit shows that in May, 1929, the Louisville National Bank & Trust Company was indebted for only 25 days. The reason for that was that the Louisville National Bank & Trust Company was consolidated with the Louisville Trust Company on May 25, 1929, and from that time only it had no separate existence.

Exhibit 148 (not reproduced—original exhibits) is a summary of information relating to holdings of stock of BancoKentucky Company by all stockholders on November 17, 1930. This exhibit was prepared under my supervision. The first column naming the shareholders was prepared from the list of shareholders of the BancoKentucky Company as of November 17, 1930. It was taken from the records of the transfer agent, Louisville Trust Company.

The second column—amount of assessment—is a mathematical computation of the total number of shares multiplied by the rate as shown in the bill $2.304909. The information in the third column under the heading "Total shares" was received from the transfer agent.

The next four columns under the heading "Classification of Stockholders" refers to the persons listed in column 1. The first column under that general heading—Exchanged TPC for Banco—shows the holdings of the stockholders on November 17, 1930, who exchanged Trustees' Participation Certificates for BancoKentucky Company stock in 1929. The next column—Exchanged other Bank stock for Banco—lists the shares of stock of BancoKentucky Company held by stockholders on November 17, 1930, who exchanged bank stock other than Trustees' Participation Certificates for BancoKentucky stock. As for example, a Pearl Market or Brighton Bank stockholder who exchanged his stock for stock of the BancoKentucky Company and who was not a holder of a TPC.

The next column under the caption "Original Subscriber for Banco" shows the number of shares of BancoKentucky Company stock held by stockholders on November 17, 1930, where those stockholders were original stockholders for BancoKentucky Company but were not shown as having exchanged Trustees' Participation Certificates or other bank stock for BancoKentucky Company.

The fourth column entitled, "Otherwise Acquired Banco" shows the number of shares of BancoKentucky Company stock held on November 17, 1930, by all other stockholders of the company who are not listed in the first three columns.

On November 17, 1930, there were 2,072,468 shares of capital stock of the BancoKentucky Company outstanding, exclusive of the 400,000 shares that were held in escrow by the Louisville Trust Company. The total number of shares held on that date by stockholders who exchanged Trustees' Participation Certificates for BancoKentucky Company stock amounted to $1,063,517.00, or 66.68% of the total outstanding stock on November 17, 1930. The percentage held by stockholders who exchanged Trustees' Participation Certificates for BancoKentucky Company stock with the shares issued to Caldwell & Co. added in, but not including the 40,000 shares issued to Caldwell & Co. held in escrow, shares on which no dividend was paid, amounted to 51.32%.

The total number of shares of stock of BancoKentucky Company held on November 17, 1930, by stockholders who exchanged their bank stock other than Trustees' Participation Certificates for BancoKentucky Company stock amounted to 159,833 shares and excluding the Caldwell stock this group held 10.02% of the entire outstanding stock. If the Caldwell stock is included then this group held 7.71%.

Persons falling into the third classification, that is, original subscribers who did not exchange either TPC's or other bank stock for BancoKentucky stock held on November 17, 1930, 191,556 shares, and excluding the stock on which no dividends were paid they held 12.01% of all the outstanding shares. If the stock which was outstanding in the hands of Caldwell & Company but on which no dividends were paid was included then this group held 9.24%. Subscriptions for this stock by persons in this group were made on the perforated portion of Exhibit 24-4, that is, the bottom part of the subscription blank.

The exhibit includes a classification of the shares of stock of the BancoKentucky Company held on November 17, 1930, by Caldwell & Company and its nominees. There were 480,086 such shares and this included 100,000 shares held by the bank. Excluding the Caldwell stock on which no dividends were paid, but including the 100,000 shares, the percentage of the total under group four to the total number of shares of stock outstanding was less than 1%—only .73%.

If the Caldwell stock itself was included in the total, it would amount to 23.60%.

Group 5—Shares of stock of BancoKentucky Company held on November 17, 1930, by Stockholders whose stock was otherwise acquired—includes 168,476 shares in the classification. In that classification I would include an individual who bought BancoKentucky Company stock in a brokerage house without ever having prior thereto had any connection whatsoever with the company or its subsidiaries. All shareholders appear in the last classification where their stock was acquired other than by exchange or through original subscriptions. The percentage of the total to the whole, including the Caldwell stock in this group, is 8.13% and if the Caldwell stock is excluded it is 10.56%.

Cross-examination by Judge Deitzman

The exhibit lists Richard P. Deitzman total number of shares 150. There is also a listing in the third column, exchanged TPC's for Banco 150. I do not know whether the record shows a subscription blank on your part for 10 shares and 140 exchanged. I have made no attempt to divide between those who exchanged. Where one individual exchanged TPC's and also subscribed for Banco I put him in the column of those who exchanged TPC's for Banco. The third column does not mean that the person listed exchanged Trustees' Participation Certificates for all the Banco stock included. It shows that the individual listed had a certain number of shares on that day and that he exchanged TPC's for Banco. There is no way from reading the exhibit to show that you subscribed for 10 shares of Banco and not for 150.

The Court: "He doesn't say that all that stock was exchanged for Participation Certificates; he says that in the case here of Judge Deitzman that he owned 150 shares and that he was an original owner of participation certificates, which he exchanged. It is just to identify him as having originally been a holder of participation certificates—it says he wound up with 150 shares of Banco stock and that he acquired some of that stock by exchange for participation certificates."

Judge Deitzman: "I wonder if they will agree to add 'exchanged TPC's for Banco stock in whole or in part.'"

The Court: "You have no objection to that addition suggested by Judge Deitzman—it is nothing more than exactly what the column is. I think in the light of the cross-examination it is a proper addition to the exhibit."

Judge Marx: "We agree to the addition."

Cross-examination by Mr. Van Winkle

If a man had one share of stock in an Ashland or a Paducah bank, which he exchanged for Banco and on another occasion acquired 1000 shares of Banco by purchase, he would be listed in the second column even though he only got 20 shares by exchange and purchased 1000 shares. Only the amount he held on November 17, 1930, is shown in that column. The list is not confined to the amount of stock that the individual acquired in Banco by exchange. It includes all stock that the individual who happened to get some stock in Banco by exchange may have acquired at a subsequent date and which stands in his name on November 17, 1930, regardless of how to get it. It means that in whole or in part he got some of his stock by exchange.

Mr. Van Winkle: "The column ought to have 'acquired in whole or in part by exchange of other bank stock.'"

The Court: "I am going to add to this exhibit 'Exchanged TPC's for Banco in whole or in part,' and 'exchanged other bank stock for Banco in whole or in part.'

That will indicate that possibly only a fraction of the number of shares was received in exchange for TPC's or for other bank stock—the question involved here is knowledge. It doesn't make any difference whether he got four or just one share if he exchanged any TPC's for Banco. He couldn't have knowledge for some of his stock and no knowledge on the other—if a man owned any stock whatsoever which he acquired by exchanging TPC's, no matter how much more stock he got, the question of knowledge is what this court is concerned with and you can't separate it and say he had knowledge as to that and no knowledge as to what he acquired in the open market."

recalled for cross-examination by Mr. Crawford, testified:

I first came to Louisville to work on affairs of the National Bank of Kentucky in 1931. I then examined certain records of the bank and various other concerns in connection with the directors' suit. Somewhere between twenty and thirty men connected with the firm of Lybrand, Ross Bros. & Montgomery with whom I was then associated were engaged in the work. I worked on this matter from May of 1931 until the following March. Then I was away for awhile and was back in Louisville until July of 1932. Some of the other senior accountants who were here were Mr. H. Glenn Huffman, Harold Hoffman and Carl Lutz. Lybrand was engaged in that matter from May of 1931 until June, 1932.

The bank was a large bank in comparison with many banks but it was much smaller than the First National Bank in Detroit or some other banks I have worked on. It had resources at various times up to sixty million dollars and down to probably thirty-five million dollars. It had a regular amount of files for a bank of that size, including credit files for the borrowers of the bank and correspondence files. I worked on the Wakefield matter, Caldwell matter, Herald-Post and some other items.

It was stipulated that there were two hundred employees of the bank. The bank had a great many transactions every day.

Q. How big were the letter files?

The Court: It will be assumed by the court that they were very large.

The figures shown on Exhibit 68 were taken from the books of the BancoKentucky Company. The exhibit is an analysis of the operation and reconciliation to the undivided profits account as shown by the books. There are other receipts and disbursements which do not affect operations. For instance, the sale of capital stock and purchases of banks. None of that is recorded in the exhibits. On December 23, 1929, which was a dividend date, there were 1,719,842 shares outstanding. No dividend was paid on 187,173 shares of this stock. Dividend was paid on 1,532,669 shares. The dividend was $306,533.80. If the Banco-Kentucky Company had simply held a Trustees' Participation Certificate entitling it to dividends from the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company it would not receive from them enough money to pay the total dividend which Banco paid. Banco had to earn money from other sources other than the participation receipts which it held in order to pay the dividend. The amount of dividends which Banco received on Trustees' Participation Certificates was $210,297.60.

Both the Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company paid a dividend to the Trustees on the same day that Banco paid a dividend to its shareholders. Banco could not have paid the dividend which was paid on its outstanding stock which was issued for cash and in exchange for stock of other banks out of the dividends which Banco received from the Trustees' Participation Certificates. They had to get other income to take care of that dividend. They had to first pay expenses which during that period were $37,054.48.

Banco received $79,000.00 interest from the Louisville Trust Company and the National Bank of Kentucky on certificates of deposit and $210,297.60 dividend from those institutions on stock which Banco owned in those two banks. That was the only payment that Banco received from the Louisville Trust Company and the National Bank of Kentucky by reason of the ownership of the Trustees' Participation Certificates. However, the interest paid to BancoKentucky Company on certificates of deposit was at a much higher rate than regular certificates of deposit. This higher rate was paid by reason of Banco's ownership of these participation certificates.

After deducting from the $210,000.00 expenses of Banco-Kentucky Company, approximately $173,000.00 remained. If only the original trustees' certificate holders were concerned it would have taken the whole $210,297.60 to pay the same dividend rate. Banco had other sources of dividends in addition to the National Bank of Kentucky out of which it could pay the entire dividend. It received dividends on other bank stock and the interest items. Banco could not pay its dividend out of the dividend it received from other banks plus the dividend from the Louisville Trust Company and the National Bank of Kentucky. They had to supplement that with earnings from money they had which was deposited in the Louisville Trust Company and the National Bank of Kentucky.

The total income of the BancoKentucky Company for the first period, less the expenses paid exceeded the amount of the dividend for that quarter. After deducting from the income received during that period the expense and dividend paid the balance was $25,515.95. In order to have that amount left over at the end after paying expenses and the dividend on the Banco stock, taking into consideration only expenses actually paid, the amount of their income, that is, income other than dividends on bank stocks received during that period, was $82,345.62, which is the total of the first two lines in Col. 1, Ex. 68, made up of interest on certificates of deposit and interest on stock subscriptions.

The total dividends paid by Banco to all its stockholders during any one period exceeded the amount of dividends received by Banco on Trustees' Participation Certificates. There was no period when the income from bank stock held by Banco equalled the dividend payment. If there were any expenses incurred by Banco in addition to those set out in Exhibit 68, that is expenses not paid, then the deficit at the end of each quarter would be increased.

Approximately 390,000 shares were sold by BancoKentucky Company coincident with the transfer of the Trustees' Participation Certificates. In order for a person transferring his Trustees' Certificates to Banco having any assurance that he would get the same dividend that he had theretofore received he would have to assume that the other bank stocks which the holding company were buying would pay the same rate.

Banco paid for some of the Cincinnati stock in September, 1929, and was under contract to buy. No expenses are shown on the books of Banco other than those set out in the exhibit. The claim of the Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky for services is not included. The records only go to the date of the receivership of Banco and claims made with the receiver are not set out in the exhibit.

BancoKentucky Company shows a balance in the undivided profit account at the close. I made a distinction between operations and other monies they had or received in the undivided profits account. I did not include the sale of stock and repurchase of stock in operations. Trading in stock is not an operating profit of the company. If a company sells investment stock cheaper than it buys it that is an operating profit but retirement of their own capital stock is not such an operating profit. According to their books the stock was cancelled as an outstanding liability. The surplus account was reduced. The capital stock account was reduced and the undivided profits account was increased. That made a profit of $275,862.50 which is called an appreciation on purchase of stock. It is not an operating profit. The red figure of $43,263.95, which appears in the last column of the exhibit, does not appear on the books of the company. I put this excess of amount received for BancoKentucky stock over amount paid on retirement in here to bring the operations of the BancoKentucky Company into agreement with the books of account. This is not a copy of the books, it is an analysis. It is not changed from what the books show.

The Court: That just purports to be a summary account of what the books indicate to an auditor.

Exhibit 116 shows the extent or deficiency of net earnings as over the dividends paid as of particular dates. It shows the net additions to reserve for taxes compared with the dividends paid as shown by the books of the National Bank of Kentucky from April 1, 1927, to September 30, 1930. It does not take into account any carry-over earnings not distributed as of the beginning of the quarter. The undivided profits of the bank as of the beginning date of this statement were $1,459,511.58.

Exhibit DP-17 (filed in the case of Keyes v. Akers) made by Mr. Carl W. Lutz, who was a senior accountant and a qualified one and was working for the same firm I was, Lybrand, Ross Brothers & Montgomery, at the time we were making preparations for the trial of the case of Keyes v. Akers, is a schedule which agrees with my statement.

"Q. 262. I show you exhibit No. DP-17 made by Mr. Carl W. Lutz of your organization and brought by the Receiver in evidence—the plaintiff in that case: I will ask you if that was not filed in there and if that isn't a statement made up purporting to show the same thing you refer to in this case?

A. Well, inasfar as this schedule goes it agrees with my statement. That only has three columns, while I have additional information on mine. That first column agrees. The next column is the dividend paid, which agrees with the column 'Dividend Paid' in mine.

Q. 263. Isn't the final answer in yours the same as this here 'Excess or Deficiency of Net Earnings Over Dividends?'

A. That is the heading of my last column."

I have additional information on mine. The first and second columns are the same. The heading of the final column "Excess or Deficiency of Net Earnings Over Dividends" is also the same. I did not compare my statement with the published statements of the bank. The earning statements of the bank were never published and I have never seen them. There was always a balance to the undivided profits account, according to the books of the bank. The reduction in the undivided profits account of the National Bank of Kentucky, covered by the period from April 1, 1927, to September 30, 1930, was $1,312,754.00. The change in the capital structure came at the time of the unification, which was after April 1, 1927. $1,000,000.00 was taken from the undivided profits account and put into capital between April 1, 1927, and June 30, 1927. The net change, as far as operation goes, in the undivided profits account is $312,000.00. The schedule shows it at $500,905.27, and the heading shows exactly how it is made up. Exhibit 116 agrees with the books.

Exhibit 77 is a summary of the interlocking directors of the National Bank of Kentucky, Louisville Trust Company and BancoKentucky Company. Forty-nine directors were elected to BancoKentucky Company. Sixteen had been directors of Louisville National Bank and Trust Company. All the remainder, thirty-three, were directors of National Bank of Kentucky before Banco was formed. Of the thirty-three, fourteen retired from the Board of the National Bank of Kentucky, but still remained on the Board of Banco. The sixteen directors of Banco who came from the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company were never directors of the Bank of Kentucky. The Louisville Trust Company directors retired from the Bank of Kentucky Board in January, 1930.

The average daily borrowings by National Bank of Kentucky for the month of November, 1929, was as high as $15,026,711.00 as shown by Exhibit 117. The bank was in debt at all times to the close in 1930. The lowest monthly average of debt was in March of 1930, $322,581.00.

394,786 shares of Banco stock was subscribed for prior to October 1, 1929, and ultimately paid for in cash. These shares were issued for $9,869,650.00, as shown in Exhibit 126. The records of the company indicated that this stock was issued. Many of the people who bought these shares owned Trustees' Participation Certificates prior to that time. The amount of liability these trustees' certificates carried per share prior to the formation of Banco, in the event the National Bank of Kentucky failed, was approximately $6.97 for a $10.00 share. One Trustees' Participation Certificate was exchanged for two shares of Banco of the same par value, which meant that substantially each Banco share carried one-half of the liability of the trustees' participating shares. This is so on the assumption that only an exchange for Trustees' Participation Certificates for Banco was involved. Every time additional shares of Banco were added, the amount of liability per share would decrease since the per share assessment would be spread over more shares.

As an illustration, if a person had fifty shares of Trustees' Participation Certificates and transferred them into Banco without any other holders at all, his assessment liability would be $350.00 on his Trustees' Participation Certificates, figured on the basis of approximately $7.00 a share. He would get 100 shares of Banco and they would carry an assessment liability at approximately half of $6.97 per share, or $348.50.

recalled for plaintiff, testified:

My statement with reference to the assessment liability carried by a Trustees' Participation Certificate—$6.94 on a Trustees' Participation Certificate—did not refer to the entire assessment liability of such certificate, but only to that portion which represented ownership of National Bank of Kentucky stock. On the $10.00 par Trustees' Participation Certificate the total liability was $10.00, and on the $100.00 par certificate, it was $100.00.

In my opinion, there is no inconsistency between Exhibit 116 and the exhibit prepared by Mr. Lutz. In Mr. Lutz's statement the first column was for quarterly earnings the same as Exhibit 116. The second column was the quarterly net earnings, and agreed exactly with Exhibit 116. Those are the operating figures from the operating ledger closed out to undivided profits quarterly. Mr. Lutz's next column shows "Dividends Paid," which agrees to the next to last column of my schedule.

I have included in my schedule various things Mr. Lutz did not include. I have shown in the third column "Loans Charged Off, Less Recoveries." Those are items going directly to the undivided profits account, but they do not go through the account from the operating ledger. They are closed into the undivided profits quarterly.

The fourth column is headed "Addition to Reserve for Taxes, Less Taxes Paid." The National Bank of Kentucky had a system of charging to expense monthly a flat amount or arbitrary amount for taxes, and crediting that amount to a tax reserve. Then as the taxes were paid, they were charged to that reserve. It worked out that the amount set up in the reserve account was excessive, so, in order to show the correct picture of the operations of the bank, I have taken the net addition to the reserve, that is, the amount that is charged to expense and credited to reserve in excess of the amount which was actually paid for taxes each quarter, and set it up in the fourth column and added it to the net quarterly earnings. Then I deducted the amount of loans charged off—that is the third column—and that gives us the fifth column, or "Net Profit or Loss" column, which is just a mathematical calculation or deduction.

Cross-examination by Mr. Johnson

In Exhibit 148 the column labelled "Original Subscribers," which amounts to 191,556 shares, represents the stock held by various stockholders who were original subscribers to BancoKentucky Company stock where those same individuals did not change their bank stock or T.P.C.'s for Banco. It is the amount they still held on November 17. The second figure 168,476 represents shares of stock of BancoKentucky Company held on November 17, 1930, by stockholders whose stock was otherwise acquired. Among those stockholders are those who bought some on the open market, through brokers or otherwise.

Exhibit 126 shows that 394,786 shares of the stock was originally subscribed and paid for. The assessment would be approximately $2.97 if we would eliminate the 360,032 shares, which is the total of the last two columns as shown in Exhibit 148, that is on the assumption that the assessment is to be distributed over the remaining shares. The figure 394,786 shares on Exhibit 126 is the total number of shares of the BancoKentucky Company issued to the original subscribers for cash. The total of the last two columns in Exhibit 148 is the shares held on November 17, 1930, by stockholders who were not original T.P.C. holders or other bank stockholders whose stock was exchanged for the stock of BancoKentucky Company. Exhibit 126 shows that $9,869,650.00 was received by Banco for the 394,786 shares subscribed for. Exhibit 65-B shows the name of the stockholders and the amounts paid by each of those stockholders.

Cross-examination by Mr. Deitzman

Mr. Deitzman: "Mr. White, giving due credit to the amount recovered from the BancoKentucky Company on this assessment sought to be enforced, what is the amount of assessment per share on Banco, exclusive of interest in the bill? Interest is included. I think you told me it was between $1.76 and $1.77?

A. I think I told you between $1.77 and $1.78."

Robert Neill,

called by the plaintiff, testified:

I am Chief National Bank Examiner of the Eighth Federal Reserve District, under the Comptroller of the Currency of the United States. I served as examiner from January, 1913, for three years and resigned and came back into the service in 1928. As Chief National Bank Examiner for this District I personally make some examinations and supervise the making of another by a Board of Examiners and assistants. All told, I have been connected with the banking business one way or another for 36 years.

I made the last examination of the National Bank of Kentucky before its suspension. This was started as of September 17, 1930. In an examination the cash is counted, the notes are listed, and individual, general ledgers, and saving ledgers are proved, the accounts are reconciled with other banks and loans and investments are appraised to determine the state of solvency of the institution.

I have examined as many as four or five hundred banks and have reviewed four to five thousand national bank examinations. As a result, I have had considerable experience in the appraisal of loans. In the course of the examination of the National Bank of Kentucky I discussed the situation, condition and character of the loans and securities with the officers and other persons in the bank who were familiar with the situation.

I was transferred from New York City to St. Louis as Chief National Examiner of this district as of June 1, 1930. In reviewing the state of work and in order to familiarize myself with my new job, I conferred to quite an extent with my predecessor, Mr. John S. Wood, who was surrendering the position of Chief Examiner to become Chairman of the Board of the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis. I also reviewed the previous bank examinations of the National Bank of Kentucky made by my predecessor.

"Q. What did you ascertain from them as to the situation with reference to the National Bank of Kentucky?"

Defendant's objection was sustained to this question and his answer was made as an avowal.

"A. From investigation and research I made, I reached a very definite conclusion that the National Bank of Kentucky was in a critical condition before I started the examination."

The practice in an examination is for an examiner to mail his completed report to the Chief Examiner's office where the reports are typed, an original and four carbons being prepared. The original goes to the office of the Comptroller, the first carbon to the Federal Reserve Bank of the District, the second to the Board of Directors of the Bank, the fourth to the Field Examiner and the fifth being written as an office copy. National bank examinations are ordinarily made twice a year at irregular dates. The copy of the examiner's report that is mailed to the bank is addressed to the Board of Directors. There is clipped to each report a form letter of transmittal which is a perforated page. The upper half is the transmittal letter and the lower portion is an acknowledgment to be filled out and signed by an officer of the bank and returned to the Chief Examiner's office. This communication recites that the report has been considered in a regular or special meeting of the Board of Directors and signed by an authorized officer.

The reports sent to the National Bank of Kentucky were acknowledged in this fashion and these acknowledgments were filed in the Chief Examiner's office.

Exhibit 20 is a copy of the report of examination made as of September 17, 1930, from the books and records of the bank. During the making of that report I had occasion to discuss the matters mentioned with one or the other of the officers and I had such a conference with Mr. James B. Brown, President of the Bank.

My first introduction to Mr. Brown, first conference with him, was on the evening of October 7, 1930. It was held at the office of the National Bank of Kentucky and commenced about 8:30 and lasted until three o'clock the next morning.

I had previously arranged to participate in the meeting of the Board of Directors to be held the next day, and I wanted to discuss the condition of the bank, as it appeared to me, with Mr. Brown before going into the directors' meeting. I did so in great detail that evening, which resulted in the long conference.

We discussed every criticism pointed out in the report without exception. The next day, October 9, a meeting was held with the Board of Directors in the Directors' room on the second or third floor of the Louisville Trust Company building. Thirteen directors were present including President Brown. At that time the examination was not completed and was still in progress. I prepared an agenda of the matters I desired to discuss with the Board of Directors.

"Q. Will you state from memory what subject you discussed before the Board of Directors and summarize what occurred in that meeting?

"Mr. Crawford: I object on behalf of all defendants other than the Directors present that day."

The court sustained this objection but admitted the answer as to all directors who were stockholders.

The regular order of business was disposed of first and then Mr. Brown turned the meeting over to me and announced who I was. I started in to explain to them about the current examination of the bank which was then in progress, stating that I was a newcomer in this particular section of the country, but that I had known of the National Bank of Kentucky ever since I had been in the banking business and knew its big reputation, and that coming to this district as Chief Examiner I had found that this was the biggest National Bank in the district outside of the city of St. Louis, and that it had 400 or 500 country bank deposits, about $10,000,000 of country bank deposits representing the reserve of the country banks, and in my opinion, a bank of that type and character should have an unusually liquid condition of its assets and that I was correspondingly distressed on this, my first examination, to find that its assets were, in my judgment, in a lamentable condition.

The second item I took up was that the condition found was an indictment of the management of the bank. The third was that the trend was absolutely disconcerting to me, and I took up the question first of law violation. The first item under that head was Wakefield & Company—direct loans and accommodation loans for Wakefield, and I told them that in the first place the collateral was short, and next that the collateral—namely, that the collateral was not sufficient. As the loan was excessive in amount, it was illegal; and we had discovered in the course of our examination that they were carrying a $100,000 note of Wakefield & Company which was put in the bank for the purpose of establishing a balance to make it appear that the line of credit to Wakefield & Company was based on compensating balances. To offset this $100,000 note a $100,000 Certificate of Deposit had been issued by the bank, payable to Wakefield, and it developed during the examination that during the past examination interest had been collected on this $100,000 note paid by Wakefield & Company's check and then, shortly after the Examiners had left the Bank, this interest was rebated to Wakefield & Company and charged to undivided profits.

In my opinion it was perfectly apparent that these entries were made with intent to deceive first, the Board of Directors that the loan or credit to Wakefield & Company was based on compensating balances, and second, to deceive the Examiners that interest was paid on this loan, and that in my opinion the officers of the bank had probably rendered themselves criminally liable under the section of the statutes about making reports with intent to deceive.

In that connection, I took up the Van Camp deal from its inception, as I understood it. I told them I considered the purchase of that last amount of stock was illegal and ultra vires that the bank had originally had some Van Camp stock which had presumably been legally acquired, and that subsequently the corporation gave rights to the old stockholders permitting them to buy a certain amount of new stock at a fixed price but it was decidedly moot question as to whether a National Bank had a right to exercise such option to purchase this additional stock against stock that they had already acquired in the course of business legally. That I leaned to the opinion that it would be illegal for them to exercise those rights in the first place but this purchase represented a much larger amount of new Van Camp stock than possibly those rights entitled them to buy.

Then the question was taken up about them paying $22.00 a share for that stock when it was reported to me that some of the Directors in the Bank had bought it at $18.00 about the same time and later on this same stock which was bought at $22.00 a share was sold back to Wakefield & Company at $4.00, resulting in a loss of $242,500. Instead of charging that off as a loss, that the loss had been capitalized by adding that to the carrying value of 100,000 shares of BancoKentucky stock, which the bank had acquired in the deal with Caldwell & Company— ostensibly through such a deal.

Then I took up the Norman Company excess loans. In the first place, it was perfectly apparent it was a bad loan and that the bank practically owned the business. As I recall the figures they had nearly $800,000 in the business which was two or three times more than the stockholders had according to the statement from the bank's credit files and I proposed to discuss that further when we got down to the question of individual losses.

Then I took up the line of credit of Caldwell & Company that in my opinion it was an excessive loan made in violation of law, and that the recent loan had been made on the basis of a higher value per share of the Inter-Southern Life Insurance stock than the then market price and I would discuss that further when we got to the next point of "Concentration." Then we took up the question of overdrafts outstanding and one of these was the Kentucky Wagon Manufacturing Company overdraft and E. B. Norman & Company overdraft and the Herald-Post Company overdraft.

The Kentucky Wagon Manufacturing Company had ostensibly been sold and no longer belonged to the bank, yet the bank was continuing to pour money into it by allowing overdrafts of that company amounting to that time to $55,000 or $60,000; that from the trend of the business of E. B. Norman & Company it looked like it was pouring water down a rat hole, to put any more money into that, and yet they were continuing to finance them through the medium of overdrafts.

Then I called attention to the Herald-Post overdraft, at the Fourth Street Branch and that it was a large one, and I understood from some of the Directors that it was not always properly reported. The Herald-Post Company has two accounts with the Fourth Street Branch, one of which showed a credit and the other an overdraft, and in reporting to the Board, the management reported the net overdraft and didn't give the Directors the true picture that I thought they ought to know about this situation.

Then we took up the question of the concentration of credits. I recited to them that our research into the affairs of the bank had gone to the point to show that the bank had $2,251,000 at risk on the basis of collateral of the American Turf Association stock, 121,263 shares.

The loan on the American Turf Association stock represented approximately twenty-five per cent of the total outstanding stock of that corporation. It was an unlisted stock with a restricted market and in my opinion it was mighty poor banking to land one-half of the bank's capital on an unlisted stock.

Then we took up the question of the loans on BancoKentucky. There were loans of about $3,478,000 against 212,564 shares of Banco and that was 8.62 per cent of the outstanding stock. In addition to that the bank had in its Investment Account 100,000 shares which represented about 4.06 per cent, that with the collateral and what they owned they had about 12.68 per cent of the stock in the corporation which owned the bank practically 100 per cent and in my opinion loans on this stock were illegal in that they were made to an extent an undetermined amount at that time made against the stock of the bank itself, and that the same criticism applied to the 100,000 shares they had in the Investment Account.

Then on the question of Caldwell loans on Inter-Southern Life Insurance Company stock, the figure I had on the memorandum was $2,708,000 and at that time they had 567,000 shares of Inter-Southern Life Insurance Company stock as collateral, and I understood that represented about 20 per cent of the outstanding stock of the Inter-Southern Life Insurance Company.

Before that meeting, at some time, I don't remember just when, I personally suggested to Mr. Speed that I thought they ought to withhold approval of that last $300,000 loan on Inter-Southern Life Insurance Company stock, that I considered it excessive, and under my construction of the law, Directors who voted approval of an excessive loan became personally liable for any loan that resulted on those loans; that I wanted to work with the Board with the idea of cleaning up the bank, and I wanted to show my good faith by not leading them into any traps.

I called attention to the fact that the loans represented in this tabulation amounted to $8,519,000; that that amount closely approximated one-third of the total loans in the bank; that none of those loans were eligible for rediscount with the Federal Reserve Bank and in addition to that were subject to severe criticism on account of putting, as I considered it, too much at risk on the basis of these stocks. It was a wholly undesirable distribution of the credits to the bank.

Then I brought up the question of the lack of cohesion among the officers, as I expressed it on this memorandum. It was perfectly apparent from the contact that I had had with the officers of the bank during the course of this examination that there were questions of lack of cooperation, and I might even state jealousies existing in the personnel, which was a bad trend in a bank of this size with the type of deposits I found that it had.

Then I found that it had two re-purchase agreements out for about $2,400,000, as I recall, and that this great concentration, I mentioned above, was emphasized by the fact that my information from the Auditor of the bank was that there was only 4,000,000 of eligible papers in its portfolios, and that contrary to the position of the bank in past years when they had had to borrow heavily from the Federal Reserve, they had no United States bonds, which were eligible as collateral with the Federal Reserve banks, that they had a minimum amount of secondary reserve in liquid bonds which could be used as collateral with correspondents, that the bank had in the past borrowed $17,000,000 to $18,000,000, and if the future again presented a need for such a borrowing capacity, they would be up against it.

Then we took up in detail the question of Estimated Losses, and some of the other loans that were considered slow and doubtful. I am quite sure we didn't attempt to go into all of them. Examiner Mooney sat along side me with his complete loan slips. When we would go into the question of any particular loan he had the information available there on his loan card and I would take that and read the information he had fixed up about this particular loan, and then they were taken up for discussion.

Mr. Brown would call on the officer who had charge of the department in which this particular loan originated and ask for a statement from him in regard to it, and there were practically no loans in this list on which there was any material difference of opinion; when we got through with the discussion, they were practically all admitted losses. I then produced a list aggregating $1,554,812.95.

Included in the list was Murray Rubber Company, $580,000, which was considered absolutely valueless and which was admitted by those present to be a loss. I also listed the Lewis Humphrey note, another item on the list, in the sum of $24,700.00, as a total loss. There was some discussion on that item but in the last final analysis was admitted as a loss. After the discussion of the losses we came to the discussion of my conclusion or recommendations in the matter. The first one was to provide for the present loss estimate. The next was to stop the bad trend in the question of the assets and management. My recommendation was to change the form of management by amending the By-Laws to provide for an Executive Committee of six Directors who should control the investment policy of the bank, and that there should be a By-Law defining the powers and duties and responsibilities of the Officers to the Board.

The question of determining the losses was postponed until the next day. The hour was growing late and I suggested at this first meeting the personnel for this Executive Committee. I suggested Messrs. William S. Speed, E. J. O'Brien, Henry Vogt and S. E. Duncan, who were Directors of the Bank and non-officers, President Brown, Vice-President Ormsby, who were officers of the bank, and Mr. J. S. Akers, who was the Vice-President to act as secretary of this Executive Committee. That was the suggestion that was fully discussed. The Executive Committee was duly appointed by the Board of Directors and those that I have named as the Executive Committee. Whether that was done this day or the next I was not clear then nor am I now.

We met about the same time in the afternoon the next day at an adjourned meeting of the Board. As above stated, I am not perfectly sure whether this Executive Committee was appointed on the first afternoon or not, but I do recall shortly after convening on the second day Mr. Brown took me to task for presuming to suggest the personnel of this Executive Committee in the face of my statement at the opening of my part of the other meeting, that I was a stranger in Louisville. He appeared to think it was presumptuous on my part to suggest the personnel and thought that I had shown favoritism of some description in having failed to include Mr. Angermeier on this Executive Committee, because he stated that he considered Mr. Angermeier the outstanding banker of Louisville and that he should have been on this Committee. I told him very frankly his criticism might be all right, but I had given the matter consideration and had had opportunity to discuss the personnel of the Committee with my associate and that the Comptroller's files were open to me and I thought I had a pretty good line on the Directors of the bank, and had made the selection after what I thought was due consideration and had exercised my best judgment in it.

Then we came in the secondary meeting to the question of disposing of these losses, and I do not recall whether it was the first day or the second day that Mr. Brown went into a considerable history of the purpose and objects in view in the formation of the BancoKentucky Company. He gave the number of the constituent banks. He went into detail as to each one's assets, condition and value and that the holding company was the parent concern, that the expectation was and had been that the holding company would be in a position to take care of the member banks, if any occasion of that sort should arise, but that due to the condition of the stock market at the time of the flotation of this stock it didn't have as much cash on hand as they had hoped to have. I asked him then, "Mr. Brown, you consider this just a miniature Federal Reserve System?" He said, "Yes, that is what it is and what it is supposed to be." I then said, "Here is an opportunity for the parent concern to come to the rescue of its biggest unit. The BancoKentucky Company owns practically 100 per cent of the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky and in my judgment the BancoKentucky Company should clean this bank to the satisfaction of the supervising authorities," and I suggested that the BancoKentucky Company as an alternative should buy or take out a million dollars of these criticized assets and that they had approximately enough of undivided profits to charge the balance off on the books of the National Bank of Kentucky. So, it was agreed that the BancoKentucky Company would use its best efforts to borrow $1,000,000 to buy the criticized assets, and then came the question of charging off, and a resolution was presented, by whom I do not now recall, that this $320,150 be charged off against the carrying value of 100,000 shares of BancoKentucky stock and that resolution went to a vote and was tied and President Brown broke the tie and made it 7 to 6 against the charge-off. Mr. Brown refused to follow my recommendation.

The valpe of the Van Camp Packing Company loss was $242,500.00. After this meeting I completed my examination of the bank and wrote a letter to be presented to the Board of Directors. A copy of this letter is included in the report of examination. My letter to the Board, dated October 11, appears on pages 11-8 and 11-9 of the report of examination (pages 983, 984, reproduced exhibits), and the Board's letter addressed to the Comptroller of the Currency, dated October 24, 1930, appears on extra pages 11-10 and 11-11 of the same report (pages 985, 986, reproduced exhibits).

After the delivery of this letter I returned to my office in St. Louis to complete the detail of the report of examination and have the required number of copies transcribed. I personally brought the Board of Directors' copy back to Louisville and presented it at a meeting of the Executive Committee on October 23.

The cash position of the bank was none too good at the start of the examination and at the close the bank's borrowings had increased to practically four million dollars. Page 1 of the report discloses that the total cash on hand with correspondents, as of the beginning of the examination, amounted to practically eleven and a half million dollars, against total deposits of $39,000,000, and as a further offset to that cash there was approximately $2,000,000 of liability in the form of securities sold under repurchase agreement and bills of exchange endorsed and guaranteed, the equivalent of borrowed money, which would serve practically to reduce the cash position to $9,000,000 as related to approximately $40,000,000 of deposits.

There had been seasonal fluctuations in the deposits of the bank to the extent that the record disclosed that in the near past the banks had owed as much as $17,000,000 or $18,000,000 in bills payable to the Federal Reserve Bank and elsewhere, and it was known to me at that time that there was a growing uneasiness among depositors of the National Bank of Kentucky, particularly among country banks. I anticipated rather active withdrawals. The elements of potential danger were in effect that the officers of the bank admitted that they had only approximately $4,000,000 of paper that was eligible for rediscount at the Federal Reserve Bank, and that in my judgment, practically none of these large concentrations of credit which I discussed under American Turf and BancoKentucky would be available as collateral with the Federal Reserve or correspondent Banks. I thought they were just before being in trouble.

The Directors promised at the meeting that they would attempt to borrow $1,000,000 and use that money for the benefit of the bank. An additional $600,000 loan was concluded with the Chemical Bank and Trust Company of New York and deposited to the credit of the BancoKentucky Company, on the books of the National Bank of Kentucky. The $580,000 Murray Rubber Company debentures and $20,000 of the Lewis Humphrey notes were purchased from the bank. I made an effort to get the worst items out of the bank with that available cash and that was the way I regarded those two items.

Cross-examination by Mr. Crawford

The examination of the bank started on September 17. Examiner Mooney began the work and I arrived on September 22, 1930. Prior to that time except from what I had seen in the Examiner's reports I knew nothing about the bank except its general reputation. It was reputed to be one of the outstanding banks of the South. I had been in the banking business a great many years and knew that that was its reputation. I first talked to the directors on October 8. Later, I testified about this meeting with the directors in the suit of Keyes v. Akers and everything that I have testified to here I also testified to in that suit. I may have elaborated some in this case.

The bank was on a quarterly dividend payment and prior to my examination the last previous dividend was paid in June. The dividend amounted to $160,000.00 and was declared June 1, payable July 1, 1930. I think I knew before I left the bank that they declared another dividend while I was examining it. This one was payable on October 1. It was declared on September 19, 1920. My initials appear on the minutes of the meeting of that date indicating that I read those minutes on September 25.

At the meeting of October 9 I called the Board's attention to the Wakefield & Company item and stated that the lending officers had put in something. Other than Brown and Jones I did not mean the directors when I made this statement and I did not mean the non-officer directors. I found out that many things had been concealed from them.

"Q. You particularly referred to the item that had been put in the bank by the officers, did you not, for the purpose, in your opinion, of deceiving them?

A. The report speaks for itself, I think—yes.

Q. You referred to the Van Camp purchase; in your picturesque language you thought that had been bootlegged through, or was that Caldwell?

A. That was the Southern Banks?

In other words, that had been done without any authorization, or against the express authorization of the Board of Directors at that time?

A. Correct."

The Wagon Company had been theretofore disposed of and stock taken and that was referred to in the investment account. So far as I know the Van Camp stock purchase was unknown to the directors. I wrote the letter signed by the directors dealing with the $242,500.00 loss in Van Camp Packing Company stock which was added to the carrying value of BancoKentucky Company and charged to undivided profits account, thereby creating a deficit in that account.

The directors agreed to take out the $580,000.00 Murray Rubber Company debentures. They didn't say anything about that being bad in their opinion, they just agreed to take it out. The Murray Rubber debentures and the Humphrey loan were taken out by Banco and the bank actually got $600,000.00 for these items.

With the exception of the Murray Rubber Company and the $265,000.00 joint note all of this $200,000 or $2,400,000 on Inter-Southern stock and Caldwell associates—the Caldwell loans—were made within six months prior to the suspension. Two of them amounting to $600,000 were made during the course of the examination without the knowledge or consent of the directors. The others were made within four months prior to that time.

Inter-Southern stock had been selling for something like $3.00 a share. At that price they had enough Inter-Southern stock to cover the loans, assuming that the maker was bad but that was higher than the current quoted price on the date of my examination. It might have been around that figure just before the examination. After the bank closed it was sold for more than $2,000,000 with the result of a million dollar loss to the bank.

I never examined the Norman Company but I concluded that that was a bad item from the information in the files of the bank and conversation with Akers and others. It was with reference to this item that Mr. Brown said:

"That was a mighty poor defense on that."

I considered this as a tacit acceptance of my estimate.

The bank borrowed as much as eighteen million dollars and continued to operate. At the start of the examination they were not borrowers from the Federal Reserve Bank but they did borrow before they closed. The preceding year they had been borrowing very large amounts.

The bank had up to $50,000,000 of deposits but they were not that high at the time of my examination. It was a large bank from the point of view of the number of people employed. They had an extremely active business—very many transactions.

The bank had eight Vice Presidents in charge of separate departments, some of them overlapped. Correspondence was very large. I never went into the correspondence files to find out anything about the bank.

The Comptroller's officer prepares forms under which the examiner would make a report of dividends. Prior to and within ten days of a declaration of a dividend the law requires the Cashier of a bank to make a sworn statement to the Comptroller. Such a statement had been made on July 10, 1930, with respect to the June dividend. This report set out the capital, surplus and undivided profit. The bank had a capital of four million dollars. Its surplus was two million and on top of that it had undivided profits which were reflected by reserves.

The dividend paid on July 1 was $160,000.00 and I undoubtedly found the notification that the cashier made under oath to the Comptroller. This showed that the dividend was paid out of undivided profits, leaving something in that account and the two million dollar surplus and the four million dollar capital.

In addition to this particular report there is usually a semi-annual report sent to the Comptroller of earnings. My report shows that such a report had been sent to the Comptroller on July 10 as of June 30, 1930. This report shows a capital of four million dollars, surplus two million dollars and net undivided profits at the close of the period $166,835 after the payment of the dividend that had been declared.

Defendant offered in evidence this report as defendant's Exhibit 1.

W. T. ZurSchmiede was cashier of the bank. A dividend of $160,000.00 was declared on September 10 and there was a report to the Comptroller of the status of the bank for the purpose of ascertaining its ability to properly pay the dividend. That report shows capital stock paid in—$4,000,000, surplus fund $2,000,000.00, net earnings on hand at date of declaration of dividend (including earnings of this period and balance of earnings remaining from previous periods) was $310,554.80, less bad debts on hand as defined by section 5204, Revised Statutes, $32,938.00; net earnings available for dividend, $277,616.80; amount of dividend declared (4% on capital) $160,000.00; and net earnings available in excess of dividend, $117,616.80. This report was offered in evidence as defendant's Exhibit 2.

I did not approve this dividend payment. I made no mention in the report of examination of this particular report of earnings but I did not formally criticize it. I did criticize the dividend policy in my report at page 11-6 where I said—"Attention of the Board is directed to the statutory inhibition against the payment of dividends unless the undivided profits of bank exceed by the amount of the dividend the amount of statutory bad debts owed by the bank at date of declaration of dividend. As a matter of conserving earnings to provide for losses, a reduction in the present dividend rate of 16% per annum should be given serious consideration by the board of directors."

I was talking about the future policy of the bank and made no mention in that statement about the dividend that had been paid. I do not remember whether I discussed this question whether the dividend violated the law with the Board of Directors and I did not testify criticizing the dividend in my testimony in the case of Keyes v. Akers. From my point of view the dividend was paid with known losses and was illegal. I was more interested in saving the bank than in filling my report with criticism. I had a very deepseated fear that the bank might close and I told several people of that fear.

"Q. I will ask you if the bank was not solvent on the day before it closed?

A. In my judgment that is true.

Q. I will ask you if this question wasn't asked you and this answer wasn't given in the case of Venhoff & Hillen v. Paul C. Keyes, in this court, when your deposition was being given March 7, 1931: 'I will ask you to tell us what was the expectation of the bank officials, including yourself, as to the opening of the bank on Monday after its close of business November 15th?' And your answer follows: 'There appeared to me to be a fairly good opportunity for the bank to reopen Monday morning until after eight o'clock Sunday night.' Was that true?

A. That was an optimistic view.

Q. What is that?

A. In retrospect that appears to be an optimistic view.

Q. I am not talking about retrospect.

A. Certainly the morning of the 15th we were making every effort, the officials of the bank, over Sunday, in an effort to save it. I hoped to put that over, but it didn't eventuate."

The big blowup in the stock market occurred October 24, 1929 and to some degree it caused a big change in the asset value of nearly everything.

On the 5th of November I saw a great deal in the newspapers concerning the Caldwell failure. Following that publication, $12,000,000. was withdrawn from the Bank of Kentucky between that time and the time it closed.

Robert Neill,

recalled for the Plaintiff, testified:

I used the word "solvent" in my testimony regarding the condition of the Bank on the Saturday previous to its close in the sense that the entire capital structure had not been then exhausted or surpassed by known losses. Under that definition if there was one dollar of capital left, the bank would be technically solvent. However, a bank might be practically insolvent when its capital structure was merely impaired but the withdrawal demands were such that it could no longer meet those demands. Refusing to meet demands is, in itself, an act of insolvency.

Q. When a bank's cash is exhausted and its borrowing power is gone, and it is unable to meet the demands made upon it from the standpoint of a bank, as a banking definition, state whether or not in your opinion that bank is insolvent?

(The objection to this question sustained and answer taken as an avowal.)

A. About the best reply I could give there is that under those conditions the directors usually vote to suspend.

On the last day the bank did not have enough cash to meet their clearings, except for the last emergency loan of $690,000.00 from the Federal Reserve Bank on Saturday, the 15th of November. The term "exhausted" with reference to the cash of a bank is a relative one. Actually, from the books as of close November 15, there was some cash left on hand. I do not remember the exact amount. Probably in excess of $1,000,000.00. From a practical standpoint, on the final Saturday they were not able to meet their clearings with their own cash. Their borrowing power capacity was exhausted and that was very definitely tested by the extreme effort it took to talk the Federal Reserve Bank out of the last $690,000.00 loan on November 15. I participated in that discussion. The Federal Reserve Bank doubled the collateral requirement practically over night. It was insurmountable. The National Bank of Kentucky did not have the type and kind of collateral satisfactory to the lender to collateral the loan that they were asking.

Prior to the consummation of this $690,000.00 loan a request had been made by two of the directors of the National Bank of Kentucky of the two senior officers of the First National Bank and Citizens Union National Bank of Louisville, asking them to make the National Bank of Kentucky a loan in the emergency, and while those officers did not refuse, they assumed the position that the natural source of supply was the Federal Reserve Bank, and Messrs. Gifford and Downing participated in the telephone conversations with the head of the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis which resulted in the final consummation of this $690,000.00 loan. I can't say they were completely turned down by these other banks.

The regular closing hour of the Louisville banks on Saturday is one o'clock, so after one o'clock there was a series of meetings held in which a representative of every bank in Louisville—the Clearing House Association, as a matter of fact, participated. At that meeting it was determined that an examination of the assets of both the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company would be made by representatives of the clearing house banks, other than the National Bank of Kentucky.

Those present included Downing of the Citizens Union, and Wirgman of The Fidelity and Columbia, Noel Rush, President of the Lincoln, John Hühn, President of the Liberty, and representatives of the Security Bank; Mr. Richard Bean, President of the Louisville Trust Company, Jones, ZurSchmiede, director William Speed, and others of the National Bank of Kentucky. Mr. John T. Barr, a director of Citizens Union and Fidelity and Columbia Trust Company, and other representatives of other little banks in Louisville also participated. It was a clearing house meeting participated in by all its members. Both officer and non-officer directors of Louisville Trust Company and the National Bank of Kentucky were present.

They appointed committees to examine the two banks. Mr. Noel Rush headed the committee of examiners who went into the Louisville Trust Company, and Messrs. Gifford, Downing and Cobb came over to the National Bank of Kentucky that night with a number of their junior officers, whose names I do not now recall. Of course, the actual research into the records of the National Bank of Kentucky, where I participated—I was not at the Louisville Trust Company that night—that was done by these juniors. Mr. Gifford and Mr. Downing stayed there until long after midnight, and the balance of us worked all night and reported back to the Clearing House Committee Sunday morning.

There were discussions all Sunday morning of possible plans, and we worked all afternoon and adjourned for supper, and the final conclusion was that the clearing house bank would do nothing. In fact, while we were at supper each of the banks prepared ads to go into the newspaper the next morning in anticipation of the suspension of the National Bank of Kentucky. The bank had exhausted its resources.

At various times during Sunday there were probably as high as 100 people present. It seems that officers and directors of all the banks came in and, also, a number of citizens. Mr. Whiteford Cole, President of the L. & N. Railroad was among those there. The committee worked all night Sunday and found both banks insolvent—the National Bank of Kentucky in excess of $1,000,000.00.

I reached the conclusion that the bank would have to suspend at the time I was making my examination. This was approximately one month before the bank closed and prior to the withdrawal of the $12,000,000.00 following the failure of Caldwell. I was led to that conclusion by the general unsatisfactory condition of the bank's assets and the well-established fact that there were abroad rumors of all types and descriptions as to the condition of the National Bank of Kentucky that tended to create unrest in the minds of the depositors, leading to the mail and clearings run which I mentioned yesterday.

Q. I want to ask you whether or not in your opinion the causes which brought the ultimate collapse and failure of the National Bank of Kentucky were due to the depression, or whether they existed in this bank prior thereto.

Undoubtedly the stock market break in New York in October, 1929 adversely affected all listed securities. I was examining banks in that territory at the date it occurred, and I very well remember the conditions. However, the amount in volume of loans in the National Bank of Kentucky predicated on listed stocks was relatively small and there was no visible effect—in my judgment there was no visible effect on the securities behind these large concentrations as a result of the stock market crash.

Plaintiff offered in evidence as Exhibits 150-1 to 150-12 signed statements by the cashier of the bank from April 13, 1923 through August 23, 1929 acknowledging receipt of report of examination and that the same was submitted to the Board of Directors, considered by them and record of action taken made upon the minutes.

Witness was then asked about a summary of reports which he had made.

(Objection to this question was sustained and his answer taken as an avowal.)

This is a list I prepared yesterday from the reports of examination of the bank as of May, 1929 by Mr. John S. Wood. At that time—as of that date, I should say, the Kentucky Wagon Company debt had a book value of $1,340,474.00, and there had been previous charge-offs on this debt of $650,000.00, so the bank's total investment in the Kentucky Wagon Company obligations amounted to $1,990,474.00. The Murray Rubber Company obligations in full, including debentures and rediscounts as of that date amounted to $1,101,720.00. E. B. Norman & Company owed the bank direct and indirect obligations of $552,871.00. The Wakefield & Company line, including accommodation notes, aggregated $1,190,000.00, and the Campbell-Van Camp line amounted to $1,073,000.00. The total of those five lines aggregated $5,908,065, an amount which approximated the capital and surplus of the bank according to the books of the bank of that date.

Q. You have not even listed the smaller items?

A. No, sir.

(The following statement was also accepted as an avowal.)

When I examined the bank I did not find the Kentucky Wagon Works item listed. It had been ostensibly traded for 100,000 shares of Banco. All of the items representing the indebtedness of the Wagon Company were credited off the books and then a lump sum was debited to the bond account—$1,676,150.00—as the carrying value of 100,000 shares of Banco stock. They transferred the Kentucky Wagon Works losses off the books, but set them up as an asset in their own holding company. They set up a similar amount as the value of the Kentucky Manufacturing Company on the books of BancoKentucky Company. This transaction is referred to in my examination, as in my opinion, a "wash" transaction or a "wash sale." It was the exact amount of the carrying value of the debt, but there had been $700,000.00 previously charged off.

(The preceding statement made as an avowal following the sustaining of objection to question on Mr. Neill's summary from the reports on examination.)

The Murray Rubber loan was carried at $580,000.00, which was the par value of the debentures. They were wholly unsecured. It was this item that was sold to the BancoKentucky Company for the same amount. The collateral behind the Lewis Humphrey note was Herald-Post stock, which only had a nominal value, if any.

The directors present at the meeting which I held included Mr. Akers, Mr. Angermeier, Mr. Brown, Mr. Callahan, Mr. Carroll, Mr. Clarke, Mr. Coons, Mr. Duncan, Mr. Durham, Mr. Hayes, Mr. Sanders P. Jones, Mr. Charles F. Jones, Mr. E. J. O'Brien, Mr. Ormsby, and Mr. Speed the first day only; he left on the night of the first day and went to Chicago on a business trip and was not there the second day—and Mr. Vogt. If my memory serves me right, Mr. Sanders Jones attended only one of those meetings, and that probably applies to Mr. Durham, the Vice-President of the Franklin Title & Trust Company.

In the report of examination made by me reference is made to prospects of a merger between the National Bank of Kentucky and Louisville Trust Company, and in that report I pointed out that inasmuch as the two corporations were to all intents and purposes 100% owned by the Banco-Kentucky Company, it would prove easy of consummation. I was assured that this merger was in good faith in process of consummation and that on consummation, paper in the bank would be eliminated from its assets, and for this reason a more liberal classification of loans was made than would have otherwise have been made. On pages of the report there is a list of loans on stocks of BancoKentucky Company and the American Turf Company. In a heavy percentage of those items, running into scores of loans, the estimated market value of the stock was less than the face amount of the loan. Yet, with a few minor exceptions, I did not on any of these loans carry any part of that collateral shortage into the doubtful or loss column. It was on the basis of that classification that I answered Mr. Crawford's question with reference to my opinion of the solvency of the bank.

Every officer and director whom I contacted during the course of the examination informed me that they were going to have this merger. This included Mr. Brown, Mr. Jones, Mr. Speed, Mr. Callahan, Mr. Coons, Mr. Duncan, Mr. Durham, Mr. Vogt and others. It was included in a letter to the Comptroller in which they said that project was in prospect. This letter is signed by James B. Brown, Anthony J. Carroll, Sanders P. Jones, S. E. Duncan, Henry Vogt, George M. Clarke, Mr. Ormsby, J. J. Hayes, J. S. Akers, H. J. Angermeier and C. F. Jones, and all the non-director officers of the National Bank of Kentucky at that time.

I wanted to avoid a drastic charge-off necessitating a reduction of the surplus account in order to stabilize the position of the bank. I did not want to precipitate any action that would have an adverse effect on the bank. The publication of reports of condition showing a reduction in the capital structure would cause the natural inference that it was occasioned by charge-off of losses and it would have further disturbed the minds of the depositing public in the Louisville area and customers of this bank if a stricter classification had been made resulting in a requirement for further charge-offs.

The combined deposits of the two institutions at that time would have approximated $50,000,000.00. In my opinion this would require a capital structure of $5,000,000.00 and inasmuch as the combined capital structures of the two institutions aggregated between $9,000,000.00 and $10,000,000.00, such a merger would have released between $4,000,000.00 and $5,000,000.00 to take out sub-standard assets. The promised merger was never made.

Cross-examination by Mr. Crawford

The Lewis C. Humphrey note in the sum of $27,734.74 was collateralized by 765 shares of Herald-Post common stock. At that time the Herald-Post was one of the leading papers in Louisville and was regularly operating. I examined into its value and we considered it of most questionable value. There were a great number of loans on Banco and American Turf by a great many different people. We examined the worth of the makers of that paper, but not all of them. The source of the information was in the credit files of the bank, plus such information as we could get from the officers deemed to be credible. We did our best to establish the outside holdings of Charles F. Jones, Vice-President, W. T. ZurSchmiede, Cashier, W. P. Kincheloe, who was in the Trust Department, Catherine Mooney, who was an employee of the bank and Stanley Reed, Wakefield and Company. The nightwatchman of the bank had a big loan with Banco on it, and we tried to determine his worth. We made no effort to determine each individual's worth over and above the estimated value of the collateral.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Marx

Prior to the stock market crash in October of 1929 we were in the peak of an expansion period. It was a period of prosperity.

Colonel C. C. Mengel was ill during the months of October and November, 1930.

Plaintiff offered as Exhibit 151 the agenda referred to in Mr. Neill's testimony. It was admitted in evidence. Plaintiff also offered the summary made by Mr. Neill from the examination reports, which was marked Exhibit 152 but was not admitted by the court.

Russell Mooney,

called for the plaintiff testified:

I am Vice President and Director of the National Bank of Commerce in Memphis. Prior to July 20, 1933, when I took my present position I was a National Bank Examiner with offices in St. Louis. I served in this capacity for 5½ years and examined on an average of fifty national Banks a year.

I examined the National Bank of Kentucky beginning December 30, 1929 and concluded the examination on January 11, 1930. Under statutory provisions a national bank is required to be examined twice a year. In the ordinary course of examination, the bank would have been up for examination in September or October of 1929, but in view of the preparation and announced intention of the National Bank of Kentucky to surrender its charter as a national bank, the action of examining the bank was postponed, in the hope or in the thought that perhaps it might be completed before the end of the year, and the second examination in 1929 would not be necessary. If the bank had surrendered its charter no examination would have been necessary.

They did not go through with their intention by December and we commenced our examination on the 30th of that month. I was a resident examiner and had an office in the Federal Building at Louisville. I called at the bank some five or six times during the months of October and November to determine what progress they were making in completing the denationalization. They advised me that the stock market collapse had caused them some trouble about effecting a sale of their stock and that they were going to have to postpone it temporarily.

I made my examination and prepared one copy. Five copies were then prepared in the Chief Examiner's office, one of which was sent to the bank. Witness then identified Exhibit 18 as the report of examination which he made.

I have never testified in any previous case concerning the National Bank of Kentucky. I took part in six or seven other examinations of that bank from 1925 to 1930, first as assistant examiner and later as examiner.

I received the letter written by the Chief National Bank Examiner on May 19, 1930, and following the receipt of the letter I went to the bank on the date mentioned. The Murray Rubber Company line had not been taken out or charged off in full by September 1, 1930, nor had the Lewis C. Humphrey note been collected or taken up. I discovered that the Kentucky Wagon Company line, amounting to $1,576,569.67, had been taken care of by the sale to Banco-Kentucky Company of all the claims that the National Bank of Kentucky held against the Wagon Company, Banco paying for this claim by issuing to the National Bank of Kentucky 100,000 shares of stock. These 100,000 shares were written up in the same amount as the Kentucky Wagon Manufacturing Company indebtedness plus $200,000.00 of uncharged off loss sustained in the Van Camp Packing Company sale. I found that the 100,000 shares of Banco had been written up on the books of the bank for the same amount as the Van Camp Packing Company loss and the Kentucky Wagon Manufacturing Company item. I notified the Chief Examiner in St. Louis and recommended an immediate examination of the bank. Mr. Neill came and the examination began.

(Defendants waived cross-examination of Mr. Mooney.)

called for the plaintiff, testified:

I have been Vice President of the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis for about 2½ years. Prior to that time I was Federal Reserve Agent from June 1, 1930 to April 30, 1936. Before that I was Chief National Bank Examiner of the Eighth District for 10 years and I was a National Bank Examiner before I became Chief Examiner. I have been in banking or some phase of supervision all my life since I left college in 1892. I have participated in or supervised the examination of a good many national banks in various parts of the country and in my capacity as Chief National Bank Examiner I made or caused to be made examinations of the National Bank of Kentucky.

That bank was examined twice a year. Witness identified Exhibit 14, the examination beginning October 14, 1927 and concluded October 29, 1927. A copy of this examination was sent to the bank. Exhibit 16 is a correct copy of the report of examination of the National Bank of Kentucky, commencing on October 13, 1928 and concluded October 27, 1928. A copy of this examination was sent to the bank. The exhibit is a true and correct report of the condition of the bank as I found it on my examination.

Exhibit 17 is a true and correct report of the condition of the bank as I found it on my examination commencing May 25, 1929, and ending June 15, 1929. A copy of the report was sent to the bank. Exhibit 19 is a true and correct report of the condition of the bank as I found it in the examination beginning April 26, 1930 and ending May 9, 1930.

The National Bank Examiners working under me had a commission from the Comptroller of the Currency. They report to me. One of those examiners was W. W. Kane, Jr.

Exhibit 15 is the report of an examination by Mr. Kane, commencing on March 9, 1928 and concluded March 31, 1928. I was in Louisville during the time of the examination and the examination was made under my general supervision. After the examination was completed a copy was sent to me and additional copies were prepared. The examiner sent an authorization authorizing the Chief Examiner to sign and I as Chief Examiner signed it.

Vance L. Sailor was a National Bank Examiner and Exhibit 13 is a report of examination of the National Bank of Kentucky for the period beginning April 23, 1927 and ending May 12, 1927. The examination was made under my general supervision. Copy of the report was signed by me and sent to the bank.

I made an examination of the bank just a few weeks before BancoKentucky was organized. The report of that examination is Exhibit 17. It was represented to me that a holding company would be organized. The matter was discussed at some length at an officers meeting. Brown, Akers, Angermeier, Bart Brown, Dugan, Green, Hayes, Jones, Ormsby, Robertson and ZurSchmiede were present.

Defendant's counsel moved that the testimony be stricken in regard to any one not present, which objection was overruled.

It was the general consensus of opinion of those present at the meeting that the holding company would acquire through a term of years and work out certain assets of the bank, among others, the Kentucky Wagon Manufacturing Company.

The next examination was made by Examiner Mooney (Ex. 18). That began at the end of December, 1929, and was completed in January of 1930. The examination in May of 1930 was made by me. At that time BancoKentucky Company had been organized. A meeting of the Board of Directors of the bank was held at that time primarily because instructions had been given by the Comptroller of the Currency that it must be held. The meeting took place on May 16, 1930.

Q. Tell us what you did with reference to this particular meeting and what you said?

Objection was sustained and answer was received as an avowal.

I went before the Board about 3:30 on May 16, 1930 and stayed until 5 or 5:30. I discussed with the Board the Kentucky Wagon Manufacturing Company item, reading to the directors that the total amount of the Kentucky Wagon Manufacturing Company indebtedness to the bank was $1,576,569.67. I had with me when I appeared before the directors original notes and work papers prepared by me in the course of making my examination of the bank, and subsequently used by me in drawing up the report of my examination. I did not read to the directors the entire record appearing in such work sheets, and later appearing in my report of examination, but with respect to the Kentucky Wagon Manufacturing Company item I read to the directors from the work sheet I had with me the following:

"On the basis of the figures in the statement, the company would appear to be reasonably good but the figures evidently do not represent sound values. The fixed assets have been discussed repeatedly heretofore. They consist of thirty-two acres of ground, adjoining two railroads, with a number of factory buildings. The value is problematical as the bank has never had a firm bid for the property.

The statement shows under Current Assets, Finished Stock and Work in Process $1,120,932.63, Raw Materials and Supplies $786,969.80, making a total inventory of $1,907,902.43. Operating figures were not given as 3/31/30, but on July 31st, 1929, the figures shown by the books of the company are: Finished Stock and Work in Process $1,087,387, Raw Materials and Supplies $742,520, total $1,829,907.

The operating details show gross sales $946,248.04. These figures will not 'stand up.' That the inventory should be approximately twice the amount of the annual sales is an operating abnormality that cannot be explained. It is true that a portion of raw material consists of old parts inherited from the two predecessor companies, but the finished produce and work in process cannot be explained away on this basis. It is noted that this item alone is sharply in excess of the annual sales.

It does not require an analysis of the statement of the company, however, to reveal the deplorable condition that exists. On 11-7-25, the line amounted to $1,164,896.85. Since that time, $700,000 has been charged to Profit and Loss on account of this line. In spite of this fact, however, the line has increased to $1,576,569.67. In other words, after charging $700,000 to Profit and Loss, the line is $411,672.82 greater than it was at the time the first charge-off was made. This shows a total increase of $1,111,672.82. This increase cannot be accounted for on any reasonable basis.

The company is habitually overdrawn. The following figures may be illuminating. There have been overdrafts of the company that have been periodically covered by notes, as follows: 12-31-28 . . . $191,000; 6-29-29 . . . $159,000.00; 10-2-29 . . . $83,000.00; 12-31-29 . . . $46,123.00.

The management of the company continues to increase the amount which this bank is advancing to the enterprise, and apparently the management of the bank is unable to restrict these advances. The result has been a real tragedy to the bank, which has found expression in the $700,000 already charged off and the additional loss that at this time appears to be resident in the asset.

Twice in recent years, it has appeared that the bank had a chance to dispose of the property on a basis that would result in substantial recovery. No doubt if the company could find an enterprise whose operations could be so adjusted so as to use the fixed assets of the company, the property could be disposed of at a good price. No prospect is in evidence at this time."

Prior to the reading to the directors of the foregoing comment, I discussed the Kentucky Wagon Manufacturing Company item with the directors and told the board that in view of the history of the asset and the improbability of any sale being consummated, I would ask them to have the line taken out of the bank, either by charge-off or by purchase. There was considerable discussion, the statement being made that it would be difficult to take the asset out of the bank immediately.

After I read my comments there was a discussion with reference to the comments and it was agreed between me and the directors that the Kentucky Wagon item would be taken out of the bank prior to September 1st, 1930, either by charging it out of its assets entirely or by sale of the asset by cash. I recall a number of comments made by directors with respect to the value of the land, one director stating it was a very valuable property and that he estimated the value per acre by feet and arrived at a valuation of $10,000 per acre and said that that would make $3,200,000 and then there was a pause for a moment and another director spoke up and said no, it would make $320,000. The director who made the first statement was director Clarke. I was told that the director who made the second statement was director Speed.

When I read the amount of the Wagon Company item as $1,576,569.67 I do not recall that any director expressed surprise at that being the amount of the item as it stood on the books. No director asked Brown at that time whether that was not a mistake—whether the amount was not substantially $500,000.

When I mentioned the fact the company had been badly overdrawn and the notes had been taken for the amount of the overdraft, there was some discussion about the overdrafts, but no director charged Brown with concealing anything in reference to the overdrafts. No director asked Brown why he hadn't informed them of the facts reported by me relating to charge-offs of $700,000 and overdrafts allowed to the Wagon Company or made any charge of concealing such facts.

I read the following from the report concerning the Murray Rubber Company line.

> "Under the caption Murray Rubber Company. This is described under 'Large Lines.' The first item is W. T. Campbell, $47,872.91 secured by $50,000 Murray Rubber Company bonds. W. M. Pepper, $47,802.91 secured by $50,000 Murray Rubber Company bonds. Murray Rubber Company bonds held as an investment $580,000.00, note of Rogers Caldwell secured by $295,000 Murray Rubber Company bonds and $265,000 cash item Murray Rubber Company bonds, $265,000 cash item $1,797.47, Murray Rubber Company direct $344,- 680.29, Murray Rubber Company trade acceptance $68,146.92, total $1,355,230.51.''

I told the directors that the Murray Rubber Company line had been getting progressively more unsatisfactory. Brown said that Murray Rubber Company had been a losing proposition steadily for several years and called their attention to the fact that he had received advices that the figures for operations for April would show a small profit and that the plan of distribution that had been adopted by the company was accelerating the sales to such an extent that he thought in a few months it would be in shape so that they could reorganize it and it would be taken out of the bank. He stated the profitable operation was all that they needed as a basis for reorganization.

I asked that the Murray Rubber Company item be taken out of the assets of the bank. Brown stated that the May operations would show such profits that it would be possible to take it out by September 1st. It was agreed that the item would be taken out of the bank by September 1st.

No director expressed surprise at the item of $265,000 and the item of $580,000 read by me as a part of the Murray Rubber Company line of indebtedness. No director made any inquiry of Brown as to whether there was not some mistake about some items.

The Van Camp Packing Company stock item was mentioned to the directors.

I had with me a list of items which I asked to be charged off of the books of the bank, and among such list were loans to Lucas, Fields and Humphrey. It was in connection with the reading of this list of items that the Lucas, Fields and Humphrey loans were discussed by me with the board.

I began reading the list of charge-offs as follows:

"David Baird, $10,000.
Chester D. Clark, $90,000.
L. J. Dittmar, $3,359.30.
Eureka Products Company, $4,000.
Leo P. Path, $475.55.
Dora and W. J. Fields, $6,000.
Also H. R. Hodapp, $100."

After having read several small items there was some director suggested it would not be necessary to read all the small items and suggested that we not take up any items that were below a certain minimum. I am not entirely sure of what that minimum was, but I think it was $1,000. I know that some of these $50.00 and $500.00 loans were not read but just where that began and which ones of the small items were omitted, I do not recall. There were several items that as the result of our discussion, the classification was changed and the items were not desired to be charged off.

After the suggestion of the director that items of less than $1,000 be not read, items of charge-off were read or not read by me from the list before him as follows:

Louis P. Hyman Company, $6,500 was read.

Thomas Jefferson Memorial Fund, $500, not read.

H. P. Lutz, not read.

Kentucky Wagon Manufacturing Company $476,569.67, read, but charge-off not required because the directors agreed to eliminate the item from the assets of the bank by September 1st.

Knadler & Lucas, $25,000, read.

Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Maxwell, $30.61, not read.

Sam B. Metcalf, $152.25, not read.

Mrs. H. L. Middleton, $300, not read.

Murray Rubber Company, $500,000, read, but not required to be charged off because of the agreement that it would be taken out of the assets of the bank by September 1st.

Norma Newhouse, $100, not read.

George R. Newman, $680, not read.

S. G. Rosenfeld, $52.50, not read.

Shapin Mfg. Company, $41.52, not read.

Simpson Realty Company, $600.00, not read.

C. A. Singer, $2,953.79, read.

E. R. Thomson, $2,004.80, read.

Alvin Wells, $238.80, not read.

W. C. Wright, $181.07, not read.

W. C. Young, $1,680.00, read.

Van Camp Packing Company, $128,096.54, read, but not required to be immediately charged off, because, after discussion, it was agreed that the bank would have until July 15th, 1930 within which time to sell stock and charge off the loss, if any.

Stella Van Dyke, $1,092.00, read.

Then a group of stocks comprising International Planters Corporation, Louisville Railway Company, common, L. H. & St. L. preferred, Rich Patch Land Company, Industrial Ownership Corporation, carried at $115,000 on the books of the bank, of which $51,225 was listed for charge off on account of such stocks, read.

Badger Aluminum Company, $212.52, not read.

Then certain items were read under the heading "Claims and Judgments," one item of Peoples Bank of Springfield, Tennessee, $12,433.25, and another item of the same Bank, $675.18, read.

Under the same heading of Judgments and Claims, Graphite Products Company of Delaware, $616.50, not read.

Then there were twenty-five small overdrafts aggregating $66.38, not read.

Other real estate aggregating $7,850.04, read.

Then there were sundry cash items of $102.80 that were not read.

As I read the items for chargeoff, there was discussion about certain items as a result of which I changed the classification of certain items from loss to doubtful and assented that immediate charge-off would not be required. One of such items was the Lewis C. Humphrey item of $27,737.74, as to which immediately charge-off was not required because of the representation of Mr. Brown that he would see to it that the item would be taken care of. Another of such items was the item of Robert H. Lucas, on which a partial loss of $4500.00 was then estimated, and as to which immediate charge-off was not required because of the assurance of Mr. Brown that there would be monthly payments of $250 made on such loan.

The Humphrey and the Lucas items were the only items as to which charge-offs were not required in the whole list of charge-offs above mentioned, except the items of Kentucky Wagon Manufacturing Company, Murray Rubber Company, and Van Camp Packing Company, as to which special arrangements were made as mentioned.

It was agreed that all other items, the items not read as well as the items that were read, would be charged off immediately.

After disposing of the matter of charge-offs I read my list of criticisms which now appear on page 11-2 of my report of examination. In the reading, however, I inadvertently omitted criticism number 8 and did not read criticism number 10 because such criticism was not on my sheet at that time because the date was not then at hand.

I read: Criticism 1, Judgments and overdue loans, described on Page 4 and supplemental pages. Criticism 2, slow and doubtful loans described on Page 4 and supplemental pages. Criticism 3, losses described on pages 4, 7, and 8 and on pages supplemental thereto; Criticism 4, other loans especially mentioned and described on page 6 and supplemental pages. Criticism 5, overdrafts in the bank amount really to a vice in the management. The large amount of overdrafts the bank has to show in public statements are believed to be disadvantageous to its best interests and the fact that some of the large loans are carried by concerns in which the directors are interested is believed to be the subject of definite criticism. See Page 8 of the report. Criticism 6, criticized items described under stocks, miscellaneous mortgage bonds and claims and judgments described on Page 7 and supplemental pages of the report. Criticism 7, relating to the illegal purchase of the Van Camp Packing Company stock. Criticism 9, the large amount of loans on stock of BancoKentucky Company may be open to question as to its legality. The largest single asset BancoKentucky has is the stock of the bank. The loans secured entirely by stock of BancoKentucky Company amount to $2,543,804.38, and comprise 132,542 shares. I recall that I read only the general total of BancoKentucky Company loans, aggregating loans secured in whole or in part by BancoKentucky Company stock, $5,791,798.92 and comprising 238,427 shares.

In connection with reading the first four criticisms relating to criticized loans, I stated at the meeting that I had my notes on all of such loans present with me and would be glad to read my comments on any or all of the loans if the directors would take the time to hear it, but that it was hardly practical at that time to read them all and accordingly I urged the directors to have a committee appointed to go into my report of examination, showing the detailed loans, carefully. In connection with my reading of criticism 5 relating to overdrafts, I read to the directors overdrafts as follows: Kentucky Wagon Manufacturing Company $84,864, Herald-Post Company, $2,534.91, which on May 3rd, 1930 had increased to $32,503.76, Ben S. Washer, $9,995.10 which had begun on January 17, 1930, and Knadler & Lucas $11,124.98. I read my comments on overdrafts as follows: The total overdrafts of this bank at the time the examination began were $133,584.77. This amazing total when shown in public statements makes a very undesirable public gossip. The publication cannot result in any benefit to the bank.

In connection with my criticisms of the loans on Banco-Kentucky Company stock Brown stated that a market would be established for the stock at above 25, that when negotiations with the brokers were finished the brokers would buy BancoKentucky Company stock and would support the market for it. He stated that he had been in negotiation with Caldwell & Company to buy an interest in BancoKentucky Company.

Near the end of the meeting with the directors Speed asked:

"Mr. Wood, are those assets that you have discussed all of the assets in the bank that are subject to criticism?"

I replied: "By no means," and called attention to the fact that my comments on the loans which were criticized were typewritten and that I would be glad to read the list to the board if the directors thought it practicable to give the time to read it all and urged them again to have a committee examine my report when it was made available and report to the directors.

After the meeting was over, within thirty to forty-five minutes thereafter, I dictated a letter to Mr. S. H. Mann, who was then a national bank examiner and who had been a stenographer, covering the items that the local examiner should check up or at the proper time should see that the agreements were carried out. When I dictated the letter to Mr. Mann, addressed to Mr. Mooney, I knew that I would soon sever my connection with the Comptroller's office, as an examiner, but didn't know just when.

A copy of the said letter dictated to Mr. Mann and addressed to Russell E. Mooney, is as follows:

"St. Louis, Mo.
May 19, 1930.

Mr. Russell E. Mooney,
National Bank Examiner,
Box 1092, Louisville, Ky.

Dear Mr. Mooney:

In a meeting with the Board of Directors of the National Bank of Kentucky, Louisville, Ky., held on May 16, 1930, a number of agreements were made which are incorporated in my report of examination of said bank begun on April 26, 1930.

I desire to call to your attention the following agreements which you are charged with responsibility of checking out on the dates mentioned and ascertaining if the agreements have been complied with in full.

The directors agreed that on or before September 1, 1930, the following lines will be taken out or charged off in full.

Kentucky Wagon Company	$1,576,569.67
Murray Rubber Company	1,355,230.51

(As described under large lines report of examination.)

The Board of Directors agreed that if on July 16, 1930, the stock of the Van Camp Packing Company has not been sold and the profit or loss adjustment made in the Profit Account of the bank, the management of the bank will on said date charge the market loss existing on that date to the Profit and Loss Account.

President Brown agreed that on or before September 1, 1930, the loans of Lewis C. Humphrey aggregating $27,734.74 secured by stock of the Herald-Post would be either collected in full or would be taken up by him.

President Brown and Vice President Fontaine agreed that by reason of a waiver at this time of a charge-off of $4,500 on the loan of Robert H. Lucas a monthly payment of $250 will be made.

On the respective dates named above, will you please be present at the bank, if possible, or on the office day immediately preceding said date or immediately thereafter and ascertain from the books of the bank whether there has been a compliance with the agreements above stated. In either event, please advise the Chief National Bank Examiner of this district. Respectfully," and signed by the Chief National Bank Examiner, Eighth Federal Reserve District.

Q. Was that letter delivered to Mr. Mooney—sent to Mr. Mooney?

A. Yes, it was dictated on the 16th and was typed on the 19th and was sent through the mail from St. Louis to Mr. Mooney.

John S. Wood,

recalled for cross-examination by Mr. Crawford, testified:

The reports of examination of the bank, as reflected in the report beginning in 1927 and ending in 1930, correctly represented my conclusions as to the condition of the bank. There was a report of earnings, a report of charge-offs, a report of net amount of undivided profits subject to dividends, a report of declaration and amount of dividends and a net amount still in the undivided profits after that dividend, required of the officers of the bank. There was also a semi-annual statement of earnings made by the Cashier.

I, personally, made four reports of examinations. It was part of the duties of myself, as examiner, or the examiner who made the report, which I later saw, to examine the correctness of the dividend statements which included the items referred to. The examiner was required to answer a questionnaire contained in the report for the information of the Comptroller.

The bank declared a quarterly dividend of $160,000.00 for every year beginning October 1, 1927 and continuing until the last time I was in the bank. Either my assistants or myself, in making such examination, examined the reports made by the Cashier to the Comptroller concerning the earnings and dividends, and after that examination came to the conclusion that the dividends were correct. I accepted the conclusion that the dividends of July 1, 1927, October 1, 1927, January 1, 1928, April 1, 1928, July 1, 1928, October 1, 1928, January 1, 1929, April 1, 1929, July 1, 1929, October 1, 1929, January 1, 1930 and April 1, 1930 were correct. That was one of the important things the examiners were to examine in making their reports for the information of the Comptroller.

Arthur H. Almstedt,

called for plaintiff, testified:

I was a member of the Louisville Stock Exchange. It has been out of existence for three years.

Witness produced from the records application filed by BancoKentucky Company over the signatures of its president, James B. Brown, and its secretary, W. T. Zur-Schmiede, for listing of its stock. This application was introduced as Exhibit 71. The exhibit attached to the application was introduced as Exhibit 71-1.

The minutes of the Louisville Stock Exchange show that on October 4, 1929, at a meeting of the Board of Governors, the application to list Banco having been approved by the Listing Committee, it was moved and seconded that Banco stock be listed for trading on the Louisville Stock Exchange.

At this point it was stipulated between the parties that the National Bank of Kentucky was one of the two registrars of Trustees' Participation Certificates and was a registrar of BancoKentucky Company stock, and that the Louisville Trust Company was the transfer agent of both the Trustees' Participation Certificates and shares of stock of BancoKentucky Company; that as registrar of the Trustees' Participation Certificates and the stock of BancoKentucky Company, National Bank of Kentucky had in its books and records a complete record of the names of the Trustees' Participation Certificate holders and the original holders of the stock of BancoKentucky Company.

Plaintiff produced in open court at this point all the original subscriptions to the stock of the BancoKentucky Company, signed by the original subscribers—approximately 2400 or 2500. It was agreed to pick out three or four for the record, which would stand as examples of the balance. The subscription of William S. Speed was offered as Exhibit 153, and it was agreed that all other subscriptions were alike except for signatures. Plaintiff also introduced as Exhibits 153-1 and 153-2 subscriptions to Banco stock signed by John C. Wickliffe Jr. and subscription signed by Herbert Tashgian admitted as Exhibit 154.

called for plaintiff as on cross examination, testified:

I am a lawyer and I am the receiver of the Louisville Trust Company for the purpose of collecting the double legal liability of the stockholders of the old Louisville Trust Company.

Witness identified a copy of a bill which he filed in his official capacity and which he swore was true. That bill was offered in evidence and objection on behalf of the defendants was sustained as to all other than the witness. The bill was then admitted as Exhibit 155.

The bill was prepared by the attorneys for the old Receiver of the Louisville Trust Company. Judge Lafon Allen, who was then on the bench and who is now an attorney for the defendants in this case, permitted the Fidelity & Columbia Trust Company to resign and appointed me as receiver merely for the purpose of collecting the double legal liability. The receivership had been discharged as to all other purposes and the Louisville Trust Company was then in operation under its reorganization at the time I was appointed.

The day I was appointed was the last day upon which that suit could possibly have been filed in order to come within the statute of limitations against the stockholders proceeded against in that suit. They were the transferor stockholders, or stockholders who held stock but transferred it and did not hold it at the time the bank closed. The suit, petition and everything was prepared by the former receiver and I filed it the day I was appointed but I did not have anything to do with its preparation. The suit was never fought out on its merits. Judge Allen transferred it to Judge Marshall and Judge Marshall upon consideration dismissed it.

I swore to the action as being true according to my best belief on September 10, 1931. I never prepared it and I don't know anything about it. I filed it for the purpose of doing my duty as receiver in order to preclude anybody from saying the statute had run against the suit if there was any merit in it. I knew that I was suing the former stockholders of the BancoKentucky Company on the ground that they were in effect stockholders of the Louisville Trust Company and I knew that I was suing the persons who had turned in their Trustees' Certificates in exchange for Banco stock on the ground that they were liable for their proportionate share of the assessment.

If persons were holders of trustees' certificates—if they were former holders within two years—any former holder within two years can be sued within two years under the Kentucky statutes and that was all I was doing.

Objection as to this defendant's testimony as to all defendants, except the witness, was sustained.

"Q. Did you know that you alleged here that: 'Plaintiff states that said BancoKentucky Company was organized for the purpose of acquiring and it did acquire more than one-half of the entire capital stock of The Louisville Trust Company, and that such acquisition of more than one-half of the capital stock of The Louisville Trust Company by The BancoKentucky Company was in direct violation of the statutes of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, and that those of the defendants herein named who exchanged Trustees' Participation Certificate-shares for shares of the capital stock of The BancoKentucky Company, as hereinbefore set out, were parties to and cooperated and participated in such illegal acquisition by said BancoKentucky Company of said stock, and that said defendants still remain subject and now are subject to the maximum liability as stockholders of The Louisville Trust Company, to the same extent, measured by their beneficial ownership of Louisville Trust Company stock as hereinbefore set out, as if they had not respectively assigned their Trustees' Participation Certificates to The BancoKentucky Company in exchange for shares of its capital stock but had continued to retain ownership of their respective Trustees' Participation Certificates.'

A. I didn't know any allegations of that character were in there; I signed it as a matter—as an officer of the Court, under instructions. Judge Allen saw it and authorized it.

Q. When did you first read the bill?

A. I don't recall that I ever read it—there is no question about it, I read it afterwards when I was studying the law and attempting to show the Court the suit was without foundation in law, which was done.

A. That is, you as Receiver, the man who brought the suit, and with the duty of collecting this assessment, were trying to show the Court that it was without foundation?

A. My dear sir, I want to say this——

Mr. Marx: That is all."

I first acquired personal knowledge of the fact that the paragraph which you read was in the petition when it was read to me in the court room.

The petition was prepared by a half dozen lawyers in the Inter-Southern Building. I do not remember who they were and could not name one of them. Some of it may have come from Bruce & Bullitt's office. It was such a hectic thing and had to be done in a hurry in order to get it in. To be frank, it was a joke. Judge Allen held his hearing in chambers in the afternoon. The receivership was discharged and I talked with him awhile myself. Finally, the appointment was made and I filed it. It was a typewritten petition and I had it copied for the benefit of the Bar. I cannot name a single lawyer that assisted in preparing it. Judge Allen insisted that I file the suit and I obeyed the court. I work under the orders of the court as its receiver.

Exhibit 153-1 bears my signature and the notation "Louisville Trust Company" is in my handwriting. Exhibit 153-2 also bears my signature with the notation in my handwriting "Louisville Trust Company." It is a subscription to the plan of reorganization, each of them for 100 shares of Banco at $25.00 per share, for which I agreed to pay the sum stated when the plan became effective. At the time I signed this, I had never seen anything with reference to the plan and I don't know anything about it except that I was subscribing for 200 shares of Banco to be paid for at $25.00 a share as an A No. 1 business investment.

I signed the subscription at 421 West Market Street. I went over there for that purpose and signed it. I don't remember the individual I talked to. I knew when I signed it that I was subscribing in accordance with the plan. I went in and bought what I thought was a good stock and I paid $25.00 a share cash for it. I executed a note to the Louisville Trust Company which I later took up by my check in cash. It was the bank's money that went into Banco when I made this subscription but I had the cash and paid for it shortly afterwards retiring the note.

At this point plaintiff offered Exhibit 155 as against all stockholders who were named therein. The court overruled the plaintiff's motion and admitted the exhibit only as affecting the claim of the defendant, Wickliffe.

The petition was subscribed and sworn to on September 10, 1931, and was filed on the same date.

Plaintiff then offered in evidence certified copy of order made by Judge Lafon Allen in the case of Commonwealth of Kentucky on relation of O. S. Denny v. Louisville Trust Company, Jefferson Circuit Court, No. 205178. Exhibit was admitted in evidence as plaintiff's Exhibit 156.

It was agreed and stipulated between the parties that if Mr. Tom ZurSchmiede were present he would testify as follows with respect to the circular letter of July 19, 1929 (Ex. 24-3).

Q. Will you state how many copies of that letter were printed and what was done with the printed copies of that letter?

A. About 5,000 copies were printed and mailed to stockholders, and also distributed to non-stockholders for the purpose of inducing them to buy the stock.

Q. By whom was it printed—at the instance of the Bank of Kentucky or someone else?

A. No, sir; it was at the instance of The National Bank of Kentucky.

Mr. Crawford: What were you reading from?

Mr. Marx: The testimony of Mr. ZurSchmiede.

Mr. Crawford: What case?

Mr. Marx: The directors' liability.

Mr. Crawford: Show that that testimony was given in the suit of Keyes v. Akers, later known as Atherton v. Anderson.

The Court: You want to stipulate that Mr. ZurSchmiede if present would testify to that. Is there any objection to that? All right, let it go into the record.

Mr. Marx: That letter of July 19th is a letter that has been admitted here, the circular plan, the prospectus letter.

Fred B. Stewart,

called for plaintiff, testified:

I am employed by the Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky. At the time BancoKentucky Company was organized in July of 1929, I was employed by the National Bank of Kentucky in the capacity of clerk in the Credit Department. That department assembled financial statements from various borrowers and tabulated them to determine the credit responsibility of the borrowers from the bank. A large number of loans were made to persons in order to enable them to purchase BancoKentucky stock.

Q. Tell the court what credit investigation was made to determine the credit responsibility of subscribers to Banco-

Kentucky Company stock who borrowed money from National Bank of Kentucky giving their stock as collateral security.

(Defendants' objection was sustained by the court and the answer taken as an avowal.)

A. No investigation was made.

Q. Was there a campaign, so to speak, made by the officers of the National Bank of Kentucky to secure subscriptions to the stock of the BancoKentucky Company?

(Defendants' objection was sustained and the answer taken as an avowal.)

A. There was.

(The following testimony of Mr. Stewart was in response to questions objected to by the defendants which were sustained by the court and which was introduced as an avowal.) I was present on numerous occasions when conversations were held between persons who were asked by vice-presidents and officers of National Bank of Kentucky to buy BancoKentucky stock. I recall, in particular, Mr. Hayes, Mr. Ormsby, Mr. Jones and Mr. Angermeier. There were numerous instances where persons who were asked to subscribe for stock stated that they had no funds with which to make a subscription. On such occasions the officers of the bank would tell these persons that they did not need any money, that the bank would make a loan and put the stock up as collateral. In many cases the bank advanced the full amount of the subscription price of the stock in order to finance subscriptions to BancoKentucky. Later, when the stock declined in value, no additional collateral was asked for in connection with a deficiency on Banco loans. A number of officers remarked that inasmuch as they solicited the customer or borrower to buy the stock, they were not going to bother him to put up any more collateral.

The general practice of the bank with respect to requiring margin on other collateral than BancoKentucky was fixed. They always required margin on all collateral loans with the exception of Banco. The margin varied from 20% up or, to put it another way, from 80% down.

(There was no cross-examination.)

At this point the plaintiff rested.

DEFENDANTS' REQUEST OF PLAINTIFF FOR THE ADMISSION OF FACTS AND THE GENUINENESS OF DOCUMENTS UNDER RULE 36 OF THE RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE FOR UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURTS AND PLAINTIFF'S RESPONSE

Defendants' request for admissions contained thirty-eight separate paragraphs which, with plaintiff's response to each, are as follows:

1. That the statements contained in the answers of the several defendants as to the manner in which they acquired the shares of stock in BancoKentucky Company, whether by exchange for Trustees' Participation Certificates, or by subscription, or by purchase in the open market, and which they held at the time of the closing, are true.

Admitted that, insofar as the answers of the several defendants agree with plaintiff's Exhibit No. 148 "SUMMARY OF INFORMATION RELATING TO HOLDINGS OF STOCK OF BANCOKENTUCKY COMPANY BY ALL STOCKHOLDERS ON NOVEMBER 17, 1930," the same are true, but insofar as the answers differ from said schedule they are denied.

2. That the amount of shares of each class referred to in No. 1, stated in the answer of each defendant, is the amount said defendant owned.

Admitted as under Paragraph 1 above.

3. That all transfers of Trustees' Participation Certificates made by the defendants, who have answered in this case, were out and out transfers of their Trustees' Participation Certificates to the BancoKentucky Company and were made more than sixty days before the closing of the National Bank of Kentucky and the BancoKentucky Company became the true owner thereof at the time of said transfers.

Denied.

Defendants' Request and Plaintiff's Response

4. That from and after the date of the transfers of Trustees' Participation Certificates to the BancoKentucky Company, it became the true, beneficial and only owner thereof.

Denied.

5. That at the time of the transfer of each and all of the Trustees' Participation Certificates to BancoKentucky Company the National Bank of Kentucky was solvent.

Not Admitted.

6. That at the time of the transfer of the Trustees' Participation Certificates by the defendants in this cause and at all times thereafter and up to and including November 15, 1930, the National Bank of Kentucky was solvent.

Not admitted.

7. That defendants' Exhibit No. 1, covering the Petition, the Answer, the Testimony, the Opinion, and the Judgment in the case of Venhoff & Hillen v. Paul C. Keyes, Receiver, filed in the United States District Court for the Western District of Kentucky, is correct and that there was no appeal taken in said cause and that said judgment is still in force and effect.

Admitted that defendants' Exhibit No. 1 sets forth a correct copy of the petition, the answer, the testimony, the opinion and the order of dismissal in the case of Venhoff & Hillen v. Paul C. Keyes, Receiver, that there was no appeal from the order of dismissal. Plaintiff's objection to the admission of the record in said case was sustained. (Defendants offered the record in said cause as an avowal and the same was marked for identification Defendants' Exhibit No. 3.)

8. That at the time the Trustees' Participation Certificates were transferred to BancoKentucky Company for its stock, each holder thereof believed that the National Bank of Kentucky was solvent.

Not admitted.

Defendants' Request and Plaintiff's Response

9. That Exhibit No. 2 contains a correct copy of the published statements of the National Bank of Kentucky as of

March 27, 1929
June 29, 1929
Oct. 4, 1929
Dec. 31, 1929
March 27, 1930
June 30, 1930 and Sept. 4, 1930

and said Exhibit is an exact copy of "Exhibit No. P-171" filed by the Plaintiff-Receiver, or his predecessor, in action No. 649 in the United States District Court, for the Western District of Kentucky.

Admitted that Exhibit No. 2, a copy of Exhibit No. P-171 in the case of Anderson v. Atherton, the record in which case is Defendants' Exhibit No. 1 in this cause, sets forth a correct copy of the published statements of the National Bank of Kentucky as of the dates named. (See also Defendants' Exhibit No. 25.)

10. That the published statements set forth in Exhibit No. 2 reflect the actual condition of the National Bank of Kentucky.

Not admitted.

11. That no one of the defendants, who have answered herein, knew of any inaccuracies or untruthfulness in the published statements referred to in No. 9, if there were any such.

Not admitted.

12. That on each of the following dates the National Bank of Kentucky declared a quarterly dividend of four per cent and paid same on the dates shown below, the dividend amounting in each instance to $160,000:

DECLARED	PAID	AMOUNT
June 10, 1927	July 1, 1927	$160,000.00
September 2, 1927	October 1, 1927	160,000.00
December 9, 1927	January 3, 1928	160,000.00
March 16, 1928	April 2, 1928	160,000.00
June 15, 1928	July 2, 1928	160,000.00
September 14, 1928	October 1, 1928	160,000.00
December 14, 1928	January 2, 1929	160,000.00
March 8, 1929	April 1, 1929	160,000.00
June 14, 1929	July 1, 1929	160,000.00
July 26, 1929	October 1, 1929	160,000.00
December 12, 1929	January 1, 1930	160,000.00
March 14, 1930	April 1, 1930	160,000.00
June 20, 1930	July 1, 1930	160,000.00
September 17, 1930	October 1, 1930	160,000.00

Admitted that the Bank declared and paid the quarterly dividends above set forth except the dividend referred to as having been declared December 12, 1929, was actually declared December 13, 1929, and paid January 2, 1930. The dividend described as having been declared September 17, 1930, was actually declared September 19, 1930.

13. That following the declaration of each dividend, pursuant to the requirements of the United States Revised Statutes, the Cashier of the National Bank of Kentucky, under oath, filled in a form provided by the Comptroller of the Currency, showing the net earnings available for dividend in excess of the capital and surplus of the bank and after deducting known losses and statutory bad debts, and in each instance said reports showed that there were sufficient net earnings available for dividends to leave the capital of $4,000,000 and surplus of $2,000,000 intact.

Admitted that, following the declaration of each dividend, the cashier of the Bank filled in a form provided by the Comptroller of the Currency.

14. That each of said reports were received by the Comptroller of the Currency.

Admitted that said forms of report were sent to and received by the Comptroller of the Currency.

15. That the National Bank of Kentucky had been examined, prior to 1927, at least twice every year by a National Bank Examiner, acting under the Comptroller of the Currency, and was examined beginning April 23, 1927, and thereafter examined beginning October 14, 1927, March 9, 1928, October 13, 1928, May 25, 1929, December 30, 1929, April 26, 1930, and September 17, 1930.

Admitted.

16. That each of said reports was on forms prepared by the Comptroller of the Currency and contained a questionnaire as to dividends and surplus, requiring the Examiner to give the date of the declaration of the last dividend, the amount of same, and to state whether the last report of earnings and dividend was correct, and in each instance the Examiner reported in each of the above reports that all earnings and dividends were correct. A copy of each of said reports was sent to the Comptroller by the Examiner directly upon its completion and was received by him.

Admitted that reports of the examinations referred to were exhibited to defendants and admitted to be authentic and that said reports were sent to and received by the Comptroller of the Currency.

17. That no one of said dividends was criticized by the Comptroller of the Currency after the receipt of the notification from the Cashier, or after the receipt of the National Bank Examiner's report following the declaration of said dividend.

Not admitted.

Defendants' Request and Plaintiff's Response

18. That the Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky brought action No. 649 in the District Court of the United States, for the Western District of Kentucky, against all the directors of the National Bank of Kentucky, in which he claimed that there had been an unlawful payment of each of the dividends referred to in No. 12 above.

Admitted that a petition was filed in said action No. 649 against the Directors of said Bank but asserted that said petition was available in the files of the Court and that it speaks for itself.

19. That issue was joined upon this question and, after a full hearing of evidence thereon, the Master in said cause rendered a report holding that each of said dividends had been lawfully declared.

Admitted that a hearing was had in said cause and a report filed by the Master but the conclusions with respect to said hearing and said report are questions of law which were not admitted.

20. That thereafter a hearing was had before the District Court of the United States, sitting in the Western District of Kentucky, on exceptions filed by the Receiver and an opinion was rendered, followed by a judgment dismissing the Bill as to any claim of illegality of any dividends. The pertinent portion of said opinion is as follows:

> "The Master disallowed this claim in its entirety, finding that the evidence failed to show any facts indicating any statutory violation of any of the directors or any negligence on their part in connection with these dividends. The Master discussed and analyzed, at great length and in much detail, numerous debts which the plaintiff claims should have been charged off as statutory bad debts, and after painstaking and thorough consideration of such debts and of the other relevant facts and circumstances the Master found that the evidence did not sustain this claim of the plaintiff. To recite or review these details would unduly prolong this opinion and would serve no useful purpose. It is sufficient to say that the findings of the Master are convincingly supported by the record. It is entirely clear, and I find, that the witnesses on whom the plaintiff relied in this connection had no personal knowledge of the facts concerning which they assumed to testify. There is no competent evidence sufficient to sustain the burden resting on the plaintiff of proving that any of these dividends were paid out of capital of the bank or were not paid out of its net profits after deducting therefrom its losses and bad debts, including all debts on which interest was past due and unpaid for a period of six months and which were not well secured and all debts in process of collection. It appearing that the findings of the Master are supported by the record, such findings are affirmed, and no recovery against these directors by reason of the declaration or payment of these dividends will be awarded."

That there was no appeal by the Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky from said judgment. Said judgment was entered July 8, 1935, and Motion for a Rehearing was overruled more than two years ago.

Conclusions to be drawn from the proceedings had in said cause No. 649 are matters of law which were not admitted.

21. In the minute books of the National Bank of Kentucky, purporting to record the minutes of December 16, 1927 (p. 304), June 1, 1928 (p. 318), June 8, 1928 (p. 319), June 22, 1928 (p. 320), August 31, 1928 (p. 325), December 7, 1928 (p. 352), there is recited therein that certain letters from the Comptroller of the Currency were read to the directors present. None of these letters were read to the directors present.

Denied.

Defendants' Request and Plaintiff's Response

22. In the suit of Keyes, Receiver, v. Akers, being Equity Action No. 649, in the District Court for the Western District of Kentucky, the plaintiff in that suit, who was succeeded by the plaintiff in this suit as receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky, asserted the genuineness of the minutes, and the defendants in said suit, the directors of the National Bank of Kentucky, some of them being defendants in this suit, denied the genuineness of said minutes, and upon which issue was joined insofar as the verity of said minutes was concerned, and on which issue proof was taken. With the whole record before him, after both sides had announced through the taking of testimony, the Master found:

> "I don't think that any of these letters reached the board of directors, notwithstanding the recitation in the minutes to that effect. The minute book now indicates that there were six such letters presented and read to the board, namely, December 16, 1927, p. 304, of the minute book; June 1, 1928, p. 318 of the minute book; June 8, 1928, p. 319 of the minute book; June 22, 1928, p. 320 of the minute book; August 31, 1928, p. 325 of the minute book, and December 7, 1928, p. 332 of the minute book. It is satisfactorily established that the minutes, after being read to the board, were fraudulently altered so as to show the presentation and consideration of these letters. The concealment of these letters from the board and the fact that such questionable, not to say dangerous, means were resorted to to accomplish it, demonstrates the character of the collusion with which the directors were unknowingly surrounded."

Paragraph 22 contains conclusions of law and is not admitted.

23. The case mentioned in the next above numbered paragraph came on to be heard before the sitting judge for the Western District of Kentucky upon exceptions to the Master's report, and after a full and complete hearing, the Judge of said court, in overruling the exceptions of the plaintiff so filed in said action, said:

> "The Special Master found . . . 'Further, he fraudulently caused to be concealed from the nonofficer directors reports of bank examiners, letters from the Comptroller of Currency, and other information which would have disclosed the character of such loans as loans to Wakefield & Company in excess of the statutory limit. That such directors did not have such information, had no reason to doubt the propriety of such loans, and, in approving them, relied on the officers of the bank to whom they had entrusted the administration of the details of its affairs; that such directors were not guilty of negligence in connection with such loans, and that, although the defendant officers were liable for the loss resulting from the making of these loans because they knew that such loans should be grouped together as Wakefield & Company loans, and, when so grouped, were in excess of the said statutory limit, yet, the other defendants being without that knowledge, were not so liable, except as hereinafter pointed out. I am satisfied by the record that the findings of the master just mentioned are supported by substantial evidence and that the court would not be warranted in setting such findings aside."

Plaintiff refers to the opinions rendered by the Court and the language contained therein.

24. On appeal of the aforesaid action, mentioned in the next above two preceding numbered paragraphs, to the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit (86 F. [2d] 518), that Court confirmed and approved both the findings of the Master and the District Court as set forth in the next above two preceding paragraphs on the issue thus joined, and that said findings of fact are still in full force and effect.

Denied.

25. In action No. 649, Keyes, Receiver, v. Akers, in the Western District Court of Kentucky, the plaintiff therein, succeeded by the plaintiff-receiver in this cause, claimed and contended that the criticisms set forth in the National Bank Examiners' reports as of April 23, 1927, October 14, 1927, March 9, 1928, October 13, 1928, May 25, 1929, December 30, 1929, April 26, 1930, and September 17, 1930, were read to the board of directors of the National Bank of Kentucky, and the defendant directors in said cause, some of whom are defendants in this cause, denied that said criticisms were read from said reports to the directors, upon which issue was joined, and after a complete hearing before the Master, on said issue so raised, he made findings of fact as follows:

> "It is perfectly apparent that Brown and Jones, without protest from any member of the loan committee, were designedly omitting to read parts of the reports of the Examiners, concealing letters from the Comptroller, fraudulently evading the demands of that office, and continuously misleading the non-officer directors. The covering up which Brown and Jones were guilty of, and their acts of concealment in the presence, and with the acquiescence of the other officers while the board of directors was in session, strongly indicates collusion between these parties, the purpose of which was to enable Brown, without the knowledge of the non-officer directors, to successfully extract funds from the bank in the name of Wakefield & Company, or its employees."

Paragraph 25 states contentions and conclusions of law and is not admitted.

Defendants' Request and Plaintiff's Response

26. The case mentioned in the next above numbered paragraph came on to be heard on exceptions filed to the report of the Master by the plaintiff therein, and the sitting district judge for the Western District of Kentucky quoted and adopted the findings of the Master as above set forth. This finding of fact has never been reversed, modified or set aside and is in full force and effect.

Denied.

27. Exhibit No. 4 is the testimony of Jay Fordyce Wood, taken in Equity Action No. 649, Keyes, Receiver, v. Akers et al., found recorded in the testimony in said action, Volume 5—Kentucky Wagon Company, pages 2001-2070, copy of which testimony is in the possession of the plaintiff. Issue upon which such testimony so offered was as to the authenticity of the minutes of the board of directors of the National Bank of Kentucky as of the dates mentioned in paragraph No. 21, insofar as said minutes purported to show that the letters of the Comptroller of the Currency addressed to the Bank of Kentucky or its directors had been read to the board of directors at several meetings, which letters of the Comptroller are among the letters sought to be admitted herein by the plaintiff. Since giving said testimony the witness, Jay Fordyce Wood, has died.

Admitted that said Exhibit No. 4 is a correct transcript of the testimony of Jay Fordyce Wood taken in said Equity Action No. 649 and that said witness has died. The remainder of said paragraph denied.

28. Exhibit No. 5 is a statement of the BancoKentucky Company as of December 12, 1929.

Exhibit No. 5 not admitted for want of adequate information with reference thereto.

29. Exhibit No. 6 is a statement of the BancoKentucky Company as at December 31, 1929.

Exhibit No. 6 not admitted for want of adequate information with reference thereto.

Defendants' Request and Plaintiff's Response

30. Exhibit No. 7 is a statement of the BancoKentucky Company as at September 18, 1930.

Exhibit No. 7 is not admitted for want of adequate information with reference thereto.

31. Exhibit No. 8 is a consolidated statement of the National Bank of Kentucky and Louisville Trust Company as of June 29, 1929.

Plaintiff assumes Exhibit No. 8, not attached to defendants' request, is the same as Exhibit No. 26-12, paragraph 48, of plaintiffs' request for admissions.

33. That the BancoKentucky Company stock was listed on the Chicago Stock Exchange and the following Exhibit No. 9, which is copied in the record in Keyes v. Akers, hereinabove referred to, in BancoKentucky volume at pages 224 to 239, inclusive, a copy of which is in your possession, correctly shows the amount of sales and the daily price thereof of Banco stock as reflected by sales in Chicago.

Admitted.

34. That the BancoKentucky Company stock was listed on the Louisville Stock Exchange and the sales of BancoKentucky stock and the daily quotations are contained in Exhibit No. 10, filed herewith, a copy of which you already have.

Admitted.

35. That directly after the obtention of the charter of the BancoKentucky Company, July 16th, 1929, 49 directors were elected to its Board. 19 of these directors were at all times directors of the National Bank of Kentucky. 15 of the directors were never directors of the National Bank of Kentucky. 15 of the directors were at all times directors in the Louisville Trust Company. These same 15 directors were directors of the National Bank of Kentucky between June 3rd, 1927, and January 14th, 1930, and not directors of the Bank of Kentucky at any other time. Between July 19th, 1929, and January 14th, 1930, 34 of the directors of BancoKentucky were also directors of the National Bank of Kentucky.

Admitted.

36. That Exhibit No. 11 is a correct statement of the cash receipts and disbursements of BancoKentucky Company from September 13th, 1929, to November 22nd, 1929.

Admitted.

37. That BancoKentucky Company was incorporated under the general corporation laws of the State of Delaware. That said law provides and then did provide as the Kentucky Law provides, that the certificate of incorporation shall state whether or not private property of the stockholders shall be subject to the corporate debts. That in at least 99 per cent of all certificates of incorporation filed under the general corporation law of the State of Delaware the certificate states that the private property of the stockholders shall not be subject to the corporate debts in the same way as did the BancoKentucky Company certificate of incorporation. That said provision is also the usual and customary provision to place in articles of incorporation filed under the general corporation law of the State of Kentucky.

Reference may be made to the laws of Delaware and Kentucky and any authorized publications of such laws with reference to the statement of laws contained in Paragraph 37. The remainder of said paragraph is denied.

38. That Exhibit No. 12 is a correct copy of the opinion in action No. 205,178 in the Jefferson Circuit Court, wherein Anne Bullitt Brewer is a party and in which suit the answer of The Louisville Trust Company is especially referred to in the request for admissions of plaintiff. That following the delivery of said opinion the defendant, The Louisville Trust Company, settled and compromised and paid to Anne Bullitt Brewer for the estate therein involved the amount of money that her fiduciary was willing to accept in compromise.

Admitted.

DEFENDANTS' EVIDENCE

called in his own behalf, examined by Mr. Van Winkle, testified as follows:

My name is T. E. Burkholder. I live at 1846 Rutherford Avenue, Louisville. I am not actively engaged in business at present and spend most of my time in California.

I was a holder of BancoKentucky Company stock at the time that institution closed. I purchased 400 shares through Mr. ZurSchmiede, who then had an office in the Bank of Kentucky, as I remember, the National Bank of Kentucky. I never owned any Trustees' Participation Certificates or any stock in the Bank of Kentucky or Louisville Trust Company.

I retired from business on account of my health in 1928, and have since probably spent half of my time in California. I would come back and spend some time with my sisters and mother and father and the balance of time in the West.

With respect to my knowledge of the financial condition of the Bank of Kentucky—my information of the Bank of Kentucky was that it was a first-class, high-grade financial institution, so much so that I recommended it to my mother and sisters so that in my family, my mother and sisters, we had four accounts—certainly three, but I think it was four. Some of those accounts are there yet. On October 2, 1929, I hadn't the slightest idea that the Bank of Kentucky was either insolvent or in financial difficulties.

Regarding my subscription for Banco stock—I have a friend here in town whom I regard as particularly familiar —particularly well informed on business conditions in Louisville. As I recall, I just returned from out of town and I called his office one day and he mentioned it and asked if I had subscribed for it. I told him I had not heard of it and didn't know what it was. I sat down and talked to him about it. He was under the impression—he recommended to me that he thought it would be a very good thing to invest in and would make a good, safe investment. It was on his recommendation, without going into it—on his strong recommendation that I subscribed for it.

The paper you show me is my signed subscription for stock of the BancoKentucky Company. It is dated October 2, 1929.

Said subscription was received in evidence and marked for identification "Defendants' Exhibit Burkholder No. 1."

When I subscribed to BancoKentucky Company stock, my understanding was that it was to be a general investment and financial business, underwriting business, not closely allied to any other one concern, but to have a general investment business.

At the time I bought this stock, I did not know that BancoKentucky Company owned or expected to own any particular amount of the Bank of Kentucky stock. As a matter of fact, I had no idea that they had or intended to have any other bank stock. The information that I had on it was through my friend who had recommended it to me, but I don't recall of having seen any plan of organization or reorganization. In the light of having signed the application for it there, I certainly must have read it as "Plan of Organization" rather than "Plan of Reorganization," because at no time had I any idea there was to be anything reorganized.

When I subscribed and received delivery of my stock, I did not intend to make a subscription to BancoKentucky Company stock with a view of avoiding or evading any liability on account of BancoKentucky Company owning or holding any National Bank of Kentucky stock.

I paid $25.00 a share for my stock in cash.

At the time I subscribed I had no understanding that BancoKentucky Company was going to engage in a banking business. I don't know where I got the impression, but I had the impression, from what he said when I talked to Mr. Gaylord, that it was to be largely, or to quite some extent, in the utility business, financing utilities, and that that would be quite an item of their line.

I never saw any such letter of July 19th and had no understanding at any time that there was any reorganization about it.

On cross-examination by Mr. Marx, Mr. Burkholder testified as follows:

These 400 shares of Banco cost $10,000. I did not commit myself to sign a document for $10,000 without reading it. In a general way, I would certainly want to know something about what I was reading.

My subscription reads in part—"In accordance with the privilege given me under said Plan of Reorganization, I hereby subscribe for 400 additional"—the word "additional" is crossed out—"shares of The BancoKentucky Company, at Twenty-five ($25.00) Dollars per share, and agree to pay the purchase price thereof on call of the Company following the date said Plan becomes effective." I must have read the word "Reorganization" if I signed it there.

Before I retired, I was managing the agency for the Burroughs Adding Machine Company in Wheeling, West Virginia, for about seven years before I retired in 1928.

I noticed that this blue paper which I signed is perforated at the top. It is the same as the bottom part of Plf's Ex. 24-4.

The friend who gave me my information about Banco Company was Mr. Paul Gaylord, Anchorage, Kentucky. I had just one conversation with him before purchasing the stock. That was on Breckenridge near Third. He was at that time local agent for the Burroughs Adding Machine Company. I don't remember any one else was present. The conversation was the same day I signed the subscription blank.

I went to the National Bank of Kentucky, Fifth and Main, to sign the subscription where I saw Mr. ZurSchmiede. I can't recall verbatim what I said to Mr. ZurSchmiede. I think probably I just went in and told him Mr. Gaylord had sent me down there and suggested that the BancoKentucky Company would offer a good investment and I asked if he had any shares available and that I would want to subscribe—buy some of them. I did not know Mr. ZurSchmiede and had never met him before.

I went to see him because Mr. Gaylord told me to see Mr. ZurSchmiede and to tell him he sent me down there. Mr. Gaylord knew Mr. ZurSchmiede. Mr. Gaylord had subscribed for BancoKentucky Company stock.

I suppose the National Bank of Kentucky was commonly referred to in Louisville as the Bank of Kentucky—I don't know—I have not spent so very much time here in Louisville. When I went in to see Mr. ZurSchmiede I knew that the company whose stock I was subscribing for was called BancoKentucky Company. I don't recall that Mr. ZurSchmiede said anything about the company very much in detail. I think my purchase was made largely on the recommendation of Mr. Gaylord, whose opinion on those things I respected and had confidence in. In view of the fact that he had invested his own money in it and seemed to be enthusiastic over it, I didn't investigate it as thoroughly as if I was dealing with a stranger. Mr. ZurSchmiede must have said something about the company, but I don't recall it. You see, it has been over ten years ago. I don't think Mr. ZurSchmiede said anything along the line that they were going to own the majority of the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky.

I regarded the National Bank of Kentucky as financially sound and regarded by business men as a high-grade bank. I don't know that I thought of it much one way or the other from the standpoint of a good investment.

73—Naturally, you knew from the name that it had some connection with the National Bank of Kentucky?

A.—No, I wouldn't know that. There was a good many institutions being organized.

74—You knew that a National Bank—you went to the National Bank of Kentucky to buy the stock, didn't you?

A.—Yes.

75—You talked to the Cashier of the National Bank of Kentucky?

A.—I talked to Mr. ZurSchmiede; I don't know what his position was.

76—You knew that a National Bank is not allowed to sell common stocks?

A.—Yes, I knew that.

77—So, the very fact that the National Bank of Kentucky were selling this stock indicated to you, both the name, where you went to buy it and the person to whom you talked, all indicated to you that there was some connection between the National Bank of Kentucky and the Banco-Kentucky Company?

A.—I don't know just what you mean by the connection. I understood the same people who officered or were interested in the National Bank of Kentucky were interested in the BancoKentucky, but I didn't understand there was any financial hook-up between the two.

78—Of course, you knew national bank stock was assessable and subject to double liability?

A.—Yes.

79—You knew or understood that this stock in the BancoKentucky Company was not assessable, didn't you?

A.—That the BancoKentucky Company stock was not assessable?

80—Yes.

A.—Yes.

81—Now, you say you knew the same people were going to own the BancoKentucky Company as owned the National Bank of Kentucky?

A.—I didn't say own it; I said the same people interested in the National Bank of Kentucky were interested in organizing the BancoKentucky Company.

82—Interested financially?

A.—I understood so.

83—Now, Mr. Burkholder, didn't you know that the principal investment at that time of the BancoKentucky Company was to be bank stock?

A.—I can't say that I did, sir.

84—You won't say you didn't though?

A.—As I said awhile ago, my understanding of the BancoKentucky Company was that they were to do a general financial business.

85—You said in financial institutions?

A.—I don't know about financial institutions.

Mr. Van Winkle: The witness didn't say that.

A.—To do a general financial business and underwriting.

86—You understood it was going to invest in bank stocks, didn't you?

A.—I don't know that I understood that. I don't think there was anything definite said about it at that time. My thought was they would buy and sell bonds and underwrite business. That is just about the sum of my impression at the time. My impression, as I say, was that bank stocks were not to be an appreciable part of their investments, or that they were to be particularly interested in any one bank, but, as I say, to do a general underwriting business and buy bonds.

87—Well, you said in your answer it was not your understanding that bank stocks were to be such an appreciable part of the business, but you did understand that among other things they were going to own bank stock?

A.—I would like to answer that, but I don't think I can say definitely and be fair to yourself or myself either, that I did understand they were going to own bank stock.

88—You don't want the Judge to understand that it was your thought that this company was not going to own any bank stocks?

A.—No, the chances are that I had some inkling there might be some investments in bank stocks.

89—Including the National Bank of Kentucky and Louisville Trust Company?

A.—No, I could not say I understood that part.

90—Didn't you understand they were going to have a chain of banks?

A.—No, I can't say that I understood that part either.

I can't remember how long prior to October 2, 1929, I had been in Kentucky because at that time I was making numbers of trips West and I doubt very much if I have any data that will enable me to refresh my recollection on that point. I will just say this: maybe this will clear it up:

The first thing I heard of the BancoKentucky Company being organized or anything in connection with it was when I went into Mr. Gaylord's office and he asked me about it and talked about it there, and I went from there that same day down to—subscribed for 400 shares of it.

I don't recall of having read anything in the papers about it. When I am home I read the Courier-Journal and Times. My home is right here in the city. I am pretty sure that I had come back from California but I can't recall specifically or state definitely how long I had been here.

I did business with the First National Bank and had a deposit account there. When I was in the city I took my deposit accounts down there. Yes, that will give it to me; I can look it up and find out the dates I may have made deposits or drawn checks. I can't recall how long I was in the city before October 2, 1929, and how long I remained here afterwards.

Occasionally I read the Herald-Post. My permanent residence was here at 1846 Rutherford Avenue. The paper was delivered there. The family was a regular subscriber, they subscribed for the papers there. In any event, I was here all the month of October, 1929, and until after the first of the year. That would be a little bit long.

I paid my subscription fee promptly because I know he said something about issuing temporary certificates and the certificates not being ready for some little time, and I made some payment on it, and then was under the impression that I would be notified that the permanent certificates would be issued, and they were not, and I went down to see about it, intending at that time to pay all of it. I found out at that time that they had a charge of interest against me for the unpaid part of it—I don't know how much, and I paid $25 a share and interest for the unpaid part, about $2 or $3. It took a day or two after that, because in order to pay it I had to convert some other securities and pay it in cash. I was interested then in when I would be called upon to pay the $10,000. I understood it was to be cash—it was a matter of a few days. I didn't inquire when the Company would call the purchase price. I just understood that they would notify me when that would be.

I never saw any such letter as Plf's Ex. 24-5. Apparently that has reference to Trustees' Participation shares. I didn't own any. I didn't see Plf's Ex. 24-6, the letter sent telling people that they have to pay before October 1st. I don't think I ever saw anything in connection with Plf's Ex. 24-3, the letter of July 19th. That was before my subscription date. I received dividends from BancoKentucky Company. I am sure I could not recall whether accompanying them was any statement informing me as to what they held. I am not certain that I was in the city for as much as a week before October 2, 1929, but the probabilities were that I was.

You show me the Herald-Post for Thursday evening, October 26 and call my attention to the front page which says "Two Ohio Banks Taken Over by the BancoKentucky Company. Resources of Institution are increased to $215,000,000 by deal" and in the body of the article you call my attention to the fact that it says "the BancoKentucky Company was formed recently with James M. Brown, President of the National Bank of Kentucky, to take over control of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company through an exchange of stock. The exchange of stock was completed last Thursday." I certainly don't recall that.

You show me the Courier-Journal of September 27th, two days later, with the headlines "Two Banks Sold to BancoKentucky Company." I don't recall seeing that.

You show me the Herald-Post for September 27th with large headlines "Cincinnati Enquirer Lauds BancoKen-tucky Company Deal and Sees Great Advantage to City" and a second headline "Cincinnati Banks Join Midwest Chain; Brighton and Pearl Market Join Big Unit in Kentucky." I am sorry, I didn't see any of it. I am sorry, I can't tell you how long before that I was in the city.

I kept my stock until the close. I will say I did know after I purchased it that they were interested in banks. I couldn't say when I learned that, but it was after the stock was delivered to me. We were getting dividends. Certainly, I was aware that they were interested in banks; everybody knew it. It was the general opinion later that they were interested in banks.

129—You then learned they owned practically all the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky?

A.—I would say—I would have to acknowledge I did learn that they owned practically all of it, or an appreciable amount of it, let's put it that way.

130—And also the Louisville Trust Company?

A.—I don't remember about the Louisville Trust Company, but my understanding was they were interested in banks in Cincinnati and in the National Bank of Kentucky, and probably others.

131—Cincinnati Banks: You mean the Brighton Bank and the Pearl Market Bank?

A.—I don't know the names of them.

132—You say possibly others: You knew, in other words, that they owned a chain of banks in the Ohio Valley?

A.—Let's not put it that way; I can put it better this way: I had information that they were interested in other banks. How many, I don't know. I don't know that I could tell you the location, at this time.

133—Ashland and Paducah?

A.—Yes, I think I heard of those.

134—Covington?

A.—I am not certain.

135—You knew that at the time you were getting your dividends?

A.—That is right.

136—You decided to keep your stock?

A.—Yes.

137—With that knowledge?

A.—With that knowledge, yes. It was probably a mistaken idea that we were without any double liability clause on it.

Mr. Marx: Now, if Your Honor please, that is all I want to ask him. I don't want to stop this gentleman from going to California, but I do want to check, by subpoena, his deposit account and his deposit slips at the First National Bank to ascertain the length of time he was here.

The Court: He says he will get that information as best he can, by consulting with the bank and by talking with the members of his family, to ascertain as best he can, how long he had been here prior to October 2, 1929. He can get that information and give it to his attorney and his attorney will put it in the record. That will answer the purpose.

Mr. Marx: I think it will. Mr. Kasfir has a suggestion to make. If Your Honor please, it appears also that he did not pay his subscription immediately, because he paid interest on a deferred subscription, so we want to know how long he remained here afterwards.

The Court: He will get that information. Mr. Burkholder, get that information and give it to Mr. Van Winkle to put in the record.

The Witness: I might say that that was due to a misunderstanding as to when the certificates would be ready, and I was, as I recall it, waiting for them to notify me that they were ready for delivery.

Mr. Van Winkle: I would suggest that they have the record showing the date of payment. It was on October 8th.

The Witness: If I can do anything to clarify it, please let me do it; I want to give you the information as impartially as I know how.

The Court: That is all, Mr. Burkholder.

Allen P. Dodd,

called for defendants, examined by Mr. Crawford, testified as follows:

I am a lawyer, having engaged in the practice of law for thirty-one years, twenty-five years in Louisville, Kentucky. Early in 1927 I was a director in the Louisville Trust Company and a stockholder of that company. In connection with the combination through trusteeing the stock of The National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company, an investigation was made by the Trust Company as to the net worth of The National Bank of Kentucky. A committee was appointed to represent The Louisville Trust Company in ascertaining the net worth of The National Bank of Kentucky. The Louisville Trust Company committee met with the committee for The National Bank of Kentucky and the two committees left the matter of the valuation of both banks to Humphrey-Robinson and Company, which concern had audited the two banks and the Louisville Clearing House for a number of years.

I was connected with the case of Keyes v. Akers later known as the Atherton case both as attorney and as a defendant. Question of the Humphrey-Robinson report was brought into that case.

Humphrey-Robinson and Company made a written report to The Louisville Trust Company regarding the value of The National Bank of Kentucky. This report was recorded in the minutes of The Louisville Trust Company board of directors, with the minutes of the adjourned meeting held May 21, 1927. The report is as follows:

"Mr. Amgereau Gray,
Chairman of Committee,
Louisville Trust Company,
Louisville, Kentucky.
Dear Sir:

As per your request, and that of Mr. Charles F. Jones, cashier of The National Bank of Kentucky, we would state that in our last examination of that bank we estimated its net worth to be $7,189,292.25, at December 31, 1926.

This estimated net worth was arrived at by us after taking the total net worth of the bank per the books, and adding to that figure the estimated appreciation over book values of its assets, and deducting the depreciation from book values on account of estimated losses.

Trusting this is the information desired, we are,

Yours respectfully,

Humphrey-Robinson and Company."

This letter was written before the Trust Company's board agreed to the unification, to-wit on March 17, 1927. Humphrey-Robinson and Company was the Clearing House Examiner for all the banks in Louisville belonging to the Clearing House Association and was one of the highest grade accounting firms in this locality. The Louisville Trust Company board of directors acted upon the information contained in this letter in recommending the consolidation to that company's stockholders. Prior to the approval of this letter by the Trust Company's board of directors I had no knowledge of the details of the assets of The National Bank of Kentucky and had not been connected with that bank in any way.

At that time the capital of The National Bank of Kentucky was $2,500,000.00 and its surplus $2,500,000.00. The general basis of the Trust Company's and the Bank's trade was four for one. The net asset value of the bank was approximately four times the net asset value of The Louisville Trust Company. The earnings were likewise approximately four to one. The net earnings of The Louisville Trust Company were approximately $200,000.00 and the net earnings of The National Bank of Kentucky, as reported to us, were approximately $800,000.00. The net asset value of The National Bank of Kentucky was $7,189,292.25 and the net asset value of The Louisville Trust Company was $1,830,123.82. Humphrey-Robinson and Company also made a report to The National Bank of Kentucky of the net asset value of The Louisville Trust Company. At that time The National Bank of Kentucky did not have enough outstanding capital stock to have the stock trusteed on the basis of four to one with The Louisville Trust Company and it was necessary for the bank to increase its capital from $2,500,000.00 to $4,000,000.00. This increase was affected by a declaration of a stock dividend, out of surplus and undivided profits, amounting to $1,500,000.00. It was necessary to secure the consent of the office of the Comptroller of Currency to the declaration of this $1,500,000.00 stock dividend. Mr. John Stites, President of The Louisville Trust Company made a report to the board of directors after his return from Washington where the whole plan of unification was submitted to the Comptroller's office for his approval. Mr. Stites reported to the board that the Comptroller approved the trust agreement and congratulated The Louisville Trust Company's president for such a splendid connection with such a splendid bank as The National Bank of Kentucky. This testimony was given in the director's case. It was also necessary at that time to obtain the consent of the Federal Reserve Board to the interlocking directorate. Such consent was given and the unification was approved by The Federal Reserve.

After the trusteeing of the stock in The National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company I had twenty shares, ten shares of National Bank of Kentucky and ten shares of Louisville Trust Company stock. I owned ten shares of National Bank of Kentucky stock. It was physically in the safety deposit box in The Louisville Trust Company from the time of the unification until the banks closed.

I was one of the trustees under the Trust Agreement. I was and am familiar with the terms of the Trust Agreement. When I deposited these ten qualifying shares of stock I and every other director got a copy of the same receipt. These receipts were filled in for the various directors, and were in the following form: "Louisville, Kentucky, June . , 1927. Received of A. J. Carroll, Certificate No. AJ3060 for ten shares of stock of the National Bank of Kentucky, same to be returned to him upon demand," signed "Trustees under agreement dated April 22, 1927, between the stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky and Louisville Trust Company, by Huston Quin, Secretary."

I made an agreement with the Trustees as to the disposition of this stock in the event I ceased to be a director. The agreement with reference to the qualifying shares is in the minutes of the Trustees. I do not know what the actual agreement is.

The substance of such agreement was then read into the record as follows: "The Secretary reported that all but five of the Directors had signed Agreements to the effect that upon death, insolvency, attachment, or upon ceasing to be a director in either of the affiliating institutions, they or their heirs, assigns or personal representatives would forthwith retransfer to the Trustees, certificates for their qualifying shares of stock in each institution upon receiving from the Trustees' Participation Certificates of Interest for an equal number of shares thereof, upon the basis of a par of $100.00 each." This agreement or the substance of the agreement appears in a photostatic copy of the minutes of the Trustees for June 14, 1927. Neither I nor any other director signed any other agreement with reference to our qualifying shares. At the time of the consolidation or agreement trusteeing the stock there was no agreement of any kind that the members of the board of directors of either institution should remain the same.

I received the dividends on the qualifying shares in the Louisville Trust Company and in the National Bank of Kentucky. There were no strings of any kind attached to these dividends. I continued to function as a director of the National Bank of Kentucky until January, 1930.

The amendment to the articles of the Louisville Trust Company, increasing its capital stock, is recorded in the minutes of that company for March 15, 1929. (Plaintiff's Exhibit 126.)

The minutes of January 16, 1929, set forth the plan which was adopted for the acquisition of the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company and the absorption of that company into the Louisville Trust Company. Such minutes recite in part "that the Louisville Trust Company shall cause to be issued to the shareholders of the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company pro rata 7500 shares of the Trustees' Participation Certificates in return and exchange for 7500 shares of the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company stock, being its entire capital stock, carrying with it all the stock of the Louisville National Company, which the shareholder of the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company contribute and which stock, so contributed, shall be delivered to the Louisville Trust Company." These 7500 Trustees' Participation Certificates were the only consideration which passed to the shareholders of the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company and Louisville National Company for their stock.

When I became a director of the National Bank of Kentucky there were thirty-four directors. Nineteen of them had constituted the former board of the National Bank of Kentucky and fifteen of them had constituted the former board of the Louisville Trust Company. At the time of the trusteeing of the stock of the Bank and the Trust Company I knew the officers and directors of the Bank and that they had the highest reputation as bankers and officers of banks.

The National Bank of Kentucky made loans through a loan committee consisting of eight vice-presidents who were experienced at making loans. They were bankers of long standing and had been connected with banks for a long time. Mr. Angermeier was President of the old German Bank. Mr. Ormsby was Vice-President of the National Bank of Kentucky and had previously been President of the old Southern National Bank. Members of the Bank of Kentucky loan committee were not directors of that bank, except Mr. Angermeier, Mr. Akers, Mr. Ormsby and Mr. Hayes. The other four members of the loan committee were not directors of the bank.

Vice-presidents of the bank who were not directors did attend directors' meetings. The bank's auditor was Mr. ZurSchmiede. The National Bank of Kentucky minute book, meeting for March 30, 1923, gives the following authority to the banks' auditor: "After careful investigation your committee recommends that the Auditor of the bank be given full and complete authority to make examination of any department of the bank at any time, in such manner as he may see fit. We recommend that this new authority of the auditor be as complete as that of a National Bank Examiner or Clearing House Examiner. In this connection it is further recommended that the auditor report directly to the Cashier of the Bank." This committee's report was adopted. The Bank of Kentucky directors met once a week usually with full attendance.

I was present at most of the meetings of the Bank of Kentucky from June, 1927, to January, 1930. To show what was done at these meetings I will read out of one of the minutes. First, a statement of the condition of the bank and consolidated statement of the National Bank of Kentucky-Louisville Trust Company as of February 6, 1930, was read. A statement of the Bank was first always read, at the opening of the meeting. Next, a list of all loans taken the week before, up to Thursday, the day before the meeting of the Board on Friday, and known as the "clip-sheet," was submitted in writing to the Board. That list shows the name of each borrower, the line of collateral and the amount of the loan, all the information that was necessary for the directors to know about the particular borrower. Those clip-sheets came to the Board as a report of the loan committee with respect to loans taken the previous week up to the close of the banking business the day before the meeting. Before those loans reached us they were supposed to have been approved by the loan committee, under the rules of the Bank.

None of the Vice-Presidents who attended those directors' meetings criticized the loans that came through on such reports. Once a month there was read to the Board what was known as the "$50,000 And Over" book. Loans of $50,000 on up were read to the Board so as to keep the total of any one borrower before the Board. On an average about 500 loans would come before the Board each week.

The Bank of Kentucky had about 200 employees. From 150 to 160 were engaged in making records of the Bank.

Bank of Kentucky had a great many files. The Bank occupied the ground floor of two buildings and part of a third building at Fifth and Main streets in Louisville until it closed. The Banks' records were kept in the bank building. I do not know where the Bank kept its newspaper clippings file. The Banks' board of directors meeting lasted from one and a half to two and a half and sometimes three hours. There was a general discussion of the affairs of the bank.

122—Coming down to the Examination Reports of the National Bank Examiners: Were they read to the Board?

A.—They were supposedly read in haec verba, that is, read out to the Board.

123—By whom?

A.—Mr. Brown.

124—Was one of the other officers present when that would be done?

A.—Yes.

125—Was there any suggestion by any officer of the Bank other than Mr. Brown that he was improperly reading the reports?

Mr. Marx: I object to that.

The Court: Objection sustained—any suggestion he was reading the report incorrectly?

Mr. Crawford: Yes. That was the whole issue involved in the directors' case.

126—When Mr. Brown would read these reports, did any of the officers present, other than Mr. Brown, including the Cashier, ever suggest that Mr. Brown was not reading material parts of the report?

A.—They did not.

127—Did he always read the reports correctly, as you have now found out?

Mr. Marx: I object to that. The reports were there and he could have looked at them at the time.

The Court: Overruled.

A.—No; he did not; he deleted such parts of the Bank Examiners' reports as he saw fit and only submitted to the directors such parts of the reports as were not critical of the officers and directors of the bank and the large lines of the bank.

Mr. Marx: I object and move that that be stricken out of the record.

(At this point there was a long argument. The Court overruled plaintiff's objection and directed that the question be read. The question was read by the reporter.)

The Court: And you have answered that he did not?

A.—Yes.

No National Bank Examiner came before the Board of the Bank while I was on the Board. I was not a member of the Bank of Kentucky board of directors after January, 1930. I have learned that Mr. Wood did come before the board May 16, 1930.

Mr. John S. Wood, Chief National Bank Examiner, testified in the case of Anderson v. Akers. His testimony is found in the record in that case in volume 1, rebuttal and surrebuttal beginning at page 120 and continuing on to page 246. The Directors also testified on the question of what occurred at that meeting. In that case there was a decision by the Master on the question of what took place at that meeting.

The special section of the Master's report given over to the May 16, 1930, meeting begins at page 468 of Volume 1 of the record in the case of Keyes v. Akers, later Atherton v. Anderson, and runs through to page 477. Plaintiff filed exceptions to that section to the Master's report. This section of the Master's report is Exhibit A attached to the amended and supplemental answer of defendants William S. Speed, Saunders P. Jones and Allen P. Dodd.

The transcript of the record in Keyes v. Akers, later Anderson v. Atherton, marked for identification "Defendants' Exhibit No. 1," and filed in evidence.

It was stipulated that the answers filed on behalf of the Administrator of the estate of Henry Vogt, deceased, should be considered the answer of all defendants in this case who were directors of the National Bank of Kentucky and defendants in the Anderson v. Atherton case.

In the Atherton case plaintiff's exception to the rulings of the Master with respect to the May 16, 1930, meeting may be found in Defendant's Exhibit 1, volume 1, page 701. There was no appeal by the plaintiff in the Atherton case from Judge Tuttles' ruling on those exceptions.

Plaintiff's bill of complaint, with reference to dividends declared and paid by the National Bank of Kentucky appears in Defendant's Exhibit 1, page 133, section 431 of the bill of complaint. As the defendant in that case I filed a general traverse of the whole bill.

Plaintiff filed exceptions to the Master's ruling on the subject of the alleged illegal payment of dividend by the Bank. The District Court's ruling on plaintiff's exception are found on pages 846 and 847 of Defendant's Exhibit 1. There was no appeal taken by the plaintiff from that ruling. And the opinion of the District Court was carried into a judgment, section 55 of the decree, page 960.

BancoKentucky Company was first considered by the board of directors of the National Bank of Kentucky in the spring of 1929. The minutes of the board meetings of June 7, 1929, show the following resolution with respect to BancoKentucky Company, "Mr. Brown's proposition to form a new company with a proposed capital of $20,000,000 organized to own stock of other corporations, all, or any part, buy and sell securities, original and refinancing, etc., was submitted to the Board of Directors expressed themselves as favorable and on motion duly seconded and unanimously carried the President was authorized to proceed along the lines outlined."

That, generally speaking, was the plan of Banco. It never was changed. In the formation of the company, there was put into the Articles of Incorporation the powers to do the business set out in that resolution. After the formation of the company a letter July 19, 1929, was sent to all Trustees' Participation receipt holders. Section 3 and section 6 of that letter refer to the same thing that I referred to in this minute. I never saw the letter of July 19th until after it was sent out although I was a director. I first saw it after my return to the city about July 22nd, 1929.

BancoKentucky Company was a separate and distinct organization from the National Bank of Kentucky.

187—Was there any reorganization of the bank following the formation of the BancoKentucky Company?

Plaintiff's objection was overruled by the Court.

A.—The National Bank of Kentucky was not reorganized, nor the Louisville Trust Company, by the organization of the Banco Kentucky Company.

Plaintiff's motion to strike the answer of the witness from the record was overruled by the Court.

There was no change in the charter of either the National Bank of Kentucky or the Louisville Trust Company after the formation of BancoKentucky Company. There was no contract or agreement of any kind between BancoKentucky Company and the National Bank of Kentucky relative to the business of those companies or relative to the management and running of those companies. The only connection was that the Board of Directors of the BancoKentucky Company was made up of the boards of the two banks. There was no written agreement or understanding regarding the managements of those institutions.

The purposes discussed in the formation of Banco when the Board of Directors of the Bank of Kentucky adopted this resolution that we have just read to you was thoroughly analyzed before I left Louisville in 1929. I left Louisville, I think, June 28th, or 29th and got back on July 22nd, as I recall. All of these matters were gone into by the Board and this letter was sent out while I was away, and I found it on my desk when I returned. The purposes for which this company was formed, as discussed by the Board and what the members themselves intended to do about it—that is what I knew about it before I left—the charter had already been secured. The principal purpose of the new institution was to own or to go generally into the security business, to own an interest in banks in the Ohio Valley, which was including the majority interest in the Louisville Trust Company and National Bank of Kentucky. . . .

And the purpose of the organization of this corporation at that time, one of the main things that I had in mind, and as shown from the charter of the corporation, I believe, was to get into the investment banking field. It was believed by me, if you are going to limit it to me, that there was a great opportunity here to do that kind of business, because the industries in this city could not get the financial assistance inside of Louisville that I thought could be furnished by this company. Now, there is a field of investment, and opportunity for profit, that was discussed. That was the matter of first mortgage—real estate first mortgage bonds and the market for them at the National Bank of Kentucky. We always had requests from out in the country for investments, first mortgage bonds, from bank depositors who were undertaking to get them for their customers, and could not find first mortgage bonds sufficient for the need. There was a profit in it for anybody who could get them. The BancoKentucky Company was organized to originate first mortgage bonds—title insurance, title examinations and the floating of first mortgage bonds. It went so far, before the company was formed, as to have a complete outline of the business with Mr. Hugh Fleece at the head of it. All those matters were gone into. It was felt that by acquiring an interest in banks in the Ohio Valley that it would be a great avenue for the underwriting and placing of bonds, and the BancoKentucky Company could make a great deal of money along that line in the investment banking field and originating of securities.

193—Was that discussed generally in the Board?

A.—Yes, it was discussed very generally. The capital structure of the corporation was fixed at 2,000,000 shares to be sold at $25 a share, or $50,000,000. The disposition of that stock was discussed before I left here, and it was believed that they could acquire half of the Trustees' Participation Receipts and would not need to use any more than 700,000 shares of the stock for that purpose. That would leave 1,300,000 shares of stock for sale. The whole plan of Banco was conditioned from the beginning on there being a large reserve of cash of not less than $30,000,000.00. It was considered at the meeting of the Board of Directors, the last meeting I attended before this corporation was subsequently organized.

There were no secrets about Banco at all. It was public property. Everybody knew what was going on all the time. There was no secret about it at all. The plan of the proposed formation of BancoKentucky Company was published generally in the newspapers. The newspaper article that follows the meeting of July 19, 1929, carried the general outline of the scope of the BancoKentucky Company.

There never was any discussion at any of the meetings of the board of directors of the bank, prior to the formation of the BancoKentucky Company, that the bank might be in a failing condition. Speaking for myself it was far from my mind to even question the solvency of the National Bank of Kentucky because it was thought by me to be a perfectly solvent company, one of the best banks in this section of the country, as good as any bank could be. Every quarter during all the time I was on the board, and for years before, the Bank declared a dividend of $160,000 a quarter. I heard no criticism of the legality of those dividends, or any criticism of the Bank for the way it was managed at all. I knew there was a regulation in the Banking Act which required notification to the Comptroller when a dividend was declared.

There was absolutely no purpose on my part, at the time of the formation of Banco, and in helping to bring about its organization, to transfer my stock to it as a fraud on the creditors. I never thought of that. In the formation of Banco, at any meeting I attended, I never heard any discussion of the probability of my shares being liable to assessment. It never was mentioned. I never heard it discussed and never thought, myself, of the question of double liability during the whole time the matter was discussed.

Mr. A. J. Carroll, a very able Louisville lawyer, who has practiced for a long time, actually prepared the Articles of Incorporation of the BancoKentucky Company. I never heard any discussion in the Board or outside the Board as to whether or not there should be put in the Company's Articles a provision that the private property of the stockholders should not be liable for the corporation's debts. I never heard any discussion, in the Board or out of the Board, that it would be a good idea to organize Banco for the purpose of allowing the stockholders to exempt themselves from the liability imposed upon bank stockholders. I never heard it mentioned during the whole time that I was in the discussion leading up to the organization of the BancoKentucky Company.

I did not transfer any of my stock to Banco. I only had twenty shares and I kept them for the purpose of qualifying myself as a director in each institution. Originally I had twenty shares in the Louisville Trust Company. Then I got ten shares of Louisville Trust Company and ten shares of National Bank of Kentucky. In January, 1930, when I left the Board of the Bank of Kentucky, I surrendered my stock in the National Bank of Kentucky and got Trustees' Participation Receipts. I deposited half of the Trustees' Participation Receipts and got 100 shares of the stock of BancoKentucky Company. I bought 800 shares of Banco stock for $20,000.00, signing the usual subscription for it at $25.00 a share. If I had thought about double liability or any liability on this stock I would never have bought a share of it. I didn't dream of any liability.

Defendants offered in evidence copies of the notices sent by the Cashier of the Bank to the Comptroller of the Currency with respect to dividends as of April 1, 1927, July 1, 1927, October 1, 1927, January 2, 1928, April 2, 1928, July 2, 1928, October 1, 1928, January 2, 1929, April 1, 1929, July 1, 1929, October 1, 1929, January 2, 1930, April 1, 1930, and October 1, 1930. Said notices were ordered filed as part of Defendant's Exhibit 2.

Prior to January, 1930 there were thirty-four directors of the Bank who were also directors of Banco. In January, 1930 fifteen directors retired from the Bank Board. Banco originally had forty-nine directors, made up of the nineteen of the old National Bank of Kentucky Board, fifteen of the old Louisville Trust Company Board, and fifteen from the old Board of the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company. At the election of directors in January, 1930, all of the officers of the three banks were eliminated from the Banco Board, leaving the Board, as I remember, at thirty-four. The former directors of the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company remained directors of Banco, but they were never directors of the Bank of Kentucky. After January, 1930 the Banco Board had thirty members who were not directors of the National Bank of Kentucky. Only nineteen members of the Banco Board were directors of the National Bank of Kentucky. Thirty-four members were elected to the Banco Board in January, 1930.

Of the thirty-four Banco directors there were fourteen who were directors of the National Bank of Kentucky and the remainder, twenty, were directors of the other two institutions, the Louisville Trust Company and the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company. A number of the original Board of Directors of Banco were dropped. They were officers and directors of the Bank other than Mr. Brown and Mr. Bean.

Banco began to function actively on the 19th or the 20th of September, 1929. It had received its Charter July 19 and had then set out this prospectus, but it began to function on September 20th, 1929. It opened a set of books and thereafter its acts or doings were reflected by those books until the receiver was appointed.

Banco continued to purchase interests in banks from that time until it closed. It continued to have separate meetings of its directors and transact its affairs until, in June, 1930, it acquired a half interest in Caldwell & Company. It bought some stock in the Union Central Life Insurance Company in December. Its directors met regularly and separately and had reports from its officers like any other corporation and performed the functions it was organized to perform as far as it could. It had some obstacles in the way of accomplishing what it started out to accomplish, but it was making effort at each meeting to carry forward the original plan that was entered into.

The banks it purchased in part or in whole were the Pearl Market Bank & Trust Company, the Brighton Bank & Trust Company, the Central Savings Bank & Trust Company, the Peoples' Liberty Bank & Trust Company, the First National Bank of Paducah, the Security Bank of Louisville, and the Ashland National Bank.

Plaintiff's objection to the question regarding the consideration paid by Banco for the banks was sustained and defendants made the following avowal, to-wit;—The banks were bought and paid for partly in cash and partly by stock. Some of them were paid for entirely by stock.

I have before me an exhibit made by Mr. Shuck, showing how much stock of the BancoKentucky Company was subscribed for and taken by a holder of Trustees' Participation Receipts. Mr. Shuck kept those records and he will identify this exhibit.

394,000 shares of Banco stock were sold for cash,—$9,862,000.00. These are approximate figures. The Trustees' Participation Receipt-holders purchased 198,000 shares and paid $4,775,500.00 for it. This is aside from what they exchanged in Trustees' Receipts for Banco stock. I purchased 800 shares. I didn't exchange any until January, 1930 when I left the Board of the National Bank of Kentucky. I paid $20,000.00 for the 800 shares I purchased.

Caldwell & Company was a very large investment banking house with its chief offices in Nashville, Tennessee. The purchase of that company's stock was discussed by the Banco Board at many meetings, possibly sixty days to ninety days before the contract was entered into. My reason for approving the contract with Caldwell & Company was that to me it was an opportunity to get into the investment banking business which we started out to go into, without the expense of building an organization, and it looked to me like this was a good opportunity to get into the security business, which was the main business I thought the company was organized for. Caldwell & Company was an investment banking house with offices in many, many cities throughout the United States. It had been in existence a considerable time and was a very reputable house in the South at that time. It was a large holder of insurance companies and industrial bonds and securities of every kind, and they sold a great many securities to insurance companies throughout the country. They handled municipal bonds, county bonds, and all kinds of real estate bonds and industrial bonds. It was represented to me that among Caldwell & Company's assets was the working control of the Inter-Southern Life. Inter-Southern Life, in turn, controlled the Missouri State Life. The Missouri State Life was one of the large stock insurance companies in this country. It was the third largest stock insurance company in the United States at that time.

Subscriptions for stock of BancoKentucky Company were due October 1, 1929. The call was made at a Board meeting on September 20, 1929. On September 20, 1929, the next day after the closing of the time for the deposit of Trustees' Participation Receipts and subscriptions, it was ascertained that the deposit of Trustees' Participation Receipts was beyond all expectation of anybody on the Board. It was almost unanimous and the Board set aside 1,150,000 shares of stock, exactly two shares for each Trustees' Participation Receipt out.

They had a report that there were 600,000 shares of stock that had been sold on subscription and there were only 250,000 shares left. Plans at once were set in motion to amend the Charter of the BancoKentucky Company, increasing its capital from 2,000,000 to 5,000,000 shares, because there was not sufficient capital available to furnish the character of service that the BancoKentucky Company was organized in the first instance to furnish.

Banco's Articles were amended. The matter was brought up before the Board at that time and later on, and discussed. Subsequently the Articles were amended, but they were confronted with the pre-emptive rights of the stockholders, and had to have waivers from them. Finally, in October, when this matter of amending was discussed to create the capital structure that was originally necessary to carry out the plan of the company, the stock market crash came—the security market went all to pieces and it was finally agreed to defer the amendment until January. At that time the Charter was amended, increasing the capital from 2,000,000 to 5,000,000 shares.

After the stock market crash, for the time being, no underwriting business could be done and no underwriting business was being done at all. After the stock market crash, you couldn't sell stock, you couldn't sell new issues at all at that time.

The Caldwell & Company contract was the first opportunity which presented itself to embark in the general business covered by investment banking. The matter was up for discussion time and again by the Board as to what they would do about placing this stock. The Caldwell & Company proposition came up and was discussed and it was felt that by this connection with Caldwell & Company, they could not only market the stock of the BancoKentucky Company, but they could get into the investment banking field at once and to get the capital structure they had intended to have at the beginning.

It was reported that the only remaining portion of stock that could be sold was 250,000 shares and the Board authorized a contract to sell that 250,000 shares to Blyth & Company and Byllesby & Company at $25.00 a share. This contract is referred to in the minutes of September 20, 1929:

"Motion was made, seconded and carried, authorizing the President, in his discretion, to close negotiations with broker or brokers for the sale of two hundred fifty thousand (250,000) shares of the BancoKentucky Company stock at not less than Twenty-five ($25.00) Dollars per share."

On September 27, 1929:

"Motion was made, seconded and carried, approving the contract with Blyth & Company and H. M. Byllesby & Company for the sale of two hundred fifty thousand (250,000) shares of the BancoKentucky Company stock at Twenty-five ($25.00) Dollars per share."

I did not know at any time prior to the middle of 1930 that this transaction was not a sale. I did not know that it was not a sale until the summer of 1930. I had some indication of it. It never was intimated to the Board during that period that we did not have a fixed contract for the sale of that stock to Blyth and Byllesby, at any meeting that I attended. I never thought the contract was not in existence. I thought it was a fixed sale. The question never came up before the Board at any time as to why the money was not received from that transaction at any meeting when I was present that I recall.

Defendants offered in evidence Defendants' Request for Admissions.

Defendant offered the pleading, the testimony, the opinion and decision in the case of Venhoff and Hillen v. Anderson in evidence. Plaintiff's objection to any of the record or proceedings being received in evidence was sustained. Defendant then offered the pleadings, evidence and judgmnt in said case, as an avowal, and the same were marked for identification, "Defendant's Exhibit No. 3."

I never saw or heard of the letters filed in the record in this case by plaintiff from Mr. Bean, Mr. Vaughan and other people to the Bank and from the Bank and letters from the Federal Reserve Board. They were never presented to the Board or its attention called to them at any meeting I attended. I never saw any of the letters from the Comptroller to the Board. I didn't know any had ever been written by the Comptroller while I was on the Board.

It was claimed in the case of Keyes against Aker that the letters from the Comptroller reached the members of the Board of Directors and evidence was introduced by the Receiver in that case to sustain such claim.

The Court then ordered that the record in the Director's suit be a part of the record in this case.

Neither at the time transfers of Trustees' Certificates was made to Banco or before that was there any agreement or arrangement of any kind relative to what dividend Banco would thereafter pay. When the company started active operation it had a great many cash subscriptions for its capital stock. To my knowledge none of the directors gave any assurance to any person transferring Trustees' Certificates that their dividends would thereafter be the same.

Plaintiff's objection was sustained and the witness' answer limited to assurances with respect to dividends by non-officers-directors.

I knew of no plan that had been made or any contracts of any kind having been made for using up the money taken in by BancoKentucky Company. At that time there was no way of ascertaining how much money the money taken in would produce by way of interest or profit. Banco would necessarily have expenses.

The president of Banco was James B. Brown. Its Secretary-Treasurer was Tom ZurSchmiede.

Plaintiff's objection to the question of whether or not it was contemplated that the BancoKentucky Company would be an active operating company was sustained, and the following avowal made:

> It was contemplated and discussed by the directors of Banco that Mr. Brown, due to its activity, would retire from the presidency of the Bank of Kentucky and devote all of his time to the BancoKentucky Company. That was discussed in a Board meeting in the latter part of 1929 and in January, 1930.

I don't know about BancoKentucky Company having separate quarters in the Bank Building in 1929. Its quarters were just in the Bank Building. There was a discussion in the Board as to separate quarters for Banco. Time and again during the Fall of 1929 and the following Spring it was contemplated and discussed. Various surveys were made of quarters for the BancoKentucky Company. The directors and officers made inspections of quarters in the Louisville Trust Building and then they inspected some property over there that ran off the Louisville National Bank Building on Fifth Street that they could make offices for the BancoKentucky Company separate and distinct from the other Bank. They made an inspection of the third floor of the Louisville Trust Building to see whether that was available or could be used as an office for the BancoKentucky Company. Banco did not immediately have a separate and distinct office because the directors of the Bank of Kentucky argued over which of the two institutions, the Bank of Kentucky or the Louisville Trust Company, would take the quarters at Fifth and Market, and which would take the quarters at 421 West Market, which was the new Bank Building of the old National Bank & Trust Company. That was around June, 1930, I believe. They never did come to an agreement as to which building the Bank of Kentucky was going to occupy, and which building the Louisville Trust Company was going to occupy.

For that reason they didn't know how much of the building the BancoKentucky would occupy if it did occupy the Louisville Trust Building. That was the discussion of the Board of Directors of the Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company and BancoKentucky Company, which Board was made up of the same people.

BancoKentucky Company had Mr. Brown as President and Mr. ZurSchmiede as Secretary-Treasurer because they were elected by the Board of Directors.

Mr. Brown was an outstanding banker in this community and was regarded as the leading banker of Louisville and of Kentucky. Mr. ZurSchmiede was certainly a very competent auditor and was about as competent a man as we could ever get to act as Secretary-Treasurer of the Banco-Kentucky Company. Mr. Brown was a director of a great number of corporations in Louisville. As I remember, the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company, the Standard Oil Company, the Jockey Club, the Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company, and he had varied and extensive interests and connections here in Louisville. He had been prominent nationally in the past as a member of the Securities Commission, or those bankers who handled the Liberty Loan Bond under President Wilson. He was appointed at the instance of William Gibbs McAdoo and is credited with having suggested the sale of Liberty Bonds to the public by public subscription. Mr. ZurSchmiede had been with the Bank a long time, had grown up with it, and was a competent auditor and was elected cashier of the Bank. Mr. Brown went in the banking business in 1911 and he proceeded through the National Bank of Commerce and in 1912 was made President. The National Bank of Commerce was unified with the National Bank of Kentucky in 1919. Mr. Brown became President of the unified or consolidated Bank and remained with that Bank until 1930 as President.

I never authorized anyone or heard anyone in authority in the BancoKentucky Company authorize any person to represent or hold out the BancoKentucky Company as a holding company merely. Mr. ZurSchmiede was not given any authority by either myself or the Board of Directors, either written or verbal, to hold out the BancoKentucky Company as a holding company only in an application to the Chicago Stock Exchange or the Louisville Stock Exchange. No officer of the Bank in the solicitation of stock sales or otherwise was authorized by the Board of Directors or by me, or anyone on the Board of Directors, as far as I know, to represent that BancoKentucky Company was a holding company.

I have referred to two buildings, one on Market Street, 421 West Market, and one on Fifth and Market. The Bank of Kentucky was occupying a different building, the old Keller Building, the ground floor of the Keller Building on Fifth and Main. It was renting it. Up until the date of its close it occupied the building at the northeast corner of Fifth and Main. 421 West Market Street was constructed before the Louisville National Bank & Trust Company was absorbed by the Louisville Trust Company. After the consolidation, the Louisville Trust Company occupied the building at 421 for a while and then remodeled the building over at Fifth and Market and moved into that building, after the agreement between the two institutions that the Louisville National Bank would take the building at 421 West Market.

I have seen the table of Excess of Net Earnings Over Dividends filed in this suit by Mr. White.

Plaintiff's objection to a question concerning an exhibit, purporting to show the excess of net earnings over dividends, prepared by Carl Lutz, an expert with Lybrand, Ross Brothers & Montgomery, of Chicago, filed in Atherton

v. Anderson, was sustained, and defendants made the following avowal:

> The net earnings shown on the Lutz statement do not correspond with the net earnings shown on the statement White filed in this case.

Table, showing comparison of quarterly net earnings of the National Bank of Kentucky per its books, with the dividends paid, received in evidence, marked for identification "Defendant's Exhibit No. 4."

Semi-annual earnings statements of the National Bank of Kentucky, from June 30, 1927 to June 30, 1930, received in evidence marked for identification "Defendant's Exhibit No. 5."

Certified copy of the list of record shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky, as of July 7, 1930, received in evidence marked for identification "Defendant's Exhibit No. 6." It was stipulated that said record, Exhibit No. 6, continued in the same way until the closing of the Bank.

From the Exhibit prepared by Mr. Shuck I made a tabulation of the stock purchased by directors of BancoKentucky Company. As of September 19, 1929, upon the clearing of the subscriptions to stock, directors subscribed for 53,920 shares at $25.00 a share, making a total of $1,348,000.00. Mr. Shuck's Exhibit shows the directors owned 71,757½ Trustees' Participation shares and the directors exchanged those Trustees' Participation shares for Banco shares in addition to the above purchases.

Cross-examination of Allen P. Dodd by Mr. Marx

Early in the 20's, it may have been 1922, I became a director of the Louisville Trust Company Board. At that time the Trust Company was an independent institution, purely a trust company, organized under the laws of Kentucky. I acquired my stock in it before I went on the Board, twenty-five or fifty shares, as I remember. Then I sold some of it and finally had ten shares and then I got ten shares more in 1927, before the unification. At that time I did not own any stock in the National Bank of Kentucky and I never bought any. I always owned Trust Company stock and I deposited that stock with the Trustees and had issued to me, in lieu thereof, ten shares of National Bank of Kentucky stock and ten shares of Louisville Trust Company stock. Prior to the unification of the Bank and Trust Company I owned no National Bank of Kentucky stock. Before the unification, the National Bank of Kentucky was an entirely separate institution from the Louisville Trust Company. On April 22, 1927 the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company were unified under the Trust Agreement.

Upon the unification of the Bank and the Trust Company, I became one of the Trustees. Mr. Kennedy Helm and Judge Alex Humphrey collaborated and prepared the Trust Agreement. I had no connection whatever in its preparation. I was elected a Trustee under it and accepted the trust. My associate Trustees were Henry Vogt, Thomas Minary, Charles H. Bohmer and Edwin M. Drummond. Three of these represented the National Bank of Kentucky; Mr. Vogt, and Mr. Minary were from the old National Bank of Kentucky Board and Mr. Bohmer, Mr. Drummond and myself were members of the old Louisville Trust Company Board. Stewart Duncan was a member of the old National Bank of Kentucky Board. Three of the Trustees were recommended and elected by the National Bank of Kentucky and three were recommended and elected by the Louisville Trust Company Board.

After the unification, I became a member of the Board of the National Bank of Kentucky. Each member of the Trust Company became a member of the Bank's Board of Directors and every member of the Bank's Board became a member of the Trust Company's Board. As provided in the Trust Agreement, beginning with April 22, 1927, down to January 1930, two and a half years, the same identical men were directors of both the Bank and the Trust Company.

324—Now, beginning with April 22, 1927, the same identical persons, the same identical individuals were stockholders of both banks?

A.—I didn't say from the beginning they were, Mr. Marx, because all of that stock did not come in for deposit for quite a while after that Trust Agreement was entered into. The greatest majority of it did, and Trustees' Participation Receipts were issued against it.

325—Allowing for the interval of time that it took, within a comparatively short period of time after April 22, 1927, the stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky, and the stockholders of the Louisville Trust Company, were the same people?

A.—I couldn't say that, because I think there were five shares of Louisville Trust Company stock that were never deposited under that Trust Agreement. I may be mistaken about that.

326—Let's leave those out.

A.—You asked me to be exact. I want to be exact, though I may be wrong about that.

327—Except as to the possibility of five shares of Louisville Trust Company stock not having been deposited with the Trustees—except for that possibility of five shares—the same identical persons owned the stock of both institutions?

A.—Undoubtedly that is correct.

That situation continued from June 1927, the time of the consolidation until January 1930. The directors owned their own individual shares. The Trust Agreement was dated April 22, 1927, but the qualification of directors under it was not until June 1927. The qualifying shares, the shares owned by the Trust Company Directors and the shares owned by the Bank Directors, were not deposited.

With the exception of directors, the identical persons continued to own the stock of both institutions.

Prior to April 1927, holders of $100 shares of stock in the National Bank of Kentucky simply had a certificate for one share of par value $100 stock in that bank. That share of stock was subject to double liability under the National Banking Law. Likewise, prior to April 1927, a shareholder who owned one share of stock in the Louisville Trust Company had a certificate for one share of par value of $100 in the Louisville Trust Company which was also subject to double liability under the laws of the State of Kentucky. I knew that.

As a matter of mechanics, the $100 share of stock in either the Bank or the Trust Company was deposited with these six men as Trustees who issued a $100 par value Trust Certificate which recited on its face, in substance, that the holder accepted and agreed to be bound by the Trust Agreement. The Trust Agreement was filed in both the Trust Company and the Bank.

After the stock had been deposited the six Trustees had physical possession of the stock of these two banks and had outstanding against it par for par, Trust Certificates. After the unification the individual stock holder owned an indivisible interest in both banks—the stock of the banks was in the Trust Estate. The proportion changed and instead of the Louisville Trust Company man owning $100 of Louisville Trust Company stock which he had owned in the beginning, he owned $80 of the National Bank of Kentucky, and vice versa, a man who owned $100 of the National Bank of Kentucky stock after the unification only owned $80 of the National Bank of Kentucky and acquired a $20 interest in the Louisville Trust Company. The proportion changed when the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company came in.

The mechanics of taking over the Louisville National, in substance, were that the Louisville Trust Company increased its capital by $750,000 and that increase was deposited with the Trustees, who were directed to issue to the stockholders of the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company $750,000 of Trustees' Participation Receipts. The Louisville National Bank went out of existence.

The Trustees issued to the former shareholders of the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company, one Trustees' Certificate for $100, for each share of stock of the Louisville National Bank the stockholder had owned. The Louisville National Bank and Trust Company stock was acquired without putting up any money, by a merger and then the issuance of Trustees' Certificates. The stockholders of the Louisville National Bank exchanged the capital stock they owned in that bank for other capital stock in the form of Participating Receipts.

I don't know anything about Louisville National Bank and Trust Company's stock also being a unified stock or that it had an affiliate with it. I don't know about the Louisville National Company.

When the exchange of Trustees' paper for stock of the Louisville National Bank occurred, the shareholders' proportionate interest in the banks changed. The man who had formerly owned $100 in the National Bank of Kentucky and who, after it was unified with the Louisville Trust Company, owned $80.00, found his proportion of the National Bank of Kentucky stock reduced to $70. $20 represented his interest in the old Louisville Trust Company and $10 plus $20 his interest in the new Louisville Trust Company. It was $69 and a long fraction, but roughly 70% was National Bank of Kentucky stock and 30% was Louisville Trust Company stock merged with the Louisville National Bank & Trust Company. The agreement concerning the Louisville National Bank & Trust Company was made in January 1929, I think, and the final consummation was in May 1929.

The Louisville National Bank & Trust Company had built a building at No. 421 West Market Street, while it was a separate national banking institution. By the process of exchanging Trust Certificates and the acquisition of the assets of the Louisville National, the Louisville Trust Company acquired this new building with a side agreement that the National Bank of Kentucky would take it. The agreement was unenforceable on account of the statute of frauds.

Just after the merger on May 4, 1929, the Louisville Trust Company moved into No. 421 West Market Street.

Going back to April 1927, the Trustees had the power to vote all the stock unless directed by the Trustees' Participation Receipt holders to do otherwise. We had power to vote it in our discretion, unless we had instructions. The Advisory Committee had the right to direct us, but over and above that the Participation Receipt holders had the right to direct us. In case neither one did, we had the power to vote the stock as we saw fit. As a matter of fact, the Advisory Committee always directed us under the terms of the Trust Agreement. When we got directions we had to follow them. The Advisory Committee was the Board of Directors of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company, which was the same, as shown by the Trustees' Agreement.

As a matter of practice and as a matter of power the Board of Directors of the two institutions, the Trust Company and the Bank, directed the Trustees to vote for themselves and in that way had the power to perpetuate themselves in office so long as the stockholders permitted them to do it. The stockholders had the right to oust them at any time just as the stockholders in any other corporation can do, as all the Trustees' Participation Receipt holders had the right to direct the Trustees how to vote. I know of no other corporation in which the Board of Directors votes the stock, but I know of two unification agreements here in Louisville that vote the same way. Not quite the same lawyers drew them up.

I did not pay for stock in the Bank of Kentucky. I deposited 20 shares of Louisville Trust Company stock. At the time of the unification, I owned 20 shares of Trust Company stock. I deposited those twenty shares with the Trustees and got back 10 shares of Louisville Trust Company stock and 10 shares of Louisville Trust Company stock and 10 shares of National Bank of Kentucky stock and was then elected on the Board of Directors of the Bank.

I had to have stock to qualify. The Trustees had no right to give it to me. The Trustees issued to me 10 shares of Trust Company stock and 10 shares of National Bank of Kentucky stock and I surrendered to them the 20 shares of Louisville Trust Company stock. The Trustees never issued any stock to the directors who did not have either original stock of the National Bank of Kentucky or the Louisville Trust Company. I did not retain in my personal custody and possession these certificates of stock, but put them in the Trustees' box. I had no individual right of access to that box without the consent of the Trustees. I had the right to get my stock on demand. As an individual distinguished from a Trustee, I did not lose the physical custody and control of my stock certificates any more than any other agency. Every other director did the same thing, except those who were not Trustees. They had no access to the box except as the Trustees who were holding it subject to their demand.

Each director made an agreement to surrender his stock, upon his resignation, to the Trustees and to take Trustees' Participation Certificates. The instant he ceased to be a member of the Board of Directors of the Bank, his interest in the qualifying shares ceased and he took Trustees' Participation Certificates. If a creditor of any director made a claim or levied an attachment on the shares of stock standing in the name of the director, it had to be surrendered to the Trustees under the Agreement. I don't know whether an attachment could have been levied but the Directors agreed to surrender such stock on that condition. I don't know whether a creditor could get such certificates. That is a question of law. The agreement sought to keep the stock so long as the director remained a director. If a director resigned or the stock was attached, it would disqualify him as a director because he would have to own the stock free. If a director's stock in either the Bank or the Trust Company was attached he would lose his stock interest under the Agreement. It would go to Trustees and Trustees' Participation Certificates would be issued for it. If he died, such stock would have gone under the Agreement to the Trustees, and then the Trustees would issue Participating Receipts to his estate. If a director died owning 10 shares of stock, his estate would not get 10 shares of stock in the National Bank of Kentucky, but would only get the equivalent of an interest of 8 shares in the National Bank of Kentucky and the balance in Louisville Trust Company. If his Agreement was carried out, the Trustees' Certificates superseded the stock. There wasn't any market in the stock at all. There was only a market in Trustees' Participation Certificates. That was all that was traded in.

If a person never owned any of the stock prior to unification and after unification purchased $1,000 Trustees' Certificates and then was elected a director, the Trustees would issue stock to him out of the Trust Estate that had to qualify him, providing he brought in Trustees' Participation Certificates equal to the required number of shares. If a director were elected he could qualify, if he had qualifying shares, regardless whether he agreed to anything.

The following provision of the Trust Agreement was read:

> "III. The Trustees shall hold all assets which shall come into their hands hereunder as one indivisible Trust Estate, the proportionate interest of each shareholder therein being represented by the certificates issued by such Trustees, and the Trustees agree to hold such estate upon the following trust, terms and conditions:
>
> (1) They shall reassign to each person who shall be at the time of signing this agreement a member of the board of directors of The National Bank of Kentucky, or of The Louisville Trust Company, who desires and is eligible a sufficient number of shares of stock in such Bank and Trust Company to qualify him as a director in both institutions.
> (2) The Trustees may, out of the shares owned by them, sell and assign absolutely to any holder of a Trustees' Participation Certificate desiring to be elected a director of either of said institutions, the number of shares of stock necessary to legally qualify him for such office. These provisions shall apply to any other stock acquired by the Trustees."

Under the Trust Agreement, the Trustees would have to issue qualifying shares if the director turned in enough Trust Certificates although the director had never previously owned a share of stock in the Bank or the Trust Company. He would have to have Trust Certificates equivalent to the amount of stock he was to get. The Trustees had no right to issue him stock otherwise—the estate would never balance if they did.

In my case, I owned 20 shares of the Trust Company stock, which had I exchanged for 20 Trustees' Certificates representing, prior to taking in the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company, 80% National Bank of Kentucky and 20% Louisville Trust Company. Under the Trust Agreement my 10 shares of Trustees' Participation Certificates represented not only an 80-20 interest in the Banks, but it represented 20 units in the pool of the same value share for share throughout. If the Trust were distributed on the basis of proportionate ownership, for my 20 shares, I would only have received 4 shares of Louisville Trust Company and 16 shares of National Bank of Kentucky. I owned enough of an interest in the pool on the basis of trust certificates to entitle me to 10 shares of Louisville Trust Company stock because of the terms of the Trust Agreement under which the Trustees had to issue to me enough shares to qualify me.

At the time of the Trust Agreement in April 1927, I did not think of any stock assessment liability. I never thought of stock assessment liability at any time. In 1927, I considered the Louisville Trust Company a sound institution. I did not know anything about the National Bank of Kentucky, except what was reported to us. At the time of this Trust Agreement, I did not discuss the question of stock assessment. I didn't consider it because we had Judge Humphrey and Mr. Kennedy Helm to write the Trust Agreement. I would not have accepted the trust and assumed the liability on the stock. I knew there was liability on the stock; Section 66 of the United States Banking Code exempts Trustees from liability but I would not have accepted the trust unless the Trust Agreement had provided for the double liability just like it did. I would not have left that for construction. The liability might not have been the same if the agreement had not provided for it.

454—Where we are getting is simply this, that at that time, in April, 1927, which was two and a half years before the stock market crash and two years before you organized Banco you did think of stock assessment liability?

A.—Yes, in connection with that.

455—And provided for it?

A.—Yes.

456—It is contained in Article IX?

A.—Yes.

457—Which you understand was a contract by every holder of a Trustees' Participation Certificate to pay any assessment that might be levied upon these banks that you held at that time of consolidation?

A.—It was put in the Trust Agreement and in the Trustees' Participation Receipts. That is right.

The $100 Trustees' Certificates were split into ten $10 Trust Certificates. The man who had held one piece of paper representing one share found himself the owner of 10 shares with a different par value. This was done in 1929 after the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company came into the picture and just shortly before we organized Banco. The $10 Trustees' Certificates continued the same terms with respect to liability for the payment of stock assessments.

At the time Banco was organized, I was a member of the Board of Directors of the National Bank of Kentucky and of the Louisville Trust Company and I was also a Trustee and a stockholder of record in both institutions. I subsequently became a director of BancoKentucky Company.

I didn't know that the day after the Trust Company moved into No. 421 West Market Street, the new building, the National Bank Examiner was in the National Bank of Kentucky. I remember when the Trust Company moved into No. 421 West Market Street, there was a public celebration with flowers and a dinner at the Pendennis Club on May 24, 1929. I didn't know that John S. Wood, Chief National Bank Examiner, moved into the National Bank of Kentucky on May 25, 1929, with a corps of bank examiners. He may have come there with a corps of examiners, but he didn't move in. It took a couple and sometimes three weeks to examine the National Bank of Kentucky. We had a Board meeting every week.

Before Banco was organized, since the same men were the Board of Directors of both institutions, we usually held our meetings on the same day and in the same place—the Board Room in the Louisville Trust Company, on the third floor—until the Louisville National Bank & Trust Company came in the Louisville Trust Company had a meeting once a month. The Bank of Kentucky met once a week. After the Louisville National Bank & Trust Company was taken into the picture, they had a meeting once a week. When the Louisville National Bank & Trust Company was at No. 421 W. Market Street, it had its board meetings over there and the Bank of Kentucky had its meetings at the Louisville Trust building and the Banco Board meetings were in the Louisville Trust building. Up until January 1930, we held our meetings at the same time and the same place. After the Boards were separated, that was not true. The first three months from September 1929, until January 1930, the meetings were held at the same place by the consolidated board. Always the meeting of the BancoKentucky Company followed the meeting by the Louisville Trust Company and the National Bank of Kentucky unless there was a special meeting called.

The Louisville Trust Company meeting was held first, immediately following that, the National Bank of Kentucky meeting was held and immediately following that the Banco meeting was held. As a director I did not have to change my seat. We could sit there and after adjourning as one Board, met as the next. The only people who changed their seats were the different chairmen, different officers, different secretaries and with different sets of reports. The only people who changed their seats were the chairmen and secretaries of each institution.

As a director of the National Bank of Kentucky, I might have known that the Chief Examiner was there examining the Bank during the period of May 25th until approximately June 7th. I can't tell now whether I did not. A lot of times we didn't know the Bank Examiner had been there until after the report was presented.

It is not true that when a Bank Examiner was there with a large staff I always knew it. Our meetings were not at the Bank building, but were at the Louisville Trust building and the Bank was at 5th & Main. There were several examinations made of the Bank while I was on that Board that I didn't know the Examiners were there until after the report came in. I never heard about the examination when Mr. Wood reported the large criticized loans were $3,500,000, the loans to officers, directors, and employees were $3,200,000 and slow assets were $ and doubtful assets were $, until after the Banks closed. That may have been in the National Bank Examiner's report when it reached there, but it never reached the Board of Directors.

495—You don't mean to say the report didn't come to the Board of Directors?

A.—I mean to say that no criticism was brought before the Board.

496—The Bank Examiner's report was always read in what you considered to be in haec verba, in answer to Mr. Crawford, but subsequently you learned that was not true?

A.—I said this, we were supposed to have got the reports read in haec verba, by Mr. Brown, but I found out he had deleted criticism. He never read any such criticism.

497—But, then, you did know the Bank Examination had been made?

A.—Oh, yes.

498—Because portions of it, at least, were read to you?

A.—Yes, and it was such a beautiful report, as read to us, that we thought the Bank was in fine shape.

499—Don't volunteer information; you are going to get a chance to argue the case. The Bank Examiner's report was there.

A.—There was a report there, yes.

500—The directors, as a matter of fact, and you have so testified in your own language, were free to take that report with them home and study it if they so desired.

A.—Correct.

I never heard Mr. Brown invite the directors to take the reports home and read them, but I have heard other directors say that.

The first official minute about the plan to organize Banco-Kentucky Company was June 7, 1929, but it had been discussed several weeks before that time. At that time, I did not know of the Comptroller's official letter to the Board of Directors of July 12, 1929. I heard afterwards that there was such a letter. None of these letters ever reached me while I was on the Board. I didn't know there was such a letter written from the Comptroller. Neither this letter, nor any of these letters were read to the Board or called to their attention in a regular or called meeting of the Board. There wasn't a letter of any kind from the Comptroller's Office that came to me or my attention while I was on the Board.

The letter of July 12th, addressed to the Board of Directors, saying

> "The report of an examination of your bank completed June 13th, a copy of which was sent you, has been received, and shows that the estimated losses were not written off, and a number of other matters on Page 11-1 needing correction. It is understood that plans are being developed whereby your bank will be consolidated with the Louisville Trust Company within ninety days, the continuing institution to operate under a State charter. If measures are being taken to consummate this arrangement, the matter of insisting upon corrections of the items listed on the page referred to will be postponed a reasonable time. Please, therefore, advise definitely not later than August 1, what steps, if any, have been or will be taken to carry out the plan in regard to the proposed consolidation"; was not reported to the Board. The Bank may have got the letter, but I never got a letter from the Comptroller.

On July 12, 1929, there was a special meeting of the Trustees following the regular meeting, but I don't seem to have been present that day. I was out of the city. I am familiar with the minutes of the Trustees. They had a special meeting on July 12th. The minutes are as follows:

> "The Trustees, under Trust Agreement dated April 22, 1927, executed by the stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company, in accordance with a resolution adopted at a meeting of said Trustees this 12th day of July, 1929, hereby appoint and constitute the law firm of Miller and Chevalier, 922 Southern Building, Washington, D. C., as attorneys at law and in fact for the purpose of obtaining a ruling, as to whether the Trust, created by the said Trust Agreement, is an 'association,' within the meaning of the Revenue Act of 1928, as applied to the provisions relating to stamp taxes and income taxes, levied under the said Act, with powers of revocation and substitution.

You are hereby authorized and requested to discuss with the above named firm, and in particular with Robert N. Miller, S. Lyman Barber, J. R. Sherrod, Ward Loveless, F. O. Graves, J. C. Ristine and Homer Hendricks, any matter pertaining to the above subject, the same as you would with the undersigned.

Respectfully,

Trustees, under Trust Agreement dated April 22, 1927, between the National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company.

By CHARLES H. BOHMER,
Vice-Chairman.

Attest:

JOHN S. AKERS,
Secretary."

It seems that Mr. Vogt, Mr. Minary, Mr. Bohmer, Mr. Metcalfe, and Mr. Akers were present, Mr. Akers acting as Secretary.

I am not familiar with the discussion that was held in Washington. When I came back to the City, I found a copy of the letter of July 19th in my desk and I read it and went and discussed with Mr. Carroll the contents of that letter. The same day the Trustees passed a resolution reciting that upon the request and with the consent of the Advisory Committee, they authorized the Chairman or the Vice-Chairman and the Secretary or Assistant Secretary of the Trustees together with the proper officers of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company to cause to be filed the attached copy of articles of incorporation, and to approve and send to the holders of Trustees' Participation Certificates the attached recommendation to exchange their Certificates for stock in BancoKentucky Company when organized in accordance with and subject to the conditions of the plan of re-organization therein set forth. These minutes were signed by Mr. Vogt and Mr. Akers as secretaries. Attached to these minutes were the articles of incorporation of the Banco-Kentucky Company.

I assume that Paragraph Eight of the articles read "the private property of the stockholders shall not be subject to the payment of corporate debts whatsoever" was in the original proposed articles attached to the Trustees' minutes. I don't know that I saw that charter at that time. I knew Mr. Carroll was preparing it.

The Advisory Committee referred to in those minutes were the identical men, man for man, who were the Board of Directors of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company. They were the ones who instructed the Trustees to cause the BancoKentucky charter to be executed. They were the ones who instructed the Trustees to put in "the private property of stockholders shall not be subject to the payment of corporate debts to any extent." That would be the ordinary thing to do in drawing a charter. I don't know that the Trustees had anything to do with it at all. But the Trustees resolved with the consent and at the request of the Advisory Committee, with the proper officers of the Bank and Trust Company, to cause Banco's articles to be filed. These articles were approved and caused to be filed at the request of the Board of the Bank and the Trust Company containing the words with reference to the exemption of the property of the stockholders and all the rest of the charter.

The actual request, personally signed by the officers and directors of the National Bank of Kentucky, dated July 12, 1929, is attached to those minutes. It requests this particular charter "approved by us and hereto attached, under the laws of the State of Delaware and having a capital stock of $20,000,000, divided into shares of $10 par value be filed," and "we hereby further approve a submitted form of letter to the holders of Trustees' Participation Certificates as hereto attached and request the Trustees' to cause the organization of such company and the submission of the proposed plan to the Trustees' Certificate holders, to the end of a re-organization of the allied interests."

The Advisory Committee directed the Trustees to have the charter of the BancoKentucky Company, exactly as it is here, recorded in Delaware to organize the company. The signatures on the request are the signatures of the officers and directors of the National Bank of Kentucky.

Also attached to the minutes of the Trustees is the letter of July 19th, 1929, which was subsequently sent out to all Trustees' Participation Certificate holders and the subscription to shares under the re-organization plan which was outlined in that letter, subsequently dated July 19th, but dated July blank in our minutes. The subscription refers to the fact that the shares of stock in the proposed company "shall be fully paid and non-assessable under the terms of the re-organization plan as outlined in the letter of July 19th, if, when and as said plan shall become effective."

Mr. Brown was elected an officer of Banco because he was a very prominent banker and Mr. ZurSchmiede was elected secretary because he was a very competent auditor. It is recited in a letter of July 19th, 1929, part of the Trustees' minutes of July 12, 1929, before Banco was formed, that it was an essential part of the re-organization that the BancoKentucky Company be managed and operated by the Boards of Directors and officers of the banks. It was part of the plan of re-organization of the BancoKentucky Company, irrespective of this letter, that the first Board of Directors of BancoKentucky Company would be the Board of Directors of the Bank and the Trust Company.

There is nothing in the letter about "first Board of Directors" but I am telling about what the original plan was before I left Louisville. When I left, it was part of the plan that the Board of Directors of the Bank and of the Trust Company would be the first Board of Directors of the BancoKentucky Company. The letter states that it is an essential part of the re-organization, that a majority of the stock of the company be owned by the Trustees' Participation shareholders and that it be managed and operated by the Board of Directors and the officers of the banks. It was contemplated at the outset that Banco should be operated and managed by the banks' auditors and directors until the stockholders had an opportunity to elect a new Board. We couldn't provide that beyond the first meeting of the stockholders; the stockholders had a right to change that, as they did.

The Directors of BancoKentucky Company from the first of January, 1930, were made up principally of the non-officer directors to the two banks. Every non-officer director of the National Bank of Kentucky and of the Louisville Trust Company was at all times, without a single exception, a director of BancoKentucky Company. The President of the bank, James B. Brown, was at all times both President of the National Bank of Kentucky and BancoKentucky Company. The cashier of the bank, Mr. Zur-Schmiede, was at all times the Secretary-Treasurer of the BancoKentucky Company. Mr. Brown was a member of Banco's Board of Directors.

Of the 34 directors of Banco there were none who were not either members of the Board of the Bank or of the Trust Company. Mr. Bean, President of the Louisville Trust Company, was likewise a director and Vice-President of BancoKentucky Company during the fall of 1929, but was not elected Vice-President at the January, 1930, meeting.

After the BancoKentucky Company was organized the Board of the Bank and the Trust Company continued to act as the Advisory Committee under the same Trustees' Agreement. The same individuals, members of the Board of Directors of BancoKentucky Company were the Advisory Committee of the Trustees.

The Advisory Committee were directors of Banco after they were elected to its Board of Directors and that Advisory Committee instructed the six Trustees how to vote the stock of the Bank and the Trust Company, on all occasions when it was necessary to elect directors. We did not elect any directors after January, 1930. The BancoKentucky Company didn't come into existence until July, 1929.

After Banco was organized, I know of no physical change in the possession or control of stock certificates of the Bank. That still remained in the hands of the six Trustees.

BancoKentucky Company could direct the Trustees how to vote the stock at any time because it owned the Trustees' Participation Receipts. The individuals who instructed the Trustees as the Advisory Committee, were the same individuals who were the Trustees' Participation Receipt holders.

I testified on direct examination about the purpose of the organization of Banco. I have previously testified on the same subject. I had forgotten that I was called as a witness in Case No. 205,223 Jefferson Circuit Court, Chancery Branch, First Division, Anthony J. Carroll et al, plaintiff

v. Chemical Bank & Trust Company, on November 23, 1937. I have been called in in nearly every one of these cases. I remember testifying in that case in Mr. Castleman's office. I was sworn as a witness and was examined by Mr. Kasfir and possibly Mr. Castleman.

In that case I was asked "On this notice of July 19, 1929, your name appears as signifying the approval of the Trustees, did you sign any approval" and I answered, "I approved,—I do not remember signing the approval—but I approved the whole plan of organization of the Banco-Kentucky Company before I left, but I did not sign or consent to any circular or consent that my name appear thereon." I was asked, "This circular of July 19, did that meet with your approval?" and I answered, "I saw it before they got through with it,—yes, I think I approved it." I still approve of it. When I came back to town, I got the letter off my desk and read it and went to Mr. Carroll and asked him about the term "Re-organization" and he explained to me that that was in connection with a tax matter. I never disapproved of this at all, and I never said I disapproved of it.

In that case I was asked "What was the purpose of the organization of BancoKentucky Company?" and I answered, "It was organized for the purpose of acquiring a chain of banks in the Ohio Valley." That answer was true —that was one of the purposes for which it was organized.

In that case I was asked: "Was there any intention at that time of the National Bank of Kentucky withdrawing from the Federal Reserve System upon the organization of BancoKentucky Company?" and I answered, "Only when we fully acquired a chain of banks in the Ohio Valley." It was the purpose of the Bank of Kentucky to act as the 'hub of the wheel'—that is the main 'link in the chain'—it was expected to acquire banks from Cincinnati along the Ohio Valley and that we also acquire banks in Indianapolis and in Chicago." I made that answer and it is true.

I was asked: "You considered the bank and all member banks as one entire unit?" And I answered: "I considered the bank as accomplishing—more truly it was a chain of banks,—they were separate and distinct corporations,—BancoKentucky Company was organized under the laws of the State of Delaware,—" I remember then explaining the organization of Banco. It was separate and distinct.

I was asked: "Wasn't it the purpose of BancoKentucky Company to carry out functions and engage in enterprises that the National Bank of Kentucky could not engage in because of limitations in its charter?" And I answered: "Certainly,—and to buy stocks in insurance companies,—we had insurance companies that we discussed the assets and liabilities of very seriously, and very seriously considered the purchase of insurance companies,—it never intended that they should be limited to banks at all."

I was asked: "And that is, as I understand it,—that was one of the reasons for the organization of BancoKentucky Company, that is to create a corporation that could engage in business that was forbidden to the National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company because of the limitations in its charter?" And I answered: "That is correct. To acquire control of stocks in banks and other companies, there would not have been any purpose in organizing BancoKentucky Company if that had not been done."

I testified in my own defense in Keyes v. Akers, the directors' suit, in April, 1932. I said that the primary purpose of the organizers of BancoKentucky Company was to acquire a group of banks in the Ohio valley, and I still say that. I said this morning we intended to acquire a chain of banks, or acquire banks in the Ohio valley. I never testified different from what is in there, and if you will take the whole deposition in the Keyes case you will find substantially the same testimony I gave here today.

The primary purpose of organizing the BancoKentucky Company was to acquire a group of banks in the Ohio valley in order to accomplish the very things I said this morning that we had in mind. The purpose was to acquire control of The Louisville Trust Company and Bank of Kentucky and was set out in the prospectus. After the organization of Banco and prior to October 1st they discussed the question of acquiring other banks. On September 11 they had this in the minutes: "The President then disclosed that negotiations with Cincinnati banks and matters relative to the sale of stock; whereupon, it was moved, seconded and carried that the President be authorized to proceed, in his discretion, with the matter of the Cincinnati banks and the sale of stock—reporting to the Board the proposition tendered." September 11 was before we had got stock sufficient to know whether there would be sufficient deposited or not to declare the plan of BancoKentucky effective. It was declared effective September 19, 1929. On September 11 we did not go ahead with contracts to buy two banks in Cincinnati. There were no contracts. But negotiations had been started. On September 25, 1929, they made a contract to purchase the Pearl Market Bank and the Brighton Bank. They started it before September 25. That is what I said, and that is what the minutes show. That did not by any means call for the practical exhaustion of the cash that was to be paid in on stock subscriptions. I cannot tell you what the purchase price of the two banks was. The exhibits show it.

The Banco plan as submitted was to sell the stock of BancoKentucky Company only to owners of Trustees' Certificates, but it was changed and made wide open to anybody that would buy. The letter of July 19, 1929, states that it was to be sold only to holders of Trustees' Participation Certificates, but it was later changed.

I testified on direct examination about the amount of money we expected to realize and stated, in substance, that the Trustees' Certificate shareholders exchanged their stock in such large numbers that we did not have enough capital to sell to the public—to realize enough capital to go ahead. In the first place, under the original authorized capital, we had two million shares of a total par value of $20,000,000.00 which, if sold at $25.00 a share, would produce $50,000,000.00. I knew at that time that there were outstanding 575,000 authorized Trustees' Participation Certificates less the number of shares owned by the directors. We will call it 570,000 odd. Under the plan each one of these 570,000 certificates of the par value of $10.00 was to be credited for two BancoKentucky Company stock certificates at $25.00. We set aside 1,050,000 shares to make the exchange, on Sept. 19, after it was found out that the Trustees' Receipt holders had almost unanimously deposited their certificates for exchange. We urged them to deposit them. We did not think we would get any more than a majority.

I do not know anything about trustees of trust estates in this community, who were unwilling to make the exchange, being urged to do so for the reason that if they did not there would be no market for the Trustees' Participation Receipts after the plan was consummated. The officers didn't. I did not know that it was urged in the community that there would be a very narrow market, or no market, for the Trustees' Participation Receipts after the plan went into operation. I heard people trying to sell it saying that there would be no market, but we did not have anything to do with that, at least, I didn't. It would be a broker's argument that the Trustees' Participation Certificate holders should exchange for Banco, that there would be no market for the Trustees' Certificates because the Trustees' Participation Certificates would be taken off the market. After the reorganization of BancoKentucky Company and the exchange of substantially all the Trustees' Certificates there would be no market for Trustees' Participation receipts. There was an active market in Trustees' Certificates. It went up over $50.00 after October 1. After all of them had been exchanged there wasn't any market. I am not denying that the argument that was made to induce the exchange was a true argument. I am just saying the Board of Directors didn't make it. I haven't any evidence that the officers of the Bank made it. They didn't tell me about it at the time.

I know there was an active campaign among the officers of the banks to induce Trustees' Participation Receipt holders to make the exchange and to purchase more stock. After 1,140,000 or 1,150,000 shares of BancoKentucky Company stock had been set aside for exchange with Trustees' Certificate holders, that left 250,000 shares for sale. As reported to us, the balance of the stock was sold. That left, roughly speaking, 900,000 shares for sale, but we had a report at that time that we had already sold 600,000 shares. We did not make the allotment of 1,150,000 shares until September 20. At the beginning we thought we would use only 700,000 shares of this stock altogether for the exchange. 700,000 shares of Banco for conversion by exchange was just 50% of the outstanding T.P.C.'s. That is what we contemplated getting. 350,000 out of 575,000. It was over half. The plan stated that we must have a substantial majority, and I considered that a substantial majority.

657—Now, my question that the Court asked me to repeat is that after—as an arithmetical calculation—after you provided 2 shares of Banco for every one Trustees' Certificate outstanding at the time the plan was submitted, how many shares would you have left for sale to the public or to the Trustees' Participation Certificate holders at $25 a share?

A.—700,000 shares from 2,000,000 left 1,300,000 shares.

Mr. Marx: That is why I say this witness is persistently refusing to answer a very simple question.

The Court: Lead him.

Mr. Marx: I did try that.

The Court: Go ahead and ask him another question and lead him again.

Judge Dietzman: The gentlemen are obviously talking about two different times.

The Court: He is talking about the inception, when Banco was first launched—is that the time, Mr. Marx, that you are talking about?

Mr. Marx: I just want to know as a matter of arithmetical calculation—take my pencil and this piece of paper——

The Court: What time are you talking about?

Mr. Marx: When they started out.

The Court: That is what I mean.

The Witness: In June, July or September?

Mr. Marx: Before they had issued a single, solitary share——

A.—(Interrupting.) They had not issued any share until after September.

658—(Continuing.) ——for either exchange or money.

The Court: Now, then, ask him a leading question and go ahead.

659—Put down how many trustees' certificates there were and multiply them by 2.

A.—You mean how many there were authorized?

660—How many there could possibly have been turned in for exchange?

A.—575,000, and twice that is 1,150,000 shares.

661—Subtract that from 2,000,000 and what is the answer?

A.—900,000.

662—Multiply that by 25 and what is the answer?

A.—$22,500,000.

663—$22,500,000?

A.—Yes.

If 1,150,000 shares of Banco were exchanged that would have left 850,000 shares which, multiplied by $25.00, would be $21,250,000.00. Actually, 540,484 T.P.C.'s were exchanged for Banco stock, which left 920,000 shares of Banco for sale. That amount, multiplied by $25.00, would be $24,500,000.00. If we had, without increasing Banco's capital stock, sold all of the available shares of stock that we had for sale, it would have produced $24,000,000.00. We did not sell near all of them. We had 5,000,000 shares before we got through.

We declared the plan effective September 20, 1929, and on that date we thought all of them had been sold or exchanged except 250,000 shares, or set aside for exchange. We had not sold all of them when we declared the plan effective. We declared it effective upon information furnished us by the officers and we afterwards found out it was not true. No officer of the bank told me they had sold $24,000,000.00 worth of stock. I never said they did. Mr. Brown said they had sold 600,000 shares, which in money would be $15,000,000.00, and we authorized the sale of 250,000 shares. There was a contract on that. It subsequently turned out to be just an option. The minutes say a contract of sale, but it turned out to be an option. Byllesby Company, Blyth & Company, Wakefield & Company, according to the minutes had the option. I do not know who drew that option. We had several lawyers on the Banco-Kentucky Company Board. Lawyers on the Board were Mr. Carroll, Mr. Helm, Mr. Vaughan, Mr. Dodd, Mr. Hieatt, Mr. Dosker, Judge Garnett, Mr. Kahn, Arthur Rutledge, Leland Taylor and Judge Stites. I believe that is all the lawyers on the Board.

There isn't a bit of doubt and never has been any that the officers and directors of National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company and the holders of the Trustees' Participation Certificates representing the sum of those two concerns initiated and organized Banco-Kentucky Company, nor is there any doubt that they organized it with the intention that it should hold at least a majority of their own stock, of the stock of the Louisville Trust Company and National Bank of Kentucky represented by the Trustees' Participation Certificates. That was the stock of the men who organized Banco.

Banco was initiated at a series of meetings of the Board of Directors of the National Bank of Kentucky. That was the place where it was discussed. The same men were also on the Board of Directors of Louisville Trust Company. Although no reference is made to the organizing of Banco-Kentucky on the minutes of Louisville Trust Company, the same men who comprised the Board of Directors of National Bank of Kentucky, where it is discussed, were also members of the Board of Directors of Louisville Trust Company. I might say this, that it was discussed following the close of a meeting of the National Bank of Kentucky, that is, after the Bank's business was over, that is, Banco itself was discussed after their meeting and was recorded in its minutes when those that organized it felt the time had come to put it in. Before that time it was discussed after the meeting and was not put in the minutes because it was not part of the minutes of the Bank of Kentucky.

When Mr. Carroll, a distinguished lawyer, took the articles of incorporation of the BancoKentucky Company to Delaware he was not, so far as I know, the attorney for the National Bank of Kentucky. The regular attorneys for the National Bank of Kentucky, as I understand it, at that time were Messrs. Selligman & Selligman. Mr. Carroll was employed, as I understood it, to draw the articles of incorporation for the BancoKentucky Company. He was employed by the people who were organizing the BancoKentucky Company, and that was the company that employed him. The Bank of Kentucky did not employ him. The individuals who organized BancoKentucky employed Mr. Carroll to prepare its articles and he represented the company, itself, in getting its articles and doing the legal work necessary to start it on its way. Those individuals were the officers and directors of the National Bank of Kentucky.

I referred in my testimony yesterday to the minute of June 7, but the decision to go ahead was made at a later meeting when they had finally rounded out the discussion where they wanted to go ahead.

The minutes of a meeting of June 21, 1929, recites:

> "On motion duly seconded and unanimously carried the following resolution was adopted: 'Resolved, that it is the sense of this meeting that a corporation of the character as outlined by the President at this meeting be formed, and Resolved further, that the President be and is hereby requested to report to the Board such details necessary for the organization of the company with his recommendations in regard to the organization connected therewith.' "

The company referred to in these minutes was subsequently named the BancoKentucky Company.

An examination of the National Bank of Kentucky was begun May 25, 1929, and closed June 15, 1929, and was finished before the June 21 meeting of the bank directors. The following statement from the bank examiner's report:

> "Your examiner was advised that a plan was in contemplation whereby a sort of finance and holding company will be organized with a large capital stock, say $20,000,000.00. The holding company will hold, amongst other things, the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky and its affiliated banks through a surrender and exchange of the stock of the bank for stock of the company on some satisfactory basis."

This was never read to the Board when the report of the examination was read. I never heard of it at any Board meeting. I cannot say whether it was correct or incorrect. I do not know whether the Examiner got that report from the officers of the bank.

On direct examination I referred to a Bank minute of June 7, 1929, at which time it was determined that a holding company of this general character should be formed. This examiner's report was finished June 15, only a week after our meeting of June 7. What is stated in the examiner's report is a report on the National Bank of Kentucky, I take it, gathered from the officers of the company. Evidently, the officers of the Company had told him about it. I do not know anything about it. I never heard of it until after the bank closed. I do not know that the Examiner was correctly advised.

I did not know that there were large loans to the Kentucky Wagon Works. I knew that the Wagon Company investment was carried at approximately $430,000.00, which was the basis of the trade between the stockholders of National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company. In fact, we took into consideration that asset of the bank as $437,000.00, as we understood it, and we had it appraised at this time to see if it was worth that amount. We knew that much of the bank's assets were invested in the Wagon Company at the time of the consolidation. There had been charge-offs, charging it down to that. I knew the Bank owned the plant; all they needed was a deed to it. They had purchased it at a court house door sale and the Bank was carrying it until they could get a deed to sell it and get the money out of it.

I knew the Murray Rubber Company was a borrower, but it wasn't a large borrower when I came there. I knew it became a large borrower during the time I was there. It was not a local industry. It was located in Trenton, New Jersey, and had been in the Bank a long time. The Murray Rubber Company loan was between $200,000.00 and $300,000.00 when I came into the Bank, as I recall. I cannot carry the exact figures in my head. I did not know anything about the Murray Rubber Company bonds in the investment account of the Bank until long after I went on the Board, possibly at the time I left the Board. They were carried in the investment account and these bonds never came before the board. It reached a total of $580,000.00 after I left the Bank in January, 1930. In the spring of 1929 we had a report from Mr. Brown that Caldwell & Co. had taken over the Murray Rubber Company and that it would drop down, as he reported to the Board, to less than $200,000.00. Then it crept back up, but we had assurance that the Bank's problem with the Murray Company was about over. I left the Bank with the feeling that the Murray Rubber Company was to be taken out. I know it wasn't.

I knew the Bank had made a large advance to The Norman Lumber Company, a local company, having sawmill property in Louisiana. The advance was something like half a million dollars, but it was reported it was a pretty strong company.

I didn't know anything about the VanCamp Packing Company or that they were borrowing money, or that the Bank was investing in its common stock. We never heard of that until after the banks closed. I know now Mr. Brown is accused of misappropriating certain of the Bank's funds to buy the stock.

When I left the Bank in 1930 I knew the Consolidated Realty Company was a borrower from the Bank, but my recollection is that they paid out before I left. I knew they owed a lot of money to the Bank, $400,000.00. That is pretty large. The Bank had a lot of large lines. It was a big bank. $600,000.00 was the maximum the law would allow and the Consolidated Realty Company owed $400,000.00 while I was on the Board, but it was paid off before I left, as I remember.

The Herald-Post had borrowed $400,000.00 as reported to the Board. I knew about that much, but I didn't know it was over a million dollars with the lines consolidated with it. I didn't know anything about that. Since you have brought up the Herald-Post matter, I would like to tell you this: In 1928 I had an opportunity, if I could have gotten Mr. Brown to sell it, to sell it for $1,500,000.00. I don't know how much the Bank lost in the Herald-Post loan. I know we were sued for $400,000.00 by reason of the Herald-Post loan in the Bank suit.

When I was in the Bank the Wakefield and Company loan, as a Wakefield and Company loan, ran all the way from $225,000.00 up to about $400,000.00. Mrs. Latta was Wakefield and Company. The loans subsequently came up in the Bank case because they exceeded the legal limit. They were in the name of Greer, Harris and Schweitzer. All those loans added together made an excessive loan above $600,000.00.

The Kentucky Wagon Works was an investment. I knew it was $437,000.00. We had an appraisal of the Kentucky Wagon Works of over $1,000,000.00 when we went in, and we hoped that that would be worked out by a sale as quick as we got a deed to the property, which we did not get until December, 1928. There was never a loan made to the Kentucky Wagon Company that I knew of, while I was on the Board, except one time there was a discount of receivables and we were told that they were merely carrying it to sell it. They never did sell it. It was well known that the Kentucky Wagon Works was a work out of an old debt. It was never intended to be profitable.

The increase in the capital stock of the National Bank of Kentucky, about which I testified in direct examination, just prior to the unification of the Bank with the Trust Company, was a 60% stock dividend. No new money was subscribed to the Bank. There was a stock dividend declared and paid out of the surplus and undivided profits of the Bank. The Board of the Bank met and distributed to its stockholders additional certificates of stock equal to 60% of its then capital. The Comptroller of the Currency approved every step they took. They reduced the Bank's surplus and undivided profits with the Comptroller's approval. The Comptroller even went further and congratulated us on the splendid bank we were going to be affiliated with. That was in 1927.

The Bank's deposits, taken from plaintiff's exhibits and tabulated, were, as of the published statements and leaving off odd thousands and cents—June 30, 1927—$44,000,000.00; October 10, 1927—$47,000,000.00; December 31, 1927—$45,000,000.00; February 28, 1928—$45,000,000.00; June 30, 1928—$40,000,000.00; October 3, 1928—$37,000,000.00; December 31, 1928—$42,000,000.00; March 27, 1929—$38,000,000.00; June 29, 1929—$35,000,000.00; October 4, 1929—$41,000,000.00; December 31, 1929—$40,000,000.00; March 27, 1930—$38,000,000.00; June 30, 1930—$39,000,- 000.00 and September 24, 1930—$37,000,000.00. The average deposits were $41,852,235.18.

In June, 1927, the Bank's deposits were $44,000,000.00 and on June 29, 1929, they were $35,000,000.00, a decline of about $10,000,000.00 in deposits between the unification of the banks and the formation of BancoKentucky Company. It went back up after we organized Banco, and made reciprocal deposits back and forth. That Bank's deposits varied sometimes $5,000,000.00 a week—county bank deposits. On November 16, 1930, the Bank's deposits were about $27,000,000.00. On the nearest date to the unification they were $44,000,000.00. They had shrunk after the run on the Bank by November 15, 1930, to about $27,000,000.00. September 24, 1930, they were $37,000,000.00. That is a shrinkage of more than 40% in the Bank's deposits. We had a run of some $12,000,000.00 or $13,000,000.00 the last week of the Bank.

The Comptroller of the Currency did not congratulate us in June, 1929, when we organized BancoKentucky Company. He never said anything about it. He did not condemn it.

I purchased 800 shares of Banco stock and signed that subscription ticket which everybody else signed. I knew the plan to which I was subscribing well, and approved it very much. I borrowed the full amount of the purchase price from the Louisville Trust Company and put up the stock plus $8,500.00 additional collateral. At the time the Louisville Trust Company closed that loan had not been paid, but I paid it off before a year after the Bank closed. I reduced it to $4,000.00 in January, 1930, and paid the balance off before the end of that year. Prior to the closing of the Bank I had paid $4,000.00 on the principal. They called on me and I had to pay it. I did not want to do it.

October 4, 1929, was the first time Banco minutes noted the matter of the increase of the company's capital, "the President talked at length relative to propositions with Cincinnati, Indianapolis and Covington banks." He also talked at great length regarding the matter of increase of the capital of BancoKentucky Company. It had been discussed before. The resolution to make the increase in capital from 2,000,000 to 5,000,000 shares was not adopted until January, 1930.

The first reference in BancoKentucky minutes to how much stock was to be set aside for Trustees' Participation holders and how much was to be offered for sale, was in the minutes of September 20, 1929,

> "motion was made, seconded and carried, setting aside temporarily, 1,150,000 shares of BancoKentucky Company stock for the National Bank of Kentucky-Louisville Trust Company Participation shareholders. A motion was made, seconded and carried authorizing the President, in his discretion, to close negotiations with broker or brokers for the sale of two hundred fifty thousand (250,000) shares of BancoKentucky Company stock at not less than Twenty-five ($25) dollars per share."

The minutes do not say how much was to be sold. There is a sale of only 250,000 shares; that left 600,000 shares, but we had a report that they had already been sold. I never saw the contract referred to in the minutes with Byllesby and other brokers which turned out to be an option for 250,000 shares until after the Bank closed. I do not know what lawyers on the Bank Board examined it and I don't know that any lawyer on the Board saw it. I don't know that any lawyer represented the National Bank of Kentucky in the drafting of it.

If the 600,000 shares had been sold at Twenty-five ($25) dollars per share, that would have produced $15,000,000.00.

That is what we thought we had sold. I know now we never had $15,000,000.00. At that particular time when this meeting was held, we didn't have any money.

The stock market crash occurred in October, 1929. At that time the banks were owned by BancoKentucky Company and were hard pressed for money.

If BancoKentucky Company had $15,000,000 from the 600,000 shares and the 250,000 shares had been sold that would have added $6,000,000 more, all about $21,000,000. The 250,000 shares were to be paid for, as we understand it, over a period of six months. The $15,000,000 were by subscription which were called on September 19 to be paid October 1, 1929, so, that at the time of the stock market crash, we would have had our money. I didn't know how much money we had at the time of the stock market crash. I thought we had $10,000,000 or $11,000,000. I know we didn't have $15,000,000. I did not know that we were unable at that time to supply cash to our banks. We supplied a lot of cash to the banks.

I recall Mr. Ormsby very well. He was Vice-President of the National Bank of Kentucky and a director of Banco-Kentucky Company. The National Bank of Kentucky had borrowed up to the limit at the time of the stock market crash. I don't know that it had no more paper, that it could rediscount with the Federal Reserve. I know it had borrowed a considerable amount of money. I don't know what the limit was. I do not know that it could not borrow any money from the Federal Reserve. I did not consult the Federal Reserve and they didn't consult me. I knew we borrowed some money in New York for BancoKentucky Company,—$1,000,000. I knew the National Bank of Kentucky needed more money—that both of our banks needed more money. Mr. Ormsby was, in October, 1929, sent to New York to see if he could borrow money, as I understand, for the BancoKentucky Company. This was in October and the stock market crash was in October, but the borrowing of the money occurred in November, right after the stock market crash. On November 8, 1929, there is a resolution adopted by the BancoKentucky Company authorizing the borrowing of money by that Company. I don't know anything about the National Bank of Kentucky borrowing. I was a director of the National Bank at that time, but they didn't consult us, the directors, every time they wanted to borrow money. They had authority to do it.

Subscriptions for BancoKentucky stock were callable and payable October 1, 1929. I don't know that it was necessary for Banco to borrow any $1,000,000 on November 8, 1929. I knew the Bank was a heavy borrower. Directors were not consulted every time they borrowed money. I was present at the meeting of the Board of Directors of the National Bank of Kentucky, October 25, 1929, when that resolution was passed, ratifying the loan made to the Bank October 21, 1929, by the Guaranty Trust Company of New York and when the Board ratified and approved the act of H. D. Ormsby executing the note of the Bank payable on or before 60 days after date for that loan. I knew Mr. Ormsby had borrowed money for the Bank. I had voted that resolution. After borrowing the $1,000,000 from the Guaranty Trust Company, we gave Mr. Ormsby this resolution of BancoKentucky Company in November. At that time he borrowed $1,000,000 from the Chemical Bank for the BancoKentucky Company.

863—So, the BancoKentucky Company did not have at that time, in November, $1,000,000 available, did it?

A.—Oh, yes.

864—It did?

A.—Yes.

865—Where was it?

A.—In the bank.

866—But the bank had used up that cash?

A.—It owed the BancoKentucky Company the money it had on deposit.

867—It didn't have any free money that it could give to the National Bank of Kentucky?

A.—It had all of its money deposited in the bank.

868—That was a claim on the bank?

A.—It was a deposit.

869—If the bank needed more money, the BancoKentucky Company could not give it any more?—that is a fact—if you had $1,000,000 on deposit at the bank, you could not supply an $1,000,000 by using that $1,000,000?

A.—You put down two and take two from it and it leaves zero. If you take two and add two to it, it makes four. Why not get along with the facts of this case?

870—What I am trying to show is that the National Bank of Kentucky needed money at that time in order to survive.

A.—I don't know if the National Bank of Kentucky needed money at that time in order to survive. It was borrowing money. Not all people who borrow money need it to survive.

871—This was not a loan made by the National Bank of Kentucky, but was made by the BancoKentucky Company?

A.—Yes, it was borrowed by BancoKentucky Company in New York and deposited in the National Bank of Kentucky to the credit of BancoKentucky Company. That was done.

872—Banco didn't need any money at that time?

A.—No, sir; not that I know of. I don't know what it needed.

873—So, that money was borrowed for the National Bank of Kentucky?

A.—It was borrowed—you can look in the records and see what it was for. Don't try to substitute me for what the books show.

874—What I am asking you is—it was borrowed for the National Bank of Kentucky, but was borrowed by the BancoKentucky Company—it was borrowed for the use of the National Bank of Kentucky in order to add every available bit of liquid cash?

A.—You can draw that assumption, but the records will show whatever was the necessity for it.

875—I don't want it to stand as an assumption; I want facts.

A.—I don't know whether it is a fact or not.

876—You were a member of the Board of both institutions?

A.—I was a member of the Board of both institutions.

877—You are familiar with the Ormsby loan?

A.—I am familiar with the Ormsby loan. It was nine years ago, but——

Mr. Crawford: I object. That is argument.

The Court: No; I don't think so.

A.—I stated the purpose of it, as I recall it, was to assist the Bank of Kentucky.

878—That is what I wanted to get.

The stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky and Louisville Trust Company, who owned the Trustees' Certificates, had a preemptive right in the original plan of BancoKentucky Company to take all of its stock. The stock was offered to them by letter of July 19, 1929. Later, after the original offer had been made, we did not take steps to abolish that preemption. The preemptive right to subscribe for any increase in the capital stock was the matter that was taken up on the amendment and that preemptive right was taken from them by a vote of the stockholders at the January meeting of 1930. That is different from the original offering.

The subscribers to Banco stock had a preemptive right under the laws of Delaware, to subscribe for and pay for the increase ratably. In January, 1930, the stockholders voted a waiver of that preemptive right so that it could be sold to the public generally. That was not at the time it was put on the Chicago Stock Exchange. 2,000,000 shares had been put on the Chicago Stock Exchange in the fall of 1929. The Participation Certificate holders were given the preemptive right to suscribe and pay for stock in addition to what they secured by exchange. Before it was placed on the stock exchange or sold to the public, the Trustees' Participation Certificate holders could have subscribed for the whole issue and if it had been subscribed it would have been pro-rated. That was the offer. That was part of the plan devised by the stockholders and directors of the two banks. That was terminated by the directors of the Bank and Trust Company in a letter to the Trustees' Certificate holders on September 12, 1929, when they issued to the stockholders of the Bank the letter, plaintiff's Exhibit 24-5, which concludes: "If it is your intention to exchange your Trustees' Certificates, or buy additional shares in Banco-Kentucky Company, you should do so on or before September 15, 1929, as the privilege given you in the letter of July 19th, 1929, to exchange or subscribe for additional shares, terminates on that date."

The right terminated by the very terms of the offer unless extended, and they refused to extend it by that letter.

889—Yesterday, I asked you, on the Brighton Bank in Cincinnati, and Pearl Market Bank in Cincinnati, if in September, before you declared the plan operative or effective, you had not made commitments which practically exhausted your available cash? Now, I want to ask you, in addition to that, whether the commitments to buy those two banks didn't call for paying them all cash or cash and stock, at the option of the seller?

A.—That is right; I think it shows for itself.

890—And if the sellers of the Brighton and Pearl Market Banks had demanded all cash, it would have required $7,683,000, wouldn't it?

A.—Yes, I imagine so—whatever the proposition shows.

891—And in addition to that, the Central Savings Bank, which was bought in November, cost $329,000, didn't it?

A.—I will take your word for it; you have got the record—it is all in here.

The Court: That is all part of the record.

On direct examination, I said that Banco necessarily would have expenses. It had no salaried officers. It had no separate quarters. It never did get the time or opportunity to get separate quarters. On direct examination, I said the reason was that it was not determined when, or which, building was going to be occupied by the Bank, and that remained a matter of uncertainty up until the end. I gave June, 1930, as the date when it was finally determined. I think that was the date. I won't be bound by that date.

898—If you take the minutes of June 21st, at which the BancoKentucky Company was formally launched, it refers in those minutes to which building the Bank of Kentucky was going to occupy?

A.—I don't recall what it says in the minutes.

The Court: You mean the National Bank of Kentucky was going to occupy?

Mr. Marx: Yes. The names are very similar.

The Court: I think it is important to call it the National Bank of Kentucky because of the similarity of the names.

The minutes of June 21, 1929, the same day that Banco was formally launched, refer to the building the National Bank of Kentucky intended to occupy. The Bank, in that minute, proposed to occupy 421 West Market Street; that was determined at the very time Banco was ordered organized. That reminds me of the fact that sometime after that it was stated that Banco would occupy offices in that new building when the Bank of Kentucky went there. The Louisville Trust Company was already at 421 West Market Street.

As I remember it, I may be wrong when speaking entirely from recollection, the old Louisville Trust building at 5th and Market Street was vacant at that time.

904—So, there wasn't any reason why the BancoKentucky Company, if it was going to occupy an office at 421 West Market, could not immediately occupy that office?

A.—It was then occupied by the Louisville Trust Company.

905—But that was owned by Banco just the same as the National Bank of Kentucky?

A.—The stock, the Trustees' Participation Receipts were owned, but it was a big question of room, actual room, space. We had those buildings surveyed half a dozen times, back and forth, to see if they had enough room to accommodate the banks.

906—You didn't need much room to accommodate the BancoKentucky Company?

A.—As contemplated, it would have required considerable room.

907—I say as it actually operated?

A.—As actually operated, no, but as contemplated, if we had been able to establish the plans of Banco, it would have taken considerable space.

908—Leaving out of consideration ideas on this, as a matter of practice, the BancoKentucky Company only kept two or three little books?

A.—It kept the set of books you introduced here.

909—Those could be held in a drawer?

A.—You have got the books here. If they could be held in a little drawer, the Court's opinion is as good as mine.

910—Its correspondence could be held in a correspondence file?

A.—I don't know but that anybody's correspondence can be kept in some correspondence file.

I recall testifying about BancoKentucky Company before the Grand Jury at Jefferson County, Kentucky, investigating from February 23rd to February 27, 1931, the financial crash in Louisville of November 17, 1930, including the BancoKentucky Company. I testified before the Grand Jury that BancoKentucky Company was organized without $1 of the stockholders' money except the recording fees. What I meant by that was that they did not pay any commission for the sale of its stock. It had its expenses, of course, attorney fees—we didn't hire a lawyer and not expect to pay him. No salaries were paid that I know of. I have learned since there have been a lot of claims put in for salaries and expenses.

Mr. Tom ZurSchmiede, and his assistants, I understand, did all of the work done at the bank.

"The Court: I don't think there is any dispute about that.

The Witness: There hasn't been, no, sir."

It was an essential part of the plan of the formation of the BancoKentucky Company that not only was that company to own a substantial majority of the Trustees' Participation shares, but the holders of the Trustees' Participation shares prior to the formation of Banco, should hold the majority of the shares after its incorporation. That is set up in the letter of July 19th.

"The Court: Can you state from independent recollection about the thing, whether or not the holders of Trustees' Participation shares were to be the majority stockholders in Banco?

The Witness: That is my recollection, but I would rather that the answer would be confined to the document itself. It says here, Section 7: 'It is an essential part of this reorganization that the shares of this corporation (or at least a substantial majority thereof) be owned by the Trustees' Participation shareholders, and that it be managed and operated by the Board of Directors and the officers of the two banks.'"

It was an essential part of the plan, as set forth in this letter, that a majority of the shares of stock of Banco Kentucky Company be owned by the Trustees' Participation shareholders.

From the compilation made by Mr. Shuck showing the holders of BancoKentucky shares as of November 15, 1930, the date of the closing of the Bank, showing a total of 2,472,468, I made a list of the shares of stock purchased by the directors alone. That list is of the stock the directors purchased and paid for during the whole life of Banco. It represents the stock that they subscribed for initially. My list shows Mr. Vogt subscribing for 8,850 shares. The original subscription book of BancoKentucky Company shows Mr. Vogt only subscribed for 2,200 shares at $25 per share, a difference from my figures of 6,650 shares or $108,000.

The Court suggested that since Mr. Shuck collected the materials from which Mr. Dodd made his computation, and would later be on the stand, that further cross-examination on this matter be deferred until Mr. Shuck took the stand.

I mentioned in direct examination that there was the idea of BancoKentucky Company going into the title insurance business and the business of title examination. It never went into the title insurance business or the title examination business. To get into the title insurance business in Kentucky, certain legal formalities have to be complied with. One of them was an application to the Superintendent of Insurance—getting a permit to do business in Kentucky. To get a permit to do business you have to deposit securities or collateral with the Insurance Commissioner. The BancoKentucky Company never made any such application. The plans never progressed that far. They never deposited any securities. It never did get to that point in its development. They made no title examinations. It never did get into business.

I mentioned the subject also of originating first mortgage real estate bonds. BancoKentucky Company never originated any first mortgage bond issues. It never got that far in its plans. As far as first mortgage bond issues were concerned, the Louisville Trust Company were selling first mortgage bonds with its guarantee and had been for a number of years but it never was able to supply the demand.

These bonds that were originated by the Louisville Trust Company were first mortgage bonds on various tracts of real estate. The Louisville Trust Company was a guarantor not the maker. Some of those bonds were secured by the deposit of collateral or trust deeds and mortgages on real estate and some of them were direct. In cases where there was a deposit of collateral, they used some other company as trustees. They used the Louisville National Bank & Trust Company and the National Bank of Kentucky as I remember. Possibly, they used the United States Trust Company. The question of the trustee was a question of a satisfactory trustee and his willingness to act. At the time the Trust Company closed they had outstanding more than $4,000,000 of those collateral trust bonds, I think.

As far as the ownership of insurance company stock, about which I spoke on direct examination, the only insurance company stock that BancoKentucky owned was $25,000 of the Union Central Life Insurance Company stock.

There was a greater demand for first mortgage bonds than the Trust Company could supply so we did not need any selling organization but we contemplated going into the security business beyond anything that had been done here in Louisville before and we expected to have quite a selling agency. If we could have originated those bonds we hoped to use these banks to place them. We did not need any selling organization at the time, but if we had gotten the plans of the BancoKentucky Company going, we would have needed a selling organization.

I said during my direct examination that the whole plan was conditioned on our having a $30,000,000 cash reserve. That was the discussion before we ever organized. The conditioning the plan upon our having a $30,000,000 cash reserve or more was in the preliminary discussion and was actively set forth as a part of the plan, and approved up until—during the whole organization we were trying to get back to that. We started off with that in mind. It stayed in our minds until the very close.

I cannot show you any place in the minutes where there is any reference to that. Many things happen that there is no reference to. There is no reference in the letter of July 19, 1929, which sets forth the plan and states its essentials, to the back-log of $30,000,000 but it refers to the charter of the BancoKentucky Company and that charter is very broad. It gives authority to do everything we felt we could do. In the subscriptions to shares of BancoKentucky Company there is no reference to the fact that the whole plan was conditioned on a $30,000,000 cash reserve.

970—In other words, you can't show me any place in writing in any of the corporate records or minutes or plans where there is any reference to that fact that the whole plan was conditioned on a $30,000,000 cash reserve?

A.—It is not set out in the minutes and I never said it was in the minutes.

971—I asked you if you can show me any place in writing, in the entire history of Banco where that is set forth?

A.—I will answer that plainly: There is no reference anywhere in the minutes to a $30,000,000 reserve to meet the situation that I discussed of the plan, but I call your attention to the fact that the capital stock was 2,000,000 shares, at $25 a share, and after the first subscription we immediately increased it from 2,000,000 to 5,000,000, and I say, although it was not in the plan as written, that that was discussed and it was understood that the purpose of that increase was to gain that reserve.

It was planned that this third corporation which was to be added, as part of the plan of re-organization, to the Bank and Trust Company, was to engage in functions prohibited by law to banks and trust companies. That is what the letter says and if I may explain—what they had in mind—was that the Banks could not underwrite securities, had no right to underwrite bond issues, and had no right to go into the investment business. National banks had branches here but have no right to have branches outside the community.

I said in answer to Mr. Crawford's question that there was no secret about the plan of BancoKentucky Company. I think everybody knew it, if they read the newspapers. It looks like they ought to have known it. The newspapers simply reprinted either in haec verba or in substance the letter of July 19, 1929. I don't know how many newspapers it was published in. I saw some of the articles myself and the plan, the letter of July 19th was published.

The activities of Banco such as the purchase of additional banks in Cincinnati and the purchase of banks in Covington and purchase of the bank in Paducah and Ashland and subsequently the Security Bank in Louisville were all published in the newspapers as well as the acquisition of the Caldwell & Company interest.

At the time we organized Banco, it was thought in the Bank that it would be a pretty good plan to denationalize the National Bank of Kentucky. It was the collective judgment of the six Trustees that it would be a good thing to denationalize the National Bank of Kentucky.

On September 27, 1929, a document was signed by the directors of the two institutions to denationalize and there is the agreement of the stockholders to denationalize. It was signed by the Advisory Committee and addressed to the Trustees. I was one of the Trustees. This paper marked "Consent of Advisory Committee," addressed to the Trustees, is not dated. It appears in the Trustees' minute book immediately after the subscription of the shares of the BancoKentucky. It orders the Trustees, holding all the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky, to place the Bank in voluntary liquidation under Secs. 5220 and 5221 of the United States Revised Statutes. A charter for the State Bank was drawn and the organization tax of $4,000 was paid to the State of Kentucky. That was paid out of the assets of the National Bank of Kentucky to secure a charter for a State Bank. The determination to liquidate the National Bank of Kentucky was made four days before the call date for the subscriptions to shares of BancoKentucky Company. It was the plan of the National Bank of Kentucky, I would say, dating back until June at least, to denationalize—to go out of the national system. What we intended to do was to liquidate the National Bank of Kentucky and transfer the assets as a going concern to a State Bank to pass from one system into another. As Trustees, as stockholders of the Bank, we approved the step. Mr. Vaughan handled it for the Bank as I recall. You will have to ask him about the details.

After having gone through all the formal resolutions and certifying the liquidation to the Comptroller of the Currency and paying money to the State of Kentucky for a State Bank Charter, we postponed the carrying out of the plan from month to month.

The postponement was not because we had made application to the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis, to get the new State Bank admitted into the Federal Reserve System. An application had to be made. I didn't know anything about the Federal Reserve Bank writing that if the State Bank intended to take over the assets of the National Bank of Kentucky, it would be necessary to eliminate more than $4,000,000 of the substandard assets and to eliminate the concentration of loans on Banco stock.

1015—I am talking about knowledge.

A.—They sent such a letter to Mr. Charlie Jones and Mr. Brown.

1016—And sent a copy of it to Mr. Vaughan?

A.—I don't believe Mr. Vaughan will state that. I never knew anything about it, as far as being a Trustee.

1017—You know now, and have known for a long time?

A.—Since the Bank closed.

I don't think a copy of that letter was sent to Mr. Vaughan—that is the so-called criticized assets were not furnished to him at least. I mean the list of criticized assets. A copy of the letter was sent to him but the letter did not give him all this information you are giving me now as an interrogatory. Before we went into the Federal Reserve, we were told by officers that we would have to submit an application and that that could not be given at once. They had no assurance when the Federal Reserve would give the examination. The officers of the Bank of Kentucky gave that excuse to me for extending the time for liquidation. There was no assurance that if we made the National Bank of Kentucky into a State Bank, we could get into the Federal Reserve at any time, but we needed to get in because the stock market crash was coming along.

I testified in the directors' case "There was no assurrance that if we made the National Bank of Kentucky a State Bank that we could get the privileges from the Federal Reserve. At that time, we hadn't sold enough stock to furnish us the cash necessary for the reserve which we expected when we organized Banco. For that reason it was necessary for us to remain in the Federal Reserve System until the stock market situation adjusted itself and the stock struck a level and we could see what was coming."

I was one of the members who brought the suit for the receivership for the BancoKentucky Company. I was a member of that company's Executive Committee. The style of that case is Carroll v. Chemical Bank & Trust Company. Plaintiff's Exhibit 66 is the petition in equity in the Jefferson Circuit Court, Chancery Branch Division, No. 205-223. The allegations in that bill are correct.

I testified on cross-examination, in the case of Louisville Trust Company v. the National Bank of Kentucky, growing out of the dispute over 421 W. Market St.

I don't know what I said yesterday when you asked me whether I did not know these bank examiners were in the Bank before we organized Banco, or just before we organized it. In the building case, I was asked "With reference to this particular date, June 21st, did you know the examination was made as of the 25th, that the National Bank Examiners with a large force had come in?", and I answered, "We undoubtedly knew that they were there."

I was asked the question, "Regardless of when it was read to the directors, you knew the Bank had been examined beginning the date after the Louisville Trust Company moved into No. 421 W. Market Street," and I answered, "I don't say we knew the day, but I say we undoubtedly knew the Bank Examiners were there. There was quite a force and we knew it." Yesterday, I said I could not tell what days they were there. From some of your questions, you elicited a different answer; you used this statement: "Didn't the National Bank Examiner and his force move into the National Bank of Kentucky?" You were a little bit more polite in your question there.

I did know that the National Bank Examiner was there. I had to know that, because I did know they made an examination of the Bank. What I didn't want to do was to confine myself to the exact day they started and the exact day they ended; we knew it because we had what purported to be a complete report of the examination read. I couldn't tell you now whether I knew that later or at the time. The answer is undoubtedly I knew that they were there, and I still say undoubtedly, I did know they were there but what day they stopped, I couldn't tell you to save my life nor how many examiners they had there either, I would be a remarkable man if I could.

I signed certain reports of the condition of the Banks they brought to me. At one time, I don't remember when, the statement showing the Bank was a very heavy borrower—that some $14,000,000 was being borrowed by the National Bank of Kentucky.

It was a hope, more of a hope than a plan, to put the two banks into one banking house. It was hoped from the beginning of the unification of the two banks that the two banks could be housed in one building. In the early history of the unification, we actually appointed a committee to try to do that. We did that two years after the unification, in 1929, and finally gave up the idea that the two could be housed in one bank in January, 1930.

1053—(Interrupting.) But you still clung in January, 1930, to the denationalization plan?

A.—That extended over until March.

1054—It was not until March, 1930, that you finally abandoned the denationalization?

A.—Correct.

1055—When you found you could not get into the Federal Reserve?

A.—No, sir. I didn't find that out. The reason why the Trustees—they were advised as to why it was given up. It was because there was no opportunity to market the stock of the BancoKentucky Company at that time in a sufficient quantity to raise the money we started out to raise in the first instance, which was the plan as I stated it to you awhile ago, of having some $30,000,000 in BancoKentucky in reserve to manage this system.

1056—What did the ability of BancoKentucky to market additional stock in March, 1930, have to do with the denationalization of the National Bank of Kentucky?

A.—As we understood it—as we were advised, but for the stock market crash, there never would have been a checkup or stop in the final denationalization. We had reached—we did not have sufficient stock to carry out our plan, and we were then endeavoring first, to get additional stock, and but for the stock market crash, if we could have got that additional stock on the market, we would have gone out of the system. That was as the plan was stated to us. Now, there were conditions the directors didn't know anything about that the Bank officers did know, that is, there were conditions made to the Bank by the Federal Reserve Bank at St. Louis, that certain assets had to be removed from the Bank, and certain things had to be done as a condition precedent to the state bank getting into the system, but what I am saying to you is that the directors did not know anything about those conditions.

After abandoning the denationalization plan in March, 1930, we took up the plan of actually physically consolidating the Bank and the Trust Company, so that legally there would be only one institution, in the fall of 1929, and again in the summer of 1930, as a matter of saving expenses in the matter of the operation of the institutions and making more money for the stockholders. We were searching for some plan to eliminate expenses. The banks were working all right, so far as the directors were concerned.

We appointed a committee on the plan to consolidate. Mr. Carroll represented the Bank and I represented the Louisville Trust Company. Mr. Vaughan and Mr. Castleman were on the committee. We worked on the plan sometime in August, as I remember, August or September; just before the Bank closed. Nothing was done about it. The trouble about it was the possibility of losing trust estates; we were trying to consolidate them without doing that; that was the thing that was giving us the headache.

We bought an interest in Caldwell & Company.

1064—Let's see what you testified before, as to whether you consummated any such deal: Isn't it a fact that although there was a contract drawn up, that the contract was not consummated on its terms as written, and it was thoroughly understood that it was a scale contract and nothing was to be done until after the securities were valued, and the securities were never valued and the contract was never consummated?

A.—Who said that?

1065—A gentleman by the name of Allen P. Dodd, testifying before the Grand Jury of this County, under oath.

A.—All right, you read that question to me.

1066—"In your experience as a lawyer and director of a bank, would you say that Caldwell & Company contract was consummated. A. Of course, the contract was not consummated on its terms as written but let me be plain on the proposition, when I left the Board of Directors meeting on May 26th, it was thoroughly understood that the only contract to be made with Caldwell & Company was to be a scale contract and nothing was to be done until after the securities were valued. I didn't think a contract would ever be drawn. When I got back to Louisville, I understood nothing had been delivered. The contract was never consummated, because half of the stock was held here subject to an appraisement. It was not consummated except as to 500,000 shares of stock. The other 400,000 shares were held in the Louisville Trust Company."

A.—I made that answer, yes, but not the way you undertook to show it.

1067—Was that correct?

A.—Yes, that was a correct answer. I didn't vote for that contract, and I only gave you my understanding about it when I got back, and that is correct. It was a scale contract.

It was my understanding that the purchase price would be held by BancoKentucky Company until after its own appraisement so that, if the assets proved to be of no value, it would not have to be delivered.

Before the Jefferson County Grand Jury, I was asked this question, "Was this good or bad for BancoKentucky?" and I made this answer, "It was bad, simply because Caldwell & Company went smash in November and the making of this contract as presented to me and as I thought of it, it was a contract that couldn't hurt the BancoKentucky because the purchase price would be held in its till until after its own appraisement and if the assets proved to be of no value, it didn't have to deliver anything under the contract."

The Court sustained defendants' objection to further questions along this line and plaintiff made the following avowal: That Mr. Dodd, if permitted, would say that he had been asked the following questions and that he had made the following answers:

> "Q. 'If the contract had been drawn as you thought it was going to be done, they were not to deliver anything until the appraisal was made? A. The contract had to go through if Caldwell & Company guaranteed its assets to prove out on our appraisement, we couldn't stop the contract from going through if his appraisements held, and neither could we. In other words, the escrow agent was to hold the stock until it was appraised and proved up. Q. (Here Mr. Allen, Foreman, read two clauses of the contract.) Do these two clauses imply the meat of the contract you had in mind when they were discussing it in May, 1929,—I am bringing out this point that the assets of BancoKentucky were listed in total by the assets of the company which they were going to purchase it would take 12 months to find out what they were? A. My understanding was before I left here that the Caldwell & Company would guarantee it had a net worth of nine million, subject to our appraisal and that we were to deliver nothing until that appraisement was had, although we would put the stock in escrow.' "

Then, he is asked a question, and plaintiff avows that if permitted to answer he would say:

> "Q. 'In previous meetings which you attended were there other directors agreeing on that phase as to the way it was to be handled? A. That was the only way it was intended to be handled. Caldwell & Company were attempting to make connections with Banco-Kentucky. If they made a preliminary contract and then that contract was not carried out the effect would be disastrous to any banking house to have it turned down. If the preliminary contract was drawn and the basis of trade was worked out and then on the appraisement the net worth turned out to be five million instead of nine million dollars, the contract could have gone through but the price would have been scaled down on the basis of 5 to 9. If his assets didn't price according to us to more than two million and he wanted to turn out he could do so, but if he wanted to go on, we had the right to back out.'"

BancoKentucky never made any appraisement or audit of the assets of Caldwell & Company, and never paid any dividends on the stock allocated to Caldwell in the deal, that I know of. I think I have checked the records and found that to be true.

Caldwell & Company owned an interest in banks. As to how much it was, I don't know. I don't know that they owned a controlling interest in banks or that through insurance companies they owned additional banks, you will have to ask Mr. Donovan.

I don't know that the directors borrowed $670,000 from their own bank to pay for Banco stock. I don't know how much they borrowed.

On re-direct examination by Mr. Crawford, Mr. Dodd testified as follows:

I was asked about certain letters from the Comptroller of the Currency and referred to in the minutes of the Bank. As I recall, six letters were noted in the minutes of the directors of the National Bank of Kentucky as having been received and read to the directors, and referred to the directors for action. Among the letters was one, Mr. Marx read to me yesterday a part of it, it was the minutes of December 16, 1927, June 1, 1928, June 22, 1928, August 21, 1928, and December 7, 1928.

I was present June 1st, June 22nd and December 7th and absent the other three. At the meetings I attended, there was no reference to any letter from the Comptroller at any time. No letter was read to the Board at any meeting including those meetings and no minute was ever read that showed that at a former meeting a letter was read from the Comptroller from June 7, 1927, until I left the Board in 1930.

I never heard from any Director at any time or from anybody that a letter from the Comptroller had been referred to or a minute read referring to a letter from the Comptroller at any meeting when I was not present. I never heard of a letter coming from the Comptroller's office to the Bank of Kentucky while I was on the Board.

I was present when testimony was taken in the director's case in which there was a question of whether these letters had been read to the Board or whether any minute in reference to these letters had been read to the Board.

Plaintiff's objection to the Master's ruling on that subject was sustained and the following, from the Master's report was offered as an avowal:

> "Defendants' Exhibit No. 1—Vol. 1, p. 301:—
> I do not think that any of these letters reached the Board of Directors notwithstanding the recitation in the minutes to this effect. The Minute Books now indicate that there were six such letters presented and read to the Board, namely: December 16, 1927, page 304, of the Minute Book; June 1, 1928, p. 318 of the Minute Book; June 8, 1928, p. 319 of the Minute Book; June 22, 1928, p. 320 of the Minute Book; August 31, 1928, p. 325 of the Minute Book; and December 7, 1928,

p. 332 of the Minute Book. It is satisfactorily established that the minutes, after being read to the Board, were fraudulently altered, so as to show the presentation and consideration of these letters. The concealment of these letters from the Board, and the fact that such questionable, not to say dangerous, means were resorted to to accomplish it, demonstrate the character of the collusion with which the directors were unknowingly surrounded."

Exceptions were filed to that finding.

When the Bank and Trust Company's stock was trusteed in 1927, a committee of Trust Company directors was appointed which had appraisal of the Wagon Company made at that time. Mr. Hieatt made the first appraisal when we were negotiating the unification. He was the largest individual stockholder of the Louisville Trust Company.

As I recall, the reported value of that appraisal at that time was more than $1,000,000. In 1928, shortly after the National Bank of Kentucky procured a deed to the Wagon Company property, Mr. Harry Goodman, Mr. C. C. Hieatt and Mr. Bob Martin were appointed a committee or were employed as realtors or real estate agents in Louisville to make a detailed appraisal of the Wagon Company properties. They made that appraisal and reported to the Bank Board. This copy of that appraisal was obtained by the bank in 1928. It is dated May 11, 1928, and shows the value of the Wagon Company properties to be $2,077,732. Mr. Hieatt was and is one of the outstanding real estate men in this locality. He was a former President of the National Realtors Association. Mr. Martin is a prominent real estate broker in Louisville. He had been connected with the valuation department of the City Tax Office for many years prior to that time. Mr. Goodman is a real estate broker here of the highest standing. His firm is Semonin, Goodman & Company.

(Continuation of Re-Direct Examination of Allen P. Dodd.)

The Bank of Kentucky had from three to four hundred country bank accounts all the time. The deposits of Bank of Kentucky would fluctuate from week to week several million dollars. One week they would be up and the next down; it would vary backwards and forwards. It was explained to the Board there were so many country bank accounts that the withdrawal by country banks who would withdraw deposits would vary the amount of the deposits very much.

Photostatic copies of the claim of Paul C. Keyes, Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky, dated April 8, 1931, the claim of Frank Dugan dated April 8, 1931, and W. T. ZurSchmiede's claim against the BancoKentucky Company, filed with the Receiver of BancoKentucky Company, were marked for identification "Defendant's Exhibit 7."

Timothy Graham Donovan,

called for defendants, examined by Mr. Crawford, testified:

My full name is Timothy Graham Donovan. I live and have lived in Nashville, Tennessee, practically all my life except for six years which I spent in Atlanta, Ga. I become associated with Caldwell and Company on January 27, 1925. That company had been in business since 1917. From December 9, 1926, to the time of the receivership of Caldwell and Company, I was Secretary and a member of its board of directors.

Caldwell and Company started in September, 1917, and until approximately 1920, engaged exclusively in municipal bonds, and principally Southern municipal bonds. Along about 1920, Caldwell and Company acquired the interest of Frank and Norton Marr, who had conducted a brokerage business there for a long time; it was an old house, well known. The Marr brothers' father had conducted a private banking business in Nashville since the Civil War and after that had continued to own a stock brokerage business.

The original charter of Caldwell and Company permitted it to deal in securities, stocks and bonds. In 1922 the charter was amended to permit wider operations in the securities field and following that the Company went into the first mortgage real estate bond business, both underwriting and financing. Along in 1922 or 1923 they branched out into the underwriting and financing of first mortgage real estate bonds. They financed the erection of the Kentucky Hotel and subsequently the financing of the Beha Laundry Company. Of course the securities market from 1923 until 1925 changed, and Caldwell and Company entered into the stock field. Following the purchase of stock they branched out into the underwriting of industrial securities of their own, that is, corporation finance. Subsequent to 1923 Caldwell and Company participated in many syndicates both as an origination group, selling group, buying group, and whatnot of securities throughout the country.

Caldwell and Company had participation in national issues. At that time it had built up a considerable reputation and was known as the largest investment house in the South. It was invited into practically all the new financing of issues. It was nothing unusual to have participation in issues originated by J. P. Morgan, Halsey Stewart and Dillon Reed. It had also built a reputation as a distribution house and by that I mean it had offices in twenty-two cities. It had offices in Chattanooga, Tenn., Louisville, Cincinnati, Chicago, Detroit, St. Louis, Kansas City, and up to 1929, in New York City. At that time it was necessary to incorporate under a different name in New York because of a duplication of names, as Caldwell and Company and they incorporated under the name of Rogers Caldwell and Company, which was a New York corporation. The Company had offices in New Orleans, Birmingham, Knoxville, Greensburg, S. C., and in 1929 and 1930 it had offices in San Francisco, Jackson, Miss., Bristol, Tenn., Columbia, S. Car., Dallas, Texas, Montgomery, Alabama, Jacksonville, Florida, Tampa, and they had offices at one time in Miami during the winter season. There were 22 principal offices in all.

From 1926 on I think the business of Caldwell and Company ran around $40,000,000.00 in the sale of securities and in 1929 it reached $75,000,000.00 in securities and I think for the first four or five months of 1930 the sale of securities was around $37,000,000.00, which, of course, at that time, was maintaining the average of sales.

In the early part of 1930 Caldwell and Company's assets consisted of and were principally investments in securities, consisting of Certificates of Deposit and we had a small amount invested in Liberty Bonds, foreign bonds, industrial bonds, municipal bonds and stocks.

Plaintiff objected to the question and the answer of the witness Donovan, regarding Caldwell's assets consisting of bank stocks, on the ground that the books and records were the best evidence. In response to the Court's questions the witness testified that he did not have the books available; that he had consulted them with a view to testifying to that fact; that he had testified to that fact in many other cases involving Caldwell and Company; that he was in charge of the books and was responsible for them, and that he knew approximately the amount of bank stock held by that company in the first part of 1930, and plaintiff's objection was overruled. Plaintiff made a further objection on the ground that the books and records of Caldwell and Company were not within the jurisdiction of the court and that where a witness is permitted to testify with reference to figures shown in books and records, such books and records must be within the jurisdiction of the court.

Q. How much relatively of your assets was bank stock?

A. I am taking the range of the early part of 1930. I would say they were relatively small. The total in the Caldwell books between January and May would represent not 5% and certainly not over 10%—they would be less than 10% of the total investment in securities.

Mr. Marx: I move to strike out that answer on the grounds previously stated. I am not thoroughly familiar, if your Honor please, with the details of Caldwell and Company—I don't know that any human being is—but if the books were here, I am informed that they would show that in addition to controlling directly certain banks through stock investments, they controlled indirectly, through their control of other companies, certain additional bank stocks, and that this answer is fundamentally false.

The Court: My point is that I don't see that it has any consequentiality. That is the reason I am permitting him to answer.

Mr. Marx: It was considered to be a chain of banks in the Federal Reserve.

The witness: I am telling you Caldwell & Company were not a banking institution and had nothing to do with the Federal Reserve Bank.

Mr. Marx: I move to strike that statement out. It was not in answer to any question.

The Court: Let it be stricken out, but I am overruling your motion to strike out his answer to the other question.

On cross-examination by Mr. Kasfir, Mr. Donovan testified:

Prior to May, 1930, Caldwell & Company had 10,000 shares of stock outstanding. Those shares were not listed on any exchange. It was a closed corporation. Rogers Caldwell owned the entire 10,000 shares. The stock market crash was in November—October, 1929. After the stock market crash, sales of securities were curtailed, but the security market did not dry up. At that time, subsequent to that time, Caldwell & Company took steps to save expenses. It closed down some of its offices, several, I would say 3, 4, or 5 or 6 or 7. Practically all the salesmen were not eliminated from the force. To the contrary, in the spring of 1930, they had a sales school to develop additional salesmen with the idea that they were going from there into the retail sale of securities. It is not true that the principal business of Caldwell & Company was floating municipal issues. You will find, by looking, that corporation and industrial securities exceeded municipal bonds in 1929. My company did not make any campaign to sell Banco stock. They sold some, however. You recall that in July, 1930, there was a further decline in the market. We did not acquire BancoKentucky Company stock until June, 1930. From that time on until the failure of Caldwell & Company we did not put on a campaign to sell Banco stock but we did sell some.

The receivership of Caldwell & Company occurred November 13, 1930. No request was made by any of the officers or directors of Banco to Caldwell & Company to conduct any campaign for the sale of BancoKentucky Company stock that I knew of. We sold four or five thousand shares of BancoKentucky stock.

There may have been some discussion between Mr. Caldwell and Mr. Brown between June, 1930, and the receivership of Caldwell & Company regarding request by Banco to sell any other issues backed by Banco, but to my knowledge I can't answer that. I don't know of any issue of stock floated by BancoKentucky which it asked Caldwell & Company to sell on the market from May to November, 1930.

Banco was paying dividends of 20¢ a share every quarter. Caldwell & Company received a check in June, 1930, for $180,000.00 as dividends. I don't know that we were requested to return it. The records of Banco show that check was issued to Caldwell & Company. I endorsed it and sent it back. The contract between Caldwell & Company and BancoKentucky Company provided for an examination of the former's assets within a year after May 28, 1930. It provided that 200,000 shares of stock was to be placed in escrow with the Louisville Trust Company. There was nothing in there about the consummation of the contract; it was simply—it was, to my mind, consummated, but subject to the determination of the values of Caldwell & Company, why, 200,000 shares of Banco was put in escrow with the Louisville Trust Company pending such investigation.

We received in all 900,000 shares of Banco. This $180,000.00 represented a dividend on that amount of stock. In spite of the fact that the contract said we were to deposit 200,000 in escrow, we returned the entire $180,000.00 to BancoKentucky. It was my thought that although the contract was consummated, we were not entitled to any of those dividends in June, 1930, because the examination of the assets of Caldwell & Company had not been completed. The next quarterly dividend came in September, 1930. I don't recall that a check was issued to us for that dividend. My recollection is that a check was not issued. We received no part of the September, 1930, dividend. I think there was some discussion between Mr. Caldwell and Mr. Brown about that check but the details of it I don't recall at this time.

I received the original of plaintiff's Exhibit 104, a letter sent me by Mr. ZurSchmiede which enclosed this $180,000.00 check. I signed plaintiff's Exhibit 105. That is my letter returning that check.

My testimony in regard to the ownership of banks by Caldwell & Company was with respect to direct and indirect ownership. Caldwell & Company had a large stock interest in the Missouri State Life Insurance Company held through the Insurance Securities Corporation. Of course, if you are going to reach out like that—I still say the assets of Caldwell, regarding investments in bank stock were very small.

We didn't keep a record of what Missouri State Life held with respect to bank stocks. Through Insurance Securities Corporation, we did control a large block of Missouri State Life but we didn't hold a controlling interest in Missouri State Life at that time. Caldwell & Company did, in 1930, own a controlling interest in Inter-Southern Life, and had from 1926 on. After May, 1930, Inter-Southern Life held 116,000 shares of Missouri State Life, approximately 30% of Missouri State Life's stock. I don't know how many banks Missouri State Life held. Caldwell & Company bought a 60% interest in the Home Life Insurance Company in 1929. In the early part of 1930 that interest was taken over by the Inter-Southern Life Insurance Company.

When I speak about the ownership of the bank, I am speaking about stock in banks that Caldwell & Company had in its portfolio which it could offer for sale. In other words, you have some evidence of ownership of bank stock. If you own Missouri State Life, you can't represent that you own banks any more than a man who owns stock in C.I.T. can claim he owns every automobile in Louisville. When I told Mr. Crawford that Caldwell & Company's bank stock assets were 5 to 10% of its total assets I had reference to direct ownership. I meant there wasn't more than 10% of bank stock in Caldwell & Company's portfolio that it could use as security or offer for sale. I was not speaking of any interest in bank stock which some subsiduary corporations of Caldwell & Company might have owned. The Home Life Insurance Company owned stock at a large number of banks in Arkansas. Quite a few small country banks. Something like 30 or 40. I don't think it went as high as 100. I don't think it went as high as 70. My recollection of that is 25 or 30 banks in a small section at Arkansas.

Caldwell & Company did not have an interest in the Southwestern Life Insurance Company of Texas, but Missouri State Life did. I don't know whether Southwestern owned any banks in Texas. I have never seen a statement of Southwestern.

Plaintiff requested that the witness produce the books and records so that he could be cross-examined regarding the percentage of Caldwell & Company's assets in bank stocks.

The Court: If you care to, you may take the deposition of this witness at Nashville on cross-examination to determine what those records show.

Caldwell and Company did own a controlling interest in Inter-Southern Life Insurance Company in May, 1930, and it held approximately 29½% of Missouri State Life—116,000 shares out of 400,000 outstanding at that time. Mr. James Caldwell, father of Rogers Caldwell, was chairman of the board of Missouri State Life Insurance Company. Rogers Caldwell was on the executive committee of the Missouri State Life. The other members of the executive committee were Mr. C. G. Arnett and Mr. Hillsman Taylor. Mr. Arnett was President of Inter-Southern Life Insurance Company and Mr. Hillsman Taylor was attorney for Rogers Caldwell back in 1922. From that time Mr. Taylor was attorney for the Cotton State Life, but never for Caldwell & Company. In 1923 Caldwell bought the Cotton States

Life, which was then in Memphis. Subsequently he consolidated it with other companies and it went into the Inter-State Life Insurance. Hillsman Taylor was attorney for Cotton States Life. Mr. Charles McCabe, now collector of Internal Revenue at Nashville, was President.

Shortly before May, 1930, Missouri State Life bought certain securities which the Inter-State Life Insurance Company had transferred to the Nashville Trust Company. Missouri State Life bought the securities coming out of this trade from the Fourth and First National Company, a subsidiary of Fourth and First National Bank. Insurance Securities Corporation received $2,040,000.00. It was not a trade, it was a sale of securities to the Missouri State Life. The sale was on a repurchase agreement of the Inter-Southern Life to the Nashville Trust Company at Nashville. This $2,040,000.00 paid off the one year notes of the Insurance Securities Corporation. Those notes were guaranteed by Caldwell & Company and the Fourth and First National Company. The day after the stock market crash certain securities were sold by Caldwell & Company to the Missouri State Life Insurance Company on a repurchase agreement.

Caldwell and Company had a very nominal investment in the Fourth and First. We sold our stock in that in 1929 and got out. Mr. James Caldwell, Rogers Caldwell's father, had no interest in Caldwell & Company. Caldwell & Company owed the Fourth and First one million dollars but that was nothing unusual. We owed the Chase and the Chemical one million dollars. It was nothing unusual for us to borrow.

District Court of the United States

A. M. ANDERSON, Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky, Appellant,

v.

KATHERINE KIRKPATRICK ABBOTT, Administratrix of the Estate of David J. Abbott, deceased, et al.,

Appellees.

Robert F. Vaughan,

called for defendants, examined by Mr. Crawford, testified:

My name is Robert F. Vaughan. I am a lawyer and live in Louisville. I was connected with the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company as director at the time it merged with the Louisville Trust Company. The proposal had been made by Mr. James B. Brown, President of the National Bank of Kentucky to Mr. Bean, President of the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company, that the two banks, that is, the Louisville Trust Company and the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company merge. That matter was brought to our board by Mr. Bean, with his recommendation, and consolidation after certain mechanics, denationalizating, etc., was affected.

The purpose of making that trade was that we felt it was very advantageous to our stockholders. Mr. Bean had gone into the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company as a rather young man, as a representative of the Ballard family which controlled the bank. He had built the bank up in the '20's to a point where he felt he could not carry it any further. He felt he had reached his peak and he believed that this merger with the Louisville Trust Company and the Trust Agreement with the National Bank of Kentucky would be advantageous for his stockholders, for the bank and for all concerned. That is the only reason that I know of for the trade.

At that time the National Bank of Kentucky was regarded by us as the leading national bank in this part of the world. The Louisville Trust Company was regarded as the second largest and oldest trust company in Louisville. The basis of the trade was that we traded share for share with the Louisville Trust Company. We got Trustees' Participation Certificates.

Copy of the agreement covering the merger of the Louisville Trust Company and the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company ordered filed as part of Mr. Vaughan's testimony.

After the consolidation had been effected I became a director of the Trust Company. It was along in May, 1929. After that trade the question came up of the formation of BancoKentucky Company. I had participated in those conferences.

In answering the question regarding the intention of the organizers of Banco as to the character of the company that should be organized, I would like to give something of the background of the banking situation to make myself clear. I can only testify as to what went on in the preliminary meetings that were held leading up to the organization of Banco. The banking situation as developed in these discussions, had changed materially, due to the development of security markets and the booming of security markets in this country, and the financing of the larger corporations by selling their securities rather than by commercial loans in banks. The net result of that was that the net amount of security in banks for rediscount in the Federal Reserve was growing smaller and smaller. The banks had to borrow money, to buy securities for financing these companies, and we felt that the banks were being used by the investment bankers to bring out these securities. As Mr. Brown frequently said, "They are getting the cream and we are getting the skimmed milk."

The idea of organizing Banco was to engage in the underwriting, buying and selling of securities, and also to serve as a reserve or back-log for a number of banks. The means by which that should be done was the acquisition of a large number of commercial banks. Those ideas were finally discussed at the meetings leading up to formation of Banco.

It was decided to form a corporation known as the Banco-Kentucky Company. A. J. Carroll prepared the articles of incorporation. There was no discussion in the Board in any meeting I ever attended as to just what should be put into the articles of incorporation. That was left to Mr. Carroll, except as to the amount of capital and the business and purpose of the corporation. The detail as to the form was left to him.

My recollection is, of course, this has been a long time ago, that Mr. Carroll read those articles to a meeting. I won't say it was a meeting of the Board of Directors, because there were meetings of groups of the Board, but he read the articles at one time and he was instructed to prepare and file them at Dover, Del. As far as the people that went into the trade were concerned, there were copies of it lodged in both banks, the Louisville Trust Company and the National Bank of Kentucky, for inspection by any shareholders who wanted to see them.

With reference to clause 8 in the article "That the private property of the stockholders shall not be subject to the payment of the corporate debts to any extent," there was no specific direction to put it in the articles and no discussion of it whatever. When Mr. Carroll read the articles to the incorporators there was no discussion of that clause. It was regarded as a formal clause, the usual thing in corporate charters.

Along about the first week in July the question came to me as to tax matters involved in the exchange of Trustee Certificates for Banco. After one of the meetings of the Bank of Kentucky, I think it was on Friday, Mr. Brown, as I recall it, beckoned me to the chair after the members had scattered and asked me if I had an opinion with reference to whether or not there would be any income tax levied by the Federal government upon the exchange of two shares of Banco for one Trustee Participation share, and I gave it as my opinion that unless a majority of the stock was exchanged, and unless further very careful regard was paid to the provisions of the Federal Income Tax Law with reference to that situation, there would be.

He asked me to write him a letter, which I did, as I recall, on the next day, and in which I cited the provisions of the Revenue Act of 1928 or 1927 calling his attention to the way I thought the tax might be avoided on the difference or gain between the cost of Trustees' Participation Certificates and the fair market value of whatever he got in exchange. The first letter I wrote him, July 6, 1929, is Plaintiff's Exhibit 25.

The witness then read the letter interposing that the prospectus, as he recalled it, as originally drawn, was read at the meeting of July 5th. The prospectus was the letter of July 19 as amended by what is suggested in this letter of July 6th.

At the time I wrote this opinion the prospectus which was proposed to be used in writing the Trustee Participation stockholders had been read to us. It did not contain any statement about a "reorganization." It did not say anything about the necessity of securing a majority of Trustees' Participation Certificates. I was then requested by the Trustees to secure a ruling through Miller and Chevalier, who had offices in Washington. I asked Mr. Robert N. Miller of that firm, an old Louisville boy who had been Solicitor of Internal Revenue under the Wilson administration, to get that ruling. He got it. I think the report was sent to Mr. Brown or the Trustees, enclosing the ruling of the Department. Plaintiff's exhibit 134-1 is the ruling by the Department that the Trustees would be regarded as an association or corporation.

With respect to our proposed prospectus, I then wrote another letter to Mr. Brown. My recollection is that this is the letter Judge Marx was referring to a minute ago, in which there was an enclosure. I wrote him another letter on July 9th, supplementing the letter of July 6th. The letter of July 9th (Plf's Ex. 25-5) addressed to Mr. James B. Brown was then read into the record.

With that letter I enclosed this suggested preface to the prospectus which is Plaintiff's Exhibit 25-1. "The suggested preface to the prospectus," addressed to the holders of Trustees' Participation shares, was then read into the record. The prospectus was changed after my letter. I don't know whether it was re-read to the Directors or not. It was sent out that way to the Trustee Participation Certificate holders.

At the time that letter was sent out there was no change made in the organization of the National Bank of Kentucky or the Louisville Trust Company. Neither the National Bank of Kentucky nor the Louisville Trust Company was, as a corporate entity, a party to any reorganization at that time.

At that time the National Bank of Kentucky did not enter into any agreement with the BancoKentucky Company or with the Trustees in any way affecting its corporate status, that I know of. Neither did the Louisville Trust Company. Their business continued to function after Banco was formed exactly as before.

The parties to the reorganization plan referred to in the letter sent out to the stockholders, the Trustees' Participation holders, were the Trustees on the one part and the BancoKentucky Company on the other.

60. Were they the parties that caused you to use the terms "reorganization" in that letter to come within the tax statute?

All I can say is this, that the Trustees for these two banks under that agreement referred to, employed Miller and Chevalier, my associates at Washington, to get a ruling that they were an association or corporation within the definition or meaning of that revenue act, and they got the ruling.

That related to the income tax of individual owners or holders of Trustees' Participation Certificates. The shares of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company were not to be dealt with in the organization of this separate corporation.

I became a director of BancoKentucky Company. It was my intention and the intention of the board as revealed by discussions in the board to carry out the charter powers of Banco.

Q. 71. Did anything interfere with the full completion of that in the early stages of Banco?

A. Well, I think the market conditions did in the fall of 1929.

From my experience in the banking field, so far as I know, there were no issues being floated around Louisville between the time of the depression and the early part of 1930. There had been prior to that time.

By a rather curious coincidence on the day Hoover came here to visit us and went across the bridge the stock market was sinking. The bridge had been built from revenue bonds which had been floated a year and a half before. So far as I know that was the last issue, except one that Mr. Brown got extended—he got the Louisville Railway bonds extended in 1930—but that was not the floating of a new issue, merely the extension of an old one. That issue was about six or seven million dollars. Louisville was not big enough to take the Bridge Bonds. Stranahan, Harris and Otis of Toledo took it. That particular issue was referred to by Mr. Brown in the meetings when Banco was being discussed as an example of how the banks were getting the skimmed milk and the investment bankers the cream. Here was an issue taken right out of the lap of Louisville with no one here to handle it.

There was no discussion between the organizers of BancoKentucky Company in my presence at any time as to the desirability of forming that Company in order that Trustees' Participation Certificates might be transferred to it and thus avoid or evade any liability they might have as stockholders of the Louisville Trust Company or the National Bank of Kentucky. I never heard anyone mention it, first or last, in the whole organization. I never had any questions at the time Banco was formed or through October, 1930, as to the solvency of the Louisville Trust Company or the National Bank of Kentucky. The question of relieving the Trustees' Participation Certificate holders from double liability never came up in any meeting or any discussion that I heard.

I was employed by Mr. Brown, through Charley Jones, to do the job of denationalizing the National Bank of Kentucky; I drew the papers and prepared all the details which should have been gone through with for the consummation of that plan.

The reason for denationalizing goes back to the original program of Mr. Brown, if I may be permitted to state, your Honor, and that was, his ultimate plan was, to acquire a group of banks. His idea, if I may state it, was not chain banking or branch banking, but group banking, which is an entirely different thing. Group banking is owning, managing and controlling any bank under its own directors and officers—not a chain. His idea was to buy a group of banks in the Ohio and Mississippi Valleys, and his ultimate objective, as he explained to me many times, was to carry the reserves of this group in a central city like Chicago, and not through the Federal Reserve.

I never heard any discussion of the bad condition of the National Bank of Kentucky as the possible reason for denationalizing it. There was no discussion of the fact that the Louisville Trust Company might be in trouble as a cause for denationalizing the National Bank of Kentucky. There was no discussion at any time which I participated in or heard that the condition of either the Trust Company of the Bank made the formation of BancoKentucky Company desirable or necessary. I am going to make this statement in connection with that, that on the contrary, Mr. Brown's idea was that a large organization like Banco would be able to aid all the banks that were acquired in this group banking program. That was one of the purposes of it. In other words, it was a mutual proposition.

Economizing was not the prime purpose of denationalizing the Bank of Kentucky, as I understood it. At one time we had discussion about housing the banks in the same building, probably eliminating some of the overhead.

It was desirable to get out of the Federal Reserve system because there were so few discountable or rediscountable items in the banks, as I explained a minute ago. The National Bank of Kentucky had to carry reserve in the Federal Reserve, and Mr. Brown's idea was that that was wasted money, that he could carry our reserve in Chicago. That was the cap, then, in our own institution. In other words, the loans in the bank, mostly, were collateral loans that could not be rediscounted, and the utility of the Federal Reserve to his bank was questioned by him.

Reference has been made to a letter written by Mr. Stewart of the Federal Reserve to Mr. Jones with a list of what was termed substandard assets attached. I never saw that. I saw the copy of the letter sent to Mr. Jones but I did not see the copy of the list of substandard assets. Plaintiff's Exhibit 54 is a copy of a letter. There was not a list of so-called substandard assets with the copy I received. After I got a copy of that letter I talked to Mr. Jones, the Cashier of the Bank of Kentucky, about it. He said there was nothing but the usual criticism that bank examiners make of a bank. I never saw the Exhibit. I never took that up at any time with any member of the board. I wasn't a director of the Bank of Kentucky. I took it up with Mr. Jones, the cashier. I did not take it up with the board of directors of the Louisville Trust Company. I didn't pay any attention to it after what he told me.

During the formation of BancoKentucky Company and prior to the actual transfer of Participating Trustees' Certificates I did not know that the Bank or Trust Company were in any financial trouble. I never had any discussion that there might be any double liability. None that I ever heard of. I never heard any discussion that the formation of Banco was got up to avoid double liability. After Banco was formed I purchased stock in it. I have forgotten when. I think I bought 500 shares, but I am not sure.

Robert F. Vaughan,

cross-examined by Mr. Marx, testified as follows:

I was originally on the Board of Directors of the Louisville National Bank. As a director and an attorney I was familiar with the National Banking Laws of the United States in a general way and had had experience in those laws. I knew generally what the provisions of the United States Code with reference to national banks were.

The capital of the Louisville National Bank & Trust Company was $750,000, represented by 7,500 shares of the par value of $100 each. When that bank was a separate institution, it built a new bank building at 421 West Market Street, which was completed prior to the merger or consolidation with the Louisville Trust Company. I don't remember when the Louisville National Bank moved into the new building. It probably was May 24, 1929. My recollection is that the Louisville National Bank occupied the building before the consolidation or at least before the Louisville Trust Company moved over from the old building.

We had built the building and paid for it before the consolidation. I can't recall the approximate cost of that building but $857,000 more or less sounds about right. It was sold to the Lincoln afterwards for about half, and my recollection is that the Lincoln bought it for about $400,000. I would not regard the Louisville National Bank & Trust Company's investment in that bank building as frozen. It was not a liquid asset but it was probably necessary to the conduct of business.

They had more than the bank's capital invested in the building. They did not have more than the capital and surplus and undivided profits, as I recall it. At the time of the merger Mr. Bean had gone as far as he could go with that bank in the way of getting new business.

As a result of that merger the Louisville Trust Company owned the building at Fifth and Market, the old Louisville Trust Building, and they owned 420 West Market. The National Bank of Kentucky was located in rented quarters at Fifth and Main Streets. The Louisville Trust Company did not need more than one building. When the merger took place and the Louisville Trust Company moved to 421 West Market, that left the Louisville Trust Building at the corner of Fifth and Market, the bank's offices, vacant.

I don't know what the Trust Company had invested in the Fifth and Market Building. I say this, at the time of that consolidation it was contemplated that the Bank of Kentucky would occupy one or the other. It occupied some of the safety deposit boxes at 421 West Market before they closed.

I don't recall how long the Louisville Trust Company banking quarters stood vacant. The building was remodeled with the idea that the Louisville Trust Company would move back from 421 to Fifth and Market, which it subsequently did.

I don't know the time when Caldwell's trouble became rumored about. I remember testifying in a law suit between Mr. Anderson and the Trust Company having to do with 421 West Market Street. A newspaper article in the Louisville papers with reference to some troubles with Caldwell & Company about the middle of October, 1930, was the first news that I had of any trouble with Caldwell. I can't recall when that news story appeared but I know that it was in the fall of 1930. I don't recall when the Louisville Trust Company moved back to the Louisville Trust Building. When they moved back that left 421 West Market Street, the banking offices, vacant. Substantially all there was at 421 West Market Street was the banking offices and the fourth floor which was rented to the Board of Trades. It was substantially a one purpose building.

The time the Louisville Trust Company moved to 421 was just about the time the Caldwell & Company trouble became public. I don't know the date but I think it was approximately about that time.

I remember going to Nashville in connection with Caldwell's trouble on election night November, 1930. I found those troubles were quite real. I was in touch with Mr. Brown on the telephone all the time that I was down there. Among other things I suggested to him that it had a bad effect on the public to have this vacant bank building here. That it would excite public comment. I told him we ought to announce that we were going to move into that building in the paper—he owned the Herald-Post. He did announce it but he never moved anything but some valuables of customers into that building.

151—So to speak, that was really the last, desperate gesture to stop the impending catastrophe?

A.—It was desperate at that time unquestionably.

The Louisville National Bank & Trust Company was unified with a wholly owned subsidiary or affiliate. That was the Louisville National Company, affiliated with the Bank through a trust agreement. The Bank declared a dividend and the stockholders agreed to apply that to creating the capital of the Louisville National Company, which was unified with the Bank, and the dividend upon the bank stock carried with it the return upon whatever earnings the Louisville National Company made.

The Louisville National Company was a corporation formed and operated on the same theory as the National City Company. That was the precedent, I think, for that type of affiliate. It was organized to sell collateral trust bonds and buy securities. It was organized by the Louisville National Bank & Trust Company and owned by the stockholders of the Louisville National Bank & Trust Comany, through that trust. In other words, the stock certificates stated that the stock ownership in the Louisville National Bank & Trust Company carried with it ownership in the Louisville National Company. That made the shares of the stock indivisible with those of the bank itself.

When the merger occurred between the Louisville National and the Louisville Trust Company, I was a stockholder of Louisville National owning, I think, 25 shares. I think the first stock I bought cost around $175.00 a share, and I think the second lot cost more than that. I don't recall accurately. I know at the time we consolidated the Louisville National Bank stock was selling around $175.00 to $200.00. I think my stock cost me, on the average, $150.00 to $175.00.

In exchange for my Louisville National Bank and Trust Company stock I received 10 shares of Louisville Trust Company stock, that I had to have to qualify as a director, and the difference in Trustees' Participation Certificates, as I recall.

I think I received 25 shares of Trustees' Certificates having the par value of $100.00, and that I then deposited ten Trustees' Certificates with the trustees and they issued 10 shares of Louisville Trust Company stock to qualify me as a director, and then I deposited that stock with the Trustees. Unquestionably, Trustees' Participation Certificates were issued to stockholders of the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company because there was no Louisville Trust Company stock out. It was all in Trustees' Participation Certificates, but whether I did that or not, I don't know; they may have just cut it short and issued the Trust Company stock to me directly. I never had physical possession of the director's qualifying shares. It was all held by the Trustees. That is the reason I didn't think I ever got it; they kept it over there under the trust receipts. Except as to men who were directors in the Louisville National, its stockholders received only Trustees' Certificates.

At that time the Trustees' Certificates were $100.00, I think, but they were very quickly changed to $10.00 par, around that time the change was made.

A man who owned $100.00 of stock of the Louisville National received $100.00 of Trustees' Certificates which were exchanged, ten for one, into $10.00 Trustees' Certificates. And that was subsequently changed to twice as many shares of Banco, at $25.00 a share. When I exchanged my stock for Banco I got $500.00 in Banco stock. That is approximately correct, I suppose.

In the letters to which Mr. Crawford directed my attention, in which I spoke of taxable gain, the taxable gain would be the difference between $175.00 and $500.00, or $325.00 per share. If it was an outright sale I would have had to pay income tax. The statute provided that in exchanges of property for other property, a gain would be realized represented by the difference between the cost of the original property and the price of the property exchanged. If a man was a purchaser at or about par of the National Bank of Kentucky and there subsequently was a 60% stock dividend which he got, he would be the owner of $160.00 par. When he exchanged his stock he would get $160.00 par of Trustees' Certificates. That was split ten for one and would give him 16 Trust Certificates at $10.00 each. If he traded them in for Banco at two for one, he would get 32 shares of BancoKentucky at $25.00 a share, equal to $800.00. The taxable gain on that transaction, assuming the acquisition of National Bank stock at a cost of par or $100.00, would be $700.00. If it was an outright sale or exchange of property, he would have to pay tax on $700.00 for each share that he transferred to the BancoKentucky Company.

189—And it was your opinion that it was not an outright exchange or sale, wasn't it?

A.—Well, it was my opinion that if the Trustees complied with the section of the Revenue Act that they acquire a majority of the Trustees' Participation Shares, pursuant to—the technical language of the Act—the plan of reorganization, that there would be no taxable gain until the stock was sold; I mean, there wouldn't be any on the exchange.

190—Because it was a reorganization and not a sale or outright sale?

A.—A reorganization within the meaning of the act.

It was my opinion that they ought to comply with the provisions of the Act. No taxable gain was realized by those who were original Trustees' shareholders and exchanged their stock for BancoKentucky Company stock. I think I recall in that connection that the Revenue Agent in charge ruled that way in regard to one of your fellow townsmen up in Cincinnati, Mr. Gustave Mosler. He was President of the Brighton Bank and Trust Company, one of the banks acquired by the BancoKentucky Company in September 1929.

In my letter of July 9, 1929 I said that the transaction, if carried out in the manner recommended by me, would be a mere receipt of the same property in another form and not a closed transaction, wherein they part with one species of property in exchange for an entirely different species of property, and it was done that way. What I was stating there was the philosophy of that law, in which the exchange is characterized, from the tax standpoint on the theory—while it is literally not true, if you acquire the majority of the stock, that is the same property, it is the theory of the statute that it is the same property.

197—In other words, the theory of the law is that the stockholders of these corporations had reorganized in that they had taken shares of stock in a holding corporation of which they owned a majority, in exchange for the certificates that they formerly held in the trust estate, of which the holding company owned a majority?

A.—That was the fact of the transaction.

As far as the Trustees themselves were concerned, there was no change in their setup that I know of. They had to continue to function under the Agreement of April 22, 1927 just as they had before in order to make this statutory reorganization effective. We had them declared to be a corporation or association within the meaning of the act. The Trustees continued to own the stock of the Bank, and to vote the stock of the Bank just as they had before. The only difference was that the stockholder in the trusteeship now owned stock in the BancoKentucky Company instead of the stock in the trusteeship. I don't agree that it was a holding company.

After the reorganization BancoKentucky Company held the same paper that the Trustees' Certificate holder had held before the reorganization. They acquired the majority of those shares, an overwhelming majority of them accepted the plan. No money changed hands in that at all. It was just an exchange of one kind of paper for another kind of paper.

The Board of Directors, of course, of the BancoKentucky Company, was in control of it. Under the Trust Agreement, as I recall it, the Trustees were under the control of the two institutions, subject to certain rights of an Advisory Committee and a certain number of receiptholders—I don't recall the terms of the trust.

Under the terms of the letter that went out, the circular, we stated that the officers and directors would be the same, as I recall it. The plan called for a majority of the BancoKentucky stock to be acquired by the Trustees' Certificate holders. A majority of the Banco stock gave legal control, and vice versa. I checked that double that way because I didn't know what they were going to do about these Trustees as an association. Actually, by reason of this double check, the same identical people were in control of both the bank stock and the new corporation before Banco and after Banco. There was an identity of the people who got the dividends from the bank stock before and after, to the extent that they exchanged. Some of the people got dividends besides those who exchanged.

I don't know it to be a fact that the dollars that a person got on Banco stock received in exchange for Trustees' Certificates was the same number of dollars received on the Trustees' Certificates before the exchange.

The dividend was $16.00 a year on $100.00 par value old Trustees' Participation Certificates before the exchange. I do not recall that the rate of the Banco dividend was $0.80 a share.

I had been having meetings with Mr. Brown, and possibly Mr. Jones and others, with reference to the formation of the BancoKentucky Company prior to July 6, 1929.

I stated in my letter of July 6: "In view of the fact that every shareholder of the National Bank of Commerce is still a shareholder of the two institutions, it will be at once seen that the taxable gain would be very large, were it not possible to treat the BancoKentucky Company as a reorganization under the Revenue Act of 1928." National Bank of Kentucky was the old bank. The National Bank of Commerce was merged into it in 1919, I think. A shareholder of the National Bank of Commerce, if he had retained his holdings, was still a shareholder in the two institutions. This National Bank of Commerce was a very old and profitable bank. Many stockholders acquired their stock before 1913, in which case there would be no tax.

I remember very well writing the letter hurriedly and sending it out to Mr. Brown's house. That was Saturday.

There was a meeting on Friday, July 5. The bank always met on Friday.

I was employed as an attorney for the National Bank of Kentucky for the purpose of denationalization in the fall of 1929. During July I sat in at the Board meetings of the National Bank of Kentucky. I usually did, but not always. I did that meeting of July 5 and remained that afternoon, and that is when I had the conversation with Mr. Brown.

It was my recollection that at this meeting on July 5 that the prospectus was read by Mr. Brown. I suppose it was given very careful consideration. I don't recall just how much consideration it was given at that meeting. I know it had been discussed, tentative prospectuses or prospecti, before that. I think Mr. A. J. Carroll had been employed by the National Bank of Kentucky to prepare the articles of incorporation and to frame the stock certificates and subscription. I know he had been employed to file the articles.

This thing was not done hurriedly or without consideration. It was done deliberately and various ideas were advanced, and some ideas were discarded, and the final plan that was agreed on as a result of those deliberations, conferences and consultations, had been given thought and consideration. Undoubtedly the prospectus was corrected many times.

I have no independent recollection of the paper headed "Important Information. Don't Say it—Write it." Addressed: "To Bob: Paragraphs marked might have a suggestion for you in formulating the prospectus. R. Bean." Dick Bean usually called me Bob. That is Mr. Bean's signature, and it looks to me like Mr. Bean's handwriting. Undoubtedly there was quite a bit of conference as to the exact language to be used.

Mr. Carroll's proposed articles of incorporation were read at a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Bank.

We had several meetings in the Bank of members of the Directors, not sitting as a formally constituted Board. Whether it was read at a regular meeting, I don't recall, but I know he read them.

I signed the consent of the Advisory Committee dated July 12, 1929, Exhibit 8, to the Trustees, requesting them to cause Banco to be organized and approving the letter to holders of Trustees' Participation Certificates. It appears that all the other officers and directors of the Bank signed it. The letter, subsequently dated July 19, 1929, is attached, including the subscription to shares of the BancoKentucky Company. I assume that the language in the subscription

> "I hereby deposit with you Trustees' Certificates for an aggregate of Participation Shares of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company, in exchange for which you are to cause to be issued to me two shares of stock of the BancoKentucky Company for each Participation Share herewith deposited, fully paid and non-assessable, under the terms of the Reorganization Plan as outlined in your letter of July , 1929, if, when and as said plan shall become effective as therein provided."

was in there at the time. I have no independent recollection of these papers, it has been so long a time. It sounds to me like it was in there.

Article 8 of the attached articles of incorporation "The private property of the stockholders shall not be subject to the payment of corporate debts to any extent whatever" was in there.

The Directors certainly knew that the plan contained the language that was actually used, and every person who exchanged had an opportunity to know it because the plan recites, as I recall, that a copy of the charter was on file at the two banks, the proposed charter, for anyone to inspect that wanted to see it.

The custodians of those documents would have to answer the date on which the proposed charter was available at the two banks for the inspection of shareholders, the T. P. C. holders, or interim receipt holders. It was customary, wherever you have an interim receipt or exchange that way, to provide a copy of the new charter, and details, so that if he wants to see it he can do so, and we provided that here. I assume it was carried out.

Shortly after this meeting of July 12, Mr. Carroll took the articles of incorporation approved that day to Delaware and filed them. The prospectus in its final form met with my approval, as counsel, and with the approval of my tax associates, Miller and Chevalier.

I have not been able to find Miller and Chevalier's letter of July 15 to the Treasury Department. It is the letter referred to in Exhibit 134-1, dated July 30, 1929.

The Department ruled that the Trustees were a corporation or an association within the definition section of the Acts of 1918; that the Trustees were an association or a corporation in that definition. I don't think anybody ever reported it as a taxable gain.

I was employed to effect the liquidation of the National Bank of Kentucky as a national bank and to reincorporate it as a state bank. Of course, the Bank did not liquidate in the ordinary sense. It was supposed to cross from its national charter to its state charter and avoid any interruption in the continuity of the business.

I was employed around the early part of September. The American Legion meeting, I know, was here, the convention, and I think the closing of Banco subscriptions was along towards the latter part of that month. That is my best recollection. I prepared the forms provided by the Comptroller's office for what they wanted, denationalizing the National Bank and converting it into a state bank. Several papers had to be prepared, as I recall it. They included first a resolution placing the Bank in voluntary liquidation and naming the Board of Directors as the liquidating agents. Secondly, a certificate of that resolution to the Comptroller of the Currency in order to obtain his approval, which was obtained.

I also prepared Articles of Incorporation for a state bank to be called the Bank of Kentucky. The purpose in selecting that name was not to prevent the public's observing any distinction between the National Bank of Kentucky, BancoKentucky Company, and Bank of Kentucky. You see, the National Bank of Kentucky was originally a state bank, the Bank of Kentucky, before it was ever a national bank, and it was only logical to go back to its old name. Popularly it was always called the Bank of Kentucky, I suppose.

We paid $4,000 for the charter fees. I drew a contract whereby this new bank would buy the assets and liabilities of the National Bank of Kentucky. I filed an application with the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis for the admission of the new state bank into the Federal Reserve system. This was done before the stock market crash. The stock market crash had nothing to do with this attempt to get out of the National System. BancoKentucky Company was formed before the stock market crash. The plan was declared operative and effective before the stock market crash. All the stock that was sold at the time they deemed that enough cash was realized to go ahead was before the stock market crash.

It was necessary that a bank as large as the National Bank of Kentucky have rediscount privileges with the Federal Reserve if it was to function satisfactorily. It certainly was at that time because you could not interrupt the continuity of that relationship all at once.

The letter Mr. Crawford asked me about, the letter of October 22, 1929, from the Federal Reserve Bank, Exhibit 54, referred to conditions which certainly were not created by the subsequent stock market collapse. I presume the condition referred to as existing in the National Bank of Kentucky must have come into existence during the period when the country was thought to be abnormally prosperous.

The letter is addressed to Charles F. Jones, Cashier of the National Bank of Kentucky, and a copy of that letter was sent to me. I received a letter from Mr. Stewart, the Assistant Federal Reserve Agent, under date of October 24th.

Said letter was offered in evidence as Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 157.

Exhibit 157 enclosed this letter of October 22nd in which it says "With reference to your request for an examination of the new state bank"—they point out that they cannot admit this new state bank to the Federal Reserve System without an examination. Then they say:

> "We prefer to defer the examination until the new state bank has received its charter and has taken over such assets and liabilities of the National Bank as it is going to have. This will give the management ample opportunity to correct the criticisms contained in the last examination of the National Bank as of May 25, 1929. In this connection, I attach a list of substandard assets which we feel should not be taken over by the new state bank."

That called my attention to the fact that there was a criticism of this National Bank in the Bank Examiner's Report of May 25, 1929. It is my testimony that the list of substandard assets was not enclosed with the copy sent me but I knew, from this letter, that Mr. Jones had such a copy. I did know that the National Bank of Kentucky, which was the largest unit of the Banco chain, was at the very outset under criticism of the National Bank Examiners. But I didn't take it very seriously, for the reasons I gave, I think—may I make an explanation of that statement, Judge?

It is just this, that Mr. Martin, the Federal Reserve Agent at St. Louis, stayed over in here for a week or ten days and criticized the collateral loans in banks, trying to get the bankers to be good boys and not take any more collateral loans. He said Louisville was the worst city in the Eighth Federal Reserve District about that. I took it—all banks here were criticized, and there was no flag or warning to me that the National Bank was in trouble.

The last paragraph of the letter, in which Mr. Stewart stated to me:

> "Of course, if the application is approved, it would be done subject to the conditions contained in Regulation H issued by the Federal Reserve Board, series of 1928, and also upon condition that certain objectionable assets are not taken over by the new institution and other criticisms corrected. Shortly after the new bank opens for business, our Examiners would make an examination to see that the conditions have been complied with."—— was a statement to me that there were objectionable assets and other criticisms. But I did not at the time regard it as a warning of anything serious.

Then he put a postscript on it calling attention to Section 9 of the Federal Reserve Act which specifies

> "The Federal Reserve Board shall consider the financial condition of the applying bank, the general character of its management, whether or not the corporate powers exercised are consistent with the provisions of this Act."

As I recall it, there was a provision which required every state bank admitted to be examined.

I never saw this list of substandard assets totaling $4,000,000. I never asked for it. I didn't think I was entitled to see it. I was not a member of the Board of Directors. As far as being entitled to see it I was a director of the company which owned the stock of the Bank. But that transaction had just about become consummated at the time.

I talked to Governor Martin or Mr. Stewart of the Federal Reserve Board by long distance telephone. I was told that the Federal Reserve System would not admit the new bank to membership without an examination. He did not tell me that there was some trouble there.

I don't recall testifying the first time in the Building case before Judge Cochran that > "Governor Martin didn't come to Louisville to talk to me about this matter, but I talked to him once on the telephone prior to this time the resolution in March, 1930, rescinded the liquidation. I don't know definitely that the Federal Reserve System would not admit the new bank to membership, but I did know there was some trouble there."

If I made that statement I was certainly stating what was true at the time, but I had no conversation with him in connection with letter you just read there.

The failure of the new bank to get into the Federal Reserve was the thing that made me postpone the original effective date of the cross-over to October 15th.

If the Court please, this is what happened: After I set the cross-over, the effective date of the cross-over, from the National Bank of Kentucky to the Bank of Kentucky originally in a resolution, I think, for October 15th, I communicated with the Federal Reserve Bank so there would not be any interruption of their rediscount privileges. It was then that I was told they would require an examination. I then asked when they could get their examiners over and I was told not before October 15th, so I had a resolution drawn rescinding the period, the time. That happened in this period we are talking about now.

We got the charter for the reason that we had to have the state bank already set up and ready to go when the resolution became effective.

Plaintiff's Exhibit 158 are all authentic copies of letters I wrote to the persons I addressed or copies of letters I received.

Said letters were received in evidence and marked for identification "Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 158" to Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 158-17," inclusive.

I submitted a bill June 5, 1930, to Mr. Brown reciting my services in connection with the denationalization of the National Bank of Kentucky and the organization of the State Bank of Kentucky. This is the original bill. On this bill I say I was employed about October 1st to do this work.

The bill says, "About October 1st I was employed to do the above work, through Mr. Charles F. Jones who called me over the telephone. I went to his office at the bank and spent the remainder of the day in outlining the plan of procedure, copy of which was furnished to him. It was decided to rush the procedure as rapidly as possible, fixing October 15, 1929, as the effective date of liquidation." I don't recall why, on October 1st, 1929, they wanted to rush the procedure except that was about the time Banco-Kentucky was being organized and I suppose it was to time it with that. They never gave me any special reason for it.

I recall when I called up Mr. Stewart, the Assistant Federal Reserve Agent, and tried to get him to waive the requirement for admission.

I don't think I went to see Mr. Moore, of the local branch of the Federal Reserve Bank, to try to get him to waive the requirement for admission. I don't think he could have.

My idea was, in the event that examination had to be made, we might work out some temporary facilities for the Bank in handling their rediscountable items through that branch. Of course, Mr. Moore would not have authority to waive it. At any rate they would not waive it.

Said bill was filed, marked for identification "Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 159."

I don't recall that the directors of the two institutions considered that a merger of the Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company, under State Law, as early as the fall of 1929.

My recollection is refreshed by my letter of January 25th, 1930, Exhibit 158-60, which says "Early last fall the directors of the two institutions, together with Mr. James B. Brown, President of the National Bank of Kentucky, and Mr. Richard Bean, President of the Louisville Trust Company, were favorably disposed toward denationalization of the National Bank of Kentucky and the organization of a state bank under the laws of Kentucky as its successor; and it was at one time considered (though never decided) that a merger of the Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company, under state law, might be of considerable advantage in the prosecution of the business conducted by the two banks." I thought you were speaking of the time when we did get down to the actual consideration of it seriously, which was much later than this.

Defendants' objection having been sustained, the plaintiff offered the following avowal: "Now, in the final analysis, you could not go through with the scheme to denationalize because the Federal Reserve Bank would not agree to take this new state bank in until it had eliminated the bad assets and corrected the criticism.

I think I was a member of the committee to value Caldwell and Company. I do not remember who the other members of that committee were.

I recall testifying before the Grand Jury of Jefferson County between February 23 and February 27, 1931. I said there that there was a resolution passed on May 29, 1930, appointing a committee consisting of Mr. Jones, Mr. Boomer and myself to assist Mr. Brown, the President, in determining the value of the assets of Caldwell & Company. I did not recall the personnel until you reminded me. That committee never met. We never valued the assets of Caldwell & Company and never made any attempt to. The only information we had with respect to the value was what Mr. Caldwell stated to Mr. Brown. And what Mr. Brown reported to us.

I didn't know the Kentucky Wagon Works was a sore spot. It was represented to us by Mr. Brown at the time we went in with the Louisville Trust Company that the Wagon Works loan did not exceed $500,000. That is one reason why, if I had got a copy of those assets from the Federal Reserve man, I would have jumped right out of the window.

I knew that in this deal Caldwell & Company was to take over the obligations of the Kentucky Wagon Works so as to get it out of the Bank.

"335—* * * You did know that Caldwell & Company, in this deal, were to take over the obligation of the Kentucky Wagon Works so as to get it out of the Bank, didn't you?

A.—Yes, that is true.

336—And 100,000 shares of BancoKentucky stock were allocated as a sort of consideration for Caldwell & Company lifting that load out of the National Bank of Kentucky?

A.—I think that was the figure."

I don't think Caldwell & Company actually did take the Kentucky Wagon Works over. I have forgotten, to tell the truth. I didn't regard the transfer of the Kentucky Wagon Works to Caldwell as unloading anything on him. It was at one time considered to be a very valuable property. I think Caldwell was in better shape to administer that and put it on its feet than a national bank, perhaps. I know that was the way the deal struck me, that it was easier for Caldwell to do that.

Before the Grand Jury I was asked if I didn't consider at the time that it would help the National Bank of Kentucky and I answered: "Of course, I was not a director in that company. Of course, everybody knew the Wagon Works was a sore spot in all of the banks. We were all glad to see the opportunity to clear up the liability." When I said "sore spot" in all the banks I was referring back to the old condition, when the old Wagon Works owed a great number of Louisville banks. It was a money maker years ago, and Mr. Brown, as I recall it, bought or compromised the notes of the other banks and attempted to reorganize the business and make it a success.

Defendant's objection having been sustained the following was offered by plaintiff as an avowal. I was then asked:

> "That was the added inducement for the Board of Banco agreeing to the Caldwell deal?"

And I said:

> "I don't think that was true so much as to the men on the Louisville Trust Company, but I do think it did as to the directors of the National Bank of Kentucky."

At the time we allocated 100,000 shares to Caldwell & Company as a consideration for taking the Kentucky Wagon Works off our hands Banco stock was selling on the market at $17.

344—That would be $1,700,000 given to Caldwell to take over an obligation that you thought was only $500,000?

A.—At the time we made this deal with Mr. Bean and Mr. Brown, which was around January 1, 1926, I think—I think that was the date—it was represented to him that the line at that time was $500,000, according to what Mr. Bean and Mr. Dosker told me.

345—It sounds like a very excessive consideration to give Caldwell $1,700,000 in stock to take over $500,000.

The Court: Don't argue the case, just ask him questions. Objection sustained.

As a matter of fact I knew when we made this arrangement for a trade with Caldwell in the summer of 1930 I knew that Caldwell owned banks. I think the failure of the Bank of Tennessee which was owned by Caldwell & Company, and the publication, under the laws of Tennessee, of its inventory of assets and liabilities, caused some of the country banks to withdraw their deposits from the National Bank of Kentucky. Along the line some other persons, when they found out that the Bank of Tennessee owned Banco stock, that, in turn, caused disquiet among some of the large depositors. That, in my judgment, would be what ultimately caused the collapse of the Banco chain.

I don't know whether Caldwell owned banks in Arkansas directly or not. I testified before the Grand Jury: "Two weeks before our banks failed here there had been failures in Tennessee and Arkansas of banks, notably the Holston, the Hermitage, American Exchange and about forty banks that were chained up with that bank in Arkansas." There was a chain of banks in Arkansas, but whether they were owned by Rogers Caldwell, I couldn't tell you. They may have been affiliated with some of his businesses.

The only bank Mr. Caldwell was connected with in Nashville was the Fourth and First. His father, Jim Caldwell, was President. The failure in Nashville was the Hermitage National. I don't think it was owned by Caldwell. If Caldwell owned the Hermitage National it is news to me; I never knew it.

I was a member of the committee of lawyers who went up to Jim Brown's house on the night of May 29th to go over the contract with Caldwell and approved that contract. I think the other lawyers were Mr. Carroll and Mr. Kennedy Helm. I think all the lawyers of the Board were invited to go. That is my recollection. Mr. Brown stated at the meeting that Mr. Dodd was out of town, and Judge Rutledge was sick, as I recall it. It was the understanding that we were going to deliver the Banco stock to Caldwell, part of it, before an audit of Caldwell & Company was made. It was the intention to deliver part of the Banco stock before the assets of Caldwell had been determined, under the contract part of it was to be held in escrow. I don't recall that that was a last minute idea.

It was the original idea that all of it would be held. Mr. Dodd went out of town and was not at the meeting, and thought the Board had run out on him. There undoubtedly was a change in the intention. I knew at that time that Caldwell would not submit to an audit at that time. I don't think I ever saw a financial statement of Caldwell & Company. He never made one. I never saw a balance sheet.

It happened this way. This supplemental agreement about Caldwell delivering 100,000 shares of BancoKentucky Company stock to the National Bank of Kentucky for its interest in the Wagon Works, was not discussed at Mr. Brown's house that night. It was discussed at the Board. Caldwell wanted to get back to Nashville that night. There were three lawyers there and we had no stenographic facilities and we almost overlooked this Wagon Works thing. As I remember it, this was drawn up in long hand on a sheet of yellow paper and signed before he left. It was not discussed at all. I made the actual delivery of the stock in Nashville on the Monday following the trade. I delivered 900,000 shares and took their receipt. They endorsed in blank and redelivered to me 200,000 shares for deposit in escrow in the Louisville Trust Company and I gave them my receipt. I think that was Monday after the contract was signed—June 2nd. The additional 200,000 shares of that stock were placed in escrow about September 1st.

I can tell you why it was. Rogers Caldwell said he could not give us that audit during the summer or that inspection that this committee I was a member of was supposed to make. Mr. Brown exacted of him the return of these 200,000 shares until that audit could be made. The first 200,000 shares were turned over at Rogers Caldwell's house on June 2nd, and the second 200,000 shares on September 1st.

All I know about the addition 200,000 shares being placed in escrow is that one night Mr. Brown called my residence about 11:30 and said he wanted to know if I would draw a little contract for him. And he came by the house and had a letter from Caldwell in which he said he was surrendering 200,000 shares to be deposited in the Louisville Trust Company in escrow just as the other stock was. On the next day I drew just a form escrow agreement with the Louisville Trust Company for that 200,000 shares. The 200,000 share certificates were handed direct to the Louisville Trust Company by Caldwell the next day. The only conversation I had with Brown was in regard to the terms of the instrument. It was very late and he was hurrying home and he asked me what I thought the contract should provide.

I told him it should be in line with the terms of the original contract. The reason he offered for getting the additional 200,000 shares was he said he had not completed his final examination, and that Caldwell did not want to have a final examination and that in consideration of that he was surrendering the additional 200,000 shares.

I haven't the slightest idea at what Banco was quoted in the market. There was no effort made to protect the stock of the company, on a declining market, that I know of.

I never saw any letter from Mr. Bean to Mr. Brown discussing the fact that one of the advantages of forming the BancoKentucky Company was that there would be no assessment on the bank stock. I never saw any such letter.

The Court: Objection sustained; that is in the charter anyway; regardless of what discussion about that time may have been, it is in the charter or articles of incorporation of BancoKentucky.

Mr. Crawford, counsel for defendants, stated to the Court that in September, 1930, September 3, the Chicago Stock Exchange quoted Banco stock at 17 high and 16⅞ low. It closed at 16⅞.

At the time Mr. Caldwell surrendered another 200,000 shares the stock was then being quoted on the market at a price which would have aggregated $3,200,000.00.

The means by which the objectives of the BancoKentucky was to be obtained was by the acquisition of a large group of banks. That was to furnish the reservoir of capital, the reservoir of money that was needed to carry out this project.

I accept the correction to my statement in direct examination that the tax question about which I was employed came up after Banco's charter was filed. The tax matter was July 5 or 6 and the charter was filed July 16. My confusion on that was due to one thing, and that was that Mr. Carroll left here the first of July. I know he was at that meeting when Mr. Brown spoke to me about the tax gain, and I assumed he had filed the charter.

I subscribed for some Banco stock myself. I borrowed the money to pay for these subscriptions from the National Bank of Kentucky. I think my note on the original subscription was something like $18,000.00 as I remember it, and I posted some collateral on it. I put up the Banco stock as collateral and other securities worth about $2500.00. There wasn't any market in the other stock but they stood me $10,000.00. The other collateral sold for $2500.00 after it got in some trouble. Up to the time of the closing of the bank I think I had paid $500.00 on this $18,000.00 note.

On re-direct examination Mr. Vaughan, examined by Mr. Crawford, testified as follows:

The building at Fifth and Market Streets of the Louisville Trust Company, is an office building, very well tenanted with lawyers because it is so close to the Court House. I don't remember the details of the remodeling of the banking room and vault. There were other tenants in the building at all times. The building is seven or eight stories in height and is practically half a block away from the Court House.

With regard to tax gain, the ruling under which the reorganization was allowed avoided the tax on the transaction of the exchange of BancoKentucky at two for one, for Trustees' Participation shares, but of course, if any man sold Banco, whatever realization was made, he paid the tax. In other words, it simply postponed until the sale of Banco stock any payment of taxes. Until there is a sale there is no taxable gain. The split in the stock in no way affected the tax situation, or the amount realized by the sale when he sold Banco.

There was no agreement made between the Trustees' certificate holders and the BancoKentucky Company to keep their Banco indefinitely or for any length of time.

I got my dividends on my qualifying shares.

If I stated that the stockholders of Banco still got the same dividends or still obtained dividends from the bank I was incorrect and I misunderstood the question. They got their dividends from the BancoKentucky Company.

There was no agreement entered into that the Banco-Kentucky Company would turn over to its stockholders all of the dividends it receives from either the Bank or the Trust Company, that I ever heard of. If they did obtain the same dividends it was then merely coincidental. I can say this, that we expected dividends on the Banco stock at whatever it earned. It might be more or less than the Bank stock. Whatever it was, we expected to get. We got it from the BancoKentucky Company after a declaration by the Board of that Company. The National Bank of Kentucky, as a bank, had no say as to what the declaration of dividends by Banco should be.

I was not familiar at all with the set up of the Wagon Company in the Bank. I didn't know a thing about it. I knew nothing about how much the Bank had charged off on the account until after the Bank closed, when those facts became somewhat public.

On re-cross examination Mr. Vaughan, examined by Mr. Marx, testified:

There is no taxable gain until there is a sale or outright transfer on an ordinary exchange of property for other property, but if you follow the technique set up in that section of the statute then there is no taxable gain realized until you sell the property you receive. So long as the stock we continued to hold was BancoKentucky stock there was no taxable gain.

With reference to the question Mr. Crawford asked me, whether the National Bank of Kentucky had any control over the amount of dividends that were paid by Banco, the stockholders of the two banks, the Trustee Participation shareholders, acquired by the exchange a majority of the stock of the BancoKentucky Company. As I understand that Trust Agreement, it was an indivisible trust estate. A man didn't own any of the Bank of Kentucky or the Louisville Trust Company, he had stock in an indivisible trust estate in the two banks, and as might be augmented from time to time by accretions to it. But at the time of the exchange there were no banks in it except the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company. At the time of the exchange of Trust Shares for Banco shares the Trustees had all the stock of the Louisville Trust Company.

For all practical purposes the owners of the Trustees' Participation certificates were the owners of the bank stock. And the owners of the bank stock, these two banks, had legal control of the BancoKentucky Company through the ownership of more than a majority of the stock of BancoKentucky Company. That is the way it started out. Of course, the picture might change with sales. I don't know that the majority of control ever did change up to the time they closed.

I suppose that every dividend that was declared by the National Bank of Kentucky was declared by resolution of its board; I don't know, I wasn't a director of that bank.

Defendant's objection to the following question: "And these men that declared those resolutions sat on the board of the BancoKentucky Company?" was sustained and plaintiff made the following avowal:

> "If the witness were permitted to answer he would say that the same individuals who, prior to the organization of the BancoKentucky Company, controlled the National Bank of Kentucky and its Board of Directors, or elected its Board of Directors by virtue of their ownership of Trustees' Certificates, after the organization of the BancoKentucky Company controlled the voting of the same Trustees' Certificates by virtue of their owning more than a majority of the stock of the company which now had their Trustees' Certificates and which they created to hold them; and in addition, that the same individuals who composed the board of directors and officers of the Bank prior to the formation of the BancoKentucky Company composed the Board of Directors of the Bank after the organization of BancoKentucky Company with a few exceptions that have been noted here, and also composed the Board of Directors of the BancoKentucky Company, which, through its ownership or holding of all the stock of the Bank voted for the Boards of Directors of the Bank."

Charles A. Schuck,

called for defendants, examined by Mr. Dietzman, testified as follows:

My name is Charles A. Schuck. I have been employed by the Louisville Trust Company since 1927 in charge of the stock transfer department.

The Louisville Trust Company was transfer agent for BancoKentucky Company at all times. The transfer books of Banco came under my control and all entries were made under my supervision. At the request of Mr. Allen Dodd I went over the transfer books of the BancoKentucky Company and made up a statement or list of the stockholders as of and including November 15, 1930. In making an analysis of the stock owned by the various stockholders I made four categories. One—exchanged Trustees' Participation Certificates for Banco stock. Two—original subscribers for Banco stock. Three—other bank stock—and when I say that I mean other than Trustees' Participation Certificates exchanged for Banco. Four—otherwise acquired Banco.

The otherwise acquired Banco group would include purchases on the market.

This list which I prepared from the books of the Banco-Kentucky Company, from the original stock ledger stub books, is correct. During the preparation of this case I made another list of these stockholders which Mr. Dodd had here this morning. After I prepared that list my attention was called to a list prepared by Mr. White, known as Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 148. In comparing this first list I made, with Mr. White's, I discovered there were some discrepancies in my first list. There were not very many. They involved no larger an amount than 2,500 shares of Banco.

This last list is correct. The total number of shares shown by my list compares with the total number shown in Mr. White's list, the only difference being in the classification. The classification is different. The classification I made according to this exhibit is correct.

Said exhibit was received in evidence and marked for identification "Defendant's Exhibit No. 8."

My classification of the various classes of stockholders differs from that of Mr. White. I will give them to you by groups. The Receiver's list, prepared by Mr. White, shows as the first classification, Trustees' Certificates exchanged for Banco, 1,063,517 shares, and in percentage, 51.32 per cent. The Transfer Agent's list shows, as to same classification, 827,645 shares, or in percentage, 39.94 per cent exchanged for Banco. Now, in the next classification, original subscriptions for Banco, the Receiver's list shows 191,556 shares, or in percentage, 9.24 per cent; the Transfer Agent's list shows 329,848, or in percentage, 15.92 per cent. The third classification, exchanged for other bank stock, the Receiver's list shows 159,833 shares, or in percentage 7.71 per cent; the Transfer Agent's list shows 169,356 shares, or in percentage, 8.17 per cent. The fourth classification, shares of Banco otherwise acquired, the Receiver's list shows 168,476 shares, or in percentage, 8.13 per cent; and the Transfer Agent's list shows 326,504 shares, or in percentage, 15.75 per cent; shares held by Caldwell & Company, the Receiver's list shows 489,086 shares, or in percentage, 23.6 per cent; the Transfer Agent's list shows 419,115 shares, or in percentage, 20.22 per cent.

I have taken from Plf's Ex. 8 the total number of shares subscribed for by Directors of the Bank and Trust Company. I have here, as taken from the record, the total number of shares subscribed for by the Directors. However, that does not compare with Ex. 8. It does not because certain of the shares subscribed for by the Directors were later disposed of, between the organization and the close. As of October 15, 1929, my record shows the Directors subscribed for 47,188 shares which, multiplied by $25.00, is $1,179,750.00.

I have made an analysis as to all the Trustees' Participation Certificate holders who exchanged their certificates for Banco and the amount of original Banco stock they subscribed for. This record is taken as of October 21, 1929—That was the dividend pay date. On this date 646 individual holders, or 29 per cent of the holders, owned 143,762 Trustees' shares, or approximately 26 per cent of all outstanding Trustees' shares. These 646 individuals subscribed for 178,878 shares of BancoKentucky Company capital stock at a price of $25.00 per share, or a total of $4,471,950.00. That subscription amounted to approximately 45⅓ per cent of all shares of the BancoKentucky Company subscribed for.

Said papers were received in evidence and marked for identification "Defendant's Exhibit No. 9 and Defendant's Exhibit No. 10."

I prepared a list of depositors in the Louisville Trust Company who, as of November 15, 1930, were stockholders of BancoKentucky Company. This list was prepared from the individual deposit record of the Louisville Trust Company showing the amount of cash on deposit by each of these individuals who were also stockholders of the BancoKentucky Company. On November 15, 1930, they had on deposit a total of $858,093.71.

Said paper was received in evidence and marked for identification "Defendant's Exhibit No. 11."

On cross-examination by Mr. Marx, Mr. Schuck testified as follows:

The total number of Banco shares in my exhibit agrees with that in Mr. White's exhibit. The difference between Plf's Ex. 148 and Dft's Ex. 8 is in classification. I have looked over Mr. White's classification. It is by individual stockholders.

It states in the explanatory sheet accompanying it that the schedule shows the name of all stockholders of the BancoKentucky Company, as of November 17, 1930, the amount of the assessment, the total shares held by each stockholder and a classification of the stockholders, showing the number of shares held by each group. Now my classification is a classification of stock.

Mine is a classification of stockholders and the stock they held. You will find the same names in my list as you will find in Mr. White's and the total number of shares shown in my list will compare with the total number of shares shown in Mr. White's list.

Obviously if the total number of shares is the same there is a difference in the classification. Otherwise the result would be the same. We were working with the same identical figures.

For example, take Miss Bettie F. Alford in my list, Ex. No. 8. She got according to the record of the Transfer Agent, 50 shares of BancoKentucky stock in exchange for Trustees' Participation Certificate. That means that she, as an individual, was at the outset of BancoKentucky Company an owner of Trustees' Participation Certificate or bank stock, as to the 50 shares. She was a holder of Trustees' shares and deposited them for exchange into Banco. Then she subscribed for 25 additional shares. Then she exchanged some other bank stock for Banco. I put her in all three different classifications. At the end she wound up by having 125 shares of Banco.

Now Mr. White classified her, since his classification is by stockholders, as being in the group of original parties, and as holding at the close 125 shares of Banco. But I split her into three classifications. I put her stock she received through the exchange of Trustees' shares in one classification. I put the stock she got by her original subscription to the plan in the second classification. And I put the stock she got by exchanging other bank stock for Banco stock in still a third classification. I put the same individual into three different classifications according to how she acquired the various shares of Banco which she held.

What I have classified is the different shares of stock held by each individual. Whereas Mr. White classified the stockholders, as individuals, as to the amount of stock they held.

Under Mr. White's classification of stockholders, a man, for example, who knew all about the plan for the formation of Banco, was an incorporator, and owned at the close 1,000 shares of Banco. Whether he acquired his 1,000 shares, 500 of them at the beginning by exchange of Trust Certificate and 250 originally by subscription to the original plan, and subsequently 250 more by purchase in the open market, that man does not change as an individual.

Mr. White has classified that man as one person and put his holdings, his total holdings of Banco stock on the day Banco closed, in one category. As of the close, Mr. White has classified his total number of shares owned by original participant in the plan under one classification. I have not done that in the manner in which Mr. White has.

The Court: The witness says he has classified such a shareholder in three classifications by showing what he exchanged for Participation Certificates; he has identified him as of that kind of holder, and also he made a purchase, and also as an owner who subscribed for stock.

When I aggregate the Banco shares by classification I put in my first classification all shares of Banco stock originally received by the several holders in exchange for their Trust Certificates and still held at the close, regardless of how many shares those same people owned in other classifications at the close.

In my second classification I have shown the number of shares of stock that were held by these stockholders at the close which were obtained by original subscription by the particular stockholder. That is regardless of how many other shares that same stockholder may have held which he acquired in other ways. In my third classification I have only taken the stock acquired by exchange of other bank stock and held by the stockholders at the close of Banco to determine the percentage of stock in that classification, regardless of how much stock the stockholders may have acquired in other ways.

It is perfectly true that there is just one fundamental difference between my classification and the classification of Mr. White's. Mr. White classified the stockholders and I classified the stock.

An Interim Receipt is the Trustees' Interim Receipt which was issued to the original Trustees holder upon their deposit of their Trustees' shares of Bank and Trust Company stock and which provided that it was exchangeable for Banco stock on the basis of two shares for each of the Interim Receipts upon the organization of Banco being declared effective.

If a man brought in one of these Interim Receipts during the summer or fall of 1929 I classified him as otherwise acquiring Banco. If he had exchanged Participation Certificates for Interim Receipts and later exchanged Interim Receipts for Banco, I classified him as having exchanged Trustees' Certificates for Banco, that is, an original depositor of Trustees' Certificates.

Interim Receipts were traded in on the open market. If a man brought in an Interim Receipt for Trustees' Participation Certificate deposited by some other person, I treated him as being "Banco otherwise acquired" because his Interim Receipt was exchangeable if, as and when Banco was declared effective, only for Banco.

If $1,000 in Interim Receipts were issued for Participation Certificates and those Interim Receipts were assigned to a purchaser who exchanged them for Banco stock, and such purchaser was classified in the otherwise acquired group then that classification would be $1,000 more than Banco stock acquired by original holders of Participation Certificates.

If $1,000 in Interim Receipts were issued for deposited Trustees' Participation Certificates and such Interim Receipts were transferred to a purchaser who exchanged them for Banco stock, and such purchaser were classified in the otherwise acquired group, then that group would be $1,000 more than the classification of Banco stock acquired by original holders of Participation Certificates. But these Interim Receipts were traded in on the open market as Banco.

The Interim Receipts were treated generally speaking, as Banco stock. They were outstanding against the Trustees' Participation Certificate pending the issuance of the BancoKentucky stock certificates.

Under my classification, if a person got 500 shares of Banco by exchange of Trustees' Participation Certificates and subscribed for 200 shares, and bought at various times 300 shares, and then have these 1,000 shares all put into a permanent certificate for 1,000 shares, then sold 100 shares and later sold 125 shares and still later 25 shares and wound up with 750 shares, my classification only pertains to what he held at the close.

The Transfer Agent's record plainly shows where a stockholder wound up with one certificate after having made several sales, whether he sold the stock he received by exchange of Trustees' Participation Certificates or whether he sold the stock he got by subscription or which he had otherwise acquired. That could be shown by checking the record straight back through the stub book as to the certificate numbers themselves. Each certificate came into being by reason of other certificates.

The example put to me,—a person holding one 1,000 share certificate then making several sales and finally winding up with a certificate for 750 shares—never occurred. But in such a case it would be impossible to tell whether the stockholder sold the shares he acquired through exchanging Trustees' Participation Certificates or by subscription or by purchase on the open market. It will be impossible to allocate the shares.

In every instance I could tell whether the stockholder were selling subscription stock, purchased stock or exchange stock. In no instance did any certificate come in as a whole certificate of various classes and then have to be broken down. In no instance did I have to make any assumption that certain stock was sold from a certain classification.

If Jones was a Participation holder and exchanged his certificate for Banco and gave that to his wife I would classify her as otherwise acquired. If the wife died and the husband got it back or she transferred it back to him I would classify him as otherwise acquired even though he was an original participant and got that stock by exchange. If Jones pledged his stock as collateral and it went into the name of a nominee and so remained at the close I would classify it as otherwise acquired.

If Banco stock was issued in the name of a nominee and subsequently retransferred to the original stockholder and new certificates were issued the latter would be classified as otherwise acquired unless I could positively identify the stock by going back and determining from the record that he was putting it in the name of a nominee. If I could positively identify the chain of certificates and numbers and dates and what not that necessarily goes to make up the record, then I would classify him as being a Trustees' Participation Certificate holder.

Under Mr. White's method, when that stock was transferred back to the original subscriber, he would be classified as an original participant in the plan.

In my analysis I referred to the shares of stock of Banco-Kentucky held by Caldwell & Company, whereas Mr. White referred to Caldwell & Company and its nominees. I haven't a record of the Caldwell & Company nominees.

T. K. Helm,

called by defendants, examined by Mr. Van Winkle, testified as follows:

My name is T. Kennedy Helm. I am an attorney at law and have been engaged in the practice since May, 1897. I have drawn very many corporate charters, certainly in excess of one hundred, and I have served as a director in about twenty or more corporations.

With regard to the Trust Agreement of April 22, 1927, executed between the Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company and Allen and Dodd and others as Trustees, I was employed by the Louisville Trust and Judge Alex P. Humphrey was employed by the National Bank of Kentucky to draft that document. We did so after considering various similar documents that had been drawn in New York with the Irving Trust Company and in Cincinnati with the Fifth-Third Bank, and in Louisville with the First National Bank and Kentucky Title Trust Company, and the Citizens Union and Fidelity and Columbia Trust Company. We made a draft and submitted it to committees of the two Boards and, with maybe a few changes, it was adopted and printed and is now the document in the record.

With reference to interlocking directors in banking and financial institutions, under the Federal Reserve Act, the directors of banks and trust companies could only serve more than one bank with the permission of the Federal Reserve Board upon the recommendation of the Governor of the Federal Reserve District. The necessary forms were obtained and the information furnished as to each of the Directors of the Louisville Trust Company and the National Bank of Kentucky, and forwarded first to Mr. Martin, and then to the Comptroller's office and the Directors of each institution were authorized to serve in the other institution. At that time the chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank in this district was Mr. William McChesney Martin.

As attorney for one of these banking institutions I made application to the Federal Reserve on forms which required information about the competition, nature and location of the banks and other alliances of the persons who were to be directors. Those forms were prepared and sworn to by the individual directors and were sent to Mr. Martin and,

I think, by him taken to our conference before the Federal Reserve Board in Washington where they were approved.

This letter dated May 26, addressed to Mr. William McChesney Martin, Federal Reserve Agent, Federal Reserve Bank at St. Louis, is a copy of the letter I sent Mr. Martin. Said copy received in evidence and marked for identification "Defendant's Exhibit No. 12."

I received blank forms to be executed by the Directors, had them filled out and returned them to Mr. Martin. A copy of the form received from the chairman of the Federal Reserve Board was received in evidence and marked for identification "Defendant's Exhibit No. 13." These forms were filled out by all the officers and directors of the two banks and were all approved except two or three or four, and Mr. Martin wrote back and asked for further information as to them, which was later supplied.

This letter dated June 11th is one I received from Mr. Martin in reference to the application which had been made by me on behalf of these two banks. This letter is dated June 11, 1927, and Mr. Martin asked for further information with regard to the application of Joseph A. Durham, Richards A. Reynolds, and Allen P. Dodd. It says, "Referring to your letter of May 26th, I have today been advised by the Federal Reserve Board that all of the applications contained therein have been approved except those of" the three I just named. Said letter was received in evidence and marked for identification "Defendant's Exhibit No. 14."

About the 5th of February in that year they passed an amendment to the National Banking Act under which national banks were permitted to declare stock dividends, and that was taken into consideration in connection with this plan of unifying the interests of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company, and it was an integral part of the plan, and the basis upon which the trade was made, that the National Bank of Kentucky would apply for permission to increase its capital stock from $2,500,000 to $4,000,000.00, declaring a 60 per cent stock dividend. That application had to go to the Federal Reserve Governor of this district, together with a draft of the proposed Trust Agreement of April 22, 1927. His attention was expressly called to the fact that a stock dividend was in contemplation, because the law had only been recently amended, and they seemed to take considerable interest in the subject of how and under what terms a stock dividend would be paid by a National Bank. After considerable correspondence Mr. Martin agreed to accompany a committee to Washington, as the question of the stock dividend had to be passed on by the Comptroller. I think Mr. Stearns was Comptroller, and Mr. Pole was Deputy Comptroller at that time and they had a Mr. Quin, who must not be confused with Judge Houston Quin, was in charge of the organization and reorganization of national banks, and he was called in, and also a lawyer for the Comptroller's Office, and our Trust Agreement was gone over in detail. The statements of the National Bank of Kentucky were considered in detail and the approval was given to the declaration of a 60% stock dividend by the National Bank of Kentucky, effective at some particular date in the future, which I think was agreed on as May 30th or 31st—I can't recollect which. I know I went on a second time and brought back and telegraphed the report that we were set in that respect and the plans could proceed.

I made an appointment on behalf of the Bank and Trust Company, to meet the Comptroller for the purpose of discussing and securing the approval of this plan of increasing the stock and declaring the dividend. Mr. Martin, the Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of this District, volunteered to go with us and met our committee in Washington and stayed with us and conducted us to the proper officers and introduced us to the proper authorities. I can't recall exactly who was present at that conference on behalf of the bank. This telegram, dated May 7th, is a telegram received from J. W. McIntosh in re the National Bank of Kentucky-Louisville Trust Company merger, "Glad to see you Tuesday." That was the time we went to Washington. It was the Tuesday after the 7th of May. Said telegram was received in evidence and marked for identification "Defendant's Exhibit No. 15."

Present at that appointment were Mr. John Stites, who was President of the Louisville Trust Company, and Mr. Nicholas H. Dosker, who at that time was a Vice-President of the National Bank of Kentucky, and I, as attorney representing both the parties, because Judge Humphrey was in bad health, or at least, he had a broken leg, went from here and met Mr. Martin, William McChesney Martin, and he took us first to the Comptroller's where we met the representative of that office. Mr. Dosker, Mr. Martin and someone in the Comptroller's office took up the statement of the National Bank of Kentucky. I discussed with a lawyer of the Department the terms of the Trust Agreement that we had. Mr. Stites had someone he was talking to. Some of them were in one large room and I went into a smaller room with this lawyer for a few minutes, maybe fifteen or twenty, and he had certain questions he wanted to ask about the Trust Agreement, which I answered, and the answers seemed to satisfy him. I then returned to the room and joined with the others. They said that they were going to approve, and they did approve, the payment of the stock dividend. Then, we were taken by the Comptroller and Mr. Martin, and appeared before a full meeting of the Federal Reserve Board, and I had quite an informal talk.

They asked about our Trust Agreement and they asked about our directors, and the result of that was that they said they would approve, or thought they would approve the interlocking directors.

The increase in the capital stock of the National Bank of Kentucky and the payment of the stock dividend were approved by the Comptroller. I think it was mostly incidental to our plan that it was discussed before the Federal Reserve Board. I may be in error in saying that the Federal Reserve Board did not have to approve it also but I think the first approval had to come from the Governor of the Federal Reserve District, and then from the Comptroller.

I received this letter, dated May 10th, addressed to President, the National Bank of Kentucky, and signed by Mr. Stearns, Deputy Comptroller. Said letter was received in evidence and marked for identification "Defendant's Exhibit 16." While the letter is addressed to the President, I was at that time handling the details. At that time Mr. McIntosh was Comptroller, and Mr. Pole was Deputy.

I sent the original of a telegram addressed to the office of the Comptroller to Mr. Quin, who was in charge of the organization and reorganization of national banks, in which I asked for an appointment to submit the resolution of the Board and stockholders and the formal certificate in regard to increasing the capital stock of the Bank. This telegram was received in evidence and marked for identification "Defendant's Exhibit No. 16-a." The authorization to increase the Bank's capital had been given by Mr. Quin as head of the department on organization and reorganization.

At the first meeting when Mr. Stites and Mr. Dosker were present, and after they had considered our plan of unification and had approved the stock dividend, the Comptroller, in Mr. Martin's presence, and smiling very pleasantly, congratulated us all upon the unification of the Louisville Trust Company with such an old and fine institution as the National Bank of Kentucky. The plan of unification and increasing the capital stock of the bank were approved by the Comptroller's office and notification of its approval was sent to us.

My connection with the negotiation and completion of the consolidation of the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company with the Louisville Trust Company was as follows: The idea of merging the Louisville National Bank & Trust Company with the Louisville Trust Company was talked from early in 1929, and there were conferences held between representatives of the Louisville National and of the National Bank of Kentucky before the Louisville Trust Company, the old Directors of the Louisville Trust Company, ever heard of it, and when they did, it developed that the plan was to denationalize the Louisville National Bank & Trust Company and take out for it a state charter for the same amount of its capital, $750,000.00 and amend the charter of the Louisville Trust Company from $1,000,000.00 to $1,750,000.00 and then to take the Louisville National Bank & Trust Company, as a state institution under Kentucky statutes, into a merger with the old Louisville Trust Company. That was worked out with Mr. Robert Vaughan representing the Louisville National Bank & Trust Company, and I was representing the Louisville Trust Company, and that plan was carried out after the Trustees' Participation Certificates were outstanding, and it took the concurrence of the Trustees, and the stock was issued to the stockholders of the Louisville National Bank & Trust Company on a par for par, equal basis.

I can't recall whether stock of the Louisville Trust Company was issued to the stockholders of the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company or if Trustees' Participation Certificates were issued. I don't recall the actual mechanics.

The Louisville Trust Company's charter was amended. It was started as a trust company with no banking powers. It wasn't even a combined bank and trust company. Incident to this merger it amended its charter so as to take on commercial banking and other broader powers than a straight cut trust company would have. Its capital was increased from $1,000,000 to $1,750,000 to accomplish the merger. My recollection is that the consolidation between the Louisville Trust Company and the Louisville National was actually completed about May 15, 1929. The negotiations for the consolidation began in the early part of 1929. When the consolidation was accomplished, the market value for Trustees' Participation Certificates, before they were split 10 for 1, was about $440 odd a share. I think the most I ever paid was $426 and some cents per share for the Louisville Trust Company—for the Trustees' Participation Certificates. The $100 par Trustees' Certificates fluctuated during April and May, 1929, somewhere between $426 and $444 per share.

I don't know the market value of the Louisville National stock in January, 1929. I know they were taken in on a share for share equal basis, it being represented that they were on a parity in assets and earnings with the Louisville Trust Company.

The discussion began by those interested in the formation of BancoKentucky Company early in 1929. It was under discussion at the same time the absorption of the Louisville National Bank & Trust Company into the Louisville Trust Company was being discussed. I would say certainly as early as February, 1929.

In February, 1929, I haven't the market reports on the prices for T. P. C.'s. The stock rose in the market especially the Trustees' Participation Certificates, after it became known and generally talked of that Banco would be formed. I think quite a number of people, from those I talked with, were buying certificates with the idea of getting in on Banco probably at a reduced price from what they would have to pay if they subscribed directly. The market in T. P. C.'s was along about from $425 up to $445, but I can't fix any particular amount on a particular date.

My calendar shows that I was in seventeen conferences in connection with Banco, and those conferences took place with various groups. Sometimes the groups would be large, maybe fifteen or more, and other times it would be a group of only five or six. The ones who discussed Banco were the officers of the National Bank of Kentucky and its Directors, and some outside—there may have been stockholders that were not directors, and the same was true as to the Louisville Trust Company, and Mr. Bean and his group of officers from the Louisville National were quite active. Mr. Stites was active, and then, of the directors, there would be a group, say, like Colonel Mengel, Mr. Carroll there, there would be Mr. Coons—I assume they were just picking out some of the leaders in the different boards . . . the Louisville National had Mr. Boomer, Mr. Girdler, Mr. Nick Docker, Mr. Sam Stone, but to try to remember now who attended any one of those seventeen different conferences, without having called a roll or kept a roll would be just plain guesswork.

All I can say is that these meetings were held sometimes after the directors meetings and sometimes it would be a called meeting at 421, which was the building erected by the Louisville National Bank & Trust Company. Sometimes it would be in the directors' room, I think, of the Louisville Trust Company. I remember one dinner meeting at the Pendennis Club or supper, with Mr. Brown—I remember they started supper at 8:30 and that especially impressed me. There would be groups of five or six or seven or eight, up to twelve or fourteen or fifteen. Banco was generally discussed. It didn't have a name at that time but the general idea was most fully discussed.

The business and purpose to be undertaken and carried on by the corporation was a gradual development in those discussions. It was intended originally to be something like the other allied companies, subsidiaries of banks that could do things that the banks themselves did not have the charter power to do, and then they turned over the subject in their minds in those discussions, and it grew. It was to be a trading corporation, a finance corporation. . . . The corporation was to have a department for underwriting; it was to have a department of statistics, under Mr. Akers, where statistics would be gathered and sold; it was to have a real estate bond department to meet the demands of country banks who wanted bonds for their customers under Mr. Hugh Fleece, who had been General Counsel and Vice-President of the Louisville Title Company and was at that time President of the Bankers Trust Company. It was to have the power to own stock in other corporations and to guarantee the obligations of others. In fact, even in the letter of July 19, 1929, there are 7 or 8 distinct powers mentioned different from those permitted to banks and trust companies under their limited authority.

The purpose, or one of the purposes, was to acquire banks in the Ohio Valley as a reservoir of finance. They expected to extend from West Virginia to Arkansas. It was discussed many times. They did acquire banks in Ashland, Covington, Cincinnati, Louisville, Paducah, and maybe other places, and those banks, in turn, were to be let as separate units under their own management, but as occasion arose, they would be, through the BancoKentucky Company, supplied with desirable investments, and the investments were to be endorsed by the BancoKentucky Company, which was designed, really, to act as a little federal reserve for them and to have ample capital for that purpose. I don't know that I have, this time or on previous occasions, from memory, recited all the powers they had, but the charter speaks for itself, and that charter was promptly printed, a copy being left in the offices for those who were interested in looking into its charter powers.

I was interested in all the different departments and heard names discussed, but it just happened that I was the one that was requested to talk to Mr. Fleece, by those promoting BancoKentucky Company and by Mr. Brown, who was one of them. I was the one that was selected because he had started his practice in my office, before he was Vice-President and General Counsel of the Louisville Title Company, to bring him into my office to discuss with Mr. Brown and others the feasibility of forming a department for Banco to start in the bond or mortgage business. Fleece resigned as President of the Bankers' Trust Company to look into the future of Banco, about the 1st of August, 1929. I can't remember the date but it was just in the formative state and they thought he would be helpful to us in carrying out these different functions of the Banco-Kentucky Company.

At the request of Banco officers, I conferred with Mr. Fleece and he resigned his job and gave his time to considering that question for BancoKentucky Company, as to how it could organize a real estate mortgage bond department, to cooperate in connection with the bank or chain of banks that might also be allied to the same institution. Banco hired Mr. Fleece. He was not put on the payroll of Banco, because they had no payroll of employees, so far as I know. It fell to my lot thereafter, to go on his note, both at the National Bank of Kentucky and at the Liberty Bank and to pay those notes. In this interim, between the time he resigned his job and that time it was found that Banco could not continue in as broad a field as had been contemplated.

Mr. Carroll, Mr. Vaughan and I worked on the Banco organization and Mr. Carroll had the draft of the charter, which I might say we others considered, and I will say it is similar to the forms then in existence, and was checked sentence by sentence with the usual provisions and special provisions. While there are quite a few amendments made in the usual form, by reason of these previous discussions as to what Banco was to do, the drafting of the charter itself was left to Mr. Carroll, and when he left Louisville he took it with him. He was going to Atlantic City, and on information being sent to him that certain other steps had been taken, he went to Dover, Delaware, and filed it on the 16th day of July, 1929, and telegraphed back that the charter had been filed.

I got the money for the fees for the preliminary legal work, including the preparation of the charter, and I think there was a split three ways between Mr. Vaughan, Mr. Carroll and myself. That came in several months after Banco was organized, I think I received about four grand. My proportion was $4,000. I can't recollect by whom the money was paid or who was my client. The other two attorneys associated with me joined in the bill that was sent.

I don't recall whether or not, in any of the 17 conferences I held with the persons who were interested in the organization of BancoKentucky, if it was discussed regarding the clause in reference to double liability or the clause in reference to liability of stockholders for the debts of that company or was ever considered in any way. I don't recall that that question was discussed before it was put in.

The Witness: Judge, in connection with my answer, I don't recall whether it was discussed but I want to say that this particular section is copied verbatim from the forms which this charter is taken as a whole, without the change of a word or a letter.

I never heard the question of re-organization discussed from any source at all until Mr. Robert Vaughan, one of my colleagues in the drafting, brought up a question under the Internal Revenue Laws—in regard to the income tax, and I think he has testified and filed a letter in which he said that under certain conditions under the income tax laws, it could be called a re-organization in the sense of the income tax laws. I never heard it discussed until that time.

There was no change in the corporate structure or charter in either the National Bank of Kentucky or the Louisville Trust Company. There never was any considered or discussed in connection with or at the time of or prior to the formation of Banco. There never was discussed any amendment or re-organization of either the Louisville Trust Company under Kentucky law or the National Bank of Kentucky under Federal law at any time. They were to be left exactly as they were then existing, and they were so left without any authority to change or re-organize them in any manner or form.

The matter of Banco being used for the purpose of evading double liability on the part of individual Certificate holders on account of their ownership of bank stock was never discussed, and so far as I know, was never thought of by anyone.

As one of the attorneys I reviewed the letter of July 19, 1929, Plaintiff's Exhibit 24-3, time and again before it was finally in the shape where it was sent out.

The reason and purpose for the use of the term in that letter "Plan of Re-organization" was to come within the terms of the Federal Income Tax regulations as they had been drawn by Congress. It was only in that respect that that was used and the requirement that at least 50% of the stock of the Trustees' Participation Certificates holders should pass to the BancoKentucky Company, because that was a part of the technical regulations in regard to income tax for the Federal Government.

There was a reason other than that stated by me, for the use of the term "Plan of Re-organization." Banco was named as a third corporation to join this group and was to help re-organize the business done by the Bank in connection with the carrying of an insurance department, bond department, travel department and such details that had become burdensome to banks, and to that extent, it was taking over these departments from the Bank and Trust Company into Banco.

I was acting as counsel for the Louisville Trust Company and for the BancoKentucky Company with other counsel during the summer and fall of 1929. I was requested as attorney for those institutions, to give to the officers an opinion with reference to the identity of BancoKentucky Company with either of the two Banks with which it was associated.

I wrote the letter dated September 6, 1929, addressed to Mr. Nicholas H. Dosker, Senior Vice-President of the Louisville Trust Company. This is the original carbon copy of an opinion I gave Mr. Dosker. That was the opinion I was asked about. Said letter was received in evidence and marked for identification "Defendants' Exhibit 17."

The letter dated September 6, 1929, says that Mr. John Doolan, he is one of my partners who was present when you called me up, thinks I should confirm our telephone conversation by a memorandum. I quote Kentucky Statute 4706 and call attention to the fact that Banco is not that dividend paying security as is regarded by prudent business men as a safe investment that have been in business for more than ten years—that is a paraphrase from a long quotation from the statute. Then it concludes "as a lawyer you see that Banco stock cannot qualify as a trust estate investment. Wherever the Louisville Trust Company is agent of a principal or the beneficiaries are authorized to consent in writing, their stock or certificates can be transferred or converted into BancoKentucky, otherwise stand on or sell their investment."

I think the Louisville Trust Company was organized in 1884. I had been a director since 1911. From 1911 to 1929 it had never failed to pay its annual dividend on its stock. The National Bank of Kentucky had paid dividends consecutively for more than ten years.

I acquired Banco stock. I owned 50 shares of Louisville Trust Company stock. I turned that in to the Trustees and received back 10 shares of National Bank of Kentucky stock, 10 shares of Louisville Trust Company stock and Trustees' Participation Certificates for the balance. When Banco was formed, I transferred my Trustees' Certificates for Banco stock as soon as the books were open.

I was on the Banco Board at the time of the negotiations and contract with reference to the purchase of Caldwell & Company stock. The reason for those negotiations and that contract, so far as I was advised or informed, was that Caldwell & Company was an investment banking house in Nashville doing a wide business in the South and had a great reputation at that time, May, 1930. It was carrying on an investment house business, underwriting bond issues and was largely interested in Government Bonds, so-called Municipal Bonds——

What I mean is that that was Caldwell & Company's general reputation—that it was a house engaged in many activities in the South,—underwriters, dealer in stocks, bonds and securities and it also had an interest in some banks and insurance companies. It was believed by me, and I think, by the other directors, of BancoKentucky Company, that an alliance with Caldwell & Company would round out what the depression had prevented Banco from doing for itself, and it was for that reason that the contract was got up between Banco and Caldwell & Company, with the idea of rounding out the insurance business and some banks, and more particularly contacts with business organizations throughout the South. It was to round out Banco's general plans and authority.

I exchanged my Trustees' Participation Certificates into the BancoKentucky stock, solely because, knowing the purpose of Banco as outlined in its charter, I thought it would be a profitable investment, and I so advised clients and relatives.

My making of this exchange was absolutely not done with a view to avoid double liability on the T. P. C.'s owned by me. I never heard it discussed and never thought of it. The question of the avoidance of double liability was absolutely not considered by me in any manner whatsoever at the time this exchange was made. I never heard it discussed by anyone.

At the time I made the exchange my recollection is that the T. P. C.'s were worth about $46 or $48 a share, bid and asked. At the time of this exchange the condition of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company, from my knowledge of their statements and from what I heard at Directors' meetings, I thought that they were both absolutely sound and both beyond any financial difficulty. After BancoKentucky was organized and up to January 1, 1930, I thought the National Bank of Kentucky was absolutely sound. During the same period I believed and understood the Louisville Trust Company was absolutely sound, as it had been, and both banks earned dividends as in the past. The first time I had any information, knowledge or belief, that the National Bank of Kentucky was or might be involved in financial difficulties was November 15, 1930. I had been off the Board of the National Bank of Kentucky since, I think it was January 13, 1930, and the first I knew was when a town meeting was called to consider the run that had started after the failure of Caldwell & Company.

In December, 1929, I, with others, executed a surety bond for the National Bank of Kentucky. I executed this bond as surety for the National Bank of Kentucky to the City of Louisville in the sum of $500,000 to pay certain deposits of the City made with the Bank. It was executed pursuant to a statute requiring such bonds of all city depositories, on the 27th day of December, 1929. The penal sum was $500,000.

At that time, I was a director of the National Bank of Kentucky, but we had already taken action to drop the Louisville Trust Company directors from the National Bank of Kentucky Board because the Board was too large, and the meeting was to be held whenever the statute called for—I think it was the 13th of January, 1930. The new Louisville Trust Company directors, who had come from the Louisville National Bank & Trust Company, were never elected directors of the National Bank of Kentucky, because the Board was too large and unwieldy. A month before I executed this bond, it had been agreed that we were to retire from that Board at the next meeting of the stockholders.

Mr. John Stites, Mr. Walter I. Kohn and myself, who signed that bond were to retire from the Bank Board on January 13, 1930. The other who signed were the directors and the President of the National Bank of Kentucky.

Said bond was received in evidence and marked for identification "Defendants' Exhibit No. 18."

In the minute book of the National Bank of Kentucky which is shown me, for December 16, 1927, appears this statement, "The letter from the office of the Comptroller of the Currency under date of December 12, 1927, was read to the Board of Directors, discussed, and referred to the officers of the Bank for attention." I was present at that meeting. At that meeting a letter from the Comptroller's Office was not read or considered.

According to the minutes I was not present at the meeting of December 23, 1927. Turning to the minutes of June 1, 1928, according to them I was not present. The following statement is contained in the minutes of June 1st: "The letter from the Comptroller of the Currency under date of May 12, 1928, and report of the examination conducted March ..... completed March 31, 1928, was considered and referred to the management for report." Returning to the minutes of the last meeting June 8, 1928, I was present. The minutes of the June 8th meeting recite that they read the minutes of the previous meeting. In the reading of those minutes there was no reference read stating that a letter from the Comptroller had been received at the previous meeting, read and considered.

Turning to the minutes of June 22, 1928, I was there. The minutes state "Letter dated June 14, 1928, from the Comptroller of the Currency was read to the Board, received, and filed." No such letter from the Comptroller was read to the Board at that meeting.

Turning to the minutes of August 31st, 1928, I was absent at that meeting. It is recited in those minutes "Letter dated August 23, 1928, from the Comptroller of the Currency relative to the further progress of items mentioned in the last examination was referred to the management for report." Examining the minutes of the next meeting, September 7th, I am listed as absent. Turning to the minutes of the meeting of December 7, 1928, I was present. In the middle of the last paragraph on the page "letter from the Comptroller of the Currency under date of November 27, 1928, was considered and referred to the management for reply." No letter from the Comptroller was presented to the Board, read or discussed at that meeting.

There never was a letter from the Comptroller presented to the Board when I was present nor did I ever see such referred to in the minutes of the subsequent meetings nor did I hear them.

At the time of the organization of the BancoKentucky Company, the Commonwealth of Kentucky was the holder of T. P. C.'s. The Bank of Kentucky was organized as an arm of the Commonwealth of Kentucky about 1834 and in the Constitution of about 1850 it was set over to the Public School Fund as a trust for aiding the Public Schools. It is again referred to in the Constitution of 1891. They owned stock originally in the Bank of Kentucky and then in the National Bank of Kentucky. I never heard of any other stock owned by the Commonwealth. They transferred their stock in the National Bank of Kentucky into Trustees' Participation Receipts in January or February, 1928. I was called many times before the Board of Education, and by these Sinking Fund Commissioners and I did appear and explain, as best I could, the relation of Banco to the Trustees' Participation Certificates. I made this explanation to the Board consisting of Mr. Bell, Superintendent of Instruction, Miss Ella Lewis, Secretary of State, and Attorney General Cammack and on some occasions his son, who is now on the Court of Appeals, was present in some capacity. The Board adopted resolutions asking an extension of time for converting their stock.

I explained very fully to the Board that Banco was a new corporation with wider powers, and they asked me as to whether or not it was under the supervision of either the Bank Examiner or the State Banking Commissioner. I told them it was not and they took time and had an extension and voted an approval to exchange provided they could get an enabling act from the legislature. They understood very distinctly. General Cammack, who is chairman of that Board, is here and will be here. He drew those resolutions that gave the history of the transaction very fully. They pressed the question whether Banco was an entirely independent separate corporation, both with Mr. Bean and myself and we both answered that it was an independent organization. We told them most distinctly that it was an independent separate corporation with broad charter powers.

This Board, representing the Commonwealth of Kentucky, recommended to the Sinking Fund Commissioners the transfer but doubted their power, under the act, unless they had an enabling act, which they drew, or General Cammack drew, and which was offered to the legislature during its closing days. Minutes of the Board of Education, dated Sept. 18, 1929, and resolutions received in evidence and marked for identification "Defendants' Exhibit No. 19." Board of Education minutes of Sept. 18, 1929, received in evidence and marked for identification "Plaintiff's Exhibit 160."

Plaintiff's objection having been sustained, the following was offered by defendant as an avowal:

> "After our conferences with the State Board of Education and the Sinking Fund Commissioners with reference to the exchange of their T. P. C.'s for Banco-Kentucky, they took the position that they needed an enabling act to sell Trustees' Participation Certificates and reinvest in BancoKentucky because it was a new, distinct corporation. As late as March, 1930, they gave their hearty endorsement to the wisdom of investing in Banco and so made recommendations to the legislature in the form of a resolution. Said resolution was marked for identification 'Defendant's Exhibit No. 20.' "

When we discussed this matter of the plan of the acquisition by Banco of more than a majority of the stock of the Louisville Trust Company and National Bank of Kentucky with the State officials they were acquainted with the fact that the plan for the organization of the BancoKentucky Company contemplated and was contingent upon the acquisition by Banco of more than 50% of the issued and outstanding stock of the Louisville Trust Company and National Bank of Kentucky. I don't know about the members of the Sinking Fund but the members of the School Board and the Attorney General and the Attorney General's Assistants were fully advised of that fact.

With reference to the acquisition of a majority of the stock of those institutions by Banco, the Attorney General made the statement to me in the Board of Education that so long as the Trustees under the Trust Agreement of April 22, 1927, held the stock there was no infringement upon a clause of the Kentucky Statutes that said no person directly or indirectly should own more than a majority of the stock of a Kentucky bank. When Banco acquired the Trustees' Participation Certificates, it was contemplated, at one time, that the National Bank of Kentucky would denationalize and would merge with the Louisville Trust Company, which would result in superseding the Trust Agreement of April 22, 1927, but I raised the question as to whether or not it would not be wise to repeal that section of the Statute that said no person directly or indirectly could own more than a majority of the stock in the State bank or trust company. I discussed it with O. S. Denny, Banking Commissioner, and he and I discussed it with the Attorney General. The conclusion was reached that that old statute had been designed for a different purpose——

May I say what was actually done? The Attorney General's advice was that he could only proceed to rectify that condition by a quo warranto proceeding, and that he would only act upon the complaint of the Banking Commissioner and that the only penalty would be to stop paying dividends on the excess.

Immediately after the plan of organization of Banco became effective, control of Banco was lodged in the Trustees' Participation Certificate holders up until the time outsiders bought the stock, which was later. . . . The Trustees' Participation Certificate holders had the majority when they first organized and I expect continued to have throughout.

With respect to any agreement, or anything being done by the group that organized Banco, restricting its stock to the owners of T.P.C.'s after it was issued, there was no limitation on the ordinary right of stockholders that bought Banco stock, by exchange or by purchase. There was no voting trust and no effort whatever to control the free, untrammeled action of the stockholders in BancoKentucky Company. After the election of the first Board of Directors, there was absolutely no plan, arrangement, or agreement that secured to the former owners of T.P.C.'s a continuing control over the policies and business of Banco-Kentucky Company.

The reason Banco's charter was amended and its authorized capital stock increased from 2,000,000 to 5,000,000 shares was because we had received an unexpectedly large portion of Trustees' Participation Certificates and the Company did not have the free working capital that had been contemplated. The plans of Banco called for a free capital of somewhere between twenty million dollars and thirty million dollars and that being discovered before the break in the market, steps were taken to increase the capitalization and that job was delegated to Mr. A. J. Carroll and myself. We had the stockholders waive their preemptive right to subscribe for more stock, and we did, lawfully and legally, increase its capital at a meeting held in January, 1930, as appears in the minute book of the Banco-Kentucky Company.

I don't recall about the stock being put on the market and attempted to be sold, until they made the trade with Rogers Caldwell, but they may have put some on—they must have, because they had more stock sold than their original capital, as I recall it.

The reason for the fluctuation in deposits in the National Bank of Kentucky, during the period between 1927 and November, 1930, was told by the Cashier and by the President and it was explained, when the question came up, that there would be a fluctuation of some, say, about $45,000,000 down to $35,000,000 in a period of time, and the explanation was about three-fold or four-fold. One was that some of our large depositors were sending money to New York to meet interest on bonds; another was that the country banks were seasonally withdrawing; another was that some of the large depositors were making broker's loans; another was that the National Bank of Kentucky was one of the few banks in Louisville that was not paying interest on general deposits, as high, sometimes, as 3½ to 4½ per cent. Those were the reasons as reported to us, and they did fluctuate. If the L. & N. had to meet interest on its bonds, they took out a real substantial sum of money and if someone else was reorganizing and needed money, then large amounts went out from those large deposits. Seasonally the country banks fluctuated like the mischief—country banks would fluctuate from $10,000,000 down to $7,000,000 in a week or two. The National Bank of Kentucky had the largest number of country banks in Louisville and it had a substantial part of their general business.

I never heard discussed at any time any arrangement, agreement or understanding on the part of the officers or directors of the BancoKentucky Company which required the Board of Directors to declare or pay in dividends the amount of money received by Banco on account of the money paid on the Trustees' Participation Certificates held by it.

The reason that during the existence of Banco, the dividends declared to its stockholders were equivalent to the dividends on the T.P.C.'s held by it was that BancoKentucky had some dividends from the acquired banks in Cincinnati and other places and also had interest on its deposits. How they arrived at the dividends to be paid, I simply cannot recall. It was probably a matter of policy, because we had a paid-in surplus of 150% to carry on at the same rate that people had been receiving on the Trustees' Participation Certificates, but I can't tell you the details from memory now; it has been too long ago.

I know the dividends declared by the National Bank of Kentucky, from 1927 through October, 1930, were reported to the Comptroller in pursuance to a federal statute relating to National banks. I know they were reported, and I never heard, while I was on that Board, any criticism, but, as a matter of fact, there were reports to the Bank. I have seen copies of the reports since the close of the Bank.

After I exchanged a portion of the T.P.C.'s I held for Banco stock—I acquired 600 shares of Banco by reason of the exchange. When I went off the Board of Directors of the National Bank of Kentucky, I turned in those ten shares and received 200 shares more of Banco, making a total of 800 shares. In addition to that, during the time I was a director, I owned stock in the Louisville Trust Company, till the day it closed. I never sold any Banco stock or Louisville Trust Company stock. I had all of the stock that I had ever acquired at the time the bank closed.

(Cross-examination by Mr. Marx)

My full name is Thomas Kennedy Helm, but as a rule I sign either T. K. Helm or T. Kennedy Helm.

I was a director of the Louisville Trust Company from January, 1911, until it closed. Until its unification with the National Bank of Kentucky in April, 1927, I never owned any stock in the National Bank of Kentucky.

I have been general counsel for the Kentucky Bankers' Association since 1906. I was thoroughly familiar with the fact that both National Bank stock and stock in Kentucky banking institutions is subject to double liability.

My recollection is that we authorized our name to be listed in alphabetical order in the letter of July 19, 1929, which was addressed to the holders of participating shares of the Bank and Trust Company. I ratified this letter and had seen it before it was printed in this form. I authorized my signature to be printed on it.

I personally signed Plf's Ex. No. 8, the document dated July 12, 1929, which requests the Trustees, under the Trust Agreement of April 22, 1927, to cause to be organized the BancoKentucky Company, under the charter approved by us and thereto attached. This is a request that was required under the Trust Agreement from the Advisory Committee to the Trustees.

On July 12, 1929, I was a director of the Louisville Trust Company and of the National Bank of Kentucky. I worked with Judge Humphrey in drawing the Trust Agreement. I was also a member of the Advisory Committee to the Trustees. At that time I also owned thirty Trustees' Participation Certificates and ten shares of stock in the National Bank of Kentucky, and ten shares in the Louisville Trust Company. As a director in each institution I had qualifying shares and in addition Trustees' certificates. After the organization of BancoKentucky Company I became a director in that company. I transferred my Trustees' Participation certificates for Banco stock and did not subscribe for any additional stock.

I signed Plf's Ex. No. 162, dated August 7, 1928. Said paper was received in evidence and marked for identification "Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 162."

At the time I signed Exhibit No. 162 I thought I knew all about BancoKentucky's organization and the details by which it was to be carried out, and that this was one of the forms to be signed, and I signed it when they poked it at me. I did not help to draft this particular deposit of the stock, nor the subscription. I don't recall having had anything to do with either one of them except they asked me to sign this deposit and I signed it. I haven't the remotest idea who drafted it. I couldn't tell whether Mr. Carroll drafted it.

I notice that attached to the letter of July 19th or enclosed with it, was this form which I signed, plaintiff's exhibit No. 162. On a perforated slip at the bottom was an additional form to be signed if a person subscribed for more stock. I probably saw them at the time but I do not now recall anything about who drew them. I did see this letter in the making, and I do know this letter was tinkered with or changed around like a mosaic for a while and it was approved in this final form, and I imagine that printed copy is exactly like this one appearing in the minute book, but I haven't compared them.

The "Participation Shares of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company" are what we have called Trustees' Participation Certificates.

I was one of the co-authors with Judge Humphrey of the Trust Agreement of April 22, 1927.

192—At the time you drew that agreement there was a discussion of the question of double liability, wasn't there?

A.—That will be found in all the forms, and was put in this particular draft—which, by the way, was adopted by Thompson in his book on corporations, as a standard form—the question of double liability on the trustees—of course, they are limited to the extent of the estate in their hand, but it is conceivable, when you acquire two banks and had the right to acquire other interests in banks, that there might be a double liability and that there might be liability on the Trustees or their estates to pay it, and it was thought best, as had been done in all similar drafts of similar documents, to provide that the Trustees should not be liable but the liability would attach to those persons who deposited their stock with the Trustees, and that is expressly what is provided for in this agreement.

193—So that was discussed between you and Judge Humphrey?

A.—I can't remember any discussion of it. I drew the first draft, based on those documents I mentioned before, and submitted it to Judge Humphrey. He went over it and called me to his office and made some corrections, and then took it up with the committee of the Louisville Trust Company, and the committee of the National Bank of Kentucky, and they made some suggestions, and in the final analysis I had it copied and submitted it to Judge Humphrey. He O.K.'d it; the committees O.K.'d it and the Boards O.K.'d it.

194—So that everybody concerned knew that the persons who deposited their bank stock with the six trustees were agreeing, by the act of deposit and their acceptance of the Trust Agreement, to respond to any double liability which might be imposed upon the bank stock deposited with the trustees?

A.—The agreement speaks for itself. Everybody signed the agreement or a counterpart thereof.

195—So a holder of stock in the Louisville Trust Company, which was bank stock—it had double liability on it before the trust?

A.—Within a certain time limit.

196—So did the National Bank of Kentucky.

A.—Within a certain time limit, yes.

197—So when a holder of one or both deposited with the Trustees that bank stock certificate and got back Trustees' Participation Certificates, he did not get back a piece of paper which was not subject to double liability, but a piece of paper which bore the same liability as his bank stock?

A.—Judge Marx, I submit I have answered that question.

198—That is the fact?

A.—That is the fact.

199—But when you signed Exhibit No. 162, you say: "I hereby deposit . . . 300 Participation Shares of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company" which—I am interjecting in this question, was subject to double liability—and you then said, "In exchange for which you are to cause to be issued to me two shares of stock of the BancoKentucky Company for each Participation Share herewith deposited, fully paid and non-assessable," didn't you?

A.—Yes. Non-assessable in that sense means it was fully paid stock, not only on the basis of par, but on the basis of the exchange, with 150 per cent surplus. Non-assessable means there was nothing more to pay, and does not have a thing in the world to do with double liability.

200—You also knew that the personal property of the stockholders was to be, under Article 8, I think it is——

A.—(Interrupting.) That is right, in the Banco charter.

201—What page is that?

A.—I am perfectly familiar with Article 8.

202—That provides that the private property of the stockholders was not to be subject to any personal liability?

A.—I told you yesterday and I will repeat that that is in the standard forms of corporations and trust companies, in every one of them, verbatim, without the change of the crossing of a T or the dotting of an i; it is a form that is in every corporation charter I have seen in Kentucky. In ordinary commercial corporations, as distinguished from banks, there is no double liability, but there is a provision for you to say whether the private property of the stockholder shall be liable to assessment, and I have never seen one where they put in that the private property should be subject to any extent for the corporate debts.

203—You did know you were exchanging stock in which you were personally interested, and which was subject to double liability in the event an assessment was levied, for stock which you considered was not subjecting you to any personal liability, didn't you?

A.—Certainly, but I never thought about double liability in that connection.

204—Regardless of what you thought about it, you knew that to be so?

A.—I knew it as a question of law.

I never heard of the charter of the Guardian Detroit Union Group, Inc., unless you are talking about some decision that a bank holding company—where there was some provision injected by the Attorney General—I never heard of it. I may have heard of the Guardian National Bank of Commerce of Detroit, Michigan. I didn't know anything about it. If I ever heard anything about the fact that that bank was a member of a group of banks, the stock of which was held by this Union Guardian Detroit Group, Inc., I have totally forgotten it. I don't remember a thing about it. I do not know that that corporation was organized under the mercantile laws of the State of Michigan, instead of having the provisions in Article 8 which we had, had Article 9, that stockholders should be subject to the same liability on the bank stock held by their corporation as they were liable prior to their exchange for the stock of the company.

I may have heard of the First National Bank of Detroit but I know absolutely nothing about its charter provisions or the laws of Michigan in regard to them.

213—Don't you know of the organization, under the general mercantile laws of Michigan, of the Detroit Bankers Company, a company which held the stock of various investment banking concerns, and the stock of banks, similar to the holdings of the BancoKentucky Company?

A.—When was that company organized?

214—Shortly after the formation of BancoKentucky.

A.—What effect could that have on what I was doing in Banco?

(After argument.)

The Court: The witness has stated he never heard of any corporation without this provision.

(After argument.)

The Court: I am sustaining the objection to the question and also to his statement, which, as I recall, was voluntary. Even if it is in there, it has no pertinence. Objection sustained to questioning on all matters pertaining to his statement, including his statement that he never heard of a corporation that had a different provision; that is stricken from the record.

When we unified the two banks in 1927 I had absolutely no doubt whatever about their solvency. At that time the Comptroller of the Currency congratulated the Louisville Trust Company representatives about the unification. I was there in a dual capacity as attorney for both. Mr. Stites was there as the direct representative of the Louisville Trust Company and Mr. Dosker for the National Bank of Kentucky, and, because of Judge Humphrey's ill health, I was there for both parties.

With respect to the Trust Agreement, I was not under any compulsion to deposit my stock with the Trustees. There were people who did not deposit. I did deposit and assume whatever liability the statutes of the state and the United States imposed on stockholders of banks and trust companies.

I knew that the Louisville Trust Company was examined by the State Bank Examiner. It was a member of the Federal Reserve Bank. It was examined on behalf of the Federal Reserve Bank. In addition Humphrey Robinson and Company made an examination of the Louisville Trust Company. Under the law State Bank examinations could be made twice a year or oftener if they saw fit, but as a matter of practice they made them certainly once a year and sometimes twice a year. Humphrey Robinson examination of the Trust Company was made once a year.

I think I became a director of the National Bank of Kentucky June 3, 1927. I had known for many years that National banks are examined by National Bank Examiners at least twice a year or oftener. In addition that Bank was examined by Humphrey Robinson & Company once a year. I knew that. I knew that reports of the examinations of the respective institutions were filed in the respective institutions. I knew they were available to me for my examination and inspection, theoretically. I can't recall that a copy of the report of examination, made by the National Bank Examiner, was directed to me as a director.

In the National Bank of Kentucky those reports were presented to the whole board by Mr. Brown, as President, and he interpreted them as he went along, turning back and forth to different comments and explaining the figures and items. That was the way it was done at the National Bank of Kentucky for five years or more before we went on that Board, and it was explained to us that you could get more out of the report if someone familiar with the facts would read it. When those reports came in, whoever was present was asked to keep quiet and Mr. Brown said he would read the report and he did read the report and summary, turning the pages back and forth. He would be told to forget the fractions, that there was no use going down to the last penny on some of the items. He would comment on them very fully and I think the Directors, if any of them testify, will tell you it was very tedious and took about an hour and a half or two hours and a half to read them. He called us to order just like in court.

There was a report by sections and there was one section relating to slow and doubtful loans. Mr. Brown would read that line over and would say how much money had already been collected on some of the items, and give an explanation on some of the other items, where he thought the Examiner was in error in listing it in that category.

Plaintiff's Exhibit 15 is a printed form of the Treasury Department addressed to the Board of Directors and signed by John S. Wood, Chief National Bank Examiner, saying that, at the direction of the Comptroller he is enclosing a copy of an examination made on a certain date. These letters did not come to the individual Directors. They went to the officers with the report. I never saw one of those letters.

I knew Mr. Brown had the reports of the Examiner, but, I am making the point that there was no individual letter sent to a Director similar to the letter you have just shown me.

As a member of the Bar and counsel for the Bankers' Association for many years, I knew these reports were made for the information of the Directors. I never looked at these reports myself. I heard them read when I was present, either at the Louisville Trust Company or the National Bank of Kentucky. At the Louisville Trust Company when I was on the examining committee, I did look at these reports. I was on two, probably, in twenty odd years. In the National Bank of Kentucky I was present and heard examiner's reports read but I never looked at them.

With regard to the Kentucky Wagon Works, I knew that the Bank had invested in some claims and I knew that they did have an investment, and I was told at the time of the merger that they had charged off a certain amount. My recollection is, after the lapse of time, that we were told—I mean officially told—that the investment was about $435,000, that it had been up to $800,000 and that the balance had been charged off. The way I understood it approximately was that they had invested $800,000, had charged off $350,000 and were still carrying $450,000.00. I did not know the Kentucky Wagon Works was not a profitable enterprise.

I knew that before the unification of the Bank and Trust Company that the Kentucky Wagon Company had been through some kind of reorganization. It had sold out to a National Motors, and they had issued bonds. I knew that the National Bank of Kentucky had bought, at 25¢ on the dollar, about one million dollars of claims against the property so as to be in a position to control the property. I learned afterwards, when on the Board, that it had been operated by a receiver, the Wagon Company, and that they were waiting to perfect a title which was then delayed in litigation in the Federal Court, and that was not settled, I may say, until the latter part of December, 1927. I knew the National Bank of Kentucky was awfully anxious to sell it and get back what they had invested in it, with interest. I knew it was a problem.

258—I didn't ask you that—the biggest problem—to refresh your recollection, I will ask you if you were not asked this question in your testimony in the Akers case: "You think that fact was generally known to the business class of people in Louisville? A. I would say in a way that that was the biggest problem that National Bank of Kentucky had."

A.—Well, I will repeat that that was the biggest problem in a way, as far as I know. I knew they kept trying to sell the property to different people at different prices in order to recoup what they had in it.

I didn't know the Kentucky Wagon Works was carrying large overdrafts. I never heard of them.

260—Let me see if this refreshes your recollection, referring to the Kentucky Wagon Works: "Yes, that was the time Jim Hayes"—Who was Jim Hayes, Secretary?

A.—He was one of the Vice-Presidents.

261—Of the National Bank of Kentucky?

A.—Yes, and he acted as Secretary of the meetings of the Board of Directors.

262—"Was called on for the overdrafts and they showed $48,000 to the Kentucky Wagon Manufacturing Company, and I would say the old directors, the directors who had been with the National Bank of Kentucky, chiefly took up the burden and jumped on him about that overdraft and he said he couldn't explain it."

A.—Yes, that is the fact; that is approximately what happened, and that was explained, as you will find in that testimony immediately after that, that they had an order at the Kentucky Wagon Company for a bill of goods they could not fill from their inventory and it was necessary to buy some additional material, and that this overdraft would be taken up as soon as the material on hand, plus the new material, could be manufactured and sold to the buyers. I did hear about that $48,000 or $35,000, whatever it was, but that was the only one.

I knew there was a brokerage concern in Louisville named Wakefield & Company. I never patronized it. I did know Mrs. Latta ran it. I did not know that the Greer, Meagher, Schweitzer, Wakefield and Harris loan was combined. I never identified them with Wakefield and Company in my life or with Mrs. Latta.

I knew when I was on the Board that the National Bank of Kentucky had acquired the Kentucky Wagon Manufacturing Company and was actually operating it. The Bank organized the Kentucky Manufacturing Company of Delaware for the very purpose of acquiring this outstanding interest in the inventory and real estate, in order to salvage the debt previously contracted, plus the investment in buying up claims of other people at 25¢ on the dollar.

With reference to my direct testimony, that Banco was to help reorganize the business done by the Bank in carrying on of an insurance department, bond department, travel department and such detail that had become burdensome to the bank, I think both the Trust Company and the Bank had a bond department. Banco was going to assist in supplying bonds, underwriting bonds, and what I had reference to there is these banks running an insurance department, such as you will find in the case of Botts v. Ranny in the Court of Appeals of Kentucky—he was President of the Fidelity and Columbia Trust Company—they had a travel department. There were a great many of these so-called services that banks were rendering that Mr. Bean was referring to in that testimony I heard read this morning, that banks would have been glad to have taken out of their routine, and Banco was going to take over such departments as that, to relieve the banks of the insurance departments, travel departments and things like that. I can't recollect whether the Trust Company and the Bank had a travel department. Most of them do, I will say that. These so-called services, you would say, were unloaded on Banco.

Actually Banco did not take over these functions. Banco never got started to amount to anything because the break in the market came before it could get organized. Banco did not have an insurance department, a bond department, or a travel department, or a statistics department, or a trust department. It never got started on any of these departments. I never heard of any investment department —and no underwriting of bond issues. They never did any underwriting of bond issues. It never got started.

It did get started acquiring banks, and acquired about eleven of them. Before it had a dollar in its treasury, it started negotiations with banks, at least, they were reported. I didn't sit in on those negotiations, but negotiations were reported to the organizers of Banco as having taken place with banks in Cincinnati, Dayton, Ohio, Paducah, Louisville, and I don't know how many places—I think one in West Virginia. They did discuss Banco and its general outline informally, and there was no commitment that I know of until it is shown in the minutes where there would be a proposition received and accepted, but it was talked, I would say yes, they had that much negotiations.

I do not know whether they made any trade for these banks before the plan outlined in the July 19, 1929, letter was declared effective or before they had received any money. But I do know there was lots of talk as to what Banco would do or buy, but I never heard of any contract being made with anyone until after Banco was declared operative. September 11, 1929, was before the plan was declared effective and before any money was called for. Banco had been organized on July 16th and there had been a great many Trustees' Participation Certificates exchanged prior to this date, is my recollection. I think the first money was called to be paid the 1st of October.

My attention is called to the fact that the September 11th, 1929, minutes say "The President then discussed negotiations with Cincinnati Banks . . . whereupon, it was moved, seconded and carried, that the President be authorized to proceed in his discretion, with the matter of the Cincinnati Banks and the sale of stock—reporting to the Board the proposition tendered." I still say that was in the negotiations stage. The President was authorized, on the basis of that report, to proceed with negotiations. I think you will later find a resolution where he was authorized to close at a certain amount. My recollection is that the amount was $7,500,000, something like that. I imagine that cost us, in money and stock, about $7,000,000. That is my best recollection, but I am not going to tie myself to figures. You will find in those minutes, which are filed, when the President reported what it did take in stock or money to buy those banks, and where that sale was then approved or the purchase of them authorized. Speaking about the things actually done—I think that was one of the first important things they did, except collecting the money from the subscribers.

Banco was to have its own mortgage department under Mr. Fleece; he was picked out and consulted about that. The banks had mortgage departments. You would not call them—they had mortgage departments, but they hadn't a title plant and lawyers specializing in titles. They employed different examiners to pass on mortgages that had been approved by their executive committee, and a certain amount of definite property, and they had forms on which those mortgages were prepared both in the coupon form and note form, there was a great demand for them in trust estates and from customers of banks all over this territory.

I remember in the Akers case, when I was asked what the original plan in reference to the organization of Banco was, saying: "It was to have a business department to take over from the bank certain departments, such as foreign travel, and the bond department and mortgage department and other special features that had been introduced into the banking business." That is what I have just said. We selected Mr. Fleece to head that department, and as I told you, I was the one that called him into negotiations and he resigned as President of the Bankers Trust Company, about the first of August or the 1st of September, 1929, but he was in consultation long before he resigned. Nothing came of it except that I had to go on his notes and pay them. I presume I did not have to, but I did it as an accommodation. He signed and I signed as surety.

BancoKentucky Company never paid him any money. I never heard of them paying him any money. Neither the Directors of BancoKentucky Company, nor the officers of that company in an official capacity employed him for BancoKentucky Company. They merely negotiated with him and took his advice, that is all. That advice was given in contemplation of being head of a large Department. Mr. Fleece died about a year ago. When talking about this Department that was a preliminary negotiation. It materialized to the fact where he resigned the presidency of the Bankers Trust Company and consulted with the officers.

and directors of the BancoKentucky Company. His resignation was prompted by his hope or expectation that he would get a job.

Immediately following my answer to the question in the Directors' Case, which was just read me, I said that the purpose was to acquire a chain of banks in the Ohio Valley and banks in West Virginia, Ashland, Cincinnati, Dayton, Covington, Indianapolis, Louisville, Paducah and some place in Arkansas, or Missouri. I don't know whether the word "chain" of banks is a technical term, or whether you would rather say, a group of banks; but there was individual banks, in which each was to be owned by Banco and to act as a reservoir of credit.

The purpose was to own a substantial interest in banks, and in the Louisville Banks, the National Bank of Kentucky and Louisville Trust Company, a controlling interest. I expect they were going to own a controlling interest in the Security Bank of Louisville. I think they wanted a controlling interest—possibly two-thirds, in most banks because you know under most laws it takes 2/3rds to amend the charter and to do certain other things in regard to the bank. A majority interest, is enough to elect the officers and direct the policy. It was our purpose to always get at least 66 2/3% interest in every bank that went into it. My recollection is I did say that, and I think that is the wise thing to do when you are trying to own a bank.

With reference to the use of this word "chain" as my own expression of what they were organized to do, as I described it in the Akers case, I may have used the word "chain" banking in that testimony, but the purpose was to acquire an interest in a group of banks in the Ohio Valley and to let them withdraw from the Federal Reserve System and depend on Banco and do their own financing. It was figured that would save a tremendous amount of money to the banks that had to own stock in the Federal Reserve and keep large deposits in the Federal Reserve.

In the Akers case I said "It was to acquire a chain of banks in the Ohio Valley and banks in West Virginia, and Ashland, and Cincinnati, Dayton, and Covington, Indianapolis, Louisville, Paducah, and some place in Arkansas or Missouri, I have forgotten which place it was. They had a beautiful picture drawn of unification of banks where there were seasonal demands for an excess of cash, and this institution, the BancoKentucky Company, would supply and lend to the customers of the banks. The Banco-Kenfucky Company——" That is right.

I said "it was to start with a 50 per cent ownership in the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company, and eventually it would have between $20,000,000 and $25,000,000 assets to carry on its other functions including that of acquiring other banks or an interest in them. The plan you have seen frequently discussed as a development of chain banking throughout the country and by the greater banks in New York City."

I understood quite definitely in the beginning that its purpose was to have what I called a chain of banks, but I am not giving a definition of what you mean by group banks or chain banks, but I do know that you will find, probably, in my testimony and that of others, that in some respects Banco was to be a trading company, in some respects a finance company, and in some respects a holding company. I didn't mean to stress that it was any one to the exclusion of the other; it was doing a great many different things.

It was contemplated that BancoKentucky Company would engage in a more hazardous business than banks, state and national, were permitted to do under the banking laws. Banco could buy stock in corporations and a bank cannot. They could underwrite, and they could guarantee—now, there is a very limited extent to which a bank can guarantee, except when it is selling its own paper or the paper of others to other banks, but this was to be a broad guarantee. The National Bank of Kentucky could not buy the stock of the Security Bank of Louisville. A National Bank cannot buy bank stock; it can absorb it as a branch.

334—But you were undertaking, by having the National Bank of Kentucky organize this BancoKentucky Company, to do in that way what the bank could not do directly, were you not?

A.—I was not having the National Bank of Kentucky organize Banco. It was the outgrowth of consultation with the Louisville Trust Company Directors and the Directors of the Louisville National Bank & Trust Company which had unified with the—merged with the Louisville Trust Company, and in discussion with various large borrowers and brokers and others in Louisville as to the necessity in this locality of a bigger unit.

335—We understand that now, but I am directing your attention—you say the National Bank of Kentucky didn't—wasn't the one that initiated by formal resolution its Board of Directors and directed its President to cause this company to be organized——

Mr. VanWinkle (Interrupting): He is now asking for a resolution of the Board of Directors; if he is going to ask him about that, I will ask that he show it to the witness.

The Witness: I don't have to see it; I know that the first resolution adopted after all these discussions—I told you I attended seventeen meetings of people interested in organizing Banco—probably the first resolution appearing in a minute book was the one in which the plan was elaborated and the Board of Directors of the National Bank of Kentucky authorized its President to proceed along the lines that had been developed and discussed in all these group meetings.

336—Nobody attended these group meetings you spoke of except officers and directors of either the Louisville Trust Company or the National Bank of Kentucky, or large stockholders in those two banks, did they?

A.—That is my recollection; I can't say definitely.

337—There is no doubt that this plan was originated by the officers and directors and stockholders of the Louisville Trust Company and National Bank of Kentucky?

A.—That is my opinion.

338—And they undertook by this means to get control of bank stocks that they could not purchase directly—in the Louisville Trust Company, by reason of state laws; and in the National Bank of Kentucky, by reason of the national bank laws?

A.—You are repeating your question, and I am going to repeat my answer: Banco was an absolutely distinct and third corporation, organized with broad powers to do things beyond the powers of state banks and trust companies or national banks. It was supposed to be and intended to be a corporation with large cash resources, larger than the capital and surplus of any one of the banks. It was to seasonably help move borrowers from one bank to the other, and like a note broker, to scatter loans. "By scatter loans" I mean an apportionment of the loans among the banks.

If a customer in Louisville that had heretofore had to go to Chicago, New York or Philadelphia for his financial requirements, came to Banco, it would have alliances by which, like a note broker, it could endorse that paper and send it to banks that needed endorsement security.

341—You intended through the medium of Banco to make loans in larger amounts than were permitted to any individual bank?

A.—Absolutely, yes.

342. Didn't you also contemplate, right at the beginning, that BancoKentucky Company was to serve as a little Federal Reserve Bank for the banks that it controlled?

A.—I have stated that it was the intention of saving a great deal of money for these banks that was tied up in stock of the Federal Reserve and in the legal requirements of the Federal Reserve, so that BancoKentucky would have cash sufficient to accommodate its associate banks when they needed money, and they could keep their deposits with Banco instead of keeping it with the Federal Reserve. In other words, they would keep the money at home.

343—You know that a National Bank, by Federal Law, was required to keep a certain percentage of its deposits in the Federal Reserve Bank and to own stock in it, too, and that was true of the Louisville Trust Company?

A.—As long as they were a member of the Federal Reserve they had to own stock and keep deposits there.

344—Did you ever make application for the Louisville Trust Company to go out of the Federal Reserve System?

A.—No; I did not.

345—Did you ever make application for any one of the eleven banks that formed the BancoKentucky Company chain to go out of the Federal Reserve System?

A.—Banco never got a good start. The market broke—— 346 (Interrupting)—Just answer that question.

A.—No, they didn't.

Mr. Marx: I think it would shorten it if he would just say yes or no.

Mr. Van Winkle: Answer it and then explain.

The Court: He has answered it; he said they didn't.

The Witness: There might be an exception; they did start to denationalize the National Bank of Kentucky.

347—They started to denationalize the National Bank of Kentucky before the stock market break in October, 1929?

A.—Yes.

348—And they applied for and they took out a state charter for a state bank, didn't they?

A.—Mr. Vaughan obtained that for the National Bank of Kentucky.

349—Now, the new state bank which was going to take over the National Bank after denationalization, did it apply for entry into the Federal Reserve System?

A.—I knew it had to if it wanted——

350 (Interrupting)—I didn't ask you that; I asked you if it did.

A.—I understand it did.

351—You say "It had to": Isn't it a fact that a state bank does not have to belong to the Federal Reserve System?

A.—That is true.

352—A state bank is required, however, to have the same reserves as a national bank?

A.—If it is a member of the Federal Reserve.

353—Regardless of whether it is a member of the Federal Reserve?

A.—Under the laws of Kentucky, the reserves are kept the same in a state bank, the same as in a national bank.

354—That is the amount of the reserve?

A.—The amount of the reserve is kept on a parity.

355—But the state bank has an option, has it not, of keeping its reserve with some other state bank, or keeping it at the Federal Reserve, or keeping it in cash in its vault?

A.—That is true as to state banks.

356—This new state bank that you organized to take over the National Bank of Kentucky did not avail itself of the option to keep its reserves in a state institution, but immediately applied for admission into the Federal Reserve System?

A.—That is my understanding. I didn't do it, I may have signed something that was necessary for stockholders to sign.

Since I was serving on three boards of directors it was very difficult for me to distinguish what I did at one and what I did at the other. I so testified in the record you are reading from. It was difficult for me to distinguish between what I did at the Louisville Trust Company, what I did at the meeting of BancoKentucky Company and what I did at a meeting of the National Bank of Kentucky. What I meant by that was that it was difficult for me to recollect which particular event happened in which Board, what I heard in one Board, and what I heard in a different Board.

I wrote that letter on April 30th regarding services with respect to the Kentucky Board of Education's Trustees' Certificates and sent this bill to Mr. Jones as Vice-President of the National Bank of Kentucky and asked him to see whether it was due from the Bank of Kentucky or the Trustees or from Banco. I said I do not know whether this should be charged to the BancoKentucky Company or the Bank of Kentucky or the Trustees.

Said letter and bill were received in evidence and marked for identification "Plaintiff's Exhibit 163."

If I ever charged for trying to get Kentucky Statute 581 changed, I have forgot it. When we organized Banco and contemplated that it was going to have more than 66 2/3 per cent of the stock of the Louisville Trust Company and National Bank of Kentucky, of course, we knew of Section 581 of the Kentucky Statutes, which prohibits any person directly or indirectly from holding or owning more than half of the capital stock of a bank. I knew of that provision and I discussed it with General Cammack and O. S. Denny, Banking Commissioner. I wrote that letter addressed to Mr. James B. Brown or Mr. Charles F. Jones.

In it I said, "It would certainly be much safer if the above law could be repealed in the interest of chain banking." I may have used "chain banking" in the current use at that time. I still am not able to define it, except where one bank or company owns an interest in several banks it is, in my opinion, chain banking. This is a letter that I wrote. I doubt very much if I ever made any charge for it. I was calling attention to the fact that I thought they ought to have a two-thirds interest, instead of just a majority interest, when they acquired an interest in banks. I was also referring in that letter to the fact, that had been discussed then, that they might denationalize the National Bank of Kentucky and merge the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company into one institution, which would dispense with the Trustees under the Trust Agreement of April 22, 1927. That was referred to in that letter, as I recall it.

In that letter I said, "The only plausible excuse we have at the present time for the BancoKentucky Company owning such a large per cent of the Trustees' Certificates is that BancoKentucky Company is not 'directly or indirectly' owning more than one-half of the capital stock of other institutions, and, furthermore, counting upon the non-action by the State Banking Commissioner or Attorney General to enforce this provision." That is only a part of that letter. This letter, without reading it in full into the record, refers to the fact that the six Trustees appear of record as the holders of the stock, and that had been ruled upon as not being in violation of this section. This is the same thing that applies in the Citizens Union and the Fidelity & Columbia, and the same thing in the First National Bank and Kentucky Title Company.

It is the same thing that was done on the recommendation of the Banking Commissioners in regard to the Louisville Title Company ownership of the Title Guaranty Trust Company—by trustees. Now, then, it was contemplated as this letter shows, and as I recall it—here it is: "The question suggested becomes doubly important when, as and if, the National Bank of Kentucky denationalizes into the Bank of Kentucky, a state corporation," and then it merged with the Louisville Trust Company, which would dispense with the necessity for the six Trustees. I told Mr. Brown and Mr. Jones it was a very serious thing if they denationalized the National Bank of Kentucky and merged with the Louisville Trust Company and dispensed with the Trustees.

Now, what I have said in the presence of General Cammack—was that the Banking Commissioner had this matter up in connection with the Louisville Title Company. That brought it sharply to my attention and occasioned me to volunteer this letter. The Banking Commissioner is the only one who would regulate the Louisville Trust Company in this regard, and the Attorney General, by quo warranto, is the only one who can enforce the disposition of the excess of stock by suspending dividends on the stock held in excess of that provided in this section of the Statute. Therefore, I thought it was wise to have that section—that special provision repealed. In certain contingencies I was fearful competitors would raise the question, too.

I wrote the letter marked "Plaintiff's Exhibit 164" on February 14, 1930, marked "Important" and sent by messenger to Mr. Charles F. Jones, Vice-President of the National Bank of Kentucky—it says "Bank of Kentucky" but I meant National Bank of Kentucky. It refers to about three different topics, more or less connected with legislation or with the action of the State Board of Education in regard to their transferring of Trustees' Participation Certificates for BancoKentucky stock. The latter part of the letter refers to my strong recommendation that the section of the statutes we have been discussing should be repealed, referring to the fact that there was a legislative jam and a good deal of feeling in the Legislature, and while the Banking Commissioner was favorably disposed, the Attorney General was disposed to keep a hands off policy.

I say here the Jurisprudence Committee of the Kentucky Bankers' Association had adopted a hands off policy because some of the members of the committee had other irons in the fire and did not want to complicate the legislative situation. In this letter I said, "The suggested way for enforcing this law is to deny voting power to the person owning more than a majority of the stock, and to suspend dividends thereon until the excess stock is disposed of, and there may be other remedies, and it does not take much argument to see how seriously such a threat, if instigated by competitors, would be to the BancoKentucky Company." That was quoting or paraphrasing what the Banking Commissioner and the Attorney General said would be the remedy when, as and if, they got ready to enforce it.

I said the only remedy was to bring a quo warranto proceeding by the Attorney General against the recalcitrant bank. The Banking Commissioner was not disposed to make a complaint and the Attorney General was not disposed to bring a quo warranto proceeding. All of them knew Banco was holding more than 50 per cent of the Louisville Trust Company. It had no application to the National Bank of Kentucky. Banco was holding more than 50 per cent of the Security Bank. It acquired that later. I don't know whether it was before or after this letter. The Ashland Bank was a national bank. This law does not apply to national banks and does not apply, so far as I could find out, in any other state. The Mechanics Trust Company of Paducah was a state bank. We owned more than 50 per cent of that. We got that just before the close after this letter was written. The Newport and Covington, Kentucky, banks were both state banks. We owned more than 50 per cent of the stock of those banks. We were counting on non-action by the State Banking Commissioner and the Attorney General to enforce this provision. I had already said the Banking Commissioner was favorably disposed to this company, this holding.

I thought Banco should acquire two-thirds of the bank and I knew of this provision of the Statute and I discussed it with the Attorney General and Banking Commissioner. I thought if we could get the cooperation of the Jurisprudence Committee of the Kentucky Bankers' Association, it would be the wise thing to repeal this provision; I was disturbed about it.

The BancoKentucky Company was not violating the law itself, and under its charter it could hold any amount of stock. It was not violating the law as to the National Bank of Kentucky or any national bank, but the Banking Commissioner could insist that a state bank—under that section compel the stockholder to reduce his holdings to fifty per cent or less.

I advised the officers and directors of BancoKentucky Company that in my opinion as a lawyer, insofar as their ownership of more than 50 per cent of the state banks was concerned, the Statute says "nor shall any person, directly or indirectly, hold or own more than one-half of the capital stock of a state banking corporation." I didn't pay any attention, when it says "person" that it didn't apply to a corporation—it says "any person." I did not advise them that in my opinion Banco was not a person. I paid no attention to it.

I advised the officers and directors of the BancoKentucky Company that this was a violation of the law and that, therefore, they ought to make every effort to get the law repealed. But there was no penalty except to compel them to reduce their holdings. I said in the letter that an additional penalty was to stop them from voting the stock until they disgorged any in excess of fifty per cent. Another penalty was to stop dividends until they disposed of the excess above 50 per cent. There is no penalty on the stock holder except that. There is no jail or fine. It is an indirect action.

Preemptive rights of Banco stockholders were abolished by the amendment of January 14, 1930. As set out in the minutes of the BancoKentucky stockholders meeting, a reason for abolishing the preemptive rights was that the stock was selling at a considerable premium above $25 per share on the Chicago Stock Exchange and the Company wanted to sell its stock to diversified people and did not want its own stockholders taking preemptive right to buy and turning right around and selling it in the market. There would have been rights if this had not been repealed. I presume that in offering rights to subscribe to stockholders we could have fixed the price at which they would have been permitted to subscribe, but that is still debatable in Kentucky. We did fix the price when we organized Banco at $25 per share; the par was $10 and the trading price was fixed at $25.

At the time this amendment to the charter was designed I am very confident Banco was selling above $25 a share, but at the time the statutory meeting was held, I don't know what the price was. This was done on January 14, 1930. The stock was selling at 21⅞ths. The day before it had been $22. At the time these notices were put out it was much higher. You have the high, low and closing prices here, and it varied from day to day. I don't recall what day the notices were put out, but this stock had been up as high as 30-33½. It was decided by the Board to do this thing before December. There had been action taken long before January 14, 1930. The first action was taken on the amendment December 27, 1929. Apparently at no time in the month of December was the stock above 22 or 23, but it had been as high as 33. At no time during the month of November was the stock over approximately 25. Whatever the exhibit shows is correct.

Statement by the Chicago Stock Exchange, showing transactions in BancoKentucky Company stock from October 1, 1929, to January 8, 1931, received in evidence and marked "Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 165."

I would have to see the books to see if we sold any of the additional shares exempted from the preemptive rights of stockholders. This is the Stock Register. I had an idea we had sold more than 2,000,000, but the books are the best evidence. We were authorized to sell 2,000,000 and I think we went above it in sales.

The reason we wanted to get the stockholders' preemptive rights exempted, or one of the reasons, was that we intended to exchange BancoKentucky stock for more bank stock, or maybe for Caldwell & Company. Caldwell & Company was in contemplation in December or January—not that particular trade, but something similar to that, in the development of the company. In their chronological order at that time, we did not have in contemplation that we wanted to exchange BancoKentucky Company stock for more bank stock. We wanted to sell more stock for cash, to develop its development.

419—You never did sell any more?

A.—You heard about the break in the stock market?

420—The break was before this?

A.—We had decided about this amendment to it even before the stock market break.

421—But the time you did it—the first record of it was December 27th, and action was taken January 14th, and the stock market break had occurred in the previous October?

A.—October 27th or 28th, and then again in November. You couldn't sell anything. The Supreme Court recognizes that as an established fact, known to all men.

422—With that condition staring you in the face, you authorized an issue of 3,000,000 additional shares?

A.—Yes, that was to sell that stock when we could. We thought——

I don't know whether we ever did offer it for sale. I think they did sell more than 2,000,000 shares. Regarding sales of Banco to the public in a public offering, Caldwell & Company was to sell the stock they got and put it back in their company. We had a half interest in Caldwell, or thought we had, or would have. I don't know whether Caldwell sold any or not. I heard this man from his office testify that they sold some, but not a great deal.

I was at all times a director of Banco. I don't recall any resolution of the Directors authorizing the offering of any of these 3,000,000 shares for sale to the public, but that was the purpose of the amendment, obviously.

It may have been that one of the purposes of issuing this 3,000,000 shares free from stockholders' preemptive rights was in order that we could exchange it for bank stock. It may be that they were going to buy more banks. We had discussed other banks. After that, I think they bought the banks in Paducah and maybe in Ashland and the Security Bank in Louisville and paid for it partly by stock. Sometimes it would be done by the exchange of Banco stock for bank stock, like in the Security Bank, partly stock and partly cash. In the Paducah banks, my recollection is that it was all swapping stock.

Whatever the minutes show, the contract with the Nation Bank of Paducah to have been, is what we did. I can't remember the thousands of shares traded on these different banks. It is my recollection that we purchased the Ashland Bank altogether by the exchange of Banco stock for stock of the Ashland Bank. There may have been some cash paid. There was $37.50 paid. My recollection is that the Mechanics' Bank at Paducah was purchased altogether by an exchange of Banco stock for the stock of that bank. If that is what the record shows, we traded 29,294 shares of Banco and $217,000 in cash for 2,713 out of 3,000 shares of that bank's stock.

That increased the capital of Banco for the purpose of carrying on its general functions, and they expected to use that stock at $25 a share for sale or exchange for stock of banks or Caldwell & Company or to sell it and create what they had always hoped to have, a reserve cash fund of $25,000,000 to $30,000,000. I think it would follow that we could have raised the money by selling it to our own stockholders just as well as to anybody who was not a stockholder. I don't know why they put that preemptive right in there, except it was to prevent people from taking advantage of a rise in the market, having rights that somebody else would have to pay for. They wanted to use that new stock where it would do the most good for Banco, and not to give the current stockholders a chance of buying rights or selling rights at a profit where the profit would not go to Banco.

I said in the Akers case "If the preemptive rights came in the general properties of the Bank would be jeopardized." Only to the extent I have just stated, that if there was any profit in selling that stock we wanted it to go to Banco, in its treasury, rather than to go as a bonus to the then stockholders who might sell it at a premium.

I think that the bank's borrowings were read to the directors every week and that they read a statement of the deposits.

Caldwell & Company's statement was read to us by Mr. Brown from a memorandum he had, and it did show that Caldwell & Company had some interest in four or five banks and four or five insurance companies, but it has been so long ago that I don't remember which now. The report also showed it had a large amount of state bonds.

I remember making the statement, "It was said that he owned banks that were in a chain of banks convenient for the BancoKentucky Company and that he was the outstanding investment banker in the South and had contacts with innumerable customers who would be valuable customers to the BancoKentucky Company."

When I say that a statement of Caldwell & Company was read to me, I do not mean that I ever saw a financial statement issued by Caldwell & Company. All I knew about it was from sheets of paper that Mr. Brown had received from Mr. Caldwell and read to us. It was a pad of paper, the statement which he had got from Rogers Caldwell, and he read it off to the board. If my recollection is correct, it showed $30,000,00 assets, $18,000,000 liabilities and a net worth of $12,000,000. Caldwell was guaranteeing up to $9,000,000 net. That was rather late in May 1930. I can't recall the exact date—it may have been the early part of May, it came up, but it was in May 1930. After one contract had been rejected another contract came back and the last one was revised, and I think it was executed about the 29th day of May, 1930. The meeting decided to take a chance without having any audit or seeing any statement of Caldwell. I think they acted directly on what Mr. Brown reported Caldwell furnished him with without having an audit. There had been discussion of an audit before that, but I think they abandoned the idea.

I remember testifying before the Jefferson County Grand Jury in the March Term, 1931. I have testified seven times in these cases; this is the eighth time, usually on different topics. I went before the Grand Jury at one time, I think, in regard to the $2,000,000 loan out of Banco's money wasn't it? I don't remember that this relates to the Caldwell deal. I said at this meeting, May 29, 1930, that some were still insisting that we were taking a chance in not having an audit.

I don't know anything about BancoKentucky Company's going into the market and buying up its own shares of stock. I have heard it. I heard at the trial that something of that sort had happened, but I didn't know anything about it at the time. I heard they spent two and a half million dollars in this period buying up their own stock either in connection with the indictment or trial, or in some other way. I did hear some testimony along that line, but I have no personal knowledge about it whatever. I know absolutely nothing about their buying a block of stock prior to the end of June, 1930.

When we sat down in a directors' meeting of the National Bank of Kentucky, we got a clip sheet. It was the daily report of the loans committee and those six days were clipped together with some kind of fastening, and they did call them "clip sheets." They were fastened together loosely like some of your books. They have been mistakenly reported as "slip sheets." There was one sheet for each day, showing the action of the loan committee on the loans that it had passed on or had been passed on by individual officers up to five thousand dollars. I think anything over five thousand dollars had been passed on by five out of the eight members of the loan committee. They met twice a day and their daily report was mimeographed separately and then put together. They covered one week's time, from one meeting to the next meeting of the board. These loan committee reports were handed to each and every Director as they entered the room. At each weekly meeting we had before us a complete list of all loans of any amount or the renewals with the collateral, the surety, and the name of the company.

Those clip sheets were taken up and destroyed at the end of each meeting so as to keep the affairs of the Bank confidential. They were so afraid they would get in the hands of the public that they were destroyed, but on two occasions they let me take them with me. I filed the only ones I had in the directors' suit. If I can find one of the clip sheets I will do it.

I was one of the lawyers on the Board, and all the lawyers on the board of BancoKentucky Company were requested to read the Caldwell contract. I did go out to Mr. Brown's house about ten o'clock at night, upon a telephone request. Mr. Carroll and Mr. Vaughan were already there. I was out there the night Mr. Caldwell and a man by the name of Mr. Goodloe and some other gentleman from Caldwell & Company were there. I think Mr. Carroll or Mr. Vaughan or some of them actually wrote down some amendments in long hand. I know that the Board meeting that afternoon, May 29th, 1930, instructed us definitely what to do, and I think we tried to do what we were told to do, but whether it came back before another meeting of the Board, I simply can't recollect, without looking at the minutes. That deal with Caldwell was completed without our Board or myself having any other knowledge of what Caldwell's assets were than what Mr. Brown told us Caldwell had told him. I would like to say not only told him, but gave him a memorandum which he was reading from. I saw the memorandum on Mr. Brown's desk. I did not look at the figures. Mr. Brown said they were figures Caldwell had furnished to him. It was Brown's memorandum of what Caldwell had furnished to him. The figures show Caldwell had twelve million dollars over liabilities.—Over nine million dollars. He had a balance in excess of nine million dollars and claimed to have twelve million dollars net.

According to Mr. Brown, Caldwell had refused to have an audit made until the trade was agreed upon, because he did not wish to submit his private papers to outsiders until the trade was consummated. And the trade would not be consummated in full until there was an audit. The stock was held in escrow pending adjustment from the audit. The basis of the issuance of Banco stock was $25.00 a share.

I have read my testimony before the Grand Jury and if you will point out what you want me to refer to or refresh my recollection from, I will do it.

I testified that at this meeting of May 29th at Mr. Brown's house, one of the corrections that was made was that they were not going to deliver any stock until they got a final audit, and they were going to hold back 250,000 shares out of 800,000 shares and 100,000 shares was a wash sale whereby the BancoKentucky Company was buying the Kentucky Wagon Works, which had been a sore spot in the National Bank of Kentucky for years. I see it in this Grand Jury report. I think, as a matter of fact they held out 200,000 shares instead of 250,000. I was testifying at the Grand Jury without previous notice and without any record, but I do know they expected an audit to be made.

With the exception in the correction that 200,000 shares instead of 250,000 shares were held out, my testimony before the Grand Jury was correct. It was my then, off-hand interpretation of the contract, but the contract speaks for itself.

The transaction with respect to the 100,000 shares of Banco stock and the Kentucky Wagon Manufacturing Company item was not, according to my interpretation, a wash sale. Someone had previously referred to it—I think one of the examiners had used the word—and I was adopting the word of somebody else.

The contract shows that as a supplement to the main contract Caldwell & Company was taking the Wagon Company to be liquidated by it, or refinanced by it, and he gave—Banco gave to him 100,000 shares of Banco stock, which he delivered to the Bank on consideration of the—of all its right in the Wagon Company. He was to liquidate it without cost and the proceeds were to come back to redeem that stock. I don't know what a wash sale is. It was in a circle.

Caldwell was to hold the Kentucky Wagon Company for Banco's benefit but the Banco stock was to be sold and redeemed when the Wagon Company was sold, as I recall it—I can't remember how that worked out.

With reference to whether the contract was not to be consummated or dividends paid on the Banco stock until the committee had passed on the guaranteed values, the Directors, on motion of Sam Stone, appointed a committee to assist the President in appraising the assets of Caldwell. That committee was composed of George Boomer, Bob Vaughan and C. F. Jones. That audit was to be reported back to the Board in connection with the consummation of the sale and delivery of the stock, all of it. I heard Mr. Vaughan say the committee never met. I don't know whether they met or not. They never reported back any appraisal of assets. I did hear later that they had taken back 200,000 shares because Caldwell was not ready for any audit until the end of the year—they took back an additional 200,000 shares because of his desire to postpone the audit. My recollection is that 400,000 shares of the 800,000 shares were taken back. As to the 400,000 shares Caldwell held, dividends were not to be paid on that until it was sold and there was an audit.

The conditions under which the stock was delivered were never fulfilled by Caldwell. You remind me of the way Jim Brown said there wasn't a consummated contract. I thought it was a contract—he brought a lot of this trouble on by saying we didn't have a trade with Caldwell & Company and I thought we did.

I saw a statement of the BancoKentucky Company which showed five million or six million cash which I thought was being spotted around with the banks in the BancoKentucky alliance. That is what I thought at that time. With reference to my statement: "There was a good deal of noise in the board meeting so when they read these minutes I don't suppose that anybody ever listened to the minutes and when we got through reading it in the board there would be a regular buzz like a ladies' reception going on," appearing in my testimony before the Grand Jury, may I explain to you exactly how that meeting was conducted and what I meant by that statement.

The Court: Go ahead and explain.

There were about thirty or more men on the directors. They were all friendly and all in different lines of businesses. When they gathered they would give them these clip sheets and some of them would look at it and others would talk over current events and other business. There was a good deal of talking. The minutes were more or less stereotyped, as you can see by looking at the minute books. If there was anything important came up the noise would quiet down, but in the first five or ten minutes before the hour of meeting, and until five or ten minutes after the hour of meeting there would be discussions on the Loan Committee reports. The reading of the minutes was conducted in the usual way, just like they read the minutes in court, or in any other organization. When I talked there about a hum or buzz in the meeting, I meant when the directors came in and passed the time of day and looked at the clip sheets—I would ask Mr. Akers or Angereau Gray "What about this loan?" or "this borrower." In that group practically every name appearing on a clip sheet would be known to someone. If I had come to a particular name, I didn't know, I would say, "Judge Marx, do you know anything about this person?" and he would say, "No, but Alf Kreiger does."

516—That isn't an answer, that is a speech.

A.—You asked me if there was a noise.

517—Did you make this answer: "I don't suppose anybody ever listened to the minutes. Most of the things were very small. Nobody paid much attention to them. Every single one of those loans was given to us on a mimeographed list. When you got through reading it in the Board there would be a buzz like a ladies' reception going on. Many things may have happened there that I didn't hear. That meeting was pretty large. I think there were thirty-four of us there. They would be scattered all around the room."

A.—I testified that way before the Grand Jury when they jumped me up without any notice of what they wanted.

Before the Grand Jury I testified that the reason for the Caldwell deal was: "Of course, in the shake-down it turns out that we swapped them 400,000 shares of what turned out to be worthless stock for 10,000 shares of worthless stock." That is what I thought was the fact.

I was one of the committee of three that went to Cincinnati to dispose of the Cincinnati banks. The same day the National Bank of Kentucky closed we were advised of a run on the Cincinnati banks, the Pearl-Market and the Brighton Bank. Bob Vaughan had not gone to Paducah or Ashland at that time. I say that because I know I telephoned to him and read the contract we were making up there over the telephone to Bob Vaughan and his stenographer.

The closing of the Louisville Trust Company and the National Bank of Kentucky was coincidental. About five o'clock on Monday, the 17th, I think it was, we were advised that there were runs on both the Cincinnati banks. We heard about Covington when we arrived in Cincinnati. I don't think we had any in Newport. I suppose after Louisville, we had most of Banco's money invested in Cincinnati, that is my recollection. We left Louisville about ten or eleven that night and arrived in Cincinnati about three thirty in the morning. I don't know what Banco's statements showed at that time. We were sent there with general instructions to make a report which you have seen in connection with the suit against the Cincinnati Clearing House Association. That was about as near res gestae or a spontaneous response as a man could give you, because we had been up three or four days and nights. I dictated that after we returned, and you have that report.

We sold the banks for money, and considerable money, and in my report I said if we had let them be closed, there might be a double liability on the BancoKentucky Company. At the time we went to Cincinnati I wouldn't call the only assets we had, that were free from pledge, a few shares of bank stock, in considering the amount of bank stock that we owned.

The report was made, approved and adopted. It was as accurate as I could make it at the time and I suggest that that be made a part of the record.

The Court: Make that report a part of the record here.

It is in the report that one of the reasons we made the sale was that we thought from the facts that, unless we did, we would not only have lost the whole seven million dollars, but would have lost the double liability which would have amounted to $500,000, or $1,500,000. I don't recall that we talked about double liability that night. They did say that the Pearl Market Bank was in bad condition. Did I say we talked about it that night in my testimony?

(The witness was handed a record.)

I so testified in a suit of Banco v. Cincinnati Clearing House, where Judge Marx had me on cross-examination, that we did talk about what we might lose if we did not take the Clearing House proposition, and that is in the report. That was a liability which I did not want to fall on Banco when we sold the banks.

I owned 50 shares of Louisville Trust Company stock prior to the unification. My recollection is that I kept my original ten shares that I got in 1911 and turned in 40 and got back 10 shares of National Bank of Kentucky stock and 30 shares in Trustees' Participation Certificates.

It was probably handled this way. I turned in my 50 shares of Louisville Trust Company stock at $100 par and got back 10 qualifying shares in the Trust Company and 10 qualifying shares in the National Bank of Kentucky, which were issued to me by the Trustee, and 30 Trustees' Certificates. I signed a contract with the Trustees, reciting, in effect that in the event I ceased to be a member of the Board, by death, or resignation or for any other reason, or if my stock was attached or attempted to be attached by any creditor, that stock would immediately go back to the Trustees and they were to issue to me Trustees' Certificates in lieu thereof. But I did think I kept my original ten shares of Louisville Trust Company stock, but it was under the agreement, and I did under the agreement deliver that to the Trustees.

I did have physical possession of shares of the Trust Company and the Bank but I returned them to the Trustees. My recollection is that I did not have that stock but I had physical access to it. I could only take out Trustees' Certificates. If I wished to transfer that stock, they had the first claim on it by option, as agents holding it, but I had the equivalent in Trustees' Participation Certificates. If I had wanted to transfer to you ten shares of stock in the National Bank of Kentucky while I was director of that bank I could not have done so by reason of the Trust Agreement I had signed. Under the Trust Agreement I had given the first option on it to the Trustees.

I remember no such agreement in writing,—that if the Trustees should vote me out of the directorship that I would exchange my qualifying shares of Bank stock for T. P. C.'s. But that was the way I construed that Trust Agreement and the receipts which they gave when they took possession of my stock. That is my construction of it, and my recollection of what I intended to do. I remember no such agreement in writing unless it is in the Trust Agreement. That was the spirit of the proposition. And the understanding all the way around.

When I ceased to be a director of the National Bank of Kentucky, they returned to me a certificate for ten shares of National Bank of Kentucky stock and I transferred it to Trustees' receipts, or BancoKentucky, I can't remember which. Probably it was to Trustees first and then Banco.

With reference to the Trustees' minutes of June 14th, Plf's Ex. 8 "Agreement in re: Return of Qualifying Shares," I imagine if there was any such agreement as that referred to in these minutes of the Trustees and I was asked to sign it, I did, because that was exactly what I was expected to do and thought I was doing under the Trust Agreement. I never expected to keep out my Louisville Trust Company and National Bank of Kentucky stock if I resigned as a director. I had a receipt that called for return to me of the stock if I had demanded it, but I would have been breaking my agreement.

The Court: Did you have any control over those certificates in the light of the agreement at the time you were a director?

A.—I did not; the Trustees held my certificates.

The Court: When you ceased to be a director, by reason of any fact ceased to be a director, you must necessarily have accepted T. P. C.'s for that bank stock?

A.—I understood that to be my agreement and I would live up to it.

I don't understand what you mean by asking if we have a long list of interlocking directors among the Banco chain. If you mean there were directors in these separate banks that were acquired, there were, but I don't recall that any of those were ever elected on the board of the Louisville Trust Company or the National Bank of Kentucky.

I see the minutes, Exhibit 23, minutes of the Banco-Kentucky Company meeting of January 20, 1930. I was present. They refer to the fact that Mr. ZurSchmiede, the Secretary-Treasurer of Banco, was authorized to endorse certificates for 340 shares of stock of the Pearl-Market Bank to furnish qualifying shares for men by the names of Lewis, Laffoon, Mitchell, Mosler, Heisacher and James B. Brown as directors in that Bank and also a certificate for one hundred shares in the Brighton Bank to qualify Mr. Helmers and Mr. Brown. I imagine that was done. That is two banks on which Mr. Brown was on the board besides the Louisville Trust Company and the National Bank of Kentucky. I don't recollect whether Mr. Brown was a director of the Peoples Liberty Bank and Trust Company in Covington. I don't know whether he was a director of the Central Savings Bank and Trust Company of Covington. He was given qualifying shares by that resolution but whether he ever qualified or not, I don't know. I don't know whether Mr. Brown bought any of these shares of any of these banks. I don't know anything about how it was handled except what you have shown me in the minutes.

The Federal Reserve Board will qualify the same man to be a director in various banks. That was true as to the one they held up, Mr. Dodd was in other banks, and Mr. Boomer in the Security Bank, but they got additional information—as to how far the Board may exercise its authority in permitting the same person to be a director in different institutions I don't recall without studying the statutes. The Federal Reserve Act forbids interlocking directorates unless permission is obtained. That is what the law says, and that is the reason we had them qualified, in 1927 for the Louisville Trust Company and National Bank of Kentucky.

Regarding the other banks owned by BancoKentucky Company, I haven't the remotest idea about what these several banks did about qualifying their directors. Each bank would take it up themselves. I never saw the letter where the chief National Bank Examiner, on May 20, 1930, called the attention of the National Bank of Kentucky to the fact that its President was a director in three National banks and six State banks, members of the Federal Reserve System, four of which has assets exceeding five million dollars. I was a director at that time and I do not recall of ever having heard of it before.

I think I saw the pamphlet, Plf's Ex. No. 76, giving the banks owned by the BancoKentucky Company, the directors of the Bank, a financial statement of each bank, and a consolidated statement of all the banks. It was dated March 10, 1930, which was after I ceased to be a director of the National Bank of Kentucky. I think I saw that pamphlet in connection with the Caldwell trade in the next two months after that. My attention at no time was directed to how many banks or trust companies Mr. Brown was a director in. It never occurred to me to check that.

I knew Mr. Maurice Galvin of Covington. I found out when we sold these banks that he was a director in both of them. I suppose he had been for many years, from the way he talked. I haven't any independent knowledge about Mr. Galvin being selected by the BancoKentucky Board to act as its nominee on the board of both the Cincinnati banks and both the Covington banks, or that we issued stock to qualify him. No one could check this list without making a table like Mr. White has done and check each man's name through each of these boards. I know nothing whatever about Mr. Galvin not acquiring any qualifying shares of those banks, unless it is in the minutes, saying he had transferred shares, and I was present—I would probably be presumed to know it, but I have absolutely no independent recollection on that subject whatsoever.

There was no change in the general plan covered by the prospectus of July 19th, 1929, after the prospectus was sent out, except the amendment to the charter that has been testified to. I think that it would be presumed that when we signed that Prospectus we intended to do the things that were described therein.

I said in my testimony that I have never heard of the matter of double liability. I never saw Plf's Ex. No. 27; I never heard of this letter from Mr. Bean to Mr. Brown or what purports to be a draft of the letter to the stockholders. If any such letters ever ever passed, I never heard of them, and none was ever sent to me or to anyone else I ever heard of. The answer is "No," but I want to explain it. I now read the letter, though, and I can see old Dick Bean was a salesman. I never saw or heard of a letter written by Mr. Hayes. I never saw Pltf.'s Ex. 37-1, or any similar letter, or similar to Pltf.'s Ex. 37-3.

594—You knew about Mr. Ormsby's trip to New York in an effort to raise some money for the National Bank of Kentucky in October of 1929, didn't you?

A.—I have a recollection that he made the trip.

595—And that at that time Banco had to borrow a million dollars for the use of the National Bank of Kentucky, didn't it?

A.—Whatever the minutes show on that subject, I agree to.

My recollection is that the T. P. C.'s, when split into one-tenth of their former value, went to about 45 or 46 on the market. The last purchase I made was on the basis of $426.00 a share, but that was a long time before Banco was under way. When Banco was organized and the plan of July 18th arranged, the price of Banco was fixed so as to yield a further profit on the exchange.

You show me Exhibit 30, a letter addressed by Mr. Bean, "To Our Directors" and marked "Confidential" on the stationery of the Louisville Trust Company. I was then a director of the Trust Company. I still say Richard Bean was a good salesman, and he was thinking about Banco sales at that time, August 13th, 1929. I don't know where Dick Bean got those figures or how he arrived at this per cent. I don't know whether the letter was circulated among the directors. It is marked "Confidential." He may have just read it. In this he says there was an increase in value of 176% in ten years besides paying dividends regularly. That is when they were talking about selling Banco stock. I have no doubt Dick Bean put that out, because, as I say, he was a fine salesman, but I don't know where he got his figures.

I looked over Mr. Bean's testimony before the Board of Education of the State of Kentucky. I was called up there and that testimony has been written out and was shown to me and I read it to get the general drift. I don't even recollect that I read in his testimony that 1000 dollars invested in bank stock in 1929 equalled $2,766.00 at this time. I went up there and they asked me to look at it and elaborate upon it. I did. I didn't pay any attention to Dick Bean's computation of the profits on a percentage basis.

In February, 1930, there was an underwriting in Louisville of $600,000. first mortgage bonds of the Louisville Railway Company. I think my partner, Mr. John Doolan, was interested in that some way for the Fidelity. I was not a director in the National Bank of Kentucky, and don't know what they did. I was on the Advisory Committee which directed the voting of all the stock in the Bank, but that didn't mean I kept up with all the things that the National Bank of Kentucky did in the way of loans, underwriting and refinancing. I don't think Banco did participate in that underwriting. I don't know how those people were related; they probably had some prior commitments. I was a director of the Louisville Trust Company and have some recollection that the Trust Company participated in that underwriting in the same Syndicate, but no detailed information of it. I say Yes, the Louisville Trust Company did participate in that underwriting, but the details I do not recall.

Some times there were severe declines in the deposits reported in the National Bank of Kentucky, but in the meantime there would be substantial recoveries. That is what I meant by a fluctuation. I think that $56,000,000 was probably the peak of deposits in February, 1927, in round figures. That was before I went on the Bank board. In April they were $46,000,000. In the next year it was still $46,000,000.00, some of it. It was down to about $38,000,000 at the end of 1929. I still say it fluctuated up and down. That table speaks for itself, but I have given the reasons that were given to us as to why it went down. There were about five reasons. Whatever the figures show is probably correct. I can't remember those figures. I didn't know that the bank started with $56,000,000 in 1927 and wound up in the month before the Bank closed, so as to eliminate the run, with $35,000,000.

The deposits are debts of the Bank. Banks do want deposits, and they do fluctuate up and down seasonally, by withdrawals of large deposits to pay bond issues or otherwise. They do fluctuate in the country banks. If you ask me did I take the complete chain of statements of deposits, week by week, to see whether the general trend was upward or downward, I say I never did do that, but the figures show the trend was downward, but with fluctuations up and down. I don't think there was a general trend downward in the Louisville Trust Company.

I was a director of the Trust Company from 1911 to its close. If the Trust Company Directors' Minutes say I attended the meeting of Sept. 12, 1930, I was present. Mr. Bean made the report to the Board that there had been a slump of about nine per cent and that it was not very encouraging to lose about a million and a half deposits, or about 9% with the other banks in Louisville increasing their deposits from 3% to 5%. I think Mr. Bean was probably giving the Directors a pep talk. He was a good salesman and he wanted the Directors to go out and get deposits. Those are the original minutes of the Louisville Trust Company.

The minutes say:

> "In commenting on the big slump in our time deposits of $2,000,000, Mr. Bean read a list of 31 large accounts, aggregating $1,700,000 that had left us in the past year. He expressed the belief that these were special or commercial deposits and that they should not be construed as having any particular significance so far as our regular savings depositors were concerned. In a year's time our total deposits show a decrease of 9 per cent—$1,500,000—which is not very encouraging in view of the fact that the total deposits in Louisville increased 3 per cent, or $4,500,000; however, we feel that this was more or less special, and while we have to bear the burden of a real loss, still it does not indicate that we are losing our regular patrons."

I was present. That is the way Mr. Bean talked. I heard him say that. That was one of his pep talks. I think he was calling the attention of the Directors, as was proper, to the fact that they were losing some of their large accounts, and he wanted them to get out and see what they could do about it. He said it wasn't serious, but not very encouraging. That was about the effect of it.

With reference to the reading of the Examiner's Reports before the Board of Directors of the National Bank of Kentucky and Louisville Trust Company, Mr. Brown read those reports. He was not on the Loan Committee of either the Bank or Trust Company.

Four Vice Presidents of the National Bank of Kentucky who were on the Loan Committee, were Directors; four Vice Presidents who were on the Loan Committee were not directors but were invited to be present at all meetings. As to how many of those eight attended these meetings, you will have to ascertain from the minute book. Some of them always were present. None of the Loan Committee, nor the Cashier, Mr. Jones, who was not of the Loan Committee, ever made a single criticism of Mr. Brown's presentation of the Bank Examiner's Report. I mention Mr. Jones because we went to him as Cashier of the National Bank.

The Directors of BancoKentucky Company approved the tentative contract relative to the purchase of the stock of the Pearl Street Bank and Market Street Bank located in Cincinnati (The Pearl Market Bank and the Brighton Bank) just a few days before the cash was payable on the subscriptions. It was about September 27. At that time I don't know how much had been paid, but they did it believing that they had subscriptions in sight that would pay off October 1st, when the Directors approved the trade that Mr. Brown had made, or was in the process of making with the Pearl-Market and Brighton Banks. It was just a day or two before the money was payable.

The trade was approved September 27, 1929, but Mr. Brown was authorized to proceed, on September 11, 1929, with negotiation and he reported the state of his negotiation and received authority to close the trade on Friday, September 27th. On September 25th Mr. Brown filed with the minutes the trade he made with the Cincinnati Bank.

The question of bank stock being held by trustees for the benefit of one individual had been discussed by me with the Banking Commissioner prior to the time I appeared before the Banking Commissioner and Board of Education in reference to securing the transfer or exchange of the State's Participating Certificates for Banco stock.

With regard to my submission to the Banking Commissioner of the plan under which the six Trustees were to hold legal title to more than 50% of the Louisville Trust Company stock for the benefit of BancoKentucky Company, I am going to have to explain that exactly the way it was brought up. I was asked about a letter of December 3rd, 1929, to Mr. Brown or to Mr. Jones, calling attention to this limitation in the Kentucky Statutes. I was special attorney for the Louisville Title Company, and my attention was first called to that subject when the Banking Commissioner objected to it holding the entire capital stock of the Title Guaranty & Trust Company as a subsidiary.

Having the matter brought to my attention that way, I felt it my duty to report to the officers of Banco that this provision of the law might be applied. The ruling was that where there were six Trustees for various beneficiaries, that there was no violation of the statute. The Board of Education and the Attorney General had the same matter, in connection with Banco's acquiring a majority or more than a majority of the stock of the Louisville Trust Company, and I took it up with the Banking Commissioner, and that is what is referred to in this letter, for I was recommending a change in the law to clarify it. I gave them that information myself.

After the stock market break in October, the charter of Banco was amended so as to increase the authorized capital stock from 2,000,000 to 5,000,000 shares. The reason we did exchange some of this newly authorized stock for bank stock instead of selling it on the market for cash is an economic proposition, that there was a parity of value of the corporation where you are trading stock, just a little different from raising cash. When the crash in the market came, it was easier to swap stock than it was to sell for cash, at that particular time. The plan of the organizers of BancoKentucky to create a fund for the purpose of engaging in the lines of business and the purchase of other types of shares other than Bank stock, had not been abandoned in any way.

The expectation or belief of the directors, as expressed in their meetings, in reference to the continuance of the slump that then existed in securities—they were optimistic; they said "Prosperity is just around the corner" and they thought the depression would be over very shortly, and and they were convinced of it, I think, when the market slightly recovered in April, 1930.

What I meant by the statement read to me from my testimony before the Grand Jury, with reference to exchange of worthless Banco stock for worthless Caldwell stock, I meant at the final shake-down or wash-out it meant that they had 400,000 shares of Banco that was worthless at that moment, and we had 10,000 shares of Caldwell that was worthless at the moment. I meant by that the final outcome of the original trade.

I never took up or discussed with any of the directors or with the Board of Directors the matter of this holding of 50% of the stock of the Louisville Trust Company except by these letters to Mr. Jones and Mr. Brown, and before the Jurisprudence Committee of the Kentucky Bankers Association.

I never did take it up in a board meeting, because we were doing all we could to get the Dern law changed. We didn't get it changed.

(Recross-examination by Mr. Marx)

On recross-examination by Mr. Marx, Mr. Helm testified as follows:

All eight of the Vice-Presidents of the National Bank of Kentucky, J. S. Akers, E. B. Robertson, J. J. Hayes, H. J. Angermeier, L. L. Fontaine, were on the Bank's Loan Committee. All eight of them were invited to Directors' meetings, four as directors and four as non-directors.

The four non-director officers' attendance at the meetings was not noted in the minutes. They were required to be present.

J. W. Cammack, called for Defendants, examined by Mr. Van Winkle, testified as follows:

My name is James W. Cammack. I was elected Attorney General in the November Election, 1927, took office the first of January, 1928, and served four years in that capacity. At Attorney General of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, I was a member of the Sinking Fund Commissioners and the Board of Education. The Sinking Fund Commission was composed of Governor F. D. Sampson, Secretary of State, Miss Ella Lewis, Clell Coleman, Auditor, Mrs. Cromwell, the Treasurer, and I as Attorney General. The Board of Education consisted of the State Superintendent of Instruction, Mr. Bell and Miss Lewis and I as Attorney General.

The Board of Education requested representatives of BancoKentucky Company appear before us. We had Mr. T. K. Helm, Mr. A. J. Carroll and Mr. Bean. We had Mr. Helm before us quite a number of times. I don't know Mr. Bean's official position but he was connected with either one or the other of those institutions, the Louisville Trust Company or the National Bank of Kentucky.

In 1928, I think, we had acquired what were called Participation Certificates. That was when the two, the Trust Company and the National Bank, formed a combination and those certificates were issued and the Board of Education took those Participation Certificates.

The stock that the State owned for School purposes in the National Bank of Kentucky was exchanged, and then, I believe, we took a one-fifth—anyhow, a proportional interest in the two institutions. They could not be consolidated because one was a national institution and the other was organized under the State. That was the first thing that brought us together.

I might state that when this question of taking Participation Receipts came up before the State Board of Education, they were not consolidated, and as I understood, could not be.

At the time we had those conferences with the gentlemen representing the BancoKentucky Company the Commonwealth owned, not to be exact, but somewhere about 776 Participation Certificates, representing, I think, the total value of the Commonwealth stock in the National Bank was something like $300,000, maybe more than that. 776 of a par value of $100 each.

I was present when Mr. Helm, Mr. Carroll and Mr. Bean appeared before the Board of Education as representatives of the BancoKentucky Company at our solicitation. We were particularly anxious to find out just what the relative positions of the three institutions would be, and we inquired of the gentlemen present—I think that included Mr. Helm, because he was in the conference, and of course, gave us the information that it was a separate institution in itself.

The circular letter of July 19, 1929, was probably presented a few days before this conference, to the State Board of Education.

This conference occurred before a special called meeting of the Board of Education and Mr. Helm was notified of the time and place of the various meetings; he was there for several meetings. Minutes of those meetings were kept and they are available.

Mr. Van Winkle: I can simplify this: Mr. Bean's statement was taken down in shorthand and I have a certified copy of this statement, but not of Mr. Helm's and Mr. Carroll's.

I can recall what was said by these gentlemen, in an indefinite way, state that what Mr. Bean said and also Mr. Carroll and Mr. Helm when they were there together.

These gentlemen were asked questions regarding the relation of these corporations. There was one meeting at which Mr. Carroll and Mr. Helm and Mr. Bean attended. It was a rather elaborate meeting, and that was the only time, I think, that Mr. Carroll appeared before the Board. All three talked and gave the position—I remember Mr. Carroll was very insistent on the Board acting immediately and finally. I took the position that we were not in a position to act, and Mr. Carroll and I, while we were friendly about the matter—had a difference of opinion about what the Board should do, whether to postpone it or act at that time.

The purpose of the conference was this: We felt that in our Participation Receipts we had a stock that the Commonwealth was safe in owning, and then, when the Banco-Kentucky Company came in. I had ascertained from the charter I saw that it could do most anything—own steamship lines and railroads, and go into various kinds of business that a bank could not do, and if Your Honor will permit me, I will say that I so advised the other members of the Board, of the status of that charter, but not in the presence of these gentlemen.

I was the legal advisor of the Board and was the only attorney on either Board except Judge Sampson.

As I recall, and I am rather definite about that, neither of these gentlemen at any time made a statement that the BancoKentucky Company was intended to or was in any way a reorganization of either the National Bank of Kentucky or of the Louisville Trust Company. Now, remember my conversation with Mr. Carroll was just once, but with Mr. Helm it was numerous times.

The paper you show me seems to be a resolution only of State Board of Education and not of the Sinking Fund Commissioner. This was February 17, 1930. Now, I think the resolution, probably, that you have reference to adopted by the board and the Sinking Fund, is the one dated March 12th or something like that.

(Cross-examination by Mr. Marx)

On cross-examination by Mr. Marx, Attorney General Cammack testified as follows:

The dealings with Banco happened in the year of 1929 and the beginning of 1930. And as far as the things that are not in writing are concerned I have nothing but my recollection. It is now approximately ten years ago—it was done in 1929 and 1930. I was a very busy man and had a great many matters before me one after the other.

The transfer of our $100 certificates into ten $10 certificates came up in '28 probably. Originally the Commonwealth of Kentucky owned stock in the National Bank of Kentucky concerning which there are various statutory and constitutional provisions. It begins far back, prior to 1850. About 1919 it merged with the National Bank of Commerce and the American Southern National Bank. I am not very definite about anything that occurred at that time, because I was not attorney general then.

Mr. Helm probably told me by communication—letters—that the National Bank of Kentucky, to a very large extent, changed its identity, location and officials when it was merged with the National Bank of Commerce and American Southern National Bank. I don't remember that the stock was exchanged to Trustees' Participation Certificates, which represented 80 per cent National Bank of Kentucky and 20 per cent Louisville Trust Company. I don't recall that Mr. Helm told me that the new, proposed change in the holding of Trustees' Participation Certificates was the unanimous recommendation of the same men who proposed and put through the other changes, which had certainly proved very profitable to the stockholders, including the State of Kentucky. I have not read that letter. Probably I may have read it some five or six weeks ago, but I have not recently.

I think Mr. Helm stated in substance to me, probably in a letter, that the 73,500 of stock in the Bank of Kentucky referred to in the Constitution was supplemented, in 1927, by the purchase of an additional 63 shares, and in April, 1920, incident to one of the mergers the State received a refund of $45,000, and that this refund and the original investment had a market value of $364,000 in addition to which the State had received, during that time, quite handsome dividends.

I will say this, Judge Marx, this question about the Commonwealth's rights in this stock goes way back, many, many years prior to 1850, and probably as far back as 1834. Now, at the time we are dealing with these problems I was advised in regard to the different Acts, but since I have ceased to be an officer of the Commonwealth in that capacity, I am not able to call your attention to them as I knew them then.

This carbon copy is a copy of a letter sent me on August 29, 1929, by Mr. Helm. I am satisfied that I received it. It notes, "Copy to C.F.J." Mr. Charles F. Jones had some connection there with the National Bank of Kentucky.

Said letter received in evidence and marked for identification "Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 161."

In this letter Mr. Helm said to me:

> "It is true that the present BancoKentucky Company's form is somewhat different from that which I had in mind and discussed with you early last year, but nevertheless, it is an extension of the same idea referred to in my letter to you of March 27th, 1928, when I said, 'As I explained to you, the Bank is also contemplating further cooperative moves.' In the opinion of all the officials and directors, the present move tends to offer the best prospects of profit to the stockholders, and is regarded as absolutely sound. In fact, the plan is conditioned upon the holders of at least the majority in amount of Trustees' Participation Certificates owning at least a majority in amount of the stock in the BancoKentucky Company, which is under the same management and officers as have heretofore successfully conducted the other institutions."

I do not recall the time or place of the conversation he referred to as "early last year," but I can tell you that Mr. Helm did, on various occasions, have conversations with me—sometimes with the Board and sometimes the conversation was with me alone. Now, there is no question but what Mr. Helm had a conversation with me similar to that he is directing my attention to in this letter because he had plenty of opportunities to do it. Judge, I want to state this to you: This was a serious proposition, involving many thousands of dollars of the State School Fund, and I, as a member of that Board of Education and a member of the Sinking Fund Commission, took it as a rather serious proposition and wanted to get at what was right and what was fair to the Commonwealth.

Having acquired the Trustees' Participation Certificates we had more than an ownership in the National Bank of Kentucky, we also had ownership in the Louisville Trust Company.

The first question we had come up was not the exchange into BancoKentucky, but whether the State should agree to split its $100 Trustees' Participation Certificates into the $10 Trustees' Participation Certificates. We had never heard of the idea of BancoKentucky at that time, when the proposition of the split came up. I even went very slow on that split. We did make the exchange into the $10 certificates.

Then they came along with the proposition that they wanted us to simply exchange our $10 Trustees' Certificates for two shares of BancoKentucky stock. That was somewhat later.

Now, as to the effect of what Mr. Helm advised and what effect it had on my mind, why, I am not able to say to you now. I know this, that Mr. Helm did, on various occasions, talk to me in regard to the BancoKentucky project, and I went slowly on that because I wanted to see that the Commonwealth was protected, and it culminated in the drafting of the resolution, I think, of March 12th, which I believe I drafted myself. That was introduced by Senator Brock in the Legislature, but it failed to pass. At that time the State Board of Education and the Sinking Fund Commission went on record as being in favor of the transfer, or if you want to call it that, the purchase of the BancoKentucky stock, and that, as we considered it, was in a way the matter of a reinvestment.

Mr. Helm took the position that the State Board of Education had authority to make this transfer. I took the position that that was not the law, that it required an act of the Legislature to do it. And I think probably Mr. Helm came to my conclusion about that—at least, I had my way about it. Both the Board of Education and the Sinking Fund Board followed my advice. The exchange was never made because the Legislature failed to pass the resolution.

I won't say as a matter of law that the State was liable for double assessment on the Trustees' Certificates which it held, because I took the position that the State was not liable—that the State is sovereign and was not subject to the same liability as a citizen. I took the position that the sovereign was exempt. I did that to protect the State. I don't know if they ever paid the assessment or not; I am not familiar with that.

In Section 185 of the Constitution, the Sinking Fund Commission had a right to reinvest. I had some doubts about the law clearly giving the Board of Education the right to sell. Mr. Helm took the position that that was the law, but I read that section of the statutes covering the State Board of Education together with Section 185 of the Constitution and took the position that they were not asking us to our Trustees' Participation Certificates for cash —they were asking us to exchange T.P.C.'s for Banco-Kentucky stock. I was satisfied that they did not have the power to do that without an enabling act of the Legislature.

The resolution was drafted to confer the legal authority in case they wanted to make the exchange. The Legislature did not pass it. In connection with this exchange we recognized formally by resolution, two distinct problems, namely, the legal question we discussed here and the additional economic question as to whether this exchange was, from an economic standpoint, a good one.

The Legislature convened about the first of January, the first Monday in January, 1930. This resolution was March 12th, 1930. The Officers and Directors of the Bank conferred with us three or four times, beginning in the latter part of 1929 and up to March 12th, 1930, and it was culminated in the proposition to submit an enabling act to the Legislature.

Mr. Carroll probably appeared before a joint meeting of the State Board of Education and Sinking Fund Commission—I am not certain about it. Mr. Carroll took the position that the matter had to be closed up within a certain time—I won't give the date. He was very positive that that would be the last minute that this matter could be disposed of, and that if the Commonwealth did not take advantage of it it was out. I took the position that that was not right and fair towards the Commonwealth, and I said to him that we were not going to be driven into this matter, but if you want to give us an extension we will consider it, and that was done.

The letter of July 19, 1929, outlining the proposed plan was before the Board. Just when that got there I don't recall.

The members of this committee which went down there urged us to make the exchange on the ground that it was for the best interest of the stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky to do it. They were advising it.

90—I mean on the ground that it would be a profitable thing for the stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky.

Mr. Crawford: Is there any question that we organized Banco to make a profit?

Mr. Marx: We charge that they organized it to enrich themselves.

The Court: I think the testimony is abundant that they invested in this stock with the idea of making money.

I am quite sure Mr. Bean made the statement, when I asked if it would result in something like this—that the BancoKentucky Company will be the parent organization with a bank and trust company feature."

> "I think you might consider that the BancoKentucky Company will be partially a holding company but not an operating company; because if it holds stock in a dozen banks, it will function as individual units controlled by its own Board of Directors."

I am quite sure in the first place that I asked the question that Mr. Bean made the answer as you have it. Mr. Helm and Mr. Carroll were there at the time.

Mr. Helm then stated that he was not present and the witness stated that only Mr. Bean was present at the time this question was asked.

I asked Mr. Bean: "Will you state why you incorporated under the laws of Delaware rather than the laws of Kentucky?" and Mr. Bean said: "The main reasons are that the taxes are lighter and the powers are broader. Incidentally, there is no state tax—there is no Kentucky State tax on the stock of the BancoKentucky Company because more than three-fourths of its assets would be in Kentucky. I asked him: "One of the advantages would be to avoid the payment of taxes required of taxing districts of a Kentucky corporation; isn't that true?" Mr. Bean said: "Taxing District." Then my son, J. W. Cammack, Jr., said: "Yes, about market values."

Then Mr. Bean said:

> "We suspect that fully 80 per cent of our stockholders will transfer their stock, and the inevitable result of the other 20 per cent will be that they have lost the privilege of converting into the BancoKentucky Company stock, and that they have only a limited number of stockholders and outstanding shares of stock to trade in, so there will not be a wide market available to them. If they do convert, then they will be stockholders in a company that will have probably 3,000 stockholders and will have 2,000,000 shares of stock outstanding. These two conditions promote a ready sale at a good price."

My son at that time was not a member of the Board of Education, nor connected with it in any way, but he was connected with the State Department of Education and was evidently called in by Mr. Bell, the Superintendent of Public Instruction. Mr. Bell was chairman of the Board of Education.

Mr. Bell asked this question:

> "I am thinking, Mr. Bean, of this particular thing: it puts members of the State Board of Education insofar as they have any authority to act in this, in a rather awkward position. If they do not convert, there appears to be the possibility that they will forfeit the market value of the stock. I have just been speculating here to myself what is going to happen if we let it stand at $100.00 a share. Will it retain its identification? What is going to happen to this stock? It is immaterial to the State Board of Education whether its stock is worth $460.00 a share or $1,000.00 a share or $1.00 a share. We get the same income from the stock regardless of its market value as it stands now. We, as custodians in a way, of this $77,000.00 of stock, have an earning of something like $12,000.00 a year—I don't recall—and would we continue to have that same income from it one way or the other?"

Mr. Bean answered:

"I think your question can be answered this way: Whether you convert your present $100.00 par certificates into $10.00 par certificates is not a matter of great importance to you because the value is the same and the income is the same. It is a matter of importance to us because of clerical convenience, and of having all of the securities that are outstanding in current form of securities. Now, the question of importance that you all must consider is whether or not you should convert these participating shares into the stock of the BancoKentucky Company. You have the right to fail to do that, and if you do fail to make the exchange, you will continue to get such dividends as the two banks pay. We figure that for many reasons it is to your advantage to make the exchange because we believe the BancoKentucky Company will pay bigger dividends than the two banks are now paying."

I am satisfied that statement was made. The first time that I read that statement, probably, since it was read and adopted as a minute to that meeting of the Board of Education, was last night. Since you have been reading it, I recall very definitely the conference at which Mr. Bean appeared, and very definitely the line of talk and statements that is embodied in that statement. Then my son asked this question:

> "Could it be possible that the two banks as they are now would cease to pay any dividends at all?" and Mr. Bean said: "Our expectation is that the two banks will make certainly as much money as they have been making, and that the BancoKentucky will call these earnings from the Bank and will make even bigger earnings on the balance of its capital, thus enabling it to make bigger dividends than the two banks would pay." Then Miss Lewis asked: "This BancoKentucky Company is just as safe in every way?" and Mr. Bean said: "We think it is just as safe because it is going to be run by the same group of directors and officers."

I recall that at this meeting on August 13th, 1929, my concluding question to Mr. Bean was: "Another question I would like to call your attention to—Section 185 of the Constitution (General Cammack reads) I am calling your attention to this fact, that the question that confronts this Board and the Sinking Fund Commission is the transfer of stock of the Louisville Trust Company and the National Bank of Kentucky to the BancoKentucky Company will be prohibited, in my judgment, until the General Assembly authorizes such a transfer. I suggest that it would be probably a good idea to stay further consideration of this matter at this time, and have the Louisville Trust Company, the National Bank of Kentucky, and the BancoKentucky Company consider the legal inhibition provided in Section 185 of the Constitution, and if they so desire, report their action to this Board at some future time." In reply Mr. Bean made this statement:

> "I would like to make this comment: That we will ask one of the Banks' attorneys to write you on the matter, and I suggest that it is the opinion of the Federal Government that we are not changing our investment except in form, and that same opinion might cover this case. However, we will be glad to take up the matter and let you hear from us at an early date."

And then the meeting concluded.

At this same meeting I inquired whether this new organization was going to be subject to any banking supervision and Mr. Bean answered as follows:

"Mr. Bean, under the present law or laws, you have both national and state examination? Mr. Bean: Yes, sir. General Cammack: Under the reorganization will both the national laws pertaining to examinations of banks and the state laws of like matter, be in operation so far as the examination of the BancoKentucky Company? Mr. Bean: The plan of examination under the new arrangement will be for the National Bank Examiners to examine the National Bank of Kentucky, and the State Bank Examiners to examine the Louisville Trust Company, just as they are now being examined. I do not believe that either set of examiners would undertake an examination of the BancoKentucky Company because it is a financial institution and certainly will not qualify under the National Act, but it might be qualified to come under the State Banking Department—I do not know. As a practical proposition, the banks in Louisville are examined by a Clearing House Examiner, and that same form will certainly be the examiner for the BancoKentucky Company.".

After Mr. Bean had explained that we had made 176 per cent on our holding of this bank stock, Mr. Bell inquired:

"I wonder whether we are concerned about that any way at all or not? It doesn't make any difference about our participation in the earnings of the Company—whatever you may earn at present." Mr. Bean said: "I think you are interested because as your candidates"—I think that should be your "customers"—

"consider what they shall do with this investment they will want to know the history of that investment and what it has produced for them. In other words, if at any time you are tempted to sell this and invest in other funds, it is well to know what the past history of this investment has been as that is an indication of what its future will be." Mr. Bell said: "From that standpoint we are interested, but from the standpoint of what it produces for us—is it going to be a production income?" Mr. Bean said: "We believe the new company will make a good deal more profit per dollar invested than the banks have been, and if the earnings increase the dividends will probably be increased." Then Mr. Bell said: "Is the rate of earning of our stock fixed whatever your earnings may be? In other words, does our identity in the organization have a fixed rate of dividend?" Then Mr. Bean said: "Dividends paid on bank stocks are decided on every quarter, and they are influenced almost entirely by the profits that a bank is making. For several years, the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company have been paying 4 per cent per quarter or 16 per cent per annum. I see no reason why dividend rates should be decreased, but if the earnings decrease the dividends will probably be decreased also. On the other hand, if earnings increase materially, the dividends will probably be increased too. There is nothing fixed about a dividend rate in banks or other financial institutions." Mr. Bell: I see that from every angle; the matter that I was trying to get clear is, if this holding of the State Board of Education in the National Bank of Kentucky stock and Louisville Trust Company, if there is a fixed dividend for it?" My son inquired: "Will the Bank of Kentucky pay 4 per cent per quarter?" Mr. Bean said: "Yes, the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company have already declared a dividend payable October 1, to stockholders of record September 15th. The Banco-Kentucky Company will not begin to operate until September 20, and it certainly will pay no dividend before December 31." Then my son said: "The question I am trying to ask is this: The par value of the stock, if transferred into the BancoKentucky Company, would be just twice as great?" and Mr. Bean said: "No, you would have twice as many assurances" then my son said: "Would the dividend rate be reduced?" Mr. Bean said: "We would pay 2 per cent per quarter so that the amount of the dividend would be the same."

Independent of the paper that you have read from there, I have a rather distinct recollection about it, and that is because of having read that paper last evening and you repeating it today.

Mr. Bell then made this further inquiry:

"We are concerned about this broadening of the BancoKentucky Company—you are simply broadening the field of activities to participate in various ways?" Mr. Bean said: "And we are modernizing finances. It is the modern method of performing financial service for your community, and under the Banking Laws we cannot perform these services."

Mr. Bean gave me a copy of the Charter and I read it. When I read the purposes of the Company they were world wide in scope. In other words, I said to my associates, "This is not a bank."

So far as the powers granted by the Charter were concerned, they could run a steamship line or engage in manufacturing cigarettes—most anything. I don't think they made it quite as broad as to authorize the ownership of all the shares of stock in all the corporations in America, but it authorized holding stock in corporations. So far as my being able to tell from the Charter what they were going to do, I could tell this: It wasn't a bank. I never considered it to be a bank. I don't know about the laws of Delaware; I knew it couldn't under the laws of Kentucky, couldn't operate as a bank. Because to be a bank you have to be under banking supervision.

I am not familiar enough to give you an intelligent answer to the question of whether or not one of the greatest objections to affiliate or chain banking or group banking was the fact that those holding corporations escaped the supervision of state and federal banking laws.

By simply reading the charter I could tell what they could do. As to how much it was going to do, I got a good deal of information from Mr. Helm, and I got some from Mr. Bean. If I didn't have any information, such as that contained in the letter of July 19th, 1929, setting forth the plan and I didn't have any information from any of the people connected with the organization and all that I saw was simply the cold articles of incorporation, I couldn't tell what they were going to do. I could tell only what they could do. Exclusive of what Mr. Bean and Mr. Helm said in those conferences I could not tell what they were actually going to do.

It was stipulated that the Board of Education minutes for September 18th, 1929, show that Mr. Bean was requested to have someone appear to discuss the proposed plan of reorganization.

Mr. Helm said that he had a conversation with me, in January or February, 1930, about the amendment or repeal of Kentucky Statutes, Section 581, which provides:

> "Nor shall any person directly or indirectly hold or own more than one-half of the capital stock of a bank, exclusive of the stock held as collateral."

I don't recall. Mr. Helm, however, was Attorney for the State Banking Commission and he had frequent conferences with me about the banking situation. After this particular conversation, I don't recall, but I am satisfied he did. I know of a good many conversations he did have on various statutes, but I could not give you the number of those sections of the Banking Act.

In a letter to the Bank under date of February 14th he says that I was reluctant to offer any aid in having that statute repealed. I think that is correct because I would never move unless I had a pretty good idea which way I was going. I would not involve the Commonwealth in a lawsuit unless the proper authority was brought and the Commonwealth in every way prepared to go on with it. I would say that Mr. Helm did not talk to me about the repeal of the fifty per cent bank stock ownership statute. On behalf of the National Bank of Kentucky, the Louisville Trust Company or the BancoKentucky Company. First I have no recollection of anything connected with the repeal of this statute involving those institutions. It would probably be on that general proposition that he would discuss it with me.

I don't recall Mr. Helm taking up with me the matter of the Louisville Title Company owning more than 50 per cent of the stock of the Title Guaranty & Trust Company or that I objected to that or that the State Banking Commissioner objected, or that litigation was threatened or that those stocks were put in trustees, similar to the Louisville Trust Company and National Bank of Kentucky. There was just as much of that stuff that came along beginning with 1929. The State Banking department was represented by General Gilbert, Clifford Smith and myself in 1929, and when that trouble came there was an immense amount of work came in that department, and we three men were loaded with other work and divided that business up. It may have occurred before some of the other members of my staff.

(Redirect examination by Mr. Van Winkle)

On redirect examination by Mr. Van Winkle, General Cammack testified as follows:

Certified copy of excerpts of the meetings of the Board of Education of March 12, 1930, ordered made part of the record and marked for identification "Defendants' Exhibit No. 21."

In connection with the plan of reorganization the following statement was made to us by Mr. Bean before the Board acted upon the request to make this exchange of T.P.C.'s for BancoKentucky stock:

> "I take it that you want to know something about the proposed activities of this company, and to enable you to make up minds as to whether you think the trade is a good one, and if it is possible for you to make the trade if you want to do it. • • • • Today we are loaning money at six per cent interest which is the same rate we got thirty years ago, but if you mean while our expenses have more than doubled, so that the margin in operating commercial banks is very narrow, and you have probably noticed that the big banks all over the country have taken on new activities. I'll cite you to the National City Company, Guaranty Trust Company, First National Bank Company. It's a thing with a lot of precedent. Our purpose for doing this is to comply with the regulations of the department at Washington —To avoid income tax. They say, and we hold, that while a man may own Bank of Kentucky stock, which is worth $46.00 a share, it may have cost him only $16.00 a share, and if he makes this trade, he will be selling it at $50.00 a share; but he is really not taking any profit. So that the department says he should not be subject to any income tax. In order to comply with the suggestion of the Department, we call it a reorganization."

I will say that if that statement is taken from a typewritten statement that Mr. Bean made, why then he made it. Independent of the fact that—whether or not it was taken by stenographer, I have a recollection, not distinctly, though, that something like that occurred.

I am satisfied that Mr. Bean made the following statement in the same appearances before the Board:

> In further compliance we offer all of the stock in this new company to the present stockholders of the two banks. We rather think and expect that we will have left out of the total paid in capital of fifty million we will have left some fifteen million. It is our intention to use that in purchasing interest in other banks, and in pursuing the other activities that we contemplate having. Those activities are largely these: Today, the outside brokerage houses are coming to Louisville and to the State of Kentucky and are underwriting for Kentucky corporations. That service is worth a good deal of money, and the people receive quite a fee. It is a very profitable business.
>
> "The next thing is that the BancoKentucky Company will make long time loans to industrial or commercial houses. Today, the Industrial Foundation is doing that business. But hereafter we will loan money for five years or ten years on a long-time basis because they are willing to pay a good fee for that type of loan. They are now getting it elsewhere.
>
> "The third activity is that we will take those people who are now not very welcome at banks; men who borrow as a speculation. Banks must keep themselves liquidated because they have a lot of depositors that may leave at any time. All Louisville banks have said in the last three or four months, we want you to sell enough of your securities to pay us off. All our money is being asked for by commercial borrowers and industrial borrowers. Under the new regime you can take these men over to the BancoKentucky Company and they will be glad to have it. Money is worth 9 per cent and they will charge you 6 per cent and fee. He is perfectly willing to pay the BancoKentucky Company that fee.

"The next thing is money allowances. We seek holders of banks in other cities in other states. Banks that can throw out a good deal of patronage, and we believe they will prove a profitable investment.

"Another minor activity is the so-called investment trust idea. Just in recent years this has developed tho it is one of the oldest forms of investment in Europe. We expect to undertake that just in a limited way. Of course, it will entitle us to and secure for us the very best investment affiliations available in Chicago and New York. So that we feel that the Banco-Kentucky Company can make a good deal more per dollar invested than the banks can, because of restrictions."

In the course of that discussion by Mr. Bean before the Board the following questions were asked and the following answers given by Mr. Bean:

"Mr. Bell: The National Bank of Kentucky and Louisville Trust Company, as they have heretofore operated, or that particular phase of the activities of the new organization, would be subsidiaries to the major organization?

"Mr. Bean: No, Mr. Bell, that is not true, but you voice an idea there that a lot of people have. The formation of the BancoKentucky Company is not going to make any difference at all. The BancoKentucky Company is going to do a lot of financing for the customers of the two banks. We believe this type of financing will secure for us a lot of additional customers in the two banks.

"Miss Lewis: There is no connection at all except that you have the same persons interested in it? Is that true?

"Mr. Bean: There is no real connection excepting that they are owned by the same crowd and they are largely operated by the same directors, but not by the same officers, and they are supplementary to each other, although are operating as three individual corporations.

"General Cammack: Where will the housing of the corporation be? Separate or under one business?

"Mr. Bean: It will be on the third floor at 421 West Market, the new bank building of the Louisville Trust Company.

"General Cammack: They will not then all three be operating as one institution in one building?

"Mr. Bean: No, they will be operated as three institutions by three different boards of directors, although directors in the National Bank of Kentucky and directors of the Louisville Trust Company will be on the Board of the BancoKentucky Company."

Direct Examination by Mr. Crawford

A. J. Carroll,

called for Defendant, examined by Mr. Crawford, testified as follows:

My name is A. J. Carroll. I have lived in Louisville for fifty odd years. I have been a lawyer since 1894. I was a director of the National Bank of Kentucky prior to the time of the Trusteeing of the stock in 1927. I was a member of the Board when a sixty per cent dividend was declared in 1927. I knew of that dividend being declared.

I took no active part in the Trusteeing of the stock of the Louisville Trust Company and the National Bank of Kentucky. That was done by Judge Humphrey, I think, and Mr. Helm. As a director and a stockholder I did participate in that. I voted on the matters that came before the meeting when I was present. I continued to be a director of the National Bank of Kentucky until its close.

I had shares of the National Bank of Kentucky to qualify me as a director. Those shares were physically in my possession. The shares of stock, the original shares of stock of the National Bank of Kentucky that I owned and held were in my possession.

I mean prior to the trusteeing. Those in the excess of the ten qualifying shares I exchanged outright for the Trustees' Participation Certificates. The other shares, I think, were still retained in my name but were delivered, I think, to Judge Quin, or somebody. A photostat of the receipt I obtained at that time, when delivering those shares, has been filed in the record. I got the dividend on those ten shares after that time.

I recall when Banco was first talked about. I don't remember the date but the matter was discussed early in 1929 at the meetings of the Board of Directors of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company. The matter was first broached by Mr. Brown and then discussed very fully at several meetings prior to the organization of the corporation.

The general purpose as expressed in those meetings was that it would be a very large, operating, financial institution. That it was to acquire stock of the National Bank of Kentucky, the Louisville Trust Company, and other banks, and that it was to do a large variety of things which were considered profitable that a bank could not do. Now, that, in general, was the idea.

I remember some of the things that it was talked about that BancoKentucky would do. A good many of the things that are set out in section 3 of the first clause of the charter of BancoKentucky.

It could underwrite securities, it could guarantee indebtedness, it could own and control stock in corporations of any character, it could acquire by purchase or otherwise any business and operate the same—its powers were very broad.

It was the intention, as expressed in those preliminary meetings and at the time of the last discussion we had prior to its actual organization, that Banco was to be a real operating company. That was the principal thing. It was, incidentally, also to have the power to hold stock, but it was to be an operating company with very wide powers.

I prepared the Articles of Incorporation. I do not think every one of the articles was discussed prior to the time I prepared it. I think the only articles we discussed were about—in a general w , what I have stated as to what the powers of the Company would be. There are a good many formal clauses that are customary in Delaware charters. It was to be a Delaware Corporation.

The Articles were not presented to the organizers at any meeting. I prepared the Articles and I submitted them, I think, to Mr. Helm and Mr. Vaughan, who went over them and approved them. But I don't recall whether they were ever presented to any meeting of the Board or not, I don't remember about that.

They were approved by Mr. Vaughan and Mr. Helm, we being the lawyers who had charge of that. After the Articles had been drawn, I left on the 10th of July, 1925, on my vacation to Atlantic City and I took the Articles of Incorporation. There had been some small preliminary matters that still remained to be adjusted, the nature of which I don't recall, but the understanding was that they were to telegraph me at Atlantic City when to file the Charter, and my recollection is that on the late afternoon or night of July 15th I received a telegram signed by Charles F. Jones requesting me to file the Articles. The next morning, July 16th, I went to Dover, Delaware and went to the office of the United States Corporation Company, taking the Articles with me, and went over them in detail with the secretary of that corporation, who had a very wide experience in the matter of Delaware corporations. They were approved by him as being the usual and customary form of Articles, and they were filed, and I paid, personally, the corporation tax and other taxes in connection with the filing, amounting to $1,335, as I recall. It was afterwards repaid to me by BancoKentucky.

At no time, or prior to the time, I wrote those Articles, was there any discussion of Clause 8 contained therein, to the effect that the private property of the stockholders should not be liable for the corporate debt.

I put that in because it was the usual and customary clause. I have practiced law, as I have stated, for forty-five years, and have drawn a great many charters. I never drew one in my life that didn't have that clause in it, and never heard of any that didn't have that clause in it, except banks and insurance companies, upon whom liability is imposed by statute. I certainly did not consider that the Banco-Kentucky Company was to be either a bank or an insurance company.

When I prepared the charter I thought the Louisville Trust Company and the National Bank of Kentucky were as sound institutions as there were anywhere. I did not have any discussion prior to the time I filed BancoKentucky's charter that the Bank was in a bad condition, or possibly in a bad condition. Certainly no such thing ever entered my mind.

I never heard any discussion of any kind that it would be a good idea or a good suggestion to get them to transfer Trustees' Certificates to a new company to get rid of any possible double liability that attended the Trustees' Certificates. No such thing was ever mentioned, and I certainly never thought of any such thing.

I returned to Louisville on either the 1st or 2nd of September, 1929. I found what had been done in the meantime regarding Banco. That organization was in the process of being perfected, in the sense that it was getting ready to operate. I have seen the circular of July 19, 1929, since this litigation. I did not see that circular letter or prospectus of July 19, 1929, at any time prior to the formation of Banco. I don't recall that I ever saw that circular until after the Bank of Kentucky closed.

I did not find out why there was put in it the words "Plan of Reorganization." I didn't know anything about that. I was informed at the time I asked about that that it was to meet some tax suggestion that had been suggested, possibly by Miller and Chevalier, the tax lawyers in Washington, but personally, I don't know anything about that letter.

I transferred my Trustees' Certificates to Banco, except my qualifying shares. I did not make that transfer for the purpose of avoiding any double liability that might attach to them. I never dreamed of any double liability. At the time I made the transfer, I had no idea of any impending insolvency of either the Bank or the Trust Company. After the formation of Banco I continued as a director in the National Bank of Kentucky until its close. I thought the Bank of Kentucky was perfectly sound and solvent until either the day before its close, which was Saturday, or Sunday, when it did close. I had a small deposit in the Bank. I don't recall now what it was.

The bank regularly declared dividends quarterly from the time Banco was formed until its close. I never heard from any Examiner any criticism of those dividends. My recollection is that Mr. Neill attended one meeting of the Board of Directors shortly before it closed: I do not recall the date.

Mr. Robert Neill, the Chief National Banking Examiner, never at any time criticized any dividend in any talk with me or in my presence that the Bank had declared and paid.

When I transferred my Trustees' Certificates to Banco-Kentucky Company there was no agreement that I would have any further control of any kind over the Trustees' Certificates which I had transferred. I never heard of any general agreement of that kind between Banco and persons transferring Trustees' Participating Certificates to it. I bought a thousand shares of Banco subsequently, very much to my regret.

Prior to the formation of Banco I had either twenty or thirty shares of National Bank of Kentucky stock. I don't recall the exact number. They were $100 par, and I transferred all those shares, except ten which I retained as qualifying shares. I was also a director in the Louisville Trust Company. I had only ten shares in that. I had no more than qualifying shares. I subscribed for 1,000 shares of Banco I think after I returned from Atlantic City. It might possibly have been before. I paid $25,000 for it by note.

While I was on the Board of the Bank, reports of examinations of the Bank were read by Mr. James B. Brown, the President of the National Bank of Kentucky to the Directors present at the meeting. There were eight officers as I recall it who were on the Loan Committee. The officers who were directors were present, and the officers who were not directors had always been invited to be present, or were told to be present, in order that any question concerning any loan that might arise could be answered. The cashier was on the Loan Committee. He was always present at those meetings.

Prior to the time the Bank closed I did not see any Bank Examiners' reports. I never saw them afterwards. I never examined one. I was a defendant in the Bank Directors' suit, Atherton v. Anderson. In that case I testified, along with others, as to what was and what was not read from those reports. I was present on May 16th, 1930, when Mr. John S. Wood came before the Board. He was the only Bank Examiner I have ever seen at a meeting. Mr. Wood did not on that occasion criticize a great many assets of the Bank, running up into a million or so dollars.

My recollection is that Mr. Wood brought to the attention of the Board three items. One was this Van Camp Packing Company, which had been a refining company, and a note of Governor Fields and his wife, and one other note—Mr. Lewis Humphrey, as I recall. Mr. Wood did not indicate that there were a very large amount of assets in the bank that were bad. After he finished his talk I think Mr. Will Speed asked him a question as to whether or not what he had called the Board's attention to were the only matters in the Bank that he criticized. My recollection is that he said they were. The question of what Mr. Wood said at that meeting was testified about in the suit of Atherton v. Anderson, I think, by every witness who was a director.

I do not recall when the subscriptions to Banco were payable. It was sometime in the fall. A great many subscriptions were obtained.

Mr. Brown was an officer of Banco, the President, and was President of the National Bank of Kentucky. I think that there were some of the Directors of the National Bank of Kentucky who were also directors of Banco. I think that Mr. Jones, an officer of the Bank, was an officer of Banco. I am not sure. I took no part in the trial of the case against the Directors. I simply testified. I have taken no active part in this case; and that has been nearly ten years ago, and I just simply cannot recall a multitude of those things unless I am shown my testimony.

Mr. ZurSchmiede was the Cashier of the National Bank of Kentucky at the time he was elected Secretary of Banco. I knew he had been Cashier of the Bank. Probably he resigned before he was elected Cashier of Banco, but I don't know—don't recall.

Referring to the minutes of the Bank of December 16th, 1927, June 1st, 1928, June 8th, 1928, June 22nd, 1928, and December 7th, 1928, at which meeting the minutes show I was present, no letter from the Comptroller was ever read to or presented to the Board during the entire time that I was a member of it.

I think that was fully gone into in the case of Keyes v. Akers, the Directors' suit.

A.—Yes, I think that was fully gone into.

99—Now, I will ask you to state whether the Board of BancoKentucky Company ever authorized Mr. ZurSchmiede or any other person to hold Banco out as simply a holding company?

A.—None that I ever heard of; it certainly wasn't a holding company, entirely; it was only partially a holding company.

100—Did you ever see or hear of Mr. Bean or anyone else, or know of Mr. Bean writing a letter or letters to anyone calling attention to the fact that it was advantageous to buy Banco, or to take Banco, because it was free of double liability?

A.—I never heard of such a thing.

101—Or did you hear any other person——

A.—I never heard the question of double liability mentioned or referred to by any person.

102—After Banco was formed, did it function?

A.—Yes, it functioned.

103—What did it do?

A.—Well, it acquired stock in the various banks that have been mentioned; it acquired later a half interest in Caldwell & Company, but when the crash came Banco was, in a sense, in a formative condition; it never did get really started.

104—Prior to May, 1930, had it worked up any organization for the purpose of carrying out its plan of underwriting issues or selling the issues after being underwritten?

A.—It purchased a half interest in Caldwell & Company.

105—I mean prior to that time.

A.—Prior to that time I think Mr. Helm had some negotiations with Mr. Fleece to take charge of one of the departments in it, but I don't recall the entire steps that were taken.

Caldwell & Company was supposed to be, and I think it was—I knew something about it in a general way—was the largest investment banking house in the South, covering almost the entire South, and that they had a large, trained force of salesmen who were selling securities for Caldwell & Company, and that it would be a valuable adjunct to BancoKentucky Company in disposing of any securities that it desired to sell.

Mr. Marx: I thought it would be shorter not to make specific objections, because some of them Your Honor has ruled on. I will just make a general motion now to strike out all the testimony on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, and contradictory of the written evidence, and in many cases, of the stipulated evidence; that it is the expression or conclusion or opinion or hindsight rationalization of events ten years ago that the witness now gives his opinion about.

The Court: Certain of the testimony was objectionable, but I will overrule your motion as a whole.

On Cross-Examination by Mr. Marx Mr. Carroll testified as follows:

I have no recollection of a letter written to me at 3411 Pacific Avenue, Atlantic City, known as Plaintiff's Exhibit 24-2, on July 20, 1929, which enclosed the circular letter of July 19, 1929.

I sent the telegram to Mr. Jones, known here as Exhibit 24-1, under date of July 17, 1929, which I said "Corporation fully organized. . . . Send copy of prospectus here." I had completely forgotten about it. That refreshes my recollection but I don't know what that prospectus was, or what was enclosed. I evidently knew there was a prospectus when I sent the telegram. The telegram so stated. The telegram says I asked him to send the prospectus to me.

On July 20th, three days later, Mr. Jones wrote to me "Enclosed herein find letter which was mailed to all stockholders today. Everything is in fine shape, and in my opinion will go over big. With best regards, Yours very truly." That is what that letter states. I don't know what was enclosed in it. I assume that I got such a letter. Now, what was in it, I have no idea.

You show me the original of Plf's Ex. 24-3 and ask if that, or a printed counterpart of that exhibit, was not enclosed. I can only repeat that I haven't the slightest recollection of this having been sent to me or my having read it. I would say that this exhibit was sent. The letter says it enclosed a copy of the circular sent to all stockholders yesterday. It might have been.

My name is printed on this circular, but as I stated, this circular was prepared during my absence from the City and I knew nothing about it at the time it was prepared. I didn't know a thing about authorizing them to sign my name to that prospectus.

I testified that I had never seen this word "Reorganization" and didn't know that it was being used in connection with this plan until after my attention was called to it when the Bank failed and this letter was brought to my attention. My signature appears on Plf's Ex. No. 166, dated September 3, 1929. I also wrote my address underneath it. That is in my handwriting. It is dated September 3, 1929. Now, referring back a moment, Mr. Marx, I don't think I stated positively that I had never seen that. As I recall, I think I said I didn't recall anything about it. Actually, I did see that letter. I signed that letter. I am referring to the letter of September 3rd, 1929.

The first paper appears to be a subscription blank, and the second is a subscription. I never remember, I repeat, ever seeing that letter of July 19th.

You call my attention to the language "Subscription to shares of the BancoKentucky Company under the Reorganization Plan as outlined in the letter to the Trustees, dated July 19, 1929," but that doesn't correct my testimony at all in connection with the reorganization plan.

I told you I didn't know anything about the reorganization plan; that I wasn't here and that I supposed that the word "Reorganization" had been put in there to meet some tax question raised by Miller and Chevalier.

When I signed this, if my attention was directed to it at that time and if I read it, I suppose my attention was directed to the fact that there was a plan of reorganization which was outlined in the letter of the Trustees dated July 19, 1929. I had entirely forgotten all about it. I suppose I read that document, undoubtedly so, but that word "reorganization" certainly made no impression on my mind. I knew perfectly well what Banco was organized for. My attention is called to the fact that the last two sentences, above my signature say, that "the stock is to be fully paid and non-assessable under the terms of the reorganization plan as outlined in our letter of July 19th, if, when, and as such Plan becomes effective as therein provided."

I suppose I saw that when I signed the document.

Plf's Ex. No. 167, dated Sept. 3, 1929, bears my signature. I wrote the address, too. Certainly, the whole thing; I subscribed for 1000 shares of BancoKentucky stock. It has the words "Plan of Reorganization" in it, yes.

You show me Exhibit No. 168. I signed that document and wrote the address. It is dated Sept. 3, 1929. My recollection is that I was Trustee for my sister-in-law, Miss Holz, who had a few shares of that stock. That is my recollection. She had twice as many shares as I had. No, she did not. She had 64 Trustees' Participation Certificates. I think I had more than 30 Trustees' Participation Certificates. I don't recall the number; I had whatever the amount was of my excess stock over ten in the National Bank of Kentucky. I exchanged all I had except ten qualifying shares. I don't remember that thirty was all I had.

When I signed Plf's Ex. No. 166, I said that I exchanged thirty shares of Ten Dollar par Trustees' Participation Certificates. I assumed those were all I had. Mrs. A. J. Carroll was my wife. This letter written on her stationery dated July 21st is all in my handwriting. The attached clipping was enclosed with that letter.

Plaintiff's Exhibits Nos. 166, 167, 168 and 169 received in evidence over defendant's objection.

As a Trustee, I did not sign that document without reading it. I expect I read it. I am not in the habit of signing things I don't read.

I assume the Board of Directors of the National Bank of Kentucky employed me to incorporate BancoKentucky Company. I don't recall. I think Mr. Brown—I am not sure.

I remember I was called as a witness before the Jefferson County Grand Jury in the March term, 1931. In 1931 my memory of those matters would be very much fresher then than it is today. I was there asked "At whose solicitation did you prepare the charter of BancoKentucky Company" and I answered

> "At the solicitation of and under the instructions of the joint boards of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company, they having been unified. The directors in both were directors in the BancoKentucky Company. The organization was first discussed in May or June of 1929 and that was discussed at several meetings before the joint boards there and they then concluded or decided to organize this corporation."

That refreshes my recollection. I assume that statement was correct. My recollection then would be better than now.

The next question there asked me was "You were decided upon as the lawyer to prepare it?" and I answered, "They asked me to prepare the charter, which I did, and I took the charter with me on my vacation and on the 15th of July Mr. Jones telephoned me to go down to Dover and file it, the understanding being when I left that when they transacted a number of other preliminary matters, I was to take the charter with me and file it, which I did on the 16th day of July, 1929." That is exactly right.

172—Now, Mr. Carroll, of course, you knew then, when you went down to Delaware and took this charter with you, that this company was intended to hold bank stock, didn't you?

A.—I knew that it had the power to hold bank stock, and I also knew it had the power to transact a very large variety of other classes of business.

173—Limit yourself now to the question I am asking; I will come to the other in a minute: You knew when you prepared this charter and took it and submitted it to your clients, and then took it down to Delaware, that the Banco-Kentucky Company for which you were preparing a charter, was intended to hold bank stock, didn't you?

A.—Yes, among other things.

174—You knew that it was intended to hold a substantial majority of the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky, didn't you?

A.—Yes, I think it was.

175—And you knew that it was intended to hold a substantial majority of the stock of the Louisville Trust Company, didn't you?

A.—Yes.

176—And you knew it was intended to sell stock in the BancoKentucky Company and use the proceeds, in part at least, to purchase the stock of additional banks, didn't you?

A.—I knew that it had—it was the intention to acquire stock in other banks, and also its intention to acquire stock in any other corporation, when it got organized, and that it was its intention to engage in a very wide field of business enterprise.

177—I am limiting my question now, for the present moment, to bank stocks, and regardless of what other things it may have been intended to do, one of the things you do know definitely it was intended to do was, in addition to owning the stock of the two banks here, the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company, it was intended to acquire, either by outright purchase or exchange of the holding company stock, the stock of other banks in the Ohio Valley?

A.—Of other banks and other corporations that were not banks.

178—I understand that that is your testimony, but I want to direct my question first to the banks; so, you knew definitely that it was the intention and purpose that this new company that you were organizing was going to hold the stock of a chain of banks, didn't you?

A.—I knew that it was contemplated that it would acquire stock in several banks in the Ohio Valley.

179—In addition to the stock of the two banks that were causing it to be organized?

A.—Yes.

180—Now, then, you said something to the effect that you did not know anything, this morning, about its being called a holding corporation: I want to refresh your memory on that point; in this same Grand Jury, wasn't the very next question that was asked you, and your very next answer after those I have read to you as follows: "What was the nature of the BancoKentucky Company?", and didn't you say:

> "It was a holding company with very broad powers. Its charter powers are very broad as is the case in practically all Delaware Corporations, and it was primarily organized for the purpose of acquiring the majority at least of various banks, the Louisville Trust Company and the National Bank of Kentucky being the first ones."

Didn't you make that answer?

A.—I did make that answer, and further in that same testimony, and in the testimony in the Criminal Court, I very much broadened the definition of a holding corporation, and of the business the corporation was to do.

181—That answer was correct?

A.—Yes. I made it.

182—You not only made it, but since it was you who made it, it was correct?

A.—Yes, I suppose it was correct; that was intended.

183—I want to call your attention to your testimony in a suit which bears the name, as the title of the case, Anthony J. Carroll and others plaintiff, vs. The Chemical Bank & Trust Company, No. 205223, in the Jefferson Circuit Court, Chancery Branch, First Division: You testified in that case, didn't you?

A.—I haven't the slightest recollection of there ever having been such case.

184—I will direct your attention first to what the case is; that case was a case you brought as one of the members of the Executive Committee of the BancoKentucky Company to have a receiver appointed for the BancoKentucky Company—do you remember that case?

A.—Yes, I remember. I did not prepare the case and did not appear in Court in connection with it.

185—Some questions arose as to the purchase by the BancoKentucky Company of the Murray Rubber Company debentures and the participation in the Lewis C. Humphrey note from the National Bank of Kentucky: Do you remember that question?

A.—I remember that there were such notes, and one of them Mr. Wood mentioned in his appearance before the Board.

186—You remember subsequently the BancoKentucky Company took those notes out of the bank?

A.—Yes.

187—And whether or not that was a proper thing to do was in question in this case to which I have called your attention?

A.—I have no recollection of that case in the world.

188—You remember you gave your testimony in Mr. Castleman's office, Mr. David Castleman?

A.—I don't remember it, but if it shows I did—I did.

189—You remember Mr. Kasfir here examined you on cross-examination?

A.—Oh, yes, I do remember now.

190—Do you remember he asked you these questions—he asked you whether you participated in the formation of BancoKentucky, and your answer was "I drew the charter for it, yes. Q. 27—What was the purpose of the organization of the BancoKentucky Company?" and didn't you answer: "Just as stated in that charter, to acquire stock in these other institutions as a holding company. Q. 28—As a holding company its primary purpose was to own and control a chain of banks?" and didn't you answer: "Yes, I think that was the reason."

Didn't you make those answers?

A.—I assume I did, if they are there.

191—Since that was your evidence, your testimony in that case, that was true, was it not?

A.—That was one of the purposes for which BancoKentucky was organized.

192—You said here and you said before the Grand Jury that that was its primary purpose, didn't you?

A.—I have no recollection of having stated that before the Grand Jury, and as I said, in my testimony before the Grand Jury, and in the Criminal Court on the trial of Mr. Brown, I stated what the broad purposes of BancoKentucky were in addition to the right to hold stock.

193—Of course, there was no question at issue of any stock assessment when you were examined before the Grand Jury, was there?

A.—On BancoKentucky Company stock?

194—Yes.

A.—Why, certainly not.

195—And there was no question of a stock assessment involved when you were testifying on this Murray Rubber Company note, was there?

A.—There was not.

196—And in those two cases, where you testified, didn't you say that the primary purpose——

The Court: He said he did.

197—(Continuing) ——of the organization of the BancoKentucky Company was, to quote your own words, to act as a holding company, and its primary purpose was to own and control a chain of banks?

The Court: He stated that he said that. Let's just ask the questions once.

198—Of course, when you used the term "holding company" in those two instances, you knew, probably as well as or better than any other lawyer in Louisville, what a holding company meant, didn't you?

A.—No, I don't suppose I did.

199—Were you not general counsel for the American Turf Association?

A.—Yes.

200—Didn't you organize it as a holding company?

A.—I did, and that was a holding company with absolutely no other powers and no other business in which it was ever to engage, it is strictly a holding company, very widely different from the BancoKentucky Company.

201—You had organized that prior to the organization of BancoKentucky Company?

A.—Yes.

202—So that when, in your previous testimony, you called the BancoKentucky Company a holding company, you knew the meaning of that word?

A.—I knew the meaning of holding company, yes.

203—Now, you organized other holding companies, didn't you?

A.—I think one or two.

I do not know that BancoKentucky was not qualified to do business in Kentucky. I recall that when I sent the charter back to Louisville from Dover my recollection is that I wrote Mr. Jones a letter enclosing the qualification slip or at least told him to qualify in Kentucky, and I assumed, of course, that had been done. I don't know it never qualified. I wrote them from Dover and told them to qualify in Kentucky, and how to do it.

I know, as far as being an operating company was concerned, that it had not a single, solitary paid employee. It had not got under way—of course, not. I know it had no separate office at that time. I don't know about its not having separate correspondence files. It had people acting as officers, but whether they were paid or not, I don't recall. I don't think they were. It had no employees that I know.

I recall that I testified in the case of Anderson v. Akers. My attention is directed to m examination on May 31, 1932, and particularly my cross-examination by Mr. Heyburn.

215—Just to refresh your recollection of the fact that you have always maintained that this was a holding company for bank stock, I want to ask you if these questions were not asked you and these answers given——

Mr. Crawford: I object.

The Court: Objection sustained; that is a conclusion that you may argue—you may draw that inference.

The Witness: I will say I never so maintained.

The Court: Ask him a question but don't make a statement.

The Witness: I have never wholly maintained such a thing.

216—Let's see about that. I will direct your attention to these questions and answers by Mr. Heyburn: "How long was the proposal to organize the BancoKentucky Company discussed in the Board of the National Bank of Kentucky before it was finally determined to go ahead with it? A.—My recollection is for months—I don't know the exact time, but it was discussed on a number of occasions. Q. 6—What was the purpose of organizing the BancoKentucky Company? A.—The purpose of the organization of the BancoKentucky Company was to be a holding company for the purpose of acquiring the control of the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky and of the Louisville Trust Company—of the participating certificates—and of banks in Cincinnati, Covington, and scattered around in various other sections of the Ohio Valley, Indianapolis, and the expectation was at one time to enter Chicago. The purpose of that bank was that the company could be organized and could acquire a control of the stock in these various institutions, that they could withdraw from the Federal Reserve System and that the BancoKentucky Company could act as reserve agent for them, and in addition to the bank matters the charter of the BancoKentucky Company gave various large powers that the banks didn't have"——

A.—Yes.

217 (Continuing)—"It could do many profitable things that banks could not do. It could underwrite securities, it could do any number of things that banks could not do, and it was thought that by the organization of that company, and it was confidently believed at the time, and but for the crash it would have been the strongest financial institution or organization in the entire South."

Now, that was your answer, wasn't it?

A.—Yes.

I assume my memory was clearer and fresher at that time than it is now. I paid no attention, as I said, to those details. The answer which I gave in that case was correct and true. I was asked in that case if I prepared the charter for BancoKentucky Company and I said I did. I was asked if I had all these various powers in my mind when I prepared the charter and I said yes, they were set out in the charter.

Mr. Crawford asked me if Mr. ZurSchmiede had any right to hold out the BancoKentucky Company as a holding company when he filed the application of BancoKentucky Company to list its securities on the Chicago Stock Exchange and my answer was "No."

223—Let me refresh your recollection: It wasn't Mr. ZurSchmiede who prepared those papers describing it as a holding company, but you?

A.—I?

224—Let me call your attention to this, before the Grand Jury, March term, 1931. When you were testifying this question was asked you: "I believe BancoKentucky stock was subsequently listed on the Chicago Exchange? A.—I know it was listed on the Chicago Stock Exchange because I prepared the papers."

Doesn't that refresh your recollection?

A.—Yes, but my recollection is also that I did not prepare the papers except to take up with the legal representatives of the Chicago Stock Exchange in Chicago—I have forgot the name of the firm now—the mechanics of qualifying this company on the Chicago Stock Exchange.

225—Those are the mechanics——

A. (Continuing)—But I did not prepare the papers. That is my recollection.

226—You prepared the papers. It says here: "I know it was listed on the Chicago Stock Exchange because I prepared the papers."

You prepared the papers in order to have it listed on the Chicago Stock Exchange?

A.—I said I did not prepare the papers. The papers, I think, were prepared by Mr. ZurSchmiede or someone else;

all I did was to take up with the legal representatives of the Chicago Stock Exchange the question of qualifying this corporation.

227—Now, Mr. Carroll, you don't deny you made that statement before the Grand Jury?

A.—Certainly not.

228—And also your recollection in 1931 was clearer and fresher than it is now?

A.—No—well, I assume it might have been, but what I meant to state there was that I had with the lawyers, as I have stated——

I do not know that when BancoKentucky Company filed its income tax return with the Federal government it described itself as a holding for bank stock.

Before the Grand Jury I was asked about some bonus which was said to have been paid to Mr. Mosler to get him to exchange his Brighton Bank stock for BancoKentucky stock and I stated that I didn't know about that and then I answered:

> "I know this statement was not made only once, but repeatedly, in connection with every bank, that there was not a cent of commission, not a penny of expense outside of the audit, that those trades were made without costing BancoKentucky Company a single dollar in the way of commission, fees or charges to anybody. • • • In addition to that no salary was ever paid to anybody connected with the BancoKentucky Company, not even to Mr. ZurSchmiede who did all the work. He never got a cent. No officer got a cent and no director ever collected a fee—never a penny, it was always boasted that it was a corporation that was operated without a cent of expense."

I made that answer and it was true.

The people who were working for the National Bank of Kentucky might have done this work. I assume Mr. Zur-

Schmiede was paid only by the National Bank of Kentucky. I know that as a director. I don't know that the bookkeepers who kept the books that were kept by Banco were the bookkeepers of the National Bank of Kentucky. As I stated, BancoKentucky had not got under way. It had not been fully organized.

I knew when I was drawing the charter for BancoKentucky Company that bank stocks are subject to double liability. I knew in substance what the terms of the law were. I had never previously incorporated any holding company which was intended to hold bank stock.

I made no detailed investigation in Delaware as to the charters of holding companies incorporated under the laws of that state which were intended to hold bank stock. I never heard of the Union Commerce Investment Company and didn't know that that corporation's charter on file in Delaware contained in Article 8 a provision for its stockholders' liability for any assessment on bank stock held by the corporation. I didn't know that the corporation owned the stock of the National Bank of Commerce of Detroit and the Union Trust Company. I can only repeat I never heard of it and knew nothing in the world about it.

I did not read and was not familiar with the fact that bank stock holding companies or corporations were being formed in various parts of the United States, which were intended among other things, to hold bank stocks. I don't know that I ever learned it except in forming—in organizing BancoKentucky. I knew it was to acquire and hold bank stock and also knew it was to engage in various other enterprises, and was an entirely separate and distinct corporation and not distinctly a holding corporation. I have said I never knew of any such other corporations or examined any such charter. I have never examined the charters of any holding company that was going to hold stock, among other, of banks. My recollection is, if you will look at Article 3 of the charter you won't see "bank" or "bank stock" in it. I never examined the charter of a corporation that was designed or intended to hold primarily bank stocks.

Plaintiff's motion to strike out the answer of the witness, that this was the usual customary form used in the charter of corporations of this character, since the witness now says he never examined the charter of a similar corporation, was overruled.

Before the Jefferson County Grand Jury in November, 1930, and February, 1931, I was asked whether BancoKentucky would have been formed if Louisville Trust Company and National Bank of Kentucky had not been purchased by it and I answered, "No. They were to be a unit." That was true.

I knew that holders of bank stock were subject to double liability, but it never entered in my mind that holders of BancoKentucky stock would be subject to liability, in as much as it was an entirely separate corporation and was the owner of the stock.

261—Then you did have it in your mind that the holders of stock of the BancoKentucky Company, because it was a separate corporation, were not going to be assessable?

A.—I did not have it in my mind.

262—Isn't that the explanation that you just gave the court, that your idea was that the holders of this holding company stock would not be subject to double liability?

A.—I think I made no such answer. What I said was that I knew the owners of bank stock, the holders of bank stock were subject to double liability, which answered your question. Then I went on to state that it never entered my mind that the holders of BancoKentucky stock would be subject to double liability. That is a legal question I don't want to argue.

263—You knew the holders of the Trustees' Participation Certificates were subject to double liability, didn't you?

A.—No.

264—You didn't know that?

A.—No.

265—Doesn't it provide so in the Trust Agreement?

A.—Yes, it does.

266—Doesn't the face of the Trustees' Participation Certificates provide that the holder of the Trustees' Certificate agreed to respond to that liability?

A.—They were the owners of the stock.

267—What did you mean by your answer that the holders of Trustees' Certificates were not subject to double liability?

Mr. Crawford: He didn't say that. He said he didn't know.

A.—I said I didn't know, and then, in answer to your second question, I said I did.

268—In other words, you mean your first answer was wrong?

A.—No, my first answer might not have been responsive.

I was a director on all these Boards, on the Board of the Louisville Trust Company up to January 13, 1930, I think it was, when the Boards were separated. I was at all times a member of the National Bank of Kentucky Board and a member of the BancoKentucky Board, from the time it was organized until we caused it to go into the hands of a receiver. I was chairman of the Executive Committee of the BancoKentucky Company, which was formed just as at the last phase.

I have never read the petition introduced in this case as Exhibit No. 66, even though it bears my name.

I thought you meant the petition in the suit at bar. Yes, I know about the petition to have the BancoKentucky Company placed in the hands of a receiver. I knew about it and approved of it. I think I was also a member of the Advisory Committee to the Trustees. I am not sure of that. If the record shows I was, I was. But I simply have no independent recollection of it. I don't know that I was a member of the Advisory Committee by reason of being a member of one of the Bank's Board. I know I was a member of the Bank Board and the BancoKentucky Board and I was Chairman of the Executive Committee that was formed towards the end. I have no recollection whether I was on any other committee or board.

I think the Trustees who held this stock voted it as the Advisory Committee directed. If the record shows that by the terms of the Trust Agreement the Board of Directors of the Trust Company and the Bank were the Advisory Committee, they were. I have no independent recollection of anything in that Trust Agreement. I don't know that I was a member of the Advisory Committee. I don't recollect whether I was one of the men responsible for voting all the stock of both the Trust Company and the National Bank. If the record shows I was, I was.

I remember you examined me on cross-examination in the case of Louisville Trust Company v. The National Bank of Kentucky, a case growing out of the dispute as to the ownership of 421 West Market Street.

295—Do you remember my asking you these questions, Mr. Carroll: "Q. And you were the owners of these two companies?" referring to the two banks, the Louisville Trust Company and National Bank of Kentucky—"at that time, and your answer: "Banco?" and I said "Yes," and your answer: "They owned the control system."

A.—I don't know what that means, if you mean whether or not—— 296—I am not asking you—I am asking you if you made that answer?

A.—I don't know whether I made it or not. If it is there I did.

The Court: It is there. He said if it is there he did.

A.—I will accept your statement, yes, that they owned the control system. I don't know what that word "control" means. That is very probably a misprint.

297—See if you didn't mean this when you said control system: BancoKentucky Company had more than ninety-five per cent—about ninety-five per cent of the Trustees' Certificates.

A.—It had a majority, a large majority of the Trustees' Certificates. I don't recall that. If the record so shows it was, and I was a member, as I have said, but I don't remember—— 299—(Interrupting.) Therefore, through that system whereby the BancoKentucky Board had stock control, and through the Advisory Committee the voting control, BancoKentucky Company was the control system by which these banks were operated by its stockholders?

A.—I still say that the word "Control"——

300—(Interrupting.) That is the fact. You had the control, didn't you?

A.—Oh, we had control; we had control of the banks.

301—That was the system by which you had control, wasn't it?

A.—If that is what it means, yes.

I had no part in the denationalization question at all. Years have dimmed my recollection as to small details. That is my signature to Exhibit 8 which is entitled "Consent of Advisory Committee." That is an order to the Trustees to denationalize the National Bank of Kentucky, signed by me. As I said, if the records showed I was a member of the Advisory committee, I was a member, and this shows that I was. I took no part in any steps taken in connection with the denationalization of the banks. That, in my recollection, was attended to by Mr. Helm and probably Mr. Vaughan, who were the lawyers, and I had no part in it, as a lawyer. I might have had a part as a director and member of the Advisory Committee and I signed that paper. It was a part of the Banco plan that we would denationalize the National Bank of Kentucky. That was considered, I am quite sure, but I don't remember the details about it at all.

In my testimony in Akers v. Anderson I was asked this question. No. 9, "As part of that BancoKentucky Company plan was it contemplated that the National Bank of Kentucky would denationalize?" and my answer was, "That was considered and discussed that it would denationalize and obtain a charter as a state bank." That was correct.

You show me Plf's Ex. 34-2, a letter of September 16, 1927, addressed to the Comptroller of the Currency and ask if that is my signature. It is, and I remember all about this. I signed it. I never saw the report. I will state the facts about that matter were these: That Mr. Jones came to my office with this letter and stated that he had received a communication from the Comptroller about some of the accounts in the bank that had already been satisfactorily adjusted, and it was merely a routine matter and presented to me this letter that had been signed by a good many of the other directors, and I signed my name to that letter but I never saw the report to which it refers.

The witness: Your honor, I would like to extend my answer a little bit to that question. Mr. Jones further explained to me that it was merely a routine matter, that it was no criticism of anything about the bank's affairs but that it was a routine matter about some of the stock in the bank that might have been over-loaned. Loaned in excess of the legal limit.

Right above my signature to this thing—it reached a grand total of $966,797.00. Mr. Jones explained that that had already been remedied. I would not consider that loans of $966,000 in excess of the limit—more than 20% of the capital of the bank—was a routine matter. I happen to know about these particular loans. They were all as good as gold. I will not say the Consolidated Realty Company loan was as good as gold. I do not know what the losses of the bank on that item were. I don't know that is one of the principal items there. If you let me look at it, I will see what the loans were. No, I was referring to this Kentucky Jockey Club loan which I knew all about. That was a loan of $530,000 and some odd dollars. But I knew that that loan was perfectly good. I don't recall about these other loans. I don't think they were good, but the statement was made to me that they had been adjusted and brought within the legal limit. I have said no less than three or four times that this letter did call my attention to the fact that there was correspondence with the officers of the Bank relative to the Bank's condition and its examination just previous thereto.

There is no doubt in my mind that the officers of the bank were fully advised as to the condition of the bank at all times. They should have been. Whether they were or not, I don't know.

Mr. Brown, the President of the Bank, had the National Bank Examiner's report in his hands at the time he purported to read to us certain sections of it. He was the principal originator or proponent of the BancoKentucky Company. I think the idea originated with Mr. Brown. The Board of Directors delegated to Mr. Brown the arrangement of the details for setting this program for the organization of BancoKentucky under way. At that time the Board had the utmost confidence in Mr. Brown. The Board delegated him the authority and duty to work out the details and cause the organization of BancoKentucky company and report to the Board. I was present at the meeting June 7, 1929, when the following resolution was passed:

"Mr. Brown's proposition to form a new company with a proposed capital of $20,000,000 organized to own stock of other corporations, all, or any part, buy and sell securities, original and refinancing, etc., was submitted to the Board of Directors, and the Board expressed themselves as favorable, and on motion duly seconded and unanimously carried, the President was authorized to proceed along the lines outlined."

It doesn't say anything here about his reporting back to us, but he was to report back. That resolution doesn't say that. It was adopted and he was to report. The resolution refers to BancoKentucky Company.

The purchase price of the Banco stock for which I subscribed was $25,000—1000 shares at $25.00 a share. I borrowed the entire amount from the National Bank of Kentucky and put up the 1000 shares of Banco as security, plus 100 shares of Standard Oil of Kentucky at the time I made the loan. At the time the bank closed I had repaid $2,200.00.

With reference to the Caldwell deal,—I was one of the lawyers, in a small way, that worked on that contract. I attended a meeting at Mr. Brown's house at which Mr. Caldwell was present. Mr. Helm was there, I knew, and Mr. Vaughan. I am not certain as to whether Mr. Dodd was or not. The matter was discussed there, but the modifications of that contract were drawn by Mr. Vaughan and Mr. Helm. I had no part in that. I knew that Caldwell had an interest in banks. I don't know that Rogers Caldwell wholly owned Caldwell & Company. I don't think it was so represented to us. I don't recall that. I think it was a corporation and that there were other stockholders. Who they were and what amount they held I don't know.

At that time BancoKentucky Company owned nothing but Bank stock and an infinitesimal amount of Union Central Life Insurance Company stock. As I have stated, BancoKentucky never got under way because the crash came right at that time. The crash which I am talking about is the stock market crash in October, 1929. I don't know about our acquiring "plenty" of banks after that and I don't remember the date they were acquired. We acquired the Central Savings Bank and Trust Company on December 9, 1929, after the stock market crash, if that is the date. We acquired the Peoples Liberty Bank of Covington on December 30, 1929, if that was the date. We acquired the First National Bank of Paducah on March 19, 1930, if that was the date, and the Ashland National Bank on April 15, 1930, if that was the date. I will say yes, we did. We acquired the Security Bank in Louisville on April 26, 1930. As late as Sept. 27, 1930, we acquired the Mechanics Bank and Trust Company of Paducah, if that is the date.

I don't suppose anybody thought that the financial crash would reach the tremendous and disastrous proportions it did. We thought things would right themselves, and that business would come back.

I don't remember that at the time we made this deal, with Rogers Caldwell, or Caldwell & Company, that our assets were wholly invested in bank stocks, and that we had no cash.

We had no audit made of Caldwell & Company. The facts were these, as I recall them, that Mr. Brown stated he had made an investigation of Caldwell & Company. When the matter of acquiring an interest in Caldwell & Company first came up, Mr. Brown suggested that, and it was considered, and he said he wanted to investigate it further. At a subsequent meeting of the Board he said that he had investigated it further, and he read from a statement showing the assets, liabilities and net worth of Caldwell & Company, the net worth being $11,000,000 or $12,000,000, and Caldwell guaranteeing $9,000,000, and he made the further statement that those figures had been obtained from an audit made by Price, Waterhouse and Company, whose audit I would accept on any proposition. Those were the facts about that.

I don't know that those were the same people who made the audit of McKesson & Robbins. I never saw the audit of Price, Waterhouse & Company. Mr. Brown didn't have any audit of that company there at the meeting. Mr. Brown said Caldwell told him, and then he read those figures that he said were obtained from an audit made by Price, Waterhouse & Company, and I, at that time, had confidence in Mr. Brown and I believed his statement. I don't know whether he got the figures personally from Price, Waterhouse & Company or claimed to get them from Price, Waterhouse. He said they were figures taken from an audit made by Price, Waterhouse, of Caldwell & Company. Where he got them and how he got them, he did not state, and I don't know. I don't recall that anybody asked him.

Rogers Caldwell objected to an audit being made in advance of the deal being entered into, it was understood that before any dividends were to be paid an audit was to have been made of Caldwell & Company's business. My recollection is that they appointed a committee of the Board to do it. I was not on it. Mr. Helm and Mr. Vaughan were on the committee. I don't recall whether Mr. Brown was on it or not.

I really don't know whether Mr. Brown was a Director in every bank that Banco owned or held stock of. I know he was a Director of the Louisville Bank, but I don't know as to the outside banks. I do not know that the committee never met. I do not know that a valuation was never made. I meant to say that so far as I know, no audit was ever made. I don't know whether the Committee met or made any valuation. I have no knowledge of that whatever.

I didn't know at the time we made the negotiations with Caldwell that the stock was worthless. I know now that it was worthless. 200,000 shares of Banco stock were held out at the time. I think that an additional 200,000 shares were held as a guarantee against the making of the audit, as to what was to be disclosed by the audit. That is my recollection. I don't remember when that occurred.

I knew that Caldwell was going to take the Kentucky Wagon Works out of the Bank. I consider that it was a good thing to get rid of the Kentucky Wagon Works. I did not know how much the bank had invested in it. I thought it was somewhere about $400,000, plus some few hundred dollars that is my recollection. I do not know that $2,500,000 in stock of BancoKentucky was the amount turned over to Caldwell & Company. What I know was this,—that at practically every meeting of the Board of Directors of the National Bank of Kentucky questions were asked about the Kentucky Wagon Manufacturing Company. It was stated that that debt had been charged down, is my recollection, to about $400,000, that there were no overdrafts, that the concern was operating, that there might have been an overdraft to tide over some raw materials, and the question was asked at every meeting as to how that corporation was going along, and it was said in every instance that it was holding its own. Three of the Vice-Presidents of the banks, as I recall, were directors of the Kentucky Wagon Manufacturing Company to look after the bank's interests.

There wasn't any doubt that they knew all about the Kentucky Wagon Works. They certainly knew all about it, but I didn't. The Board had delegated to them that job.

I signed statements of the condition of the bank, March 7, 1930, June 30, 1930 and September 24, 1930, if those are the dates. I know I signed two or three statements. I knew what I was signing, but it turned out I wasn't signing what was afterwards put into those reports, as I think I testified afterwards in the Keyes suit. In other words, that certain things were inserted in those reports after they had been signed. Mr. Brown inserted them, I assume, or at his direction. It must have been either he or Mr. Jones. Mr. Jones, I take it, would not have done it except at Mr. Brown's direction. Charles F. Jones was the Executive Vice-President of the Bank. He had been Cashier and was then elected Vice-President, and possibly at one of those meetings was elected Executive Vice-President, but I am not sure as to that. If any changes were made in the statement of condition they were by somebody, I don't know who fraudulently entered them.

Those officers of the Bank were chosen by the Directors. I suppose the Directors were chosen by themselves, as the Advisory Committee who had directed the voting of the stock of the bank.

I knew the Kentucky Wagon Works was owned by the bank. I knew that the BancoKentucky Company had acquired the Murray Rubber note or debentures and the participation in the Lewis C. Humphrey note at the insistence of the Chief National Bank Examiner. I don't remember the amount. I don't know that it was $600,000 in cash. I don't recall that BancoKentucky had no money. I don't know that. I knew these two items were taken out of the Bank but I don't remember what was paid for them. I didn't know those items were worthless. I have no knowledge that I have testified on previous occasions that they were worthless. I may have but I certainly don't remember it.

I have no recollection of having testified on previous occasions that it did not make any difference whether the items were in the BancoKentucky or in the Bank, because the same people owned both. If you will show it to me, I will tell you whether I answered or not.

I testified in a hearing before the Grand Jury which met to consider BancoKentucky, February 23 to February 27, 1931:

> "The BancoKentucky Company owned all of the capital stock of the National Bank of Kentucky, and therefore, anything that was to the benefit of the National Bank of Kentucky would necessarily be beneficial to BancoKentucky."

The reason for that is because if the ownership was common, anything that benefited one benefited both. I said I had no recollection of it. Now, that you produced it, I say yes, that is what I testified.

In the same answer I said this:

> "Now, the arrangement made with the Kentucky Wagon Works was a very advantageous thing, not only to the National Bank of Kentucky, but ultimately to the BancoKentucky, because it took out of the National Bank of Kentucky all of that indebtedness, and BancoKentucky acquired from Caldwell & Company a hundred thousand shares of its own stock, which if that stock had been at the price it was then, would be largely more than the indebtedness of the Wagon Company, as it would be $2,500,000."

That refreshes my recollection. I made that answer. It was correct.

I don't know that it was the ownership by Banco of the stock of the Cincinnati banks that caused the run on the Cincinnati banks. I don't recall whether I so testified or not. I testified about the Cincinnati situation, referring to the previous run in the summer time that had died down, and this came up and they, knowing that BancoKentucky Company owned the stock in the two banks—a run started on them. I answered that, yes. That is correct, too.

I wasn't the author of the plan to physically merge the Louisville Trust Company and the National Bank of Kentucky. I know there was such a proposition, but I have no recollection of my having been the author of it. Probably they asked me to draft such a plan, and I might have drawn the plan, but what it was now, I don't recall. It was certainly designed and intended to save the banks.

With reference to how soon before the final collapse I started working on that plan, my recollection is now that I drafted that plan—I don't recall its terms—that I drafted that plan, and I think I submitted it to the Executive Committee, is my recollection, of the BancoKentucky, and I think that was just before the banks failed, that that had not been conceived or considered until probably a day—I had not been working on it for about ten weeks before that. I think I drew that—the drawing of whatever the plan was I drew very speedily, in order to get it in in a last effort to save the banks. I was not the one who first proposed it at all. I don't recall how that came up. That was discussed and considered and I was asked to draw the plan, I think, by the Executive Committee of the Board of Directors of the BancoKentucky, and I did, as speedily as I could, draw that plan, but it was too late.

The minutes show that I presented a motion on December 27, 1929, to increase the Banco stock from twenty million to fifty million. My recollection is that there were two prime motives in denying to the then stockholders their preemptive rights to subscribe for the new stock. These two motives were: First, that it was considered advisable to obtain as wide a distribution as possible of the Banco-Kentucky stock; and secondly, it was considered advisable to have in the treasury of BancoKentucky a considerable amount of that stock that might either be sold or be used in acquiring stock in other corporations of various character, not banks alone.

429—You say "not banks alone," but including banks?

A.—Any corporations that it was considered advisable for the BancoKentucky to acquire an interest in.

430—Any corporations included banks, didn't it?

A.—It might have been banks and it might not have been banks, it was to be used in acquiring an interest, as I said, in banks, manufacturing corporations, or any other corporations.

Since the stockholders had preemptive rights we could not use it in that way to exchange for other bank stock because the present stockholders would have subscribed, in all probability, for all that increased stock. I think I was Chairman at that meeting at which that amendment was proposed, and I drew that amendment. I remember you asked me in the Building Case, about what we called the Carroll plan, this physical merger of the Louisville Trust Company and National Bank of Kentucky. You asked me, "Well, wasn't it in October?" and I said, "I think it was in October." I made that answer evidently. I don't remember what date it was. I know it was just before the failure of the banks. That trial was about five or six years ago, so probably the dates were fresher in my mind then than they are now. I have no recollection as to the time, as to the date.

I have no recollection now of approving the idea of lending money to employees of the Bank, to enable them to purchase the stock of the BancoKentucky Company for the reason that I regarded that as a cooperative profit sharing. If that is said there, it is the fact.

I answered the question

> "I thought all of those loans were good and well secured, and it was my idea that there could be no more desirable loans, if they were secured, as I thought they were, than loans to employees of the bank on a cooperative profit sharing."

That is what I thought, because I thought Banco would be a highly successful organization, and I wanted the employees of the Bank to get some benefit from it.

I was present at the meeting of the Board of Directors of Banco on Friday, September 27, 1929, Exhibit 23, when a motion was made, seconded and carried that > "Application be made to the Chicago Stock Exchange for the listing of 2,000,000 shares of the Common Stock of the BancoKentucky Company and that W. T. ZurSchmiede" was designated "to appear before the Committee on Stock List of said Exchange with authority to furnish such information and to make such changes in said application, or in any agreements relative thereto, as may be necessary to conform with the requirements for listing."

I remember that, and that is what I said when I was asked that question today, that Mr. ZurSchmiede did it.

I assume that Plaintiff's Exhibit 74 entitled "The Chicago Stock Exchange, Application to list stocks," is the application that Mr. ZurSchmiede was authorized at all board meetings to sign and file.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Crawford

On redirect examination by Mr. Crawford, Mr. Carroll testified as follows:

I gave a deposition in Carroll v. Chemical Bank & Trust Company, December 21, 1937. The present suit was filed February 17, 1936, prior to my giving of that deposition.

Refreshing my recollection by reading paragraph 3 of Plaintiff's Exhibit 24, I wrote this letter to Mr. Jones, dictated it in the office of the United States Corporation Company after the charter had been filed. In that letter I stated:

> "I also enclose statement of corporation to be filled out, signed by the President or Secretary of the new corporation and sent to the Secretary of State of Kentucky, together with a filing fee of $1.00. When this is done, the corporation will be fully organized to do business in Kentucky."

Nothing else was needed in that respect to do business under the laws of Kentucky. That is all that is needed. I did not know that that had not been done. I assumed, of course, it had been done.

BancoKentucky paid me for drawing the organization papers for Banco. I will state that on January 9, 1930, I received a check from Banco for $12,500. That was stated to be in payment of attorneys' fees up to January 1, 1930. On the same day I sent a check for $4,000 to Mr. Helm, a check for $4,000 to Mr. Vaughan and a check for $500 to Miller & Chevalier, and I retained my portion of the fee, $4,000.

I was asked about signing some reports and referred to insertions in those reports. Those insertions were with reference to overdrafts in the Wagon Company. The issue, as to whether they were in there or not, was tried out in the Directors' Case. Testimony was offered on the subject, as I recall it.

The Murray Rubber Company transaction was when Mr. Neill was in the Bank, I think. It was long before the time that Mr. Neill was there. He was the last one to make an examination and the second Bank Examiner that had ever appeared before the Board.

I was asked about a letter of September 16th referring to Consolidated Realty Company, and Jockey Club excessive loans. After I signed that letter I never again at any time while I was in the Bank heard of those two loans. Or any criticism of the Consolidated Realty Company or the Jockey Club. I was on the Board of the Bank when it purchased claims against the Wagon Company. That was for the purpose of acquiring title to the Wagon Company property. During the course of those proceedings I think other expenses were had in connection with that company. I don't remember what the amount of them was. I was also aware of the fact that there had been loans to National Motors and other companies either allied with or having to do with the Wagon Company. I did not know that there had been overdrafts. In that trade with Caldwell I don't recall how much had been charged off by the Bank. I don't recall what the original amount of the loan was, but my recollection is that it had been charged down to about $400,000. I did know that there had been charge-offs but what the total amount had been, I don't know.

When Mr. ZurSchmiede was authorized to make the listing on the Chicago Stock Exchange I have no recollection of that particular listing having been before the Board, the particular statement to be filed.

Recross Examination by Mr. Marx

On Recross Examination by Mr. Marx Mr. Carroll testified as follows:

I don't remember the amount of the loss going to this item of Kentucky Wagon Manufacturing Company which I ascertained after the Bank closed or that the aggregate amount of notes and overdrafts in the Bank due to the Wagon Company item was $2,368,453. I do remember it was largely in excess of what we had been told the amount was.

I was a defendant in the case of Anderson v. Akers. The judgment against me for my dereliction of common law duties as director on the Kentucky Wagon Manufacturing Company item alone was $99,283.57. Whatever the amount was. I do not know that figure.

I was held in that case responsible for losses incurred by the Bank on the Kentucky Wagon Manufacturing Company, the Murray Rubber Company, and Wakefield & Company for my dereliction of common law duties as a director, and for my violation of the Statute laws of the United States in the case of E. B. Norman & Company, for a total amount of $2,311,644.72, individually. I have no idea that that was the biggest amount of any Director. I know it was more than I was readily able to pay.

William S. Speed,

called for Defendants, examined by Mr. Crawford, testified as follows:

My name is William S. Speed. I have lived in Louisville all my life. My principal business is the Louisville Cement Company. I am engaged in other businesses.

I was a director of the National Bank of Kentucky from 1919 on to the closing. I was on the Board when the stock of the Bank was trusteed with the stock of the Trust Company. And when the sixty per cent stock dividend was declared. I was familiar with those proceedings.

11—Will you tell the Court why Banco was formed?

Mr. Marx: I object. I want to interpose a general objection on the ground that that evidence is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial. It is an attempt to vary, alter or explain the written evidence, and is secondary evidence of which the best evidence has been produced here in written form over the signature of the witness and his fellow officers and directors, and further, that it constitutes an attempt, nine years after the event, to explain or rationalize the things that the witness did, which are set forth and recorded in records made, not by the Government, but by the defendants themselves in this case. I interpose these objections generally, to avoid the necessity of interrupting. If I may understand that they are continued to each and every question, it will avoid the necessity of interrupting; I sort of trust myself to Your Honor's hands, as Your Honor sometimes sustains objections sua sponte.

The Court: Let the objection be overruled. Let it be understood that that objection applies to all questions which the witness may be asked about the reasons ——

Mr. Marx (Interrupting): I thought, if Your Honor could let it be understood generally——

The Court: I am not going to let it be general, but with reference to the reasons which this witness may state were in the minds of the directors or those taking a leading part in the forming of BancoKentucky.

Mr. Crawford: I want to show what was discussed, not what was in their minds.

Mr. Marx: I further object on the ground that that was merged in the result of their deliberations, and that prior negotiations, antecedent to the adoption of the resolutions forming the charter, the contracts, the subscription and so forth—that all antecedents are merged in the final documents and speak for themselves, and are clear and unambiguous.

The Court: The objection is overruled.

The BancoKentucky Company was formed for the purpose of buying control of a number of banks, particularly in the Ohio Valley, and to do a general investment business, such as underwriting issues of stocks and bonds of various corporations. That part of it, particularly, was considered to be quite a profitable thing. There was never any intention, so far as expressed in the board meetings, to abandon the last phases of the reason I gave.

At the time Banco was formed, there was no discussion of any kind in the Board, or anything brought to my notice, to indicate that the Bank was in any financial trouble whatsoever. If there had been, I certainly would not have been in favor of the formation of Banco Company. Our bank had been declaring dividends up to that time. There had not been any criticism from any source regarding those dividends, to my knowledge.

I had stock in the National Bank of Kentucky. After the formation of Banco I traded the Trustees' Certificates for Banco. I retained enough stock to qualify me in the National Bank of Kentucky Board of Directors. I got the dividends on that stock.

At the time I traded my Trustees' Certificates to Banco I certainly did not have any idea or suspicion that the Bank was in such a condition that it might fail. I bought a lot more stock about that time. I have got a record of all my stock.

I had 300 shares of the old $100 par Trustees' Certificates. These Trustees' Certificates were transferred out of Bank of Kentucky stock and then I bought, January 1, 1929, 300 more at a cost of $106,800. I exchanged those 600 for 6,000 of the new Trustees' Certificates and I bought 500 more of the new Trustees' Certificates September 16, 1929, for $22,750.00. So on September 19, 1929, I had 6,500 Trustees' Certificates. I exchanged those for BancoKentucky stock, which gave me 13,000 shares of Banco. On October 1, 1929, I bought 5,000 shares of Banco at a cost of $125,000.00. On April 4, 1930, I bought 200 shares. No, I beg your pardon, I exchanged my Louisville Trust Company 10 shares, the qualifying stock, and got 200 shares of BancoKentucky stock on April 4, 1930. On April 17, 1930, I bought 400 shares and April 22nd, 1930, I bought 200 shares, and April 23rd, 1930, I bought 200 shares, making a total of 19,000 shares.

I had a deposit in the National Bank of Kentucky when it closed. My company, the Louisville Cement Company, had a very large deposit. I testified in the directors' case relative to Examiners' reports and letters from the Comptroller and other matters that came up in that case. I testified for a very long while.

Cross-Examination by Mr. Marx

On Cross-Examination by Mr. Marx Mr. Speed testified as follows:

From the list of stock I read from I acquired 86 shares of National Bank of Kentucky stock on January 1, 1920. That came into the Bank of Kentucky from the German Bank. I was a stockholder in the German Bank and when it merged with the Bank of Commerce, first, and then later with the Bank of Kentucky, that stock was exchanged.

That was simply an exchange of stock. I paid no money at that time. I don't remember when I became a stockholder of the German Bank, or whether I ever bought any or not. My father was a director of the German Bank at his death, and I inherited some of the stock and became a director at that time. I haven't any idea now at what I carried the cost of that 86 shares of National Bank of Kentucky, that is too far back. I would have to look it up. I don't remember buying any. I might have bought a small amount, of German Bank stock, but I think it was all inherited from my father who had been a director of that Bank for a period of years. I don't know at what value I took it when I inherited it from my father's estate. I suppose I could look it up.

In 1921 I bought fourteen additional shares. That list was copied by my secretary. I don't know at all what that cost me. The German Bank stock was a high priced stock. In July, 1926, I bought 59 additional shares, and on August 27, 1926, I bought 22 shares. Then, it says here 4 shares, and that apparently goes back to July 28, 1925. This is the Bank of Kentucky stock. I think the list is correct as it is, but I could check that. I will try to find out what those 200 shares of Bank stock cost me. Before I made my transfer into Trustees' Certificates I got a 60 per cent stock dividend. That increased my stock holdings from 200 shares to 320 shares of National Bank of Kentucky stock. I paid nothing for the stock dividend.

I realize that bank stocks are subject to what they call double liability. I knew that at the time.

When I exchanged the National Bank stock for Trustees' Participating Certificates, I got par for par, 320 $100 par certificates of the Trust. No, I retained 10 shares of National Bank of Kentucky stock, as a director of that bank, and I exchanged 10 for Louisville Trust Company stock, qualifying shares, and then exchanged the other 300 for Trustees' Participating Certificates. I did not have any stock in the Louisville Trust Company until I exchanged some of my Bank of Kentucky stock for Louisville Trust Company stock. Other than by this exchange, I never invested a dollar in the Louisville Trust Company, but this, of course, was a valuable stock that I transferred from one to the other.

I don't remember the terms of the Trust now at all.

But I know I had those 10 qualifying shares in each one and I got the dividends on each of them. When I resigned from the Louisville Trust Company I withdrew my Louisville Trust Company stock and transferred it to the Trustees' Certificates and then to Banco.

I did not have physical possession of the ten shares of stock in either the Louisville Trust Company or the National Bank of Kentucky. I had a receipt for each. The physical custody and control of those certificates was in the hands of the six Trustees under the Trust Agreement I presume. But in this receipt I had a right to withdraw it, if I remember correctly. I think the terms of the receipt gave me the right to withdraw it.

I don't recall that I signed another contract under the terms of which I agreed that, in consideration for their qualifying me as a director, in the event I ceased to be a director for any reason whatever, that stock should become the property of the Trustees and they would exchange for that stock Trustees' Certificates. I don't doubt that is a matter of record.

> The minutes of the Trustees recite "The Secretary reported that all but five of the Directors had signed Agreements to the effect that upon death, insolvency, attachment; or upon ceasing to be a director in either of the affiliating institutions, they or their heirs, assigns or personal representatives, would forthwith retransfer to the Trustees, certificates for their qualifying shares of stock in each institution upon receiving from the Trustees, participation certificates of interest for an equal number of shares thereof, upon the basis of a par of $100 each." Exhibit 8 recites that upon the inventory of the safe deposit box of the trustee my stock and my agreement were both in the box. I don't question that.

My recollection is that the dividends I received were the dividends declared by the National Bank of Kentucky, the same amount as declared by the National Bank of Kentucky. I presume that the amount I would get on T. P. C.'s and the amount I got on my bank stock was identical. That is my recollection. It would be the same. As far as the net amount of money that I would receive as dividends from the Bank is concerned, it was exactly the same whether I held all my stock holdings in Trustees' Certificates, or whether I held all my stock holdings in the Bank and Trust Company.

When I made the exchange of my National Bank stock into Trustees' Certificates I knew a certain percentage was National Bank of Kentucky and a certain percentage was Louisville Trust Company.

I don't suppose I thought of the fact that the Louisville Trust Company stock was also subject to what it popularly termed double liability. But I would not have questioned it at all, that it was subject to the liability. If I had been asked at the time if I knew a state bank's stock was subject to the same liability under state law as National Bank was under national laws I would have said yes.

I don't recall that when I made this exchange I waived my dividend from the qualifying shares. You show me Exhibit No. 8 and call my attention to the record in the minutes of the trustees which says: "Written waiver was presented signed by Messrs. Stites, Bloch, Helm, Kohn . . . Speed, Lyons, Crawford . . . in regard to the payment of dividends on the qualifying shares." I don't recall it just now. I received dividends—it may have come from the other source, but I got the money. The money would be the identical amount, I think. I don't recall that I signed the waiver and got dividends not on the qualifying shares but on the Trustees' Certificates. But I don't question but what I did.

I presume I knew when I made the exchange of National Bank of Kentucky stock for Trustees' Certificates, which included the Louisville Trust, that the Trustees' Certificates were subject to the same double liability. As I said, I don't think I gave the matter consideration at the time, but I would expect it to be.

As a director of the National Bank of Kentucky I approved the Trust Agreement. I knew the terms of that agreement. I knew that under the Trust Agreement these Trustees' Certificates which I was taking bore a contractual liability on my part, and on the part of all others similarly situated, to pay whatever assessment might be levied by the Comptroller of Currency on the National Bank, or be determined by the Courts of Kentucky on the State bank stock.

I exchanged all of my $100 par Trustees' Certificates for $10 par Trustees' Certificates. Then I exchanged all of my $10 par certificates two for one for BancoKentucky stock.

The letter of July 19th, 1929 was sent out while I was in Europe. My name is appended, but apparently I never signed it because I was in Europe and the letter was received at my office and put in my file. I don't recall seeing that until I looked in the file after the Bank closed, but I don't suppose that is material one way or the other. I don't recall that I knew about its having been sent out.

You show me Plaintiff's Exhibit 170. That is my signature. I apparently signed it sometime in September; I don't know just when. Payment was to be made the first of October. I think I went to Europe the latter part of June, I am not sure, and got back sometime in September, so apparently this would be after that.

This Exhibit refers to the letter and says "Subscription to the shares of the BancoKentucky Company under the Reorganization Plan as outlined in the letter of July 19, 1929." That does not refresh my recollection that I did know about that letter. I don't recall the letter at all until after the Bank closed, but I knew in a general way what was being done.

Plaintiff's Exhibit 171 bears my signature. It relates to somebody else's certificate, and I was the Trustee for my daughter. She had some bank stock which I exchanged for Banco. I am Trustee for this account. I presume I signed Exhibit 171 about the same time. I don't know.

Said papers were received in evidence and marked for identification "Plaintiff's Exhibits Nos. 170 and 171."

Plaintiff's exhibit No. 153, bears my signature and I wrote the address. I presume that was written about the same time as the others. I don't know. I think it must have been, though. I don't think I can remember just now whether I was in Paris when I was in Europe. I have been to Europe quite a good deal. When I was in Paris I read either the Paris edition of the New York Herald or the Chicago Tribune. I don't recall having seen Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 99, a clipping from the Paris edition of the New York Herald reciting the purchase by BancoKentucky of the Cincinnati banks. I might have seen it but I don't recall.

I think Mr. Boswell was a director of the Louisville Trust Company. I think he was connected with that company. I don't know whether he was in Europe at that time. I don't recall seeing him. I did not communicate with him from Paris.

My 320 shares of National Bank of Kentucky stock, by virtue of these several exchanges, first into Trust Certificates and then into Banco stock gave me 6,000 shares of Banco.

I had 300 shares of Trustees' Certificates and I bought 300 additional of the $10 par. Those 6,000 were converted into 12,000 shares of Banco. No—600 were converted into 12,000 Banco. The 600 were split 10 for 1. Then I purchased 500, making 6,500 $10 par Trustees' Participation Certificates. When I exchanged it into Banco it made 13,000 shares of Banco. Then, these other purchases were made afterwards.

When I made the exchange and received 13,000 shares of BancoKentucky stock in exchange for the bank stock represented by the Trustees' Certificates, I don't believe I reported to the United States Government any taxable gain or loss as a result of that transaction. I don't think there was any taxable gain or loss. My records were examined every year by the Treasury Department examiners here. My records would show all these transactions.

There is no doubt that at the issue price of Banco, $25 for each share, whereby I got $50 for a $10 Trust Certificate, at that figure there was a considerable appreciation above the cost of my bank stock. I bought some Trustees' Participation Certificates on September 16, 1929, which was just before the exchange date. Those were the Interim Trust Certificates. I paid about $45.50 for each certificate. So when I exchanged those certificates for two shares of Banco at $25.00 a share, that would make a difference of, roughly speaking, a gain of about $50.00 on a $100.00 par. In other words, there would have been a slight profit on purchasing rather than subscribing at par. I did both. January 21st, 1929 I bought 300 of the old certificates and paid $106,000 for it. That is $356.00 per certificate. Figuring it out in my head and I don't say it is correct, there would be a gain on the purchase I made January 21, 1929 of a difference, roughly, between $17 and $25, if it was sold at $25.

You have to have consummated your sale after your purchase in order to make the gain. I did not report any taxable gain when I made the exchange into BancoKentucky stock. I followed the ruling of the Government official on all that. My books were open to the Government and they were examined by the Government every year and the Government lawyers accepted the situation as not disclosing any taxable gain, that is my recollection.

I made a further purchase of Banco after my initial subscription that was at a little under $25. I don't remember what the figures are there. This purchase on April 17, 1930 of 400 shares cost 23 and nearly eight-tenths dollars a share. On April 22, 1930, 200 shares cost $23.60 something; and April 23rd, a day later, 200 shares cost $24 and about one tenth.

To my knowledge there was no effort made by the Banco-Kentucky Company to try to uphold or stabilize the market by the purchase of shares of stock on its own account. I believe that did come out later on in the trial of the Bank case, that there was an effort on the part of Banco to maintain its stock, but not to my knowledge, and not to the knowledge of any of the directors, so far as I knew. I didn't know until after the bank closed or just about the time the bank closed that Banco went out into the market when it was falling, and bought 106,000 shares at a cost of over $2,300,000.

After the National Bank of Kentucky failed I took a loss on my income tax. I sold my stock after the bank went down and got almost nothing for it, and I took a loss on it. That was all known to the tax officials. I did make a sale after the Bank closed, had a loss then and reported the loss. I took the loss on the basis of the cost of my National Bank of Kentucky stock. I took the cost all the way through. Just as you asked me about this first purchase, as to what the whole thing cost, and what I got for it, I took the difference as a loss. That is, the cost of the Bank stock to me.

I attended the National Bank of Kentucky Board meeting June 28, 1929. I went away just about the first of July. The record shows that I again attended a Board meeting

September 6, 1929. I was going to say that I attended the meetings quite regularly when I was in town, and I think that in itself shows just about the time I was away; as soon as I got back I probably attended the next meeting. Banco had been discussed before I left, in the spring, I think, of 1929.

155—Now, the main object of the formation of Banco-Kentucky was to acquire a chain of banks?

A.—That was one of the objects.

156—No, I want to refresh your recollection, not on one of the objects, but on it being the main object, and I call your attention to your own testimony given in the case of Anderson vs. Akers: This question 43 was asked you: "When did you first learn that it was planned to acquire the banks?" and you answered: "That was discussed some little time before the BancoKentucky Company was formed. That was the main object of the formation of the Banco-Kentucky Company—to acquire a chain of banks."

A.—I think that is correct. The other question came up there at exactly the same time, or probably shortly after about the investment matters.

157—Then, it is correct to say that that was the main object of BancoKentucky, to form a chain of banks?

A.—That testimony is as near correct as I could make it.

When we organized BancoKentucky Company we expected to get a substantial majority of the stock of both the Louisville Trust Company and National Bank of Kentucky into it. The whole plan hinged on getting absolute control of those two banks.

The holders of the Trustees' Certificates were quite enthusiastic about the plan, and they practically all exchanged their stock for Banco stock. I don't recall that we also got more cash from the sale of stock than we expected to get. My recollection now—it is a long while—is that they got about $9,000,000 in cash.

Question 360 asked me in the case of Anderson v. Akers was "What effect did that have on the amount of money Banco expected to realize?" and my answer was: "They got more cash than they expected to get." I assume that is correct; I testified to my best knowledge at that time.

At the time they organized the BancoKentucky Company we expected the National Bank of Kentucky would be denationalized and changed into a state bank, about that time. That was in order to get out of the Federal Reserve. And we were going to use the BancoKentucky Company as a sort of Federal Reserve.

I didn't make the statement that I believed in making loans to encourage the employees of the Bank to purchase stock in the BancoKentucky Company, on the theory that it was a sort of profit sharing program. I don't know who made that. If Mr. Dodd made that statement and I said I believed in it—I think it is a good thing, as a rule, in any company, to do what you can to help the employees. That would apply to the employees of the Bank and to others—to the Trust Company I presume.

You asked me if it was not really all one company. Well, I think there were two; both the Bank and Trust Company were entirely separate corporations. I wouldn't say that as far as the ownership was concerned, however, it was altogether. You couldn't own Trustees' Certificates without having an interest in the other. If you had Trustees' Certificates you had both.

I was one of the Directors of the National Bank of Kentucky who voted to request the officers of the Banco-Kentucky Company to purchase the debentures of the Murray Rubber Company and the participation in the Lewis Humphrey note for $600,000 and take it out of the Bank. I made the motion to request that Banco do this, but I did not participate in anything that the Banco did because I really was out of town after that for a short time. But I made the motion in the Bank to request the Banco officers to take $600,000 of Banco's money and put that in the Bank, and take the Murray Rubber Company debentures and the Lewis Humphrey note over into Banco.

179—Of course, when you did that you had already been advised by the National Bank Examiner that those debentures and the Lewis Humphrey note were not worth any $600,000?

A.—Of course, I testified I did not consider that they were worthless, that I thought there was a work-out there. Of course, I would not have wanted the Bank to have authorized a $600,000 loan on those as security.

180—I am not going into the question as to whether they were worthless or not: They were not worth any $600,000?

A.—Unless the Murray Rubber Company worked out.

181—At the very time you made the motion, Mr. Neill, the Chief National Bank Examiner, had been before your Board and told you he would not permit the National Bank of Kentucky to carry those two items any longer.

A.—That is true, yes.

I might explain it this way: Mr. Neill said if these two items were not taken out of the Bank he would make them charge off, and to have the surplus cut down would have been a bad thing for the Bank, and as Banco owned a great majority of the stock of the Bank, it was to the advantage of Banco to do it. I felt the same way. I would not have made the motion if I had not thought so.

In other words, my intent in making that motion was that, since Banco owned ninety-five per cent or more of the stock of the Bank, that if that was a bad asset they owned ninety-five per cent of what was bad, and if it was good, they owned ninety-five per cent of what was good.

186—So that the transfer of $600,000 to the National Bank of Kentucky for the Murray Rubber Company debentures was a transfer that did not affect the ownership, insofar as that item was concerned, to any large extent?

A.—Of course, the Banco owned various other things, and it is pretty hard to explain——

The Court: Objection sustained to that question. You may draw any inference, but this witness cannot contemplate all of those facts and answer that in any way that will throw any light on the issue here. It would require an extended answer to answer that question.

Mr. Marx: I will just make an avowal that if permitted I would like to ask the witness here where he did not say, and offer to prove that he did say, in discussing this subject in the case of Carroll vs. Chemical Bank, No. 205,223 Jefferson Circuit Court, Chancery Branch, First Division:

> "Q. 93—And their ownership of this stock in the National Bank of Kentucky made them respectively the owners of the Murray Rubber Company item? A—To a very large extent, yes. Q. 94—And the transfer of $600,000 to the National Bank of Kentucky for the Murray Rubber Company note and debentures was merely a transfer which did not affect the ownership, insofar as that item was concerned? A—To a very large extent it did not affect the ownership, no."

Redirect Examination by Mr. Crawford

On Redirect Examination by Mr. Crawford, Mr. Speed testified as follows:

I did not transfer any of my Banco stock prior to the closing of the National Bank of Kentucky.

I was in Kentucky when the Brighton Bank was bought, I had come back. I was present at the meeting of the Banco Board September 20, 1929. At that meeting—that is September 27th—I approved the Brighton Bank's purchase. I was in this country when the article appearing in Paris about the purchase of the Brighton Bank & Trust Company appeared.

In the directors' case I was asked "Tell us generally what was the intention of the stockholders and directors of your Bank and of the Louisville Trust Company directors in forming Banco." I answered, "The object was to form a large corporation for the purpose of getting control not only of the Bank of Kentucky and of the Louisville Trust Company, but a chain of banks in the Ohio Valley. It was further contemplated to use the Banco Company as a substitute for the Federal Reserve and they expected to handle bond issues and do various other things that other organizations of that type had done in other parts of the country." I assume that is what I said. That is the fact.

In that case I was asked "Did the organizers of Banco Kentucky Company expect to get all of the stock of either the Louisville Trust Company or the Bank of Kentucky." I answered "No, I remember the time that they expected to get a majority and the whole plan hinged on getting control." I was asked "What was the fact about that?" I answered "What really happened was that the holders of these Trustees' Certificates were quite enthusiastic about the plan, and they, practically all of them, exchanged their stock for BancoKentucky stock." We got more than was generally expected. That reduced the amount we had left for sale. There would be less for sale for cash.

In that case I was asked "What effect did that have on the amount of money Banco expected to realize?" and I answered "They got more cash than they expected to get." The meaning of that was as I considered it, it caused more of the stock to be subscribed for, and the cash came in, perhaps faster than they expected. I think they fully expected to sell the rest of the stock before they got through.

200—Did they sell the rest of the stock?

A.—They sold all of it and increased the amount of stock later on.

201—Did they sell all of it?

Mr. Marx: That is objected to.

A.—My recollection is that they did.

Mr. Marx: I object.

The Court: Do you know, Mr. Speed, whether they sold all the stock or not?

A.—No, I don't.

The Court: All right, that is the answer; he says he doesn't know.

C. C. Hieatt,

called for Defendants, examined by Mr. Crawford, testified as follows:

My name is C. C. Hieatt. My business is real estate.

I live in Harrod's Creek, in Jefferson County, in which I have lived all my life. I have been in the real estate business almost forty years. My office is in Louisville. I had offices in another city at one time. I was President of the Consolidated Realty Company from the date of its organization in 1912, until it failed in 1932. I am a member of the Advisory Committee of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, and at one time I was President of that organization.

I was a director of the Louisville Trust Company prior to 1927. I was the largest stockholder in the Louisville Trust Company. I was in the Trust Company at the time of the trusteeing of certificates of its stock with the National Bank of Kentucky stock. At that time my only connection with the National Bank of Kentucky was as a customer and borrower. I mean, I had an account there and transacted business with the Bank, just banking business, but not as a stockholder or director.

I was a member of a committee of three who negotiated the unification of the Bank of Kentucky and Louisville Trust Company, and advocated the union. I transferred my stock for Trustees' Participation Certificates. After that I continued as a director in both institutions, remaining a director of the National Bank of Kentucky until January 13th or 14th, 1930.

I knew that in order to effectuate the agreement that we had reached, to make an even swap—I mean a one to four unification—that it was necessary for the Bank to declare a stock dividend of 60 per cent so that they would have four shares of stock to one of the Louisville Trust Company.

We had Humphrey Robinson & Company, a firm of accountants who were the Clearing House examiners, and who also examined both the Louisville Trust Company regularly and the Bank of Kentucky—we had them to make a valuation of both institutions. We traded on substantially the valuation they put upon the two institutions, beside other investigations we made, which all confirmed that as the proper valuation.

I was a member of the Board of the National Bank of Kentucky when Banco was discussed. I would say that I heard most of the discussion. I wouldn't say I attended every meeting, but I attended substantially every meeting, I think, at that time.

Plaintiff's objection to question regarding the purpose and reason for organizing Banco overruled.

A.—I would say Banco was the evolution of certain ideas Mr. Brown had and some of the rest of them had that started shortly after the unification of the Trust Company and the Bank, and it finally took form in BancoKentucky, as it was organized. The beginning of these transactions contemplated the acquisition of banks in Cincinnati and Indianapolis particularly, having a triangle here in the central west, and then it widened out and finally, of course, before we got through discussing it, we discussed the possibilities of a new company which would have—in other words, we concluded that the logical thing to carry out the purposes that we had finally concluded ought to be carried out, was the organization of a new company which would start out with the acquisition of a controlling interest in the Bank and Trust Company, and then proceed, as the next step, to acquire other banks in the Ohio Valley and not only in Indianapolis, even in Chicago, was discussed quite a good deal—the Harris Bank & Trust Company, or the Harris Investment Concern. We also discussed power of this company to engage in underwritings and the purchase and sale of securities, the reorganization of corporations, and various things that were thought to be very profitable at that time—the purchase of bond issues and stock in corporations. I left the Banco Board in March, 1930. Up to that time Banco had not been able to set up any organization for underwriting. They had purchased quite a number of banks at that time.

I would say that in the discussions we contemplated at least fifty-one per cent of Trustees' Participation Certificates would be transferred to Banco. I don't think there was any question in any one's mind that we would get fifty-one per cent, but I think opinions as to how much more would probably vary, but the result of the subscription, I think, exceeded anybody's expectations, because it was almost unanimous.

As I recall it, after setting aside sufficient shares to accommodate the holders, then it was concluded that as long as that many had come in, we might as well abandon the idea of only having majority control and open it up to the other trustees, and an amount was set aside, I think, sufficient to accommodate all the Trustees' Participation Certificate holders. That, with the stock that had actually been sold, and the 250,000 shares, as I remember it, that we thought was under contract to Blythe & Company of Chicago, would take up the whole $20,000,000 of the par value. That is my recollection.

That did not give Banco as much money as the organizers hoped it would have. At that time I would say, from the discussions in the Board and particularly from Mr. Brown's talks, that it was contemplated that about $10,000,000—there would be about $15,000,000 surplus cash after taking care of the Trustees' Certificates. The result was, I think, about $9,000,000 cash—no, there was more cash than that; it would have been considerably more cash than $15,000,000—maybe $15,000,000 that would be put into Trustees' Certificates and the balance of it would be cash, $35,000,000. They talked in pretty big figures in those happy days of '29.

I transferred my Trust Company stock into Trustees' Participation Certificates. As I recall it, I sold all of my Trustees' Participation Certificates in the early part of '29 before Banco was organized, retaining, I think, only qualifying shares in the Bank and Trust Company, and maybe some odds and ends of other stock, but I and my brother and Mr. Scheirich, my associate in business, between us owned 2,595 shares of Trustees' Participation Certificates, which was the second largest ownership in Trustees' Participation Certificates, Mr. Brown having about 2,750, and I controlled 2,495. I remained on the Board after I sold that, from January to March. The condition of the bank had absolutely nothing to do with the sale.

33—Why did you make the sale?

A.—Mr. Crawford, I would say that I was actuated by two or three things, the principal one of which was that I had found that after the combination of the Louisville Trust Company and the Bank of Kentucky, the unification in 1927—up until that time our business required a great deal of money. We were building in those days one million to two and a half million dollars worth of buildings a year, and the financing of them required a great deal of money and credit, and up until the time of the unification I was able to sell our paper in nearly all the banks here. With the exception of maybe one we did business with practically all of them. After that time, after I got into the Bank of Kentucky, some of those things were curtailed, the opportunities for borrowing. Of course, after the unification and I became a director of the Bank of Kentucky, I felt a little different about using the Bank of Kentucky, but we needed, as I say, considerable sums of money, and I had concluded about the time—about January, 1929, that it would be a good thing to sell the stock of the Bank of Kentucky and put it in our business—that it would be better than to keep it in that bank stock. We really needed it in our business. That was one of the things that actuated me. The others were probably more personal.

I hadn't the slightest idea at the time I sold my stock in the bank that there was any trouble of any kind in either institution. In fact, when Banco was organized and the thing really engaged my imagination, the prospect and possibilities of Banco, I really was pretty regretful that I had to sit around there with all my stock gone and not really have a considerable part in it.

At the instance of the Bank in 1928 I made a valuation of the Kentucky Wagon Company property. I think it was around May, 1928. As I recall, Mr. R. M. Martin and Mr. Harry W. Goodman participated in that valuation with me. Mr. Martin is one of the older real estate men in Louisville. For a good many years he was Chairman of the City Board of Equalization. He was a well known real estate appraiser and one of the best in Louisville. Mr. Goodman was with the firm of Goodman & Hambleton. He has been in the real estate business about as long as I and is one of the top men in the real estate business in Louisville.

That appraisement of the Wagon Company was something over 2,000,000. I think I sent you over a few weeks or so ago a copy of it I had left. I am reading into the record the amount of our appraisal: "Our appraisal on the land, buildings and the elevators, heating system, and sprinkler and ventilating and lighting and plumbing in the buildings, excluding the machinery, in the main place was $2,020,982." There were two other tracts of property. They had one in Highland Park and one on the west side of Third Street, which brought the total real estate appraisal up to $2,077,732. We didn't attempt to appraise any inventory. We saw considerable inventory when we were out there, but we were employed to make a real estate appraisal, and that is all we made.

We did not include any machinery in our appraisal, we merely included the fixed things, that we considered to go with the real estate, like the sprinkler system and plumbing and heating, and things of that kind. We did not include any machinery. The Wagon Company had a great deal of machinery, some of which was being used, and a considerable amount that was not being used at that time. It was operating, I would say, about twenty-five or thirty per cent of its full capacity at the time we made that appraisal.

Cross-Examination by Mr. Marx

On Cross-Examination by Mr. Marx, Mr. Hieatt testified as follows:

I was the principal stockholder in the Consolidated Realty Company that had a line of credit with the Bank of Kentucky and had done business with the Bank of Kentucky for, I would say, since about 1910. The Consolidated had several subsidiaries, the General Construction Company, the City Plumbing & Heating Company, the City Mill & Lumber Company, but I don't think any of these had—the Louisville Real Estate Corporation at one time had a good deal of money borrowed from the Bank of Kentucky.

I personally was a borrower at various times, had been a considerable borrower from the Bank of Kentucky. If any of my employees were borrowers I wouldn't know it—I don't know it. I said Mr. Scheirick was at one time a borrower. I knew it. He was Vice-President and I think I knew what he was doing. Mr. G. Y. Hieatt is my brother. I knew that he was a borrower.

54—The Consolidated Realty Company loan, the C. C. Hieatt loan, the H. J. Scheirick loan, the G. Y. Hieatt loan and the loans of these subsidiaries were all for the accommodation of either yourself or the Consolidated Realty Company, weren't they?

A.—I would say that the Louisville Realty Corporation loans were not, except for the fact that the Consolidated Realty Company owned quite a majority of stock in it. It had some outside stockholders, but ran its business on its own power. Of course, my loans were individual loans, the ones I signed C. C. Hieatt. The G. Y. Hieatt and Scheirick loans were for themselves, except for one loan of $100,000 of Mr. Scheirick's, which really was not a loan to him at all, but was made to carry out what they had at that time, a way to get a bigger rate of interest. They would make you carry 20 per cent, or a considerable portion of your loan, in a certificate of deposit. Instead, of having the Consolidated Realty Company carrying that $100,000, Mr. Scheirick made the note for $100,000 and had a certificate of deposit for $100,000, so the certificate would pay the note. That is the only one I know about,—that is the only thing I know of that Mr. Scheirick did for the benefit of the Consolidated Realty Company. As I understand your question, all those loans were for the benefit of the Consolidated Realty Company? To that extent his loan was for the benefit of the Consolidated Realty Company. Not all those other loans were for the benefit of the Consolidated Realty Company. My individual loans—I don't think, were. Some of them may have been; I may have borrowed money and loaned it to the Consolidated Realty Company. I don't recall it.

The Consolidated Realty Company was forced into bankruptcy about fifteen months after the Bank closed, into involuntary, and in June, 1932, six months after the Consolidated Realty Company went into bankruptcy, on account of endorsement that Mr. Scheirich, my brother, and I had made for the Consolidated, we went into bankruptcy. By "We" I mean Mr. Scheirich, my brother and myself. I think all have been discharged. I know I have and I think everybody has, except the Consolidated Realty Company is still—that bankruptcy has never been closed.

I don't think that National Bank of Kentucky lost more than a quarter of a million dollars as a result of that. I think it will make money on the Consolidated Realty Company loan. Personally, I think I owed the Bank $6,000 when it closed—I had owed it nearly $500,000. I did owe it $6,000 personally, which it will lose. My opinion is that the National Bank of Kentucky has not lost a cent to date on those loans.

I don't know how much the bank has been paid to date on them. Since our bankruptcy—we paid a considerable amount, I think, between the receivership and our bankruptcy. I could get you that amount, but since the bankruptcy of the Consolidated and the taking over of all the collaterals by the receiver, by purchases in the bankruptcy.

court—I don't know how much it was, but I do know he has collected a considerable amount; I know that they have made money.

At the time the bank closed The Consolidated Realty Company owed it $273,000.00, I think. They owed quite a lot in 1929, I imagine. I would say substantially $400,000. $405,000 sounds about right. I assume that C. C. Hieatt and H. J. Scheirich owed $9,595.00. I would assume that I owed $23,530.00. I think The General Realty Corporation owed $130,650.00. I wouldn't know what H. J. Scheirich owed individually.

I didn't mention the Gardens Community Corporation—I didn't control that. I only had a one-fourth interest and the Consolidated Realty Company had no interest. I don't know what it owed the Bank. I said I know they owed some money. I didn't know it was quite a large amount at that time. I think that Gardens Communities Corporation loan was placed there by Mr. William S. Speed, who was President at that time—if there was any loan there at that time it was probably placed by him. I had one-fourth of the stock.

The figures you have given there would indicate that our companies owed, at the time Banco was organized, about $600,000. Approximately that, or a little less than that, maybe. I know at the time of the unification—I think the Consolidated Realty Company and myself and probably G. Y. Hieatt, my brother, owed about a million dollars, so the Bank Examiner called me over and explained to me.

It has now been more than eight years since the Bank closed, eight years last November. I would be amazed at any such situation as there still being due and owing on these loans $499,000.00. I couldn't say a word about what balance may be due.

I would say that could not—from what I know about the realization on the assets, I say that could not possibly be true. I don't know anything about the Receiver's accounting or his accounts, of course, and I don't know what his books show, but I would say, from my knowledge of his realizations that I know about that have been made on Consolidated collateral, that it could not possibly be a balance of $499,000. I would not undertake to give you in detail what these realizations are. But I know there were many lien notes, many, many lien notes.

I testified before the Jefferson County Grand Jury which met between February 23rd and February 27th, 1931. Sometime about that time. They were considering this $2,000,000 to Wakefield I think. I was a director of Banco-Kentucky Company from the time it started until I resigned in March 1930. I never heard of the Wakefield loan until after the Bank closed.

I would assume I was asked the following question and that I made the following answer: "Can you tell the Jury in as few words as possible just why BancoKentucky Company was formed?"

"A.—Mr. Allen, of course, from the time I first got into the Bank of Kentucky or associated with Mr. Brown was at the time of the merger of the Louisville Trust Company with the National Bank of Kentucky when the participation certificates were issued representing one-fifth of a share of Trust Company and four-fifths of a share of BancoKentucky. I then became a director of the National Bank of Kentucky. Mr. Brown began shortly after that time talking about the desirability of forming an organization that would control a big bank in Cincinnati and one in Indianapolis, and the banks here. It was in his mind to have these affiliations with the Indiana National and the Middle West. That picture was talked about by him many times, and of course, following taking into the group the Louisville National in 1929, that was merged with the Louisville Trust Company and Mr. Bean became president of the Louisville Trust Company. Following that, we were discussing the handling of these mergers, whether the banks should be put in one building, like the Citizens Union and Fidelity & Columbia Trust Company. Whether they should be merged into one trust company or whether the National Bank should give up its charter, and not much headway was made until the summer of 1929 and in the meantime the question of a holding company to hold the stock of all the banks was brought up which finally culminated in the BancoKentucky Company. That is as near as I can give you the reason for the organization. After that was started, Mr. Brown still talked about making it big enough to embrace the three states in one group. But as far as I could say, that was the purpose of the organization of BancoKentucky. It was for control of the banking situation in the Middle West. Of course, he told us many things about the TransAmerica, the Gianinni Chain and other chain banking. That was the picture that was presented to us. He said it was the modern thing that the banks were doing, and it would put us in a position to make Louisville and Kentucky, the center. It was a right attractive picture."

That was a true statement of the facts. Generally, that was the situation. I don't recall that Mr. Brown referred to it definitely as a holding company.

I testified in the case of Anderson vs. Akers in the afternoon session of May 10, 1932. Mr. Allen Dodd examined me and asked me to give the history of the organization of the BancoKentucky Company. My answer was, "Of course, the question of the future course of our merged banks was one that was always in mind. I never thought that we had worked out the whole matter. I felt I would never be satisfied unless the Bank of Kentucky and the Trust Company were housed together. I didn't think that thorough effectiveness would come about until we got these two banks in the one house, and there were frequent discussions of that in the Board and the course that we should take, and Mr. Brown from time to time would discuss one thing and another. I remember that considerably back there he developed the question and told us that he had been thinking about trying to tie in the First National Bank in Cincinnati and the Indiana National Bank in Indianapolis, and he gave a picture of the triangle, Indianapolis, Cincinnati, and Louisville, and that would cover the whole field, and then later in the Spring of 1929 we had frequent discussions. That was all a matter of evolution. He made the suggestion that he had come to the conclusion that the way to do the thing was to form a holding company that could not only acquire the stock of the Trust Company and of the Bank of Kentucky but could acquire the stock of other banks in the Ohio Valley and he developed that and said that that would care for the connections in Eastern Kentucky through Cincinnati particularly. He dwelt on the fact that the Bank of Kentucky had never been able to get its share of the business in Eastern Kentucky and while the bank had gotten down in Tennessee, it had a hard time getting into Eastern Kentucky, but that if we got Cincinnati tied into us, the Bank of Kentucky could get the business in Eastern Kentucky. There was a lot of discussion about it and it sold itself to the Board. He also developed the question about the holding company acting as a sort of Federal Reserve."

That sounds like the answer I would make.

The language may have been mine, and that was what I had in mind that it would be, as far as the banks were concerned, a company to hold the stock of these banks. I don't think it was ever contemplated that Banco was to deal in bank stock, that is, to buy and sell them, but the banks that were to be acquired would be bought with the idea that they were to be kept together in one group, as a rather permanent organization.

I knew that BancoKentucky stock was being sold by the officers of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company when it was offered for sale. I think I knew that both of those banks were receiving subscriptions.

I knew that we discussed interesting as many employees of the two banks, or the Bank and Trust Company, in the stock of Banco as possible, so as to have them interested in the success of the banks, and I think that the officers of the banks bought stock, and of course, I imagine many of the customers. I had nothing whatever to do with the subscription to that stock, or the sale of it, personally.

Prior to the separation of the Board in January, 1930, the members of the old Louisville Trust Company Board became members of the National Bank of Kentucky Board and vice versa. The Directors who came onto the Louisville Trust Company Board through the merger of the Louisville National did not become Directors of the Bank of Kentucky.

When the separation in the Board occurred, with reference to the suggestion that officers ought to be left off the Banco Board, my recollection of the matter was that Mr. Brown recommended that the officers both of the Louisville Trust Company and the Bank of Kentucky be left off of the Board of the BancoKentucky, and said that if the officers remained on the Board, that there would be men in each of these other banks, officers or directors, that would feel like they ought to come on the Board, that he had in mind certain important people that he named—Mr. Whitsel, I believe, of Cincinnati, the Manager of some newspaper, The Enquirer, or some paper. Mr. Wiley, the Manager of the Enquirer was the man. He wanted Mr. Wiley on the Board and Mr. Shumaker of Cincinnati, and Mr. O'Brien of the Standard Gas & Electric Company—he had certain people he wanted on the Board that might be influential in obtaining the kind of business he wanted. He didn't want the Banco Board to be loaded up with too many officers of the banks it controlled. That, in substance, was the statement he made, and it sort of appealed to the Directors and they agreed to it.

> I recall that at the Grand Jury hearing I was asked about the acquisition of assets by Banco from the National Bank of Kentucky. I said, "After all, the whole thing was one and it all belonged to the same people; that it was just taking money out of one pocket and putting it in another, if the Bank owned it and it was questionable, it didn't really make any difference. I never heard any suggestion made that it was one of the purposes of BancoKentucky."

That sounds like what I would have said. I never heard of the Murray Rubber transaction until after the banks closed. I was not a director of the Bank of Kentucky at the time that transaction took place. I probably was just volunteering my own idea of probably how they felt about it when they made such a transfer. I had nothing to do with such a transfer and heard no discussion about it, and I probably intended to say that they felt like it was taking money out of one pocket and putting it in another, but I certainly heard no discussion about it or the fact that it was made, or any talk about it at all, and certainly nothing was ever said in the organization of Banco about doing any such thing. I was probably reconstructing, probably, what the Board felt about it, because I had no personal knowledge. Mr. Allen, who was foreman of that Grand Jury, was a very close personal friend of mine, and I thought he was just asking me some questions to get my viewpoint or something, and that was my idea about it, that if they did such a thing, they probably felt that way about it, and justified it in that way.

The following is the question which was there asked me and the answer is—I probably said something of the kind.

> "Q.—Do you believe if BancoKentucky had bought some assets of the National Bank of Kentucky which were not good, that that would affect BancoKentucky's holdings according to the assets and liabilities of that particular statement National Bank of Kentucky assets total less than half of the assets of the corporation—now if the National Bank of Kentucky sold its slow notes to the BancoKentucky, would that be detrimental to the interests of the other banks in the BancoKentucky Company chain?" A.—"At least a substantial part of the stock belonged to BancoKentucky. I think the question is would the sale of those assets that might be questionable—would that hurt the whole situation, that is a right difficult situation. If there was something in the Bank of Kentucky that might be criticized by the Bank Examiner, it might be a good thing to take it out of the Bank of Kentucky and I can see where it might have been thought it was a constructive thing to put it in the BancoKentucky Company, rather than to have something happen to the bank. Of course, it is a little difficult to analyze whether to leave it in the Bank of Kentucky and it be bad or put it into BancoKentucky and it be bad. It was expressed by Mr. Brown in various ways that it was all one thing and all belonged to the same people and was really taking the money out of one pocket and putting it in another. I didn't know it had been done until after the bank closed."

The only thing that puzzles me about the answer—I probably said something of the kind, as I said was merely theorizing after the event. I wouldn't have thought that I could have said Mr. Brown expressed it, because I never discussed it with Mr. Brown, nor the transfer of these assets from the Bank to the BancoKentucky Company.

I would say, if I made any statement to the Grand Jury, that Mr. Brown said that things that helped the Bank helped Banco, and things that hurt the Bank, hurt Banco, because it was all one thing and belonged to the same people, which I probably did if the stenographer put it down, if I made a statement of that kind, I would have said that Mr. Brown felt, or Mr. Brown probably felt that it was all one thing, and I believe Mr. Brown did, if you want to know what I think about it; I believe he felt that after all everybody's interest was the same interest, the stockholders of the Bank and the stockholders of BancoKentucky, and the Trust Company, and the success of one meant the success of the other.

I didn't express the same idea in the previous question. I didn't say that. I said they must have felt they were taking it out of one pocket and putting it into another. I never thought about it at all; I didn't know anything about the transaction. They asked me what I thought about it and I was probably reconstructing what the Directors thought about it without any knowledge of what they did say or do.

Before the Grand Jury I was asked the reason for my selling my stock in the Bank, and if that was the cause of any irregularity I noticed in the operation of either the Bank or BancoKentucky. I answered, "Of course, I was a big stockholder in the Louisville Trust Company, and when the Louisville Trust Company and the National Bank of Kentucky was put together, I was the second largest stockholder in the two groups. Mr. Brown had a little more stock than I did. The thing didn't work out like I thought. It was my thought when we made the deal with the Louisville Trust Company about getting the institutions together in one building, and having the trust business of the National Bank of Kentucky put in the Louisville Trust Company, etc., but that thing didn't come about like I hoped and it was put off and put off and we had not got to the finale of the picture yet, so when the Louisville National Bank was taken in, I saw what I thought a good opportunity to market my stock and I started in to sell it then. I sold it in the Spring of 1929 and there was quite a big demand. I also had other reasons for selling—I needed money and we had a lot of things we wanted to take care of in that and I sold the stock to put the money in my business. I never bought any BancoKentucky stock and only had just about enough stock to qualify me as a director. I then parted with my financial interest in it and didn't have enough interest to justify me in staying in."

As far as I stated the facts there that was a correct statement of facts. I think it might be explained or modified. I did not go fully into the question about the fact that the plan had not worked out as I had hoped it to do, about housing the two institutions in one building. I was very strong for that, and when Mr. Brown—when the negotiations were concluded with the Louisville National Banking Company, which had just built a new building, Mr. Brown said that would solve the building question, so the Trust Company could move into that building and the Bank into the old Louisville Trust Building. It meant that those two banks would remain separate. The picture I had had in mind of having them housed in one house, so there would be close contact between the officers of the Bank and of the Trust Company and everybody could work together, was gone. I was very much disappointed in that and some other things that happened just before that, and just made me feel like, needing the money in my business, there was no use trying to hold on to that stock, and I sold it. That is what I meant when I said it had not worked out like I hoped when the thing took shape. It apparently meant there was no opportunity to have the two housed in one building like the Citizens Union and Fidelity & Columbia Trust Company here.

When I sold my stock the Louisville Trust Company was housed in its old building at the corner. It moved into 421 West Market Street on May 24, 1929. I had sold my stock before that time. The merger was not consummated—the merger was agreed on, I think, in January, but it was not consummated, the legal formality merging the two corporations, until several months later—I don't know what date, but I think about the first of June, and the Trust Company moved over into 421, and I thought at that time that the Bank of Kentucky, in renting its quarters, would move into the old Louisville Trust Building, which was against my judgment as to what was the best situation for the two banks. In the meantime, I had, I am sure, sold all my stock except a small amount, before the Trust Company moved out. I think I sold all my stock within about sixty days after January 14th.

I knew it was contemplated that the Trust Company, when merged, would stay in one of the buildings. I thought at that time they would stay in the building at Fifth and Market and the Bank of Kentucky would move into the new building which the Louisville National had built. As it turned out, the Trust Company moved into the new building and left the old building for the Bank of Kentucky. They left it vacant, but as I thought, with the idea of the Bank of Kentucky moving in it. We did make—I did make, personally, some investigation for Mr. Brown about acquiring property west of the Louisville Trust Company, so it could be enlarged to take care of the Bank of Kentucky.

I owned 2,495 shares of the Louisville Trust Company stock, and none of the National Bank of Kentucky. Now, I don't know, I may have bought a few shares of National Bank of Kentucky about that time, but I am not positive about that.

As the owner of Bank stock, I knew that it was subject to an assessment equal to the par value. That was likewise true of the Trust Company stock under the state law.

At one time I had a loan with the National Bank of Kentucky that ran into quite a little money, secured by the Louisville Trust Company stock. I knew when the two banks unified, the Louisville Trust Company and the National Bank of Kentucky, that my unified shares would not be eligible for collateral at either the National Bank of Kentucky or the Louisville Trust Company. I don't remember exactly, but I think I owed the Bank of Kentucky individually about $450,000.00, or somewhere around that, at that time, and then, a few weeks after the consolidation or the unification became effective, I paid off about, I think around $400,000 of that loan, which left me owing about $50,000 individually. I paid that by transferring the securities to the Consolidated Realty Company, the bank stock.

I borrowed money on the Trustee's certificates. I made two loans, I think, at Chicago, and one in New York. I think I borrowed some money from the National Bank of Republic, and also from the Continental Illinois, and I think maybe later on I borrowed some money, half a million dollars, I think, from the Irving Trust Company in New York.

When BancoKentucky was launched, I did not attempt to ascertain from the other Louisville Bank, whether they would make any loans on the security of Banco stock. I didn't know they would not. As a matter of fact, my own impression is that the Citizens Union did make some loans, but not to me. I have only heard that. I have no personal knowledge of it. I didn't attempt to borrow any money, because I had pretty definitely concluded at that time—because I had sold all my bank stocks. I would say the bulk of it was sold between January 15 and March 15, 1930. I know I started selling at $400.00 a share, and the last stock I sold I got $495.00 a share. I sold on a rising market.

I assume those sales were before the consolidation of the Louisville National with the Louisville Trust Company. While I remember very definitely that the agreement to consolidate was made, I think, in January, I think it was either April or May before all the necessary changes——. I think the Louisville National was a National Bank, and I think it had to denationalize and become a state bank, and then the two corporations had to be merged under Kentucky law. I think it was probably April before it was consummated, or about then. I know it took several months to consummate it. I would say that by the time that had been concluded, I had sold practically all my stock, except just a few shares.

I commenced to sell after I knew that that merger was going to take place. That was the thing that caused me to make up my mind that I was going to get out and put my money in the real estate business, which didn't do me any good after all.

I don't claim to be a lawyer, although I did practice for about ten years fairly actively, but at the same time I was interested with my brother in the real estate business, and that got so attractive that I began giving up all my time to it. I figured I could make more money in real estate than I could in practicing law, and I began giving all my time to real estate developments and things of that kind.

I think I must have bought the Banco stock which I own. I don't recollect whether I bought that in the open market or whether I sold out a Trustees' Certificate that I got and transferred it. The record would show. My impression at this time is that I bought that Banco. I had, of course, kept my qualifying shares, I mean, they were never sold in the Bank and Trust Company.

I was on the Board, on all three Boards, in the Fall of 1929, I think it was, when resolutions were introduced, I think, probably in the Trust Company and then in the Bank meeting and then in the Banco meeting, with regard to the borrowing of money. As I recall it, there were printed forms of resolutions which the Directors were asked to vote, giving authority to the officers to negotiate some loans with some New York banks, their correspondent banks in New York. That was the Chemical National and the Chase National Banks. There were two sets of resolutions introduced in each Board meeting. There was quite a good deal of stir about it, people asking what all this meant. I know the directors on the Louisville Trust Board, those who had been old Louisville Trust Company directors, some of them, were sitting there with me and there was a good deal of question about it. It was stated that the banks in New York had requested that these formal resolutions be passed by the Board so that they would be in a position to make loans if the banks required them. That, as I remember it, was very shortly after the depression in the Stock Market in October and November; I think it was about that time. It was not stated at that time, as I recall it, that the banks were going to make any loans, or there was anything definite about it.

145—Didn't they say we may reach a point that we may have to borrow money?

A.—As I say, they didn't say that they needed the money, as I recall it, but that there might be, if the depression went on so that they had to borrow money, this technical thing would be taken care of, so they could get it quickly.

That was the way I got it. That was just the background, so if it became necessary to borrow in New York, they would not have to go through the form of having the resolutions passed.

146—They spoke about the fact that it was putting the banks in shape to borrow money, and actually, authority was given to Mr. Brown and Mr. Jones?

A.—I don't remember whether the resolution gave authority to any specific officer or just the officers in general.

We didn't have a meeting of all three Boards at the same time, and all three Boards did not adopt the same resolution at the same time. The order was this: "I think the Louisville Trust Company Board met at two o'clock, say, and held their meeting and passed on their affairs. Then, at three o'clock the Bank Board met. Of course, there were a good many of the same Directors. After the Louisville National came in the Louisville National Directors used to stay in through the meeting of the Bank of Kentucky, and after the Bank of Kentucky meeting they would have a meeting of the BancoKentucky, where everybody was in. There were three separate, distinct meetings, all at the same place and on the same day, but at different times. These resolutions were introduced at three board meetings, the same day.

The fourteen people from the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company were on the Louisville Trust Company Board, but not on the National Bank of Kentucky Board. They were invited to sit through the National Bank of Kentucky meetings, and welcome, and particularly if we were going to have a BancoKentucky meeting after the Bank of Kentucky meeting they would wait, they would stay there, and be there after the Bank of Kentucky meeting when the Banco meeting came on. They were on the Banco Board.

Judge Stites usually presided at the Louisville Trust Company meetings. He was Chairman of the Board and he presided. When that was over, he would wait for a few minutes, and then Mr. Brown, or whoever was going to preside at the National Bank of Kentucky meeting would call it to order. I have no recollection of Mr. Brown ever presiding at a Louisville Trust Company Board meeting. Either Judge Stites or Judge Quin or some of the officers of the Louisville Trust Company always presided at its meetings. Mr. Brown presided at the Bank meeting and the BancoKentucky meeting.

I was present at a special meeting of the Louisville Trust Company Board January 13, 1930. That was a joint meeting with the Board of Directors of the National Bank of Kentucky and BancoKentucky Company. The minutes say, "Mr. James B. Brown acted as Chairman of the meeting," but it was signed by John Stites. Judge Stites was very regular and always presided at the Louisville Trust Company Board meetings. I think I remember this meeting; it was a joint meeting for some special purpose, and I think Mr. Brown took the chair and stated the purpose. I imagine it was entered in the minutes of all three. Though the National Bank of Kentucky minutes and Banco minutes have no reference to that, I have no recollection of how it was recorded.

There was a sort of gossip on the Board that Mr. Brown was a sort of silent partner in Wakefield and Company. I had heard that for a good many years, that Mr. Brown was a partner in Wakefield and Company or had some interest in the concern. It was never more than gossip. I never learned anything to justify the gossip. As a matter of fact, after the Bank closed, I found out very definitely that he was not a partner and that the Company was owned by Mrs. Latta exclusively.

The name "BancoKentucky" was suggested by the National Bank of Kentucky, or Bank of Kentucky. It was copied, I think, after what I said awhile ago about the BancItaly; the Bank of Italy organized the BancItaly Corporation, or something of that kind. The National Bank of Kentucky had been a state bank for many years before nationalization, I think around the early part of the century, and it was, I imagine, sometimes called the Bank of Kentucky, or the National Bank of Kentucky. I sometimes called it the Bank of Kentucky—sometimes I try to shorten things. It was frequently called the Bank of Kentucky.

The appraisal Mr. Crawford showed me is an appraisal of the Kentucky Wagon Manufacturing Company, as of May 11, 1928—of its real estate period. It doesn't show liabilities. It was not an accountant's report at all. It was merely an appraisal of the real estate holdings of that company, as of that date. There would be nothing in here to indicate that the company then had $5,000,000 in liability and was insolvent to the extent of several million dollars. I would not know that. That would not be reflected in that appraisal. It only means that in the opinion of the appraisers, the real estate which they owned had that value at that time.

The appraisal was made on a fair market value basis as of that time. Effect was given to reproduction cost and depreciation; we took that into consideration in our appraisal of that character, and checked them off against the other factors, and our knowledge and information of sales of property and all of that. I have seen a great many of the American Appraisal Company's appraisals. We did not follow that method. I have never felt like it was a fair method to arrive at the value. It is all right for insurance purposes and things of that kind, but I differ very widely with it on property values. I am thinking about what it would sell for. I am also familiar with appraisals for highest use value. An appraiser will always give effect to its value when adapted to its best use, and consider that in arriving at its fair market value. We did not appraise this property for its best available use, but it was adapted, I think, to the business which was being conducted there, so, as I said awhile ago, I saw about twenty-five to thirty per cent of the capacity of the plant was actually being used in manufacturing for which it was adapted. That was May 11, 1928. They were then manufacturing truck-bodies and trailers, coach bodies and some farm wagons and furniture,—quite a number of articles. The foundry plant was operating when we were out there. We spent several days out there and the foundry was operating and making, I think, gray iron castings and drop forgings, and I am pretty sure that at that time we were given information that they were selling a good many of those castings and drop forgings, because the capacity of the foundry was larger than the needs of the operation. They were selling them to the Ohio Falls Iron Works, and the Henry Vogt Machine Company.

As I recall, there was a group of frame buildings at the eastern extremity of the property that had been put up during the war period, and also a brick building in the center. I have known that plant for a good many years, in fact, I knew the plant before it was ever moved out there. I was out there frequently during the war, at which time Colonel Board, who was the manager, was in charge, and a woodworking representative of the Government. As I recall, a part of the frame buildings were being used for a furniture factory. The brick building in the center I don't think was being used at all. They had quite a surplus of capacity. The plant was running only about 25 or 30 per cent of what it could accommodate.

I would say that numerous efforts have been made to sell it for a number of years and that nobody would buy it.

Of course, I never had any interest in the property as a property, until 1927. The Bank never effected a sale of that at any time I was on the Board. There were several efforts made to sell it, but none prior to my appraisal. I think they had a deal on for it then, and that was the reason they wanted this appraisal. They had just got title to the land and buildings in December, 1927, I think it was, when they got title to the land the buildings and got it out of the old National Motors or Associated Motors situation.

What I recall about Blythe and Company was a statement made in the Directors' meeting about a contract that had been made with Blythe and Company. I never saw Plf's Ex. No. 173, a circular printed by Blythe and Company in the course of its efforts to sell BancoKentucky stock. You show me Exhibit 172, a letter sent out by the local office of Blythe and Company in great numbers. I did not receive one of those.

Stanley P. McGee,

called for Defendants, examined by Mr. Dietzman, testified as follows:

My name is Stanley P. McGee. I am a member of the firm of Humphrey, Robinson and Company, and am a certified public accountant, and have been about a year and a half.

I made the schedule which you show me, purporting to be the net deposit liability of the National Bank of Kentucky, as of November 17, 1930, to the stockholders of Banco.

Said Exhibit was received in evidence and marked for identification "Defendants' Exhibit No. 22."

This exhibit was made from the stockholders list and checked against the claim record of the Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky. It accurately reflects the net deposit liability, so far as the books of the National Bank of Kentucky Receivers show, to the BancoKentucky stockholders as of November 17, 1930, so far as we are able to ascertain.

Walter Girdler,

called for Defendants, examined by Mr. Crawford, testified as follows:

My name is Walter Girdler, I live in Shelby County, and do business in Louisville. My business is the Girdler Corporation, manufacturers. I guess I have been in the manufacturing business twenty-five years.

I was a director of the Louisville National Bank & Trust Company prior to 1929, and took part in the consolidation of that bank with the Louisville Trust Company in 1929. Prior to that there had been no connection between the Louisville National and the Louisville Trust Company, to my knowledge, or between the Louisville National and the National Bank of Kentucky.

Before voting for that consolidation we had audits of all three banks, I think, made by Humphrey Robinson and Company. I think we appointed a committee to make a further investigation. I think a committee was appointed to discuss the matter with the Comptroller of the Currency at Washington. I think some of our Board, acting as a committee, went up there to get their ideas about whether it would be desirable or not, and what steps would have to be taken to do it. The final conclusion reached was that it would be most helpful, from our standpoint, and to the best interest of the stockholders of all the banks involved.

I owned stock in the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company which was exchanged for the Participating Certificates in the unified bank. I don't remember when the final legal merger was completed. I went on the Louisville Trust Company Board immediately following the consolidation or unification period. I remember that after we got on the Louisville Trust Company Board—how soon after, I don't know—there was talk or discussion of this Banco company.

My recollection is that it was told us that it would be a desirable thing to set up such a financial institution. My distinct recollection is that the ownership of these other banks that was discussed might be taken into such a company with more or less a means to an end, and certainly not the thing that would yield the greatest profit. I think the thing that made me invest a substantial sum of money, additional sum of money, was the hope of profits that might be made from dealing in securities and underwriting securities, rather than the owning of banks, and the profits from the banks themselves, because I remember the profits from the banking operations were relatively small.

I invested additional money in it. I think I had 2,200 shares of Banco stock, but I am not sure of this,—I think this is approximately correct,—that I got 2,200 shares of Banco in exchange for my participation certificates, and I bought 2,800 additional shares at $25.00 a share. I bought those as soon as the stock was available.

I certainly had no notion at that time, and received no information that led me to believe that the Bank of Kentucky or the Louisville Trust Company was in any financial trouble. On the contrary, I thought it was the most substantial financial institution in the South. I first found out that there was any trouble in the National Bank of Kentucky on Sunday night—I don't remember the date. I remember I was down the river duck hunting and they called me up Sunday night and told me the Bank of Kentucky would not open Monday morning. I think I had deposits in both the Trust Company and the National Bank of Kentucky.

I didn't ever hear any discussion during the time of the formation of Banco, that it was considered that by trading Trustees' Certificates for Banco stock a possible liability or assessment on bank stock would be avoided. I never heard any kind of discussion at any time involving the idea that by the formation of Banco double liability could be evaded or avoided. I don't think I was even conscious of the fact that there was double liability. If I had been it would not have bothered me because of my confidence in the Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company. I never saw or heard of any letters from anybody discussing that. I never saw the letters purporting to have been written by Mr. Bean.

Cross-Examination by Mr. Marx

On Cross-Examination by Mr. Marx, Mr. Girdler testified as follows:

I don't know how much stock I owned in the Louisville National Bank & Trust Company. My recollection is that I owned $25,000 to $30,000 worth of the par value of the stock. I don't remember, I may be very much mistaken about the dollars and cents. That is a matter of record. I mean, I could get it.

I heard Mr. Hieatt testify that he sold some stock for $495.00 a share, as I was sitting there, and it came to my mind that I had paid $250.00. But that may be wrong. I can get that information. I think I also have some National Bank of Kentucky stock. You want the cost price of my Bank stock.

As a Director of the Louisville Bank & Trust Company I am not conscious of having thought of the fact that practically our entire capital was invested in 421 West Market Street before the merger. I knew the building cost, or we were told that the building was going to cost something like $850,000. I haven't any recollection of a discussion by Mr. Bean that one of the disadvantages of putting up the building was that we would freeze such a large percentage of our capital in the bank building.

I don't remember Mr. Bean presenting a letter to us, which became part of the minutes of the Board of Directors of the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company on August 16, 1927, in which he said,

> "our present rent is $8,000 and depreciation $5,000. The alterations in the present building and new furniture will cost $40,000 and amortizing that through the fifteen years, our rent will be $20,000 to $23,000 in enlarged old quarters.
>
> In a new building containing 17,000 square feet instead of 8,000 square feet, our present space, our expenses, depreciation, 4½ per cent interest on investments, will total $36,000, so the new home will cost from $13,000 to $16,000 a year more than the enlarged quarters.
> We will have invested $550,000, which is one-third of our capital and surplus."

I know the question of putting up that building was given a lot of consideration, we had men on the Board, who in my judgment were quite sound business men, and all the angles and phases of the question were considered, and we finally decided it would be to the best interest of the institution to put up such a building.

I can't explain that it was represented that the building would cost $550,000 but after we got into it it cost $850,000. But I do know that the plans were changed, I think, to accommodate the Louisville Board of Trade. Whether that anything to do with it, or not, I don't know; it is too far back for me to remember accurately, but nothing was done in the way of increasing the amount invested in the building without the full knowledge and consent of the Board of Directors, and I know the Board well enough to know that they did it because they considered it wise, the sound thing to do from the standpoint of the institution.

I don't remember that our capital was $750,000. I didn't know that when we traded in we got 7,500 shares of Louisville Trust Company stock in exchange for 7,500 shares of Louisville National Bank & Trust Company stock. There is no question that our capital was $750,000. My recollection is that the building cost $850,000. That was the building, equipment and furniture. I assume we had about $115,000 in furniture and the real estate. That figure, $850,000 is the lot, building, furniture and equipment.

By virtue of our acquiring Trustees' Certificates, we got into the Louisville Trust Company and the National Bank of Kentucky picture. I would have got into the picture had I not been on the Board and had I not been a stockholder in the Louisville National, because I think I was a stockholder in the National Bank of Kentucky. I was on the BancoKentucky Board, too.

Plaintiff's Exhibits 174 and 175 bear my signature, and I wrote the address on 174. I haven't the slightest recollection when I signed them. I knew what I was signing, I usually do.

I must have seen the letter of July 19, 1929, Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 24-3. I haven't any recollection of it. There is nothing familiar looking about it. I am sure I must have seen it. My name is on it. That is the letter to the stockholders,—to the holders of Trustees' Participation Certificates.

I don't think I was on the Advisory Committee to the Trustee. I haven't any recollection of it. You show me Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 8, a document dated July 3rd. My signature is on it. That doesn't refresh my memory that I was on the Advisory Committee. Let me read it. It seems to me that that is the committee of the whole. There wasn't any—I was selected as one of a small group to make up a committee. This appears to me to be the entire Board, who signed this thing. "Constituting a majority of the Advisory Committee,"—that did not register when you asked me. I haven't any recollection of this, but I signed it, and I must have read it at the time.

I assume these Directors of the Louisville Trust Company and the National Bank of Kentucky and Banco did run the thing they were authorized to run; Directors usually do. They were not the same individuals in three different capacities in every case.

I was a Director of the Trust Company and of Banco, and a member of the Advisory Committee. I think technically it is a committee of the whole, that is the way it looks to me, with all those signatures on here. I certainly don't remember being a member of a small committee or group and doing something and reporting back to the Board; I was never in such a position.

In the absence of the shareholders themselves telling the Trustees what to do about voting the stock under the Trust agreement, I imagine the Directors acted in such a capacity. I am not sure of that. I didn't know that there weren't any shareholders at this time, other than the BancoKentucky Company. I signed that document and the letter of July 19 is attached to it. I had just forgot.

I was never conscious of double liability, I said awhile ago. I said I didn't know whether I knew about it or not, and if I did I wasn't conscious of it.

Said exhibits were marked for identification Plaintiff's Exhibits 174 and 175 and received in evidence.

I have brought with me the statement of the acquisition of my bank stocks as shown by my records. This is a transcript made by a young man in my office from the original records. I brought the original records down here. There was a discrepancy of 2750 between these figures my man prepared and the bank's, and he could not locate it. This man over here apparently has located that discrepancy, Mr. White.

Said paper was received in evidence and marked for identification "Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 182."

I would like to explain that this shows my memory yesterday was a little faulty. You asked me how many shares of Louisville National Bank stock I had and I told you I thought I had $25,000 invested. Also I told you I thought I had about $5,000 invested in the National Bank of Kentucky. The record shows I had $48,000 invested in the National Bank of Kentucky, and $5,500 invested in the Louisville National. Another discrepancy in my statement yesterday and this record is that I said yesterday my recollection was that I exchanged my Trustees' Participating Certificates for 2,200 shares of Banco and that I later purchased 2,800 shares of Banco; it is just the reverse, I exchanged for 2,800 and later purchased 2,200.

I don't know whether I said yesterday that the banks acquired by Banco were a means to an end. That may not be a correct description of it. What I meant was this, that my recollection of the purpose of those banks, or control in those banks—I mean by that the banks in Cincinnati and wherever else they may have been—on the basis of the purchase price the earnings of those banks returned a relatively small sum of money, anywhere from 6 to 10%, and that the thing that made me buy additional stock was not the possibility of earning six to ten per cent out of those stocks, but the potential possibility of the investment and financial activities of the BancoKentucky Company, rather than the dividends it would receive from these banks. The banks made possible contacts and were a means to an end. In other words, they would make it more possible for Banco's investment and financing departments to make money, but in themselves they would not make so much.

Through the use of the banks in the group and the banks' facilities and by way of contact or the ability to contact persons along the line of underwriting, it was anticipated that further money would be made through what is sometimes called investment banking.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Crawford

On Redirect Examination by Mr. Crawford, Mr. Girdler testified as follows:

I transferred some Participating Certificates for Banco-Kentucky stock. I did not retain any control over those Certificates after I transferred them. I gave up my control of those and took the Banco stock in place of them. There was no agreement of any kind that I had with Banco that gave me any control, other than what legally might be, of those Certificates. When I gave them up I gave up my control, and took my control in Banco.

Recross Examination by Mr. Marx

On Recross Examination by Mr. Marx, Mr. Girdler testified as follows:

I was a stockholder in Banco and I was no longer a stockholder of participation interests in the Louisville Trust Company and National Bank of Kentucky. What I gave up was not control, it was interest. You call my attention to the fact that the letter of July 19, 1929, in No. 7 says:

> "It is an essential part of this reorganization that the shares of this corporation (or at least a substantial majority thereof) be owned by the Trustees' Participation shareholders, and that it be managed and operated by the Boards of Directors and the officers of the two banks."

I was one of the Directors. The letter says in 8-B:

"It is an essential part of this plan that the entire plan of reorganization, and the deposit and subscription privileges and rights hereinabove set out, are all, and each of them is, conditioned expressly upon the acquisition by the Trustees' Participation shareholders, either by deposit or exchange, or by direct subscription as above, of at least a majority of the shares of the BancoKentucky Company: And further conditioned upon the acquisition by the BancoKentucky Company of at least a majority of the Trustees' Participation shares issued and outstanding as of September 19, 1929."

Technically, I guess I did retain, through BancoKentucky Company, control of the Trustees' Participation Certificates, to the extent that that is legal. I have been through things like that before and I think at the time this was done I sold the business here in Louisville and exchanged our stock for stock of the Air Reduction Company. It wasn't actually a reorganization because all of its officers and what-not were no longer stockholders in that company, but we exchanged our stock for stock of the company that bought our company, and to the extent of our interest in that parent company, which I then held in the other company, I participated in that interest.

I mean that through directorship in Banco I would have a voice in the management of the affairs or control.

The Court: Through that directorate you would have a voice in the management of its subsidiary or other corporations of which Banco owned the stock?

A.—That is right; the directors of BancoKentucky certainly directed the affairs and policies of that company, and of its subsidiary companies, which were these banks.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Crawford

On Redirect Examination by Mr. Crawford, Mr. Girdler testified as follows:

Prior to my transfer of the Trustees' Certificates to Banco, I was under no contractual obligation of any kind that I could not sell them at any time I wished.

After I transferred my Trustees' Participation Certificates to BancoKentucky I had no contractual right to require Banco to sell those identical certificates to any one I wished. I had no contractual right to require Banco to sell any other certificates that Banco had.

George O. Boomer, called for the Defendants, examined by Mr. Van Winkle, testified as follows:

I was a director of the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company prior to its consolidation with the Louisville Trust Company. I recall the facts in reference to the consolidation. I was a director of the Bank and sat in with Mr. Bean on one or two meetings with Mr. Brown in which the matter was discussed. I think the Louisville National Bank denationalized before the consolidation was effected.

I don't know exactly what the prevailing market value of Trustees' Participation Certificates at the time those negotiations were entered upon. My recollection would be around $350.00 a share. I would imagine the then market value of the Louisville National stock was about the same. I have no recollection about that.

The discussions in reference to the organization of the BancoKentucky Company began sometime in the spring of 1929, probably around March or April. I don't know how many conferences with regard to the organization Banco I participated in, but a great number of them. At those conferences, in a general way, I would say the Directors of the Louisville Trust Company and the National Bank of Kentucky were present. That includes the Directors of the former Louisville National Bank and Trust Company.

The object and purposes actually to be undertaken by Banco as disclosed and agreed upon between the parties as a result of these various conferences in which I participated were in the first place, it was to provide a vehicle for the extension of the Bank into other banks and to do a lot of other things that banks could not do. One of the principal things, as I recall it, was the plan to do a general investment banking business, and by that I mean to participate in underwriting issues of securities, because it was the general consensus of opinion, I think, among the Board that there was a wide variety of financing in this general section of the country that could be done by an institution with sufficient funds and properly set up to do it.

In connection with these various conferences, up to the time the Banco charter was directed to be prepared and filed, there was no discussion or consideration at any time of the matter of double liability being imposed on the stockholders of BancoKentucky. None that I ever heard. I doubt that I was acquainted with the charter itself. I don't recall it.

I can speak from my own experience in this. I have participated in a couple of reorganizations. I know there was a reorganization where one company had taken over another and I was familiar with the fact that the word "Reorganization" was used in the tax law, and that that was the purpose of this word in this phrasing that has been referred to here. I mean, there was no question in my mind about the intent of the word "Reorganization" in that letter. That was my understanding of it personally. Following the discussion that was had by these gentlemen who were interested in the organization of Banco, I would say that was the intention of that body in forming that company. It was explained to them from that standpoint.

At the time of the consolidation of the Louisville National with the Louisville Trust, I can't recall exactly how many shares I held in the Louisville National, but I do recall that I had the equivalent of 4000 shares of Banco-Kentucky before Banco was formed. I may have had some Trustees' Participation Certificates before that; I don't recall. Most of it came from the Louisville National Bank stock which I owned.

I exchanged all of the Trustees' Participation Certificates for Banco stock. At the time Banco was formed I bought an additional 1000 shares which made the equivalent of 5000 shares of BancoKentucky. I sold 2000 shares in the summer of 1930 and held 3000 shares at the time Banco closed. Excuse me, the equivalent of 3000 shares. There were 2,800 shares of Banco and 10 shares of Louisville Trust Company stock which I held, which was equivalent to 200 of Banco, making 3000. I held that for the purpose of qualifying myself to be a director in the Louisville Trust Company. I exchanged T.P.C.'s for my Banco stock except for 1000 shares that I purchased from Banco.

I did not make this exchange of T.P.C.'s for Banco stock with any view or for the purpose of evading or avoiding any liability on the bank stock. I never thought of it. At the time of the exchange for Banco the condition of the National Bank of Kentucky and of the Louisville Trust Company so far as it was known to me, was all right, so far as I knew. Up to the first day of October, 1930, my opinion and belief in reference to the financial condition of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company was that they were all right, so far as I knew.

I was a depositor in both of those banks and had been from the time I started until they closed. I had deposits at both the Trust Company and the Bank at the time they closed. I do not recall their amount or their extent. I made no substantial withdrawals from my account within thirty days of the time these banks closed. As a matter of fact, I expect the company with which I was associated had over $100,000.00 on deposit with both at the time they closed. I had control over the deposits of those companies. I was the financial representative and conducted the banking business of those companies. I didn't control them. They were the Ewald Iron Company and the Pittsburgh Fuel Company.

I did not see or know any of the facts in reference to the letters written by Mr. Bean and some of the officers of the Louisville Trust Company in reference to the BancoKentucky Company, that I recall.

Cross-Examination by Mr. Marx

On Cross-Examination by Mr. Marx, Mr. Boomer testified as follows:

According to the list my counsel filed in this case, I had only $166.39 in the National Bank of Kentucky when it closed.

You show me Plf's Ex. Nos. 176, 177, 178. They bear my signature and I wrote the address on both of them. Ex. 178 is dated September 17, 1929. I haven't the slightest idea whether that date is correct. I have no reason to think otherwise. The handwriting on the left-hand corner of Ex. 178 is mine. It says: "The 1000 shares referred to herein is held by the Commonwealth Life Insurance Company, and will be deposited as soon as secured from them. An additional 900 shares has already been deposited by me." I don't know what the purpose of that note was. I presume it was a memorandum of some kind, but I just don't recall the transaction.

Ex. 177 indicates that the signature "George O. Boomer" purported to have been written by R. Bean. That is just a subscription for 1000 shares of BancoKentucky stock, and I presume I probably telephoned him. My assumption would be I probably told him to put me down for 1000 shares of BancoKentucky and he probably signed the subscription for me. That is Mr. Bean's handwriting. He was President of the Louisville Trust Company. I remember giving him a subscription for 1000 shares, but whether it was verbal or not, I don't know.

Said papers were received in evidence and marked for identification "Plaintiff's Exhibits Nos. 176 to 178 inclusive."

I presume I knew what I signed at the time. I was a director of the Louisville Trust Company and of BancoKentucky Company. I never was a director of the National Bank of Kentucky but I believe I was a member of the Advisory Committee that controlled the Trustees' Participating shares. The Trustees probably had the actual, physical stock certificates in the National Bank of Kentucky, not the Trustees' shares.

I signed Ex. 8, dated July 12, 1929, which instructed the Trustees to organize BancoKentucky. I have no recollection of having signed that but that is my signature and I undoubtedly signed it. Attached to it is this letter which subsequently became the letter of July 19, 1929, the printed letter that was sent out. I don't know whether I signed that letter or not. It purports to have my printed signature attached to it. I have seen that letter and I think I recall its going out at the time, but this other, as far as signing this is concerned, I don't recall it. It is my signature. I undoubtedly knew at the time what I was signing.

I presume that there was also attached this subscription form which I signed similar to Plf's Exs. Nos. 176 and 177, I don't know.

As a director of the Bank and a stockholder I presume I knew that the shares of stock in the Louisville Trust Company, in the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company and in the National Bank of Kentucky, were all subject to what is popularly called double liability. I don't think I had ever thought about it, but I undoubtedly knew it. I expect I also knew that the Trustees' Participation Certificates, which I received in exchange for my bank stock, were subject to the same liability as the bank stock.

When I signed this agreement, Exhibits 176 and 178, I doubt very much that I knew that the BancoKentucky stock which I was exchanging my Trust Certificates for was recited to be fully paid and non-assessable under the terms of the reorganization plan. It is a form which I undoubtedly signed in order to have the stock transferred, but whether I ever noticed that in there, I couldn't say. If I did, it made no impression on me whatever.

When I, as a member of the Advisory Committee, put my name on that document, Ex. 8, I was dealing there with all the stock of what had been three banks and I was recommending it. I was recommending that it be put into BancoKentucky. That was, in part, a holding company to hold the stock of the banks. I don't think it made an impression on me what we were doing about this double liability which I knew existed. I don't recall of ever having thought of double liability. We know a lot of things we don't think about.

I expect I read these papers. The charter of the corporation may have been read to me at a Board meeting but I haven't the slightest recollection of it now. I remember it being discussed but whether or not it was read, I don't know.

My testimony is that I have no recollection now of ever having thought of the matter of double liability in this transaction. I said I knew it at one time. I didn't say that I overlooked it in forming this company.

98—Mr. Boomer, did I understand you to say that you advised the stockholders that this plan, which you called a plan of reorganization in every paper and in every document and which you stated was to reorganize the two banks by adding a third bank, was simply a scheme to avoid income tax?

Mr. Van Winkle: I object to that. The witness has said no such thing.

Mr. Marx: I am asking him if that is what he said.

The Court: Objection overruled. Let him answer.

(The question was read by the reporter.)

A.—I did not.

99—Did you have any such idea in your own mind?

A.—I never had any idea it was any kind of scheme, and as I testified here a while ago, I was familiar with the word reorganization in the tax law, and I knew the purpose of that word reorganization in this particular letter.

100—On the contrary, isn't it true that you entered into this plan in good faith that it was a reorganization within the meaning, spirit and intent of the laws of the United States?

Mr. Van Winkle: I object to that question. The witness has stated exactly what he deemed the term "Plan of Reorganization" to mean.

The Court: This witness is on cross-examination. Objection overruled.

(The question was read by the reporter.)

Mr. Van Winkle: That calls for a conclusion of law.

The Court: No, he is asking what he understood. Objection overruled.

A.—I don't know how to explain it any more clearly than I have already done, but I know that the word "reorganization" had to be used in order to eliminate any taking of profit caused by exchange of bank stock, which was acquired at a low price for some other stock which at that time had a market price higher.

101—You did not think, Mr. Boomer, that by using the word "reorganization" in connection with something that was not a reorganization you could thereby escape payment of income taxes, did you?

Defendants objected to the question.

(After argument.)

The Court: This objection is addressed to the question of counsel for plaintiff on cross-examination. I am going to overrule the objection. You may ask him your question when you take him back, but you cannot require counsel for plaintiff to ask him that question.

(The question was read by the reporter.)

A.—That, as I understood it, was a requirement of the Federal Tax law, that it had to be shown as a reorganization, as a technical reorganization, in order to avoid the so-called profit upon the exchange.

102—That does not quite answer the question I asked you; you didn't think by merely using the label "reorganization" or the word "reorganization" that you could avoid the payment of income tax if it was not in good faith a reorganization within the meaning of the laws of the United States?

A.—It was in good faith a reorganization under the tax laws, and that was all we were concerned with here. There was no change in the status or setup of either of the banks; the Louisville Trust Company and National Bank of Kentucky—those organizations went on just exactly as they did before; there was no reorganization there.

103—But in your letter of July 19th, you said: "The conclusion unanimously reached, as a result of these deliberations, is that the two banks, and the business conducted by them, should be reorganized by adding to this group a third corporation, which will make the assets of these banking institutions more profitable, expand their facilities, and thus develop for the entire group, new and profitable financial opportunities and connections."

Now, you intended, didn't you, in good faith to do what you said in that letter of July 19th over your signature?

A.—That is merely technical; I have explained it as thoroughly as I can.

104—I am asking you whether the reorganization was a technical, legal process, didn't you intend to organize the business of the Bank in the manner set forth in your letter?

A.—I would say it was a technical legal process, and the phrase was used for that purpose.

105—Then, it was not in good faith, it was a mere technicality?

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Marx: I insist that the witness answer whether or not it was in good faith in the meaning of this letter of July 19, 1929.

The Court: That calls for a conclusion. I have sustained an objection to the question. He has answered that question in his manner to several prior questions. I don't think your question presents any new request from the witness to answer.

106—I will ask you when you proposed to the Trustees' Certificate holders that this was a reorganization, as set forth in your letter of July 19, 1929, whether you meant what you there stated in good faith, or whether you were acting in bad faith?

Defendant's objection was sustained by the Court.

Mr. Marx: I think I am entitled to a categorical statement of whether this witness was acting in good faith.

The Court: He has already stated that.

Mr. Marx: He has never stated it categorically.

The Court: It isn't necessary. He states the reason he used that phrase in there, which he says was done in good faith. Now, you have asked identically the same question.

(After argument.)

The Court: Wait just a minute. Your question is undertaking to put this witness on one or the other of the horns of a dilemma; it is a question he cannot answer yes or no the way you have stated the question.

(After argument.)

The Court: Now, Mr. Boomer, you have stated that you signed that letter and that it is authentic so far as your signature on there is concerned, have you not?

A.—Yes.

The Court: Did you, in good faith, in the use of the term reorganization as used in that letter, intend to use that term? Did you intend to use the term "reorganization"?

A.—Yes.

The Court: You did?

A.—Yes.

The Court: For what purpose?

A.—To comply with the tax laws.

The Court: All right.

107—Did you at any place in this letter advise the stockholders that your only purpose in stating that this was a reorganization of the business of the Bank and the operations of the Bank—did you limit that reorganization to income tax purposes or regulations?

Mr. Van Winkle: I object. The letter speaks for itself.

The Court: I think he may answer that, whether or not there is anything in there. It does speak for itself, but we are discussing this letter from the standpoint of its purport and intent when it was sent out.

(The question was read by the reporter.)

A.—I will have to read the whole letter to answer that question.

The Court: All right, read it.

A.—No, sir, I don't see anything in there to that effect.

108—Did you say yourself to any stockholder that the statement made in this letter of July 19th, 1929, Exhibit 24-3, with reference to reorganization, was limited to a mere technical compliance with the income tax laws, or the regulations of the United States?

A.—I don't recall. It was done for their benefit, so that they would not have to pay any income tax upon the exchange when they had not disposed of their bank stock or securities or its equivalent. Whether I talked to anyone about it, I haven't the slightest idea.

109—Do you recall anybody you talked to about it?

A.—No, sir, I don't.

110—Did you see Mr. Vaughan's letter, the opinion of your counsel, on this subject, stating that it must be made to appear throughout to the stockholders as a mere exchange of one form of security for another form of security representing the same property?

A.—I don't recall any such letter.

111—I will show you the letter, Ex. 25-5:

> "In other words, the issue and delivery of two shares of stock of the Company, for one Trustees' Partici pation Share, must be made to appear (so far as the Bank's stockholders are concerned) as a mere receipt of the same property in another form, and not as a closed transaction, wherein they part with one species of property in exchange for an entirely different species of property."

A.—What was your question? You asked me if I ever saw this letter?

112—Or if it was read to you.

A.—I don't recall ever seeing this or hearing it, but undoubtedly it was necessary to do that. I may have seen it; I don't recall it.

113—Then you were in good faith setting up a corporation which would do what your counsel said you must do, that is, a corporation whereby you would deliver two shares of stock for one of the shares of the Bank stock, so that the stock of the reorganized company, or the company called a reorganized company, would be a receipt of the same property in another form?

Mr. Van Winkle: I object to that as being argument and calling for a legal conclusion, and based upon a letter that this witness has never seen.

The Court: I don't understand the question.

(The question was read by the reporter.)

A.—That is a little bit involved——

The Court: Objection sustained. I think you are undertaking to have this witness state that it was the intention, or his purpose, to do what you interpret that letter to say. Now, you may ask him the question directly, but not in that form, as to what you have paraphrased that letter to mean. He says he hasn't seen the letter, that he recalls of, before this time, or that it was shown to him. He certainly should not be examined to that extent on something with which he is not any more familiar than this. Look at it on the witness stand. You may cross-examine him on what he intended to do and on what he said he intended to do but not in that way, making it vouch for that letter.

114—You were intending in good faith, were you not, Mr. Boomer, to set up a corporation which would reorganize your holding of bank stock so that the same persons would receive in exchange for their Trustees' Certificates shares of stock in the reorganized company, which reorganized company would hold the same property that had previously been held by the Trustees' Participation Certificate holders?

Defendant's objection was sustained by the court.

115—Mr. Boomer, you were endeavoring in good faith to carry out the advice of your counsel in causing a bona fide reorganization of the business and operations of the banks to be made, and of its stock holdings to be made in accordance with the plan set forth in that letter of July 19, 1929, that you signed?

Mr. Van Winkle: I object. That is the same question he asked him a dozen times.

The Court: I think it is the same thing. You went over it a while ago.

Mr. Marx: This relates to his secret intent. He never disclosed his intention to anybody. I asked about whether he ever talked about it to anybody and he said no, and now I am asking him about what he intended.

(After argument the question was read by the reporter.)

The Court: Objection sustained; I think this witness has stated a time or two here on cross-examination his purpose and intention in sending out that letter and in signing that letter. I can see no reason for continually asking the same thing in perhaps a different way, questions that he can hardly answer yes or no without explaining, and giving exactly the same explanation he has heretofore given.

(After argument.)

The Court: Did you intend to reorganize the banks as set forth——

Mr. Marx: (Interrupting.) And their business.

The Court: (Continuing.) ——and their business, as set forth in that letter of July, 1929?

A.—I would say so, by adding BancoKentucky Corporation to that group. I think that is what is referred to when it speaks of more profitable operations.

I do not have here a record of my own stockholdings. On December 8, 1928, I got 40 Trustees' Participation Certificates; on January 1, 1929, I got 60 more; and on Feb. 7, 1929, I got 15 more, making a total, when split ten for one of 1150 Trustees' Participation certificates.

I don't recall how many shares of Louisville National Bank and Trust Company stock I owned. I do recall this, that before Banco was formed I had the equivalent of 4000 shares of Banco and I acquired an additional 1000, but how I acquired the Trustees' Participation certificates in the interim, I haven't any idea. My first stock in the Louisville National was acquired in the early 20's. I am sure of that. I don't remember what I paid for them. That was before I became a director. I don't recall what the memorandum you are asking for is all about. If it makes any difference I will endeavor to look it up. I can tell you this, I got 4000 by exchange and 1000 by purchase. I don't recall that I borrowed the money to purchase the 1000 shares. I did not borrow the full purchase price of this stock from the Louisville Trust Company on this collateral alone. I had a loan there with better than two to one collateral. It is entirely probable that when I acquired this Banco I was permitted to increase my loan.

The statement in my answer is correct:

"That the defendant, George O. Boomer, was the owner of 4800 shares of stock in the BancoKentucky Company, which were acquired by him, first, by exchanging Trustees' Participation Certificates representing 1900 Participation Shares for 3800 shares of BancoKentucky stock, and second, by purchasing 100 shares from the Banco Company."

"Said George O. Boomer sold 1000 shares of BancoKentucky stock on June 12, 1930, and 1000 shares of said stock on June 30, 1930, which left the defendant Boomer with 2,800 shares of BancoKentucky stock when the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company were closed."

I will look up what the bank stock I owned and traded in cost me. I will endeavor to locate it.

I was present at several meetings when the Caldwell & Company was discussed. As I recall, I was not present at the meeting when the contract was approved. I was present at the meetings where the contract was discussed and practically agreed to, subject to it being gone over by the lawyers. I believe a committee was appointed to value the assets before the deal was to be finally consummated. I think somebody made the motion suggesting a committee to assist Mr. Brown in the valuation of the Caldwell securities. The motion was made by Sam Stone and seconded by Stuart Duncan. It consisted of Mr. Vaughan, Mr. Jones and me.

The committee did nothing. May I explain why? As I recall the contract with Caldwell and Co. specified that a valuation of those securities should be made somewhere within a twelve month period, and also, as I recall, the original contract, I think, discussed by Mr. Jones, recited that he and Mr. Caldwell were to evaluate those securities, and I remember objecting to that. I remember stating that in my judgment that was a responsibility which the whole Board should assume. I remember further saying that my position would be the same even if J. P. Morgan was President of the National Bank of Kentucky and that I thought it was a function the whole Board should assume. There was a lot of discussion about it, and more or less as a compromise, that motion was made. I do remember stating afterwards that that was a job which would take months of time and that I didn't have the time, and that we should get some expert to value all the securities and others to evaluate the bank's and try to arrive at some——

We never employed any expert to make those evaluations. Mr. Caldwell was to state some time in a year when the valuation was to take place. We did not withhold all of the stock of BancoKentucky from Caldwell until that valuation had been completed. I believe they only withheld 200,000.

I knew then that there were a number of banks which were owned or controlled by Caldwell & Company. I knew then that we were affiliating the BancoKentucky Company chain of banks with the Caldwell & Co. chain of banks. I would say that that was one of our purposes. He had a lot of—controlled a great many things, as I recall it, banks, insurance companies, and at least some industrial companies. When we made this affiliation of the banks in the BancoKentucky chain with the banks in the Caldwell, we did not have any statement of those banks before us. I never had any statement, any financial statement, prepared by Caldwell and Company before me. Mr. Brown had a lot of figures that he said had been given him by Caldwell.

"145—The only thing in the world that the Board of Directors of Banco, which was the Board of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company—wasn't it?

A.—Yes, with the exception of some officer directors.

146—(Continuing.) Had before them, was Mr. Brown's verbal statement that he had received some figures that Caldwell gave him: Isn't that correct?

A.—So far as I know."

I never saw Caldwell in my life. The Board did not have Caldwell up here before them. The Board entrusted those negotiations to Mr. Brown and Mr. Jones, I think, they were the only people that saw Caldwell, so far as I know. I think the Board knew they were the only people that had seen him. On the strength of that we were willing to trade on the basis of $25 a share for Banco stock. I don't know how many shares of Banco we were to trade. I think it was about 800,000 shares.

As a matter of fact, I don't think I knew until the last week or so that the stock was going to be transferred to Caldwell before the valuation took place. I remember distinctly stating in the Board meeting that in my judgment we should have this contract gone over by lawyers with a fine tooth comb to make sure that we could not get hurt.

Report of the Special Committee on the sale of Cincinnati banks was received in evidence and marked for identification "Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 179." Defendants' objection thereto was overruled.

Mr. Boomer's statement of the cost and dates of acquisition of his stock was received in evidence and marked for identification "Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 183."

BancoKentucky Company was not talked about before the Louisville National merged with the Louisville Trust Company. The agreement for the merger was made in January, as I recall it, but not completed until May. In between those two dates there may have been some discussion of it—I think it started along in April.

Mr. James B. Brown, the President of the National Bank of Kentucky, conducted the negotiations regarding the merger of the Louisville National and the Louisville Trust Company, for the Louisville Trust Company. He was the first man I ever heard mention BancoKentucky Company. So far as I know, he first originated it and advocated it.

I think it is correct in a general way that he was the one whom the Directors entrusted with the formation of the detailed plans for the organiz tion of BancoKentucky Company.

When I was defining the purposes to be undertaken by BancoKentucky Company and said "In the first place it was to be a vehicle for the extension of the banks into other banks and to do the things the banks could not do," I did not mean the extension of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company. I meant the extension of our interest into other banks, such as the Covington bank and Cincinnati banks and Paducah, etc., that we afterwards purchased. Our interest at that time was the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company.

The idea was this—of course, you have got to go back to 1929 to get the picture—there were banking groups springing up over the country which had not only their home office, but had acquired an interest in various banks. This idea was to extend our interest outside of Louisville into other centers. That was what I had in mind in quoting that language there.

Through the vehicle, as I put it, of the BancoKentucky Company, it was planned to extend our group interest into these other banks which we subsequently acquired. About the other groups that I spoke about that were being talked about in the company at that time was the BancItaly Group. That was known as the Gianninni chain, that was one of them. I am not sure whether it was BancItaly or Banc-America Blair. I may have known about BancOhio, the Wolf interest in Columbus, Ohio, in a general way, but I had no specific information about it. I knew about the Guardian National Bank or the Guardian Union Group, Inc., in Detroit. I knew about Wisconsin Bank Shares in a general way. I assumed they were in existence at that time. I knew of the First Wisconsin National Group.

This matter of group banking was being discussed pretty generally in banking circles at that time. I think possibly there was a good deal of chafing against the restraint on branch banking. As I recall it, Mr. Brown expressed himself as in favor of group banking, and as against chain banking.

I could not say that bankers regarded the system in that particular as antiquated and not in accordance with the modern trend. I think the feeling was that the trend certainly, at that time, was toward larger banking groups and that was one of the purposes of this formation of Banco-Kentucky. It would permit us to extend our group interest.

I don't recall that it was ever discussed that they wanted to keep these other groups or chains from coming into this territory. There might have been something about the threatened competition of eastern chains. It is entirely possible.

There was no intention or purpose to trade in these bank stocks, that is buy them at a low price and sell them at a high price, that I ever heard of. Our purpose was to keep them. To hold them.

We certainly had every idea of getting a working control, I would say, of the banks we purchased. Working control of large corporations today does not necessarily mean a majority. A compact minority in a large corporation can exercise what is called working control. The wider the stock is held, I presume, the more that is true.

I presume I would have felt it was desirable to have 50% of the stocks of the banks we were acquiring but I don't know whether the actual, legal control was in our minds at that time or not. I don't recall what proportion of the stocks were acquired in the Brighton and Pearl-Market Banks in Cincinnati, in the Paducah Bank and Mechanics Bank and Security Bank and these other banks. I don't think I ever knew any of the Directors in any of these other banks outside of Louisville and I don't recall having voted for them. I doubt that the BancoKentucky Company, through its control of these banks, named the Boards of Directors for all of the banks we controlled. I don't know if we had any annual meetings after we acquired them or not. I don't recall that BancoKentucky had a majority of all these banks. It may have come up in the Board, a discussion of the election of the directors in these other banks. I don't think I knew Mr. Brown was a director in every other bank we owned, I may have.

Horace A. Taylor,

called for Defendants, examined by Mr. Dietzman, testified as follows:

My name is Horace A. Taylor. I am in the drug business and have been in it for thirty-three years.

I was a director of the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company at the time it consolidated with the Louisville Trust Company in the spring of 1929. As a director I participated in the negotiations that led up to the merger of those two institutions. At that time I considered the financial standing of the Louisville Trust Company to be very good and that of our own institution to be very good.

In the spring of 1929 I participated in the negotiations that led up to the formation of Banco. When the Trust Company and the Louisville National were merged I became a director in the Trust Company. As such director I participated in the negotiations leading up to the formation of Banco. I have never been a director of the National Bank of Kentucky. After Banco was formed I became a director in it and remained so until it was closed.

At the time Banco was formed and during the negotiations leading up to Banco I thought the National Bank of Kentucky was perfectly sound. I had never heard of any intimation of any shaky financial conditions. Or of the Trust Company prior to the merger of my institution with that Company.

From the discussions that went on I understood the purposes of Banco—I gathered that there was need of a financial institution in Louisville that would be able to handle financial matters that banks could not handle, such business having been taken away from Louisville and into other institutions; that the formation of Banco would give to Louisville an investment banking company, and they could underwrite issues, they could set up an organization for selling securities of that kind and do a general banking business beyond the scope or limit placed on banks.

During those discussions leading up to the formation of Banco I do not recall anything being said about the matter of double liability on stock. That was not ever discussed at all to my knowledge. I acquired my Banco stock both by purchase and by exchange of Trustees' Participation Certificates. I never did have a tremendous amount of bank stock. I had some National Bank of Kentucky and Louisville National Bank stock prior to the formation of Banco. This I transferred to Banco stock. After that I purchased about 600 shares or something of that kind that I bought after the formation.

The reason why Banco did not engage in all the things it was empowered to do was because in setting up an organization as large as Banco, I knew that it was going to take some time to get the organization in shape to function. They were acquiring banks; they were building the organization. Those things cannot be done at once, and then, as time went on, we went into a financial crash in this country which stopped any sale of securities that Banco intended to deal in.

I signed the letter of July 19, 1929, that was sent out to all the Participation Certificate holders. I understood the word "reorganization" was more or less technical, that it merely meant to me that the National Bank of Kentucky and Louisville Trust Company were going to add to this reorganization a third corporation.

I continued a director of the Louisville Trust Company until it closed. The financial structure of the Louisville Trust Co. was not reorganized or changed in any way after Banco was formed. It did not change its character of business that it was doing. It did not engage in any activities, although authorized, yet not undertaken at the time Banco was formed.

I recall the financing of the Louisville Railway Company's first mortgage bond in the spring of 1930, but not in detail. I recall the fact that the Railway Company had some bonds maturing that had to be taken care of and refinancing was necessary. I don't remember that that matter came before the BancoKentucky Company at all. I heard it discussed. My own reason why Banco did not engage in that was that Banco was not set up to go forward with it at that time. I believe at that time Banco was negotiating with Caldwell and Company to take over an interest. So far as I know, that contract with Caldwell was consummated.

39—Banco itself never engaged in the banking business per se, did it?

A.—No, sir.

Cross-Examination by Mr. Marx

On Cross-Examination by Mr. Marx, Mr. H. A. Taylor testified as follows:

I have never testified previously in any of the cases following the failure of the Banks in the BancoKentucky chain. I was not called before the Grand Jury, either state or federal. This is my first appearance on the witness stand in connection with these conferences. I have not had the matters or details of these matters specifically called to my attention in the past ten years until a few days ago when I found out I was to testify. I tried to refresh my memory of things I have tried to forget.

I came into the domain of Mr. Brown through the acquisition of the Louisville National by the Louisville Trust Company.

I am not related to Mr. Leland Taylor.

I was on the Board when they decided to put up that new building at 421 West Market Street. Mr. Bean was then our president. We figured the building would be about $500,000 and then some additions were put on. The final figure ran close to $850,000. That was more than the entire capital of the Louisville National.

Without having seen the original minute book I presume that it is there recited, as Mr. Bean said "The main argument against building a bank is that it solidifies our assets and fixes our location for all time to come." The stock market crash occurred in October, 1929. We moved into this building on May 24, 1929. The Trust Company weathered that—The Louisville National went through that without any trouble. It went with the Trust Company. The problem didn't come to me as a director because no such thing happened to us, but as a business man I would say theoretically that it was very necessary for them to have their assets in liquid form.

I have looked over the reports of the Federal Reserve Examiners or the State Bank Examiners of the Louisville Trust Company and I certainly saw those of the Federal Reserve examiner for the Louisville National. We saw one of the Louisville Trust Company before the merger. I never saw one of the National Bank of Kentucky. I do not know the date of the one of the Louisville Trust Company. I don't remember ever seeing one afterwards. I believe we did see the Humphrey Robinson report on both of those banks, but I couldn't say positively. When I said I thought the National Bank of Kentucky was in good shape my opinion was simply based upon the general thought in the community that it was one of the strongest banks in the South.

"78—You had no personal knowledge of what its assets were or what the condition of its assets really was?

A.—No.

79—You had not heard any rumors at that time that it had more than $2,000,000 sunk in the Kentucky Wagon Works?

A.—No, sir.

80—You didn't know it had more than $1,000,000 loaned to a woman by the name of Mrs. Latta, doing business as Wakefield & Company?

A.—No, sir.

81—Or her clerks and employees?

A.—No, sir."

I didn't know about any of these other items that were then in the bank which subsequently turned out to be terrific losses.

With regard to BancoKentucky's purposes, the principal person who suggested and proposed the idea of Banco-Kentucky Company was James B. Brown, I think. My impression as to what those purposes were, is information that I have received from other people, that similar institutions in other localities had been able to perform those duties to the satisfaction of their stockholders and were money makers.

I believe one of the organizations that was talked about at the time was the Gianinni Bank chain. I don't remember discussion about the Guardian Bank chain. Or the Guardian Group. The Northwest Bank Corporation might have been mentioned. I don't remember. I believe the Gianinni chain was called BancItaly.

It was well known to me and to my fellow Directors that the primary purpose of this institution was to first secure a majority of the National Bank of Kentucky stock and the Louisville Trust Company stock as a nucleus for a group of banks in the Ohio Valley. That was one reason. The whole plan was conditioned, in the first instance, on acquiring a substantial majority of the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky and Louisville Trust Company.

I would say that BancoKentucky took its name from the Bank of Kentucky, to identify it with this State—not so much with the bank. Popularly the National Bank of Kentucky is still referred to and was referred to then as the Bank of Kentucky.

It was also definitely understood at the outset that the money that was put in was subscriptions to stock of the BancoKentucky Company and shares of stock of BancoKentucky were to be used to either purchase or acquire by exchange the stock of additional banks in the Ohio Valley. It was contemplated at the outset that we would acquire one or more banks in Cincinnati and one or more banks in Covington, Ky. Negotiations were under way with other banks in Kentucky, some of which were subsequently acquired.

99—Now, when you said that this new company was to engage in a general banking business beyond the scope of the banks, you had in mind, did you not, that there were—that this new company might make loans——

Mr. Crawford (Interrupting): I don't think he said engage in a general banking business; he said a bank investment business.

The Witness: If I made that statement, I meant a general investment banking business, and I desire to correct it now.

I would not say that we expected this new institution to make loans to business enterprises. I say, if I remember the way I put it, that I said they were to engage in underwriting issues. Underwriting means that the underwriter makes an advance of money to some business or industrial enterprise and then proceeds on the strength of certain securities issued by the business—and the house making the loan then proceeds to market those securities. That is correct whether they be stocks or bonds. It does mean that the underwriter or underwriting house is lending its money, or advancing its money, either for the purchase of the securities of the business house or upon a pledge of the securities of the business house as collateral for the advance.

It was contemplated that the BancoKentucky Company might engage in lending money to industrial and business houses upon the strength of securities issued by such houses, if it had that power in its charter and it was approved by its directors. The banks could also do that same business to a certain extent, but not underwrite issues.

I was a Director of the Louisville Trust Company at the time that company took a participation in this underwriting that Judge Dietzman asked me about in July of 1930. I don't recall that the Louisville Trust Company took a very substantial participation in that underwriting. I don't recall anything about the National Bank of Kentucky participating in the underwriting. I told Judge Dietzman I had heard of the underwriting, I mean of the refinancing of the Louisville Railway. Whether it was before this Banco Board or some place else, I don't recall.

I said on direct examination, the reason BancoKentucky did not participate in that syndicate was because they were not ready to go forward with it because it was not yet set up. That would be correct on that refinancing or any other thing that came up at that time. That was a year after Banco had been organized. If these banks in the Banco chain took some of the securities or refinanced bonds of the Louisville Railway Company, it was done under the authority of their charter and with the approval of the Directors. Banks could participate in underwriting to a limited extent. That limit was fixed by law.

In the BancoKentucky when I said they were to engage in underwriting or banking business, beyond the scope of the banks, I meant that BancoKentucky Company would be able to make underwritings and loans without having those limits which the banking laws impose on the banks.

I don't know just how far my knowledge went on branch banking, but I knew there were limits to it. But BancoKentucky Company could engage in what was then popularly called either group banking or chain banking. One of our purposes was to acquire other banks.

I knew as a director of the Louisville National that National banks were required to keep their deposits, or a certain percentage of their deposits, in the Federal Reserve Bank as a reserve. That was so as to have that much liquid cash available in the event of a run or something of that kind. I don't remember the details about BancoKentucky Company's acting as a little Federal Reserve or a Federal Reserve for the BancoKentucky banks instead of the Federal Reserve Bank at St. Louis. The thing I do remember is that BancoKentucky would be of assistance to these member banks, or these other banks. I don't remember Mr. Brown saying that it would substitute, so to speak, for the Federal Reserve and enable us make some saving by not keeping idle money in the Federal Reserve Bank.

As a Director of a National bank I knew that National Bank stock was subject to assessment for what is termed double liability whenever the Comptroller of the Currency determines in his judgment to call on the stockholders to pay that assessment. When I came into the Louisville Trust Company I knew that a similar double liability was provided by the laws of the State of Kentucky. When we voted to acquire bank stock in Ohio I knew that the Ohio laws contained some similar provision.

I exchanged my stock for Trustees' Participation Certificates. I presume I knew that these Participating Certificates were subject to double liability. I never gave it a thought.

I signed Ex. 8 and was on the Advisory Committee which formulated this plan for the BancoKentucky, the committee of the whole, as I called it, because everybody was on there. I don't know that the Advisory Committee was popularly called the committee of the whole, but I was on the Board of Aldermen for a while and when we went into session with all the Board, we called it the committee as a whole. At any rate, all of the Directors sat on it. That was the Advisory Committee to the Trustees. The document which I signed recites that the letter of July 19, 1929, known as Plf's Ex. 24-3, was attached. I presume it was. I either saw the letter or heard it read. My printed name appears here. I was familiar with that plan. I hope I knew what I was signing when I signed it.

My signature appears on Ex's 180 and 181. I also wrote the address. I haven't the slightest idea the date I signed it. At any event, I accepted and agreed to this plan of reorganization and deposited 250 Participation shares in exchange for 500 shares of BancoKentucky stock and then subscribed for 300 additional shares.

I don't know that there was a campaign among the officers of the Bank and the Trust Company to secure the deposits by Trustees' Participation Certificate holders of their shares and to sell stock. Naturally they wanted to get as much sold as possible but there were so many exchanged that there wasn't much left. They had to get 51% exchanged. I presume it was part of the plan to get as many Trustees' Participation Certificates exchanged as they could and then sell as much of the balance of the stock as they could sell, but I knew nothing about any organization set up for that purpose.

On September 8, 1924, I bought 10 shares of Louisville National Bank & Trust Company stock at $168.00; February 9, 1927, 5 shares at $256.00; Sept. 12, 1929, 4 shares at $200.00; Dec. 13, 1 share at $250.00; Jan. 28, 15 shares of National Bank of Kentucky at $393.00. My ledger shows that May 15th I exchanged the above for 250 shares of Trustees' Participation Certificates and 10 shares of Louisville Trust Company. September 1, I exchanged 250 shares of Trustees' Participating Certificates for 500 shares of Banco. Sept. 17, I bought 300 shares of Banco at $25.00. That is all in 1929. In 1930, from my father's estate, I received 250 shares of Banco. On March 1, I bought 50 shares at 24½. On the same date I bought 100 shares for 24¾. April 1, I bought 100 shares at 24½. July 1, I exchanged some other securities with my brother who had received a similar amount of this from my father's estate, and secured 250 shares, which was set up at $20.00.

After Banco closed I sold all of these shares. I got $300.00—⅛th or something of the kind; I don't remember what it was. When I made that sale, that established a taxable loss. I took that loss from my income tax, as against my cost prices. I went back to the bank stock and set that up as the cost of that 250 Participating shares. When I made the exchange of my bank stock for Banco-Kentucky stock, I did not report any taxable gain or loss on my income tax return.

A $100 share of Bank stock was exchanged for a $100 Trustees' Participating Certificate, par for par. Then the Trustees' Participating Certificates were split into $10 par, so I had $10 Trustees' Certificates. Each $10 certificate was traded, two for one, for Banco at $25.00.

If I had sold I would have had to declare it on my income tax, but under this plan, with the information I received from the accountant who handled my income tax, and the attorneys I employed, I was told not to do it. When the sale was made, instead of a profit, it was a loss, and I took it. That income tax has been checked a long time ago and O. K.'d. In my report to the Federal Government and in the transaction itself I acted in entire good faith.

The Louisville National Company, which we had in the Louisville National Bank, I don't believe ever engaged in any business to amount to anything. It was organized to start something, but it didn't do it. It was to sell bonds and securities—a sort of investment banking business. It was an adjunct of the Louisville National Bank. I had forgotten about that. I don't remember that every share of the Louisville National Bank stock had stamped on it that every share of that had a participating interest in the Louisville National Company.

Banco did the things that were the first things on our program. We acquired the Louisville Trust Company and National Bank of Kentucky stock and then we proceeded to use the funds derived from the sale of Banco stock to buy those other banks. I wouldn't say we exhausted our money in that way. I don't remember how the financial statement looked at that time. I don't remember that the money was all gone in November when we had to borrow money in New York. I remember some such transaction as Mr. Ormsby's going to New York and borrowing $1,000,000 for the BancoKentucky Company from the Chemical National Bank, but the details of it I do not.

I don't know that it was contemplated at the start that they were going to denationalize the National Bank of Kentucky. I told you I knew nothing about the National Bank of Kentucky. I wasn't on that board. I was on the Banco. I was on this committee of the whole. I believe both those Boards passed on the denationalization. But I am not sure. Probably if you find it there, it will recall it. Banco owned the banks.

I may have known that it was part of the original plan to denationalize the National Bank of Kentucky. I don't remember. You show me another part of Ex. 8. That is my signature. You call my attention to the following language:

> "it having been determined by unanimous vote of the board of directors of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company, at their regular meeting on September 27, 1929, that it is to the best interests of the National Bank of Kentucky to surrender its national charter and become incorporated as a state bank."

That refreshes my memory. According to the exhibit you showed me, it was part of this reorganization plan to change the structure of the National Bank of Kentucky from a national bank to a state bank.

I couldn't tell you the details of the departments of the Bank which Banco was to take over, but it was intended that the BancoKentucky Company should assist these banks in whatever they could to the benefit of the entire institution.

My answer that there was to be no change in the set-up of the National Bank of Kentucky should not be amended. I wouldn't say the corporate structure of the National Bank of Kentucky was to be radically changed. It was to be changed from the national system into the state system.

That was contemplated back in May, according to that exhibit.

I never heard anything about Banco having any title insurance department. If was never discussed to my knowledge.

Redirect Examination by Mr. Dietzman

On Redirect Examination by Mr. Dietzman, Mr. H. A. Taylor testified as follows:

I never saw or knew anything about the letters in this record from Mr. Bean to the employees of the Louisville Trust Company and officers and employees of the National Bank of Kentucky.

With reference to the Louisville Railway matter, that refinancing in July, 1930, was an extension of a bond issue. It had nothing to do with the stock in the Louisville Railway Company.

E. Leland Taylor,

called for Defendants, examined by Mr. Dietzman, testified as follows:

My name is E. Leland Taylor. I am President of Wright & Taylor, and have been in that business for twenty-five years.

I was a director of the Louisville National Banking Company prior to its merger with the Louisville Trust Company, and had been for six or seven years. I was never a director of the National Bank of Kentucky, but was later a director of BancoKentucky. After the merger with the Louisville National, I continued to be a director of the Louisville Trust Company until it closed. I continued to be a director of BancoKentucky until the last meeting we had.

As a director of the Louisville National I participated in the negotiations leading up to the merger of that bank with the Louisville Trust Company. At that time I knew the condition of our own institution in a general way, as a director. It was considered by us to be sound. We had semi-annual reports by auditors which different directors went over and examined and reported back. To the best of my knowledge and belief it was in a sound condition.

We also, during the course of the negotiations leading towards the merger, examined reports of the Louisville Trust Company and the National Bank of Kentucky, and we were convinced in our minds, speaking for the other directors too, that they were sound institutions, too.

During my connection with the Louisville Trust Company as a director, up to the time just before it closed, I always considered it to be a sound institution, and even today I still consider it so.

I had no knowledge or information to lead me at the time of the organization of Banco to have any idea that the National Bank of Kentucky was other than a sound financial institution. I regarded it as absolutely sound, and I had never heard a sentence against it in any way.

I participated in the negotiations and discussions leading up to the formation of Banco. As to the business that Banco was to perform, and on its creation, what business it was to engage in, it was explained to us the need of such an institution as Banco in this community; that business was leaving the State and City and section, and going to New York, Atlanta, St. Louis and other places, because we had no institution in this section of sufficient size to handle the different financial transactions that came up. It was explained to us that with the background of the Bank of Kentucky and those other banks that we could organize a new company that could not only have these banks, but extend their holdings in banks to other places, and form a large enough company, by selling additional stock, to handle these matters that would be very profitable that we were losing here.

21—Could you be a little more specific in your statement as to these other matters? What did you mean by that?

A.—I mean matters such as the refinancing of buildings, or taking over bond issues for companies. There was no particular one thing; it was just as a financial institution that would take care of people that needed money and had to go to New York and other places to get it, and we would be in a position to let them have it.

I owned a few shares of National Bank of Kentucky stock which I inherited, and I sold it about 1924 or 1925. I think there were only two or three shares. Throughout the formation of Banco I owned no National Bank of Kentucky stock. I was never a director in that institution.

What stock I had in the Louisville National I transferred for Participating Certificates, which were later transferred for Banco stock, and I bought 1000 shares after the organization of Banco.

I was not a depositor in the Louisville Trust Company, but always in the Bank of Kentucky, because they had a branch in the building where my office was. My office was in the Francis Building which was owned by some of my relatives, by Wright and Taylor.

Wright and Taylor also banked at that branch, they had $100,000 on deposit when it closed. I had control of that deposit. I had a small personal deposit, and the day before it closed I put $20,000 in the Bank personally, to pay off a note at the Beattyville Bank. They treated it as a deposit, and I was allowed 66⅔ per cent of it.

During the discussion leading up to Banco, I never heard anything mentioned about the matter of double liability on Banco or avoiding it in forming Banco. In exchanging my Trustees' Participation Certificates for Banco, the matter of avoiding double liability never occurred to me. I never thought there was any question going to come up about it. I never heard it mentioned and never thought of it.

My name is signed to the letter of July 19, 1929, which was sent out to all the Trustees' Participation Certificate holders. I remember the substance of that letter from what I have heard around here. The word "reorganization" is used in that letter. My understanding of that expression "plan of reorganization," as it appears in that letter was—— I might say I never heard anything said about "reorganization" during the whole time, until our attorneys who were preparing the case said that in order to comply with the Income Tax Department ruling that it must—should be called a "reorganization," though it was not contemplated in any way to reorganize any bank connected with it.

It was understood by me, so far as "reorganization" was concerned, to reorganize the control of the banks only; the stock was owned by the Committee, and afterwards owned by Banco, but so far as I understood and knew, that was all the reorganization contemplated. I never saw any of the letters from Mr. Bean and other employees of the Louisville Trust Company to one another and to the officers and employees of the National Bank of Kentucky, which are in this record. I have heard them referred to here, but I never knew anything about them.

Cross-Examination by Mr. Marx

On Cross-Examination by Mr. Marx, Mr. E. L. Taylor testified as follows:

I said that business was going to Chicago, New York, Atlanta and St. Louis because there was no institution large enough here to handle it. A bank could hardly handle that.

The New York banks were handling some of that business, they were handling a good deal of it, and Chicago Banks, but they were not to be compared with our banks. I heard Mr. Hieatt testify that the Consolidated Realty Company had gone to the National Bank of Republic, in Chicago, to secure accommodations. I don't know it. I think I remember St. Louis Banks were getting some of that business. I have forgotten the details of where it went.

I just referred to Atlanta as being one of the cities that was—or that seemed to be more progressive than Louisville in getting things of that sort. Certainly a good deal of it went to Caldwell and Company of Nashville, refinancing and things of that sort. We had no similar institution here. I don't know of any in Atlanta. I don't know of any in Chicago or New York, exactly, that handled any local business, but I do know they were doing it.

And I do know the banks in Chicago, New York and St. Louis were doing that business either directly or through their wholly owned subsidiaries. In some cases they could get it on account of their size, some because of their charter provisions, that allowed them to do it.

I knew that national banks all over America were subject to the same laws. I don't know whether they were national banks—the Harris Trust Company, for instance, I don't know now, for instance, whether that was a national bank or a state bank. They handled some of that business. Chase is one of the biggest banks in America, and is a national bank. The First National of Chicago was one of the biggest banks in America. I guess the National Bank of Republic which Mr. Hieatt went to was a national bank.

If a bank was of sufficient size, it was permitted to make these large loans and underwritings, but there were a good many things, though, that were contemplated, that banks could not do. Banks could make large loans. But the National Bank of Kentucky could not make larger loans than the law permitted without increasing its capital. The Louisville Trust Company was limited by law to the size loans that it could make. We could make larger loans in both the Bank and the Trust Company by increasing our capital. I never heard that mentioned as part of the Banco plan. It was not the plan of BancoKentucky to increase the capital of the bank.

I don't think it was the plan of BancoKentucky to organize a corporation under the Delaware laws with the widest powers on earth. I never knew a corporation ever organized with charter powers that were wider. But there were lots of things they couldn't do. I never knew any corporation to be organized with broader powers than BancoKentucky. But that doesn't mean it was the widest powers on earth. I don't know the powers of very many corporations. The corporation I belong to has about as broad powers. I don't know that they are broader than Banco, but it can do things Banco couldn't do,—make whiskey, for one thing. There is nothing in the Banco charter that prohibited that, if they would be licensed in the state charter. There is nothing in the Banco charter that would prohibit BancoKentucky from owning all the stock of a company engaged in manufacturing whiskey, but they wouldn't be making whiskey. I own stock in corporations, but don't consider myself to be in the manufacturing business. Although by law BancoKentucky was allowed by charter to do all these things, it could not do it in Kentucky until authorized to do business in Kentucky. I don't know it never was qualified.

The plan of BancoKentucky, while not to increase the capital of the banks, was to get control of the National Bank of Kentucky and Louisville Trust Company first, and all they wanted was control. One of the purposes was to sell additional stock in order to get some cash.

75—And it was proposed that in order to get that cash that the Board of Directors of the Louisville Trust Company and the Board of Directors of the National Bank of Kentucky would make loans to subscribers for BancoKentucky stock, if necessary up to the full subscription price of that stock, upon the collateral of BancoKentucky and such additional collateral as the lending officers thought proper?

A.—That was a matter strictly for the individual banks.

76—That is what I say.

A.—The Banco Directors did not exercise any control over that. The directors of the Bank of Kentucky—the officers of the Bank of Kentucky, I presume, with their directors' consent, established a policy of lending money, and I believe they did lend money on Banco stock, but I don't know to what per cent; I don't know whether it was 100 per cent or 50 per cent, but as far as the Banco directors were concerned, that wasn't considered.

I was a director of the Louisville Trust Company and knew that bank was also making loans to subscribers of the capital stock of BancoKentucky. I am sure also they never made 100 per cent loans on that stock. Through the medium of those loans from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 of the National Bank of Kentucky money and the Louisville Trust Company's money, went out of the Bank and Trust Company and into the Treasury of the BancoKentucky Company.

One of the purposes was to use that money which came into the BancoKentucky Company for subscriptions to its capital stock in order to purchase additional bank stock, in order to complete this bank group or bank chain. That was done. Banco bought other banks with that money. It was actually done. I mean by that, that that was not the purpose, the entire purpose of getting that money; it was one of the purposes, to increase the number of banks in different cities, which was done. It was not intended that that should be the only use of that money. However, I might say, to add to that other answer, that other banks loaned on Banco stock as well as the Trust Company and Bank of Kentucky, other local banks did. The Liberty Bank is one I know of. I can't name any other. I presume all of them were doing it, and I know the Liberty did.

The purchase of these other banks with the money realized from the subscriptions to Banco stock was not done as an after thought after we organized Banco. "86—But was done by premeditated intention? A.—No, that is right; it was part of the plan." I can't tell you whether we had decided to buy the two banks in Cincinnati for seven and half million dollars before we declared the plan effective, because the periods are confused in my mind, as to when things happened.

Charles Bohmer was a director of the Louisville Trust Company.

You show me a letter on the stationery of the Louisville Trust Company, dated August 21, 1929, signed by President Bean, addressed to Mr. Jones of the National Bank of Kentucky, Plf's Ex. 29. I don't know anything about this letter, or the facts leading up to it. I don't recall any such thing as Mr. Charles Bohmer's stating at the meeting of the Board of Directors of the Louisville Trust Company, that the First National Bank of Louisville was calling every loan based on the stock of our banks, and suggested that we ought to retaliate. I may have been present, I don't know, but I don't remember anything about this. I don't know that it is a fact that the First National Bank declined to make loans on BancoKentucky stock. It is easily possible. They were not any too friendly at that time.

I don't know whether they decided to buy those Cincinnati banks before we declared the Banco plan effective. I can't imagine them going on buying banks before they were organized to buy them, or had completed organizing. It may have been done, if it is in the record, but I don't know. The money was not called for until October 1st. But they got a lot of subscriptions in before then. The subscriptions were not called before October 1st, but a great many were paid before that. I know I paid mine before then. I imagine the money was returnable if the plan was not effective, I don't know.

I was present September 20, 1929, when a "motion was made, seconded and carried, authorizing the President in his discretion, to close negotiations," for the purchase of the Pearl Market Bank and Brighton Bank & Trust Company. Undoubtedly it was done if it is in the minutes, but that is the 27th of September, and then sufficient stock subscriptions probably had been made by that time to assure its success. That is probably the reason they went on with it.

You ask me if we did not use up all our available cash, or substantially all of it, very shortly, in the acquisition of the bank. My recollection is that it did not use up all the cash. I was under the impression that we had several million dollars loaned out in what we called brokers' loans —other loans, as a sort of reserve. We were getting low, I will admit, and that is the reason we decided to increase the capital stock, to get more money, because more people surrendered their stocks in these banks than we expected to.

I haven't the slightest idea when I first heard about Banco increasing its capital. It was at some of these meetings, but the whole thing is confused, as to the relative times.

It is my impression that I paid my subscription before October 1st—that is my impression now, that I paid, because I got a loan down at Beattyville to buy the stock.

The plan of the BancoKentucky Company was that after they got this Banco organized, according to my testimony, they were going to take, or attempt to secure, some of this business that was going some place else by making loans which it was thought BancoKentucky could make without the legal limitations which the national bank laws placed on loans of national banks, or the state laws placed on loans of state banks. Banco would not be subject to those laws in the making of its loans. That was one of the things they intended to do.

Plf's Ex. 184 and 185, bear my signature. I wrote the address in both cases. No. 184 is dated September 27, 1929, and 185 is dated September 17, 1929. I assume the date is correct, if it was written at the time I signed these, but I don't know when this was put on there. As a business man, I should have known what I signed. I have signed a good many things I wish I had not. I think I knew what I signed when I signed these documents.

Said papers were received in evidence and marked for identification "Plaintiff's Exhibits 184 and 185."

I never saw any report from the National Bank Examiners of the National Bank of Kentucky. I never asked to see them. We saw the published statements in the paper and saw a report of Humphrey Robinson, who was considered to be about the best bank auditor. I don't remember which report of Humphrey Robinson I saw of the National Bank of Kentucky. When the negotiations were going on, they presented the report that they had made.

The report I am talking about is not when we formed the unification back in 1927. We didn't form that unification until 1927. I don't know what report I saw other than it was an Humphrey Robinson report. It was of the National Bank of Kentucky, and perhaps the Louisville Trust Company, too. We were merging with the Louisville Trust Company. I probably saw that report in the Fall of 1928, because the contract, I think, was signed in the first part of 1929, and consummated three or four months later. While we were discussing it was when we saw the report. It may have been '27, or up to July '28. I don't know. As far as I remember, that is the only report I ever saw of the National Bank of Kentucky. We left the negotiations to the President and the Committee that was appointed. All I can say or do say was that my thought, and the popular notion was, that the National Bank of Kentucky was thoroughly sound.

I controlled Wright and Taylor Company. I got them to buy 6,000 shares of Banco, is one way I controlled it—whatever I said went with the company. It is a corporation, and I have been in active charge of it for fifteen years. I did not exercise control through stock ownership. I don't own a majority of the stock, I own part of it. It is a closed corporation, and my sisters own the other part which I don't own, and my wife. I own probably a little more than one-fifth. My sisters own the same amount. There are five parts. I exercise control through the consent of the other stockholders. I could not exercise control through the stock that I have, but actually I have directed the policy and business of the company for some time.

They gave me their proxies, or failed to vote, and that enabled me to elect the Board of Directors. The Board of Directors appoints me and I run the Company and that gave me control.

"144—Just the same way as the stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky exercised control over the BancoKentucky here, didn't they, through stock ownership?

Mr. Crawford: I object.

The Court: Objection sustained.

(After argument.)"

I said I did not think the question of double liability was ever going to come up. Of course, I knew Bank stock was subject to double liability, but I had never thought of it. You don't think of the storm when the sun is out, usually. If I had thought of the fact that the Trustees' Certificates were subject to double liability I would have known it, because I know that they would be. I never even thought about assessments or double liability of any kind. I expected to make a lot of money out of Banco. That would be the motivating influence to agreeing to organize the company; it was organized for profit.

149—You were willing to put more money into stocks when you knew that money was going into bank stock, because you expected the enterprise was going to be profitable?

A.—No——

150 (Interrupted)—You would not put it in if you didn't think it was going to be profitable?

Mr. Crawford: Let him answer.

A.—We put money into Banco as a corporation that was going to expand and have a big business. The banks that that company was to have—we expected that would be a small part of Banco's business before we got through with it.

151—You know, however, that your money, the additional money you were putting up, was partly, at least, going into bank stock, didn't you?

A.—Yes.

152—And you were willing to put up additional money to buy bank stock, in part, in the hope that those banks that you were to acquire, together with whatever other business the company might do, would enable you to make money, profits?

A.—We didn't expect to make very much money out of the banks; that was merely to be an outlet for the business that Banco expected to do. We never would have bought a bank for the money we could make out of it.

153—The banks were used as stepping stones?

A.—For a means.

I meant by my answer to Judge Dietzman about "reorganization"—it was no reorganization at all, in the generally accepted use of the term. I did not mean they were just a fake; I didn't mean it was any at all. The word "reorganization," as I understood it, was never contemplated up until the attorneys brought the papers and said that was the way it had to be, in order to comply with the Internal Revenue Department's ruling. It was explained that what we were doing would come under that provision. The plan for Banco was thought up and worked out without any mention of the word "reorganization," as I remember, and when we were getting ready to complete it, we had a good many papers to sign, that the attorneys had worked out for us and among them was one which contained the word "reorganization," and when the matter was brought up, saying there was no contemplated reorganization, it was explained that "This is understood by the Department, just what is being done, and in order to comply with their ruling the word 'reorganization' should be used in that prospectus."

Some of the attorneys said that. It may have been Mr. Helm or Mr. Vaughan or Mr. Carroll. I don't remember who the lawyer was who made this statement. It was made in the Directors Room, I think. In the Louisville Trust Building, that is where we had our meeting. I could not tell you on what day or who was present, but probably most of the Directors were present. I don't remember a single one who was present because I don't remember what day it was. Mr. Helm may have made that statement. I don't know. Mr. Carroll may have made it, or Mr. Vaughan may have made it.

I can't give the exact language he used. That is the impression that I had at the time, and the impression I have today. I couldn't give you the exact language. I do know there was never contemplated any change in the set-up of the Bank of Kentucky or the Louisville Trust Company, and that their organizations were to continue just as always. Whatever this reorganization may have meant, it certainly did not contemplate any change in the Bank of Kentucky or the Louisville Trust Company, or any of the other banks they bought.

173—Now, let me refresh your recollection as to what actually occurred: Isn't it a fact that the original plan was different than this, and the matter was then referred to Mr. Robert Vaughan for his opinion as to whether you would have a taxable gain or loss under that plan if you transferred your certificates to BancoKentucky?

A.—That does not refresh my memory.

174—Isn't it a fact that Mr. Vaughan then studied the question in connection with the firm of Miller and Chevalier, of Washington, and then, upon Mr. Vaughan's advice and the advice of Miller and Chevalier, the plan was changed so that it would constitute in good faith a reorganization by vesting not only the Trustees' Certificates control in the hands of the new corporation, but the control of the new corporation in the hands of the Trustees' Certificate holders, and by providing that the Board of Directors of the two banks was to operate and control the new corporation?

A.—I don't remember any such things as that.

175—And that you then signed the document as your lawyers advised you, upon their opinion that that plan, if adopted by you, would constitute in good faith an exchange of one form of security for another form of security representing in substance the same property?

Mr. Crawford: I object to that because there is no evidence in the record to sustain it.

The Court: He is asking him if that isn't what occurred. Objection overruled.

A.—I will answer that I followed the advice of our attorneys; they said "This is the detail of working out the plan the way we agreed."

176—Wasn't this, instead of being a mere sham or a mere technical evasion, in good faith—wasn't this in fact a good faith plan to do exactly what you set forth over your signature in the letter of July 19, 1929?

A.—It was what I said just a while ago.

177—No, I am asking you a different question now, whether this wasn't actually a plan to do in good faith just what you represented in your letter of July 19, 1929 over your signature?

A.—Everything——

Mr. Humphrey (Interrupting): I object. That reminds me of the question "Have you stopped beating your mother-in-law?"

(After argument.)

The Court: Objection overruled.

A.—Everything I have stated was in good faith: everything we did was in good faith; there was never any question of attempting to fool anybody.

178—You intended that there should be a real compliance with the law and did not intend that there should be any pretended compliance, didn't you?

The Court: Objection sustained.

I was one of the men who voted to make this contract with Caldwell. I was for him, I guess I voted for him. It was my understanding that that contract had a year in which we were to evaluate the assets of Caldwell. I did not figure in my mind that the contract was binding until the appraisal was made. If Caldwell and Company's assets proved to be nothing, there was to be no payment and no contract consummated. In other words, the contract was a contract to buy rather than having bought. Caldwell's assets were to be so much, but if it was less, we would pay less, and if it proved to be more, we would pay more. If it were nothing, we would pay nothing.

186—And that evaluation—I am quoting your exact language "It was not in our minds actually a purchase until the terms were consummated."

A.—My language? I never testified before.

187—Didn't you testify before the Grand Jury?

A.—No, sir.

188—You did not?

A.—I could have made that statement; it is all right with me.

189—Isn't your name E. Leland Taylor?

A.—I don't think I ever testified before the Grand Jury.

190—It is certified to be a correct transcript of E. Leland Taylor's testimony.

A.—I guess I did. That is something I have forgotten.

191—You say it would be your language anyhow?

A.—Yes.

192—It is a correct statement?

A.—I think so.

The appraisal of Caldwell's assets was never made. He had a year, and during that year he was to specify when he was ready to have the appraisal made, and before that year ended, things blew up and it never was made. Some stock was turned over to Caldwell. No dividends were paid on it. I didn't know it was going to be turned over and I was surprised it was.

(There was a long argument in chambers concerning a proposed agreed order.)

Mr. Bloomfield: If Your Honor please, in connection with the proposed agreed order, I represent Mrs. Elizabeth Wesch, the widow of G. A. Wesch, one of the defendants. I want to reserve the right to call Mr. White to show that Mr. Wesch never signed that exhibit. He told me that he had no such paper.

The Court: You and Mr. White can examine the records as to what, and if necessary, you can call him to testify, or you can stipulate it.

Mr. Marx: We will protect your rights thoroughly.

The Court: Gentlemen, it has been suggested that the order which we have just recently been discussing in chambers with reference to the elimination of a majority of these defendants as witnesses, lie over until in the morning. In the meantime, Judge Lafon Allen has suggested that he will try to draw up a composite order that will meet with the approval of all parties. Anyway, we will take that up in the morning and see if it cannot be disposed of. I will ask Judge Allen, or any other attorney who wants to do so, to submit orders. Try not to have any more in the order than is necessary.

It has also been suggested that the testimony of defendants who were directors of one or the other of the corporations, and whom it is proposed to call here as witnesses, may also be stipulated. Counsel have suggested that possibly, if the opportunity were given to sort of recount the testimony and take a summary of just what has been done and to determine just what witnesses would be called in the future, this afternoon, we might eliminate the necessity of calling a great many witnesses in that connection, and possibly conclude this case tomorrow. For that reason I think it is important that these attorneys be given the opportunity to make this inquiry and investigation to determine just what can be done towards stipulating what the testimony of future witnesses might be.

Adjourned to meet at nine o'clock A. M., February 3, 1939.

Louisville, Ky., February 3, 1939.

Met pursuant to adjournment with appearances as heretofore.

(After discussion concerning the proposed order to be entered by the Court.)

The Court: The Court's attention has been called to the fact that there are certain defendants who were employees of one or the other of the two institutions, to-wit, the Louisville Trust Company and the National Bank of Kentucky, who are represented by counsel, who because of conditions beyond their control are not present in Court. At the conclusion of this case, should these attorneys later determine that their clients' rights would be better protected by permitting them to testify, before the final judgment of this Court, the case may be reopened for the purpose of receiving that testimony, provided such request is made prior to April 1, 1939. That applies, I might say, to any defendant. We have got to end this case. Those who are here now should produce their clients now, but that will protect those who are not here present now and are relying on the attorneys present to protect their interests.

Now, insofar as Mr. Wickliffe's clients are concerned, I don't think there is any reason at all why that matter could not be determined by stipulation.

Mr. Marx: Whom does he represent?

The Court: I don't know, but regardless of who he represents, it is a matter that can be determined by stipulation as to what the record shows. The Court will require you to do that.

I am going to sign this order as of today.

(The Court signed the Order and handed it to the Clerk. See Vol. I p. 174.)

The Court: Now, Gentlemen, what is next?

Mr. Allen: We furnish a list of names of the men we propose to introduce as witnesses to counsel for plaintiff for the purpose of his seeing how many he can stipulate as to their testimony.

Mr. Marx: I think we could as to these.

The Court: Is that all?

Mr. Crawford: All the witnesses, but we have other things we want to offer. The defendants' request for admissions was filed here, and the answer to it, but it is not marked filed. I would like to have that answer to the defendant's request made a part of the record.

I want to also offer in evidence the transcript of the record in the Court of Appeals of this Court in the case of Laurent vs. Anderson.

(After argument.)

Mr. Crawford: We want to file this with the understanding that another copy will be substituted.

(Said record was marked for identification "Defendant's Exhibit No. 23.")

Mr. Crawford: We also want to file in evidence——

Mr. Marx: This exhibit relates to a defense that has been ruled out.

The Court: He hasn't said anything yet.

Mr. Marx: I mean Laurent vs. Anderson.

(After argument.)

Mr. Marx: All I want to do is to call Your Honor's attention to the fact that this exhibit relates to a defense that we claim has been passed on and ruled out, and therefore we are objecting. Your Honor, I suppose, will pass on it when we argue it?

The Court: That is right. Objection overruled; let it be filed.

Mr. Crawford: I also want to file a copy of the Petition and Order filed by Paul C. Keyes as Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky in the case of Carroll and others vs. The Chemical Bank and Trust Company, and the Banco-Kentucky Company, Jefferson Circuit Court, Chancery Branch, Second Division, No. 205,223. The form of this order has been attested by the Clerk of the Jefferson Circuit Court and the petition has been——

Mr. Marx (Interrupting): There is no question as to the authenticity of it, but it falls in the same classification as our previous objection to Laurent vs. Anderson.

Mr. Crawford: The Order entered therein, I understand Mr. Marx will stipulate, was prepared by his firm for Paul C. Keyes and tendered to the Court; I would like the record to show that.

Mr. Marx: After conference with Mr. Castleman, who was the attorney for the Receiver of the BancoKentucky Company.

The Court: All right.

Said copy of said Petition and Order were marked for identification "Defendants' Exhibit No. 24."

Mr. Crawford: Also, the decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals in the case of Laurent vs. Anderson, 70 Fed. (2) 819, I would like that treated as evidence in this case. I understand the Court would take judicial notice of it, but I would like it treated as evidence. Also, there was filed in this Court the order of the Circuit Court of Appeals confirming that case, and without actually filing the Order——

Mr. Marx: I assume the Court would take judicial notice of its own records. There is no objection to it.

Mr. Crawford: I also want to file as part of our request for admissions—they were not actually filed therewith—these copies given me by the other side of the published statements of the National Bank of Kentucky, beginning January 11, 1927 to and through October 11, 1930, together with a statement from the Herald-Post as of Monday, June 2, 1930, in reference to the Caldwell deal.

Said exhibits were marked for identification "Defendants' Exhibit No. 25," and "Defendants' Exhibit No. 26."

Mr. Crawford: I would also like to file as part of the evidence the exhibits referred to in our request for admissions—only the ones the plaintiff admitted—that is, the plaintiff admitted they were correct copies.

The Court: Let the objection be noted and overruled.

Mr. Crawford: There are one or two exhibits referred to that are not thereafter attached, and I would like, with Plaintiff's consent, to check them over and add any that are not in the record.

The Court: That is all right; that may be done without an agreement; you may do that on the order of the Court.

Mr. Crawford: If the Court please, I don't recall exactly what the order was on the filing of Keyes vs. Akers, later Atherton vs. Anderson, but I take it, it is in the same form as the ones we have just offered.

The Court: You mean so far as making it a part of this record?

Mr. Crawford: Yes.

The Court: You may check that over.

Mr. Marx: I think it was in the form that the Court might take judicial notice of the record to the extent that either side might refer to it for whatever purposes it might serve.

The Court: That record is already in for that purpose.

Mr. Crawford: That record is actually in the case?

The Court: That is right.

Judge Allen: The Order which Your Honor signed this morning concerning what certain defendants would testify to says that it may be read in evidence by the defendants: Is there any mechanical thing we have to do to get it in?

The Court: No; the Court is going to be bound by that Order without having it called to his attention.

Mr. Crawford: I don't know what order Your Honor made on our tendering these pleas of res judicata at the beginning of this trial, or whether they are in the record or not.

(After argument.)

Mr. Marx: They have been marked "Tendered."

(After argument.)

The Court: Let them be filed.

Mr. Marx: I think our objection to that appears in the record——

The Court: Yes, you made your objection to the filing of it and yet would naturally have an exception to the ruling of the Court ordering it filed.

Mr. Marx: The point is that Your Honor previously passed upon the point covered in that plea, and entered an order striking out that plea. I would not want this ruling to be considered as any reversal of that former order.

The Court: Oh, no.

Mr. Crawford: If it is needed to correct the record, we will file a motion for Your Honor to reconsider it.

The Court: The only thing I am trying to do is to get it all in so you can present the whole thing on the final submission. Is there anything else?

Mr. Crawford: We have nothing else so far as I know.

Mr. Marx: We have some evidence.

The Court: I think I will hear this rebuttal testimony at this time and then call a recess and you gentlemen may get together on your stipulations and probably dictate it into the record here. Then, we will reconvene to determine whether there is anything to finally wind up.

Mr. Marx: It is not strictly rebuttal testimony because some of this evidence was deferred in order to let them proceed with witnesses going out of town.

(At this point there was a thirty minute recess.)

The following stipulations were agreed upon between counsel for plaintiff and counsel for defendants:

It is stipulated and agreed between the plaintiff and the defendants, Frederic M. Sackett and Olive S. Sackett, that the affidavit of Frederic M. Sackett is hereby read in evidence in his own behalf, and on behalf of Olive S. Sackett as the testimony of Fred M. Sackett. It is further stipulated that the expression in such affidavit "sold and transferred" in reference to Trustees' Participation Certificates means "exchanged" for BancoKentucky stock; that Mr. Sackett did receive the July 19, 1929 letter referred to in such affidavit on or about that date; that such shares of the BancoKentucky Company stock as the said defendants received in exchange or on subscription were received pursuant to the regular deposit form of agreement hereto attached and marked "Plaintiff's Exhibit 186," "Plaintiff's Exhibit 187" and "Plaintiff's Exhibit 188," Exhibit 188 being signed by Fred M. Sackett personally on or about September 16, 1929, and Exhibit 187 being signed by Olive S. Sackett, by W. S. Speed, her attorney, and Exhibit 188 being signed by W. S. Speed as attorney for Fred M. Sackett, the said Speed being duly authorized to sign for the said defendants and that the stock subscribed for was received pursuant to the regular form of subscription hereto attached, marked "Plaintiff's Exhibit 189" which was duly signed by W. S. Speed for F. M. Sackett, pursuant to proper authority as heretofore stated; and neither of the said defendants reported any taxable loss or gain in connection with the exchange of Trustees' Participating Certificates for stock in the BancoKentucky Company; and both of said defendants did report a taxable loss on the sale of their BancoKentucky stock in 1930.

AFFIDAVIT OF FREDERIC M. SACKETT

The affiant, Frederic M. Sackett, being first duly sworn deposes and says as follows, to-wit:

I reside in Louisville, Kentucky, but have been staying in Palm Beach, Florida, since the latter part of November, 1938, on account of my health.

I am unable, due to the condition of my health, to return to Louisville for a resumption of the trial of the above action, and make this affidavit as my testimony in such action.

I am one of the defendants in the above styled action, and am the husband of Mrs. Olive S. Sackett, another defendant, and as Mrs. Sackett's agent, I handled all of her affairs in connection with the National Bank of Kentucky, Louisville, Kentucky, and the BancoKentucky Company.

From 1925 to the beginning of 1930, I maintained a residence in the City of Washington, District of Columbia, at which place most of my time was spent. I returned to Louisville occasionally remaining only temporarily there.

This period covered the time of the organization of the BancoKentucky Company. Being occupied at this distance from my Louisville Office where my bookkeeping facilities were kept, I found it more convenient in the transaction of private business of both my wife and myself in the frequent purchase and sale of securities, that the certificates of stock bought for my wife should be issued in my name as it made for greater ease in transfer. Separate account books were kept in my Louisville office and there wasn't any likelihood of confusion in our accounts from the holding of the certificates in my name. Previous to 1927 both my wife and myself had been for a considerable time the owners of small amounts of the National Bank of Kentucky stock. The certificates of my wife's stock had been in her own name on the Bank's books for many years. It had come to her originally by inheritance as stock of the German Bank a predecessor of the National Bank of Kentucky and had passed through several transfers to the issuance of the new shares of a Ten ($10.00) Dollar par value in the final reconstruction of the capital structure of the National Bank of Kentucky. These shares together with the purchase of a hundred additional shares of the reduced par value stock, therefore, remained in the name of my wife.

A transcript of the books of account of my wife and of myself showing all the transactions and values from acquisition of the German Bank to the final ownership and sale of BancoKentucky is as follows:

The foregoing schedule showing the transactions of both my wife and myself, while an accurate record of the ownership of each of us may differ from the stock records filed in the case at bar as shown by the books of the several corporations. However, the total of our two holdings is the same both on the corporation stock books filed in the case as is set out in the above record of purchase and sale transfers in the Company. The difference between the two records is due to the fact that for the reasons above stated in the purchase of BancoKentucky stock made for cash on October 2, 1929, for Mrs. Sackett's account the certificates for her part were issued in my name as well as my own.

The foregoing account shows that my wife sold and transferred nine hundred (900) shares of the National Bank of Kentucky, valued at $17,811.50, to the Banco-Kentucky Company on September 19, 1929, and received eighteen hundred (1800) shares of BancoKentucky Company stock therefor; that on October 2, 1929, she bought for cash eighteen hundred (1800) shares of the new Banco-Kentucky Company and paid therefor Forty-five Thousand ($45,000.00) dollars.

The account shows that on September 19, 1929, I sold and transferred to the BancoKentucky Company six hundred (600) shares of the National Bank of Kentucky stock of a value of Eleven thousand ninety-four and 50/100 ($11,094.50) dollars and received twelve hundred (1200) shares of BancoKentucky Company stock therefor; that on October 2, 1929, I bought for cash twelve hundred (1200) additional shares of BancoKentucky Company stock for Thirty thousand ($30,000.00) dollars.

Both my wife and myself invested in the new Banco-Kentucky Company more than two and one-half times as much as the value shown by our books of the National Bank of Kentucky stock, which each of us transferred to the BancoKentucky Company.

These final transactions took place in October, 1929, and I had no knowledge at the time when I exchanged stock and purchased stock for my wife and myself that there was any question as to the solvency of the National Bank of Kentucky. I had always felt that the Bank was exceptionally strong and I certainly would not have purchased the considerable amount of stock which the both of us acquired unless I thoroughly believed that the Bank was solvent.

In exchanging National Bank of Kentucky stock in the BancoKentucky Company I had no idea of attempting to avoid any so-called double liability on the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky. In the first place, as stated, I never considered that there was ever any question of the Bank's solvency. In the second place, I had followed in a general way the facts of the organization of the Banco-Kentucky Company and knew that it was to have a far larger capital than the Bank and that there were large cash subscriptions to its stock. In the third place, I invested far larger amounts for both my wife and myself in the BancoKentucky stock, in cash, than any possible double liability on the National Bank of Kentucky stock, which we individually held would amount to.

I considered the BancoKentucky Company an entirely distinct, genuine and separate organization from the National Bank of Kentucky. I knew it was organized to do a very different kind of business from that permitted National Banks which was expected to be exceedingly profitable; I knew it was to have and did have stockholders not common to the Bank. While I have before me a copy of the circular of July 19, 1929, setting forth in general the plan for the organization of the BancoKentucky Company providing for a total capital and surplus of Fifty million ($50,000,000.00) Dollars, and while my attention has been directed particularly to the use of the word "Reorganization" in that circular I do not consider that the formation of this company was in any particular a reorganization of the Bank in spite of the use of the term "Reorganization." The far greater capital, the powers granted to the Company by charter for operations far more extensive in many particulars than the powers of the National Banks under United States Banking Laws, permitted a much wider scope of activity than it is possible for banks themselves to undertake, it clearly indicates the object of organizing a Company to do a kind of business other than strictly banking.

Furthermore, my experience in business brought to my attention and knowledge the many opportunities, that such a Company as the BancoKentucky would have for the use of its capital for making money far in excess of the opportunities of any National Bank, and yet the ownership of large and powerful banks by that Company should bring to it, through its banking subsidiary many opportunities for profitable business.

I recognize that under the United States Banking Laws the opportunities of National Banks to engage in profitable transactions were in many instances curtailed, as for instance the limitations set to the opportunity for branch banking both under Federal laws and in connection with various and sundry State Laws which narrowed the scope in some degree of National Bank activities. I knew that this limitation on branch banking was being overcome to a certain extent through the adoption of what is known as group banking or the outright purchase of stock in other corporations. In this manner the activities of banks both State and National in various localities were brought under a general direction of the larger corporation unit and served as a feeding-ground for that corporation's activities.

The profit opportunities of group banking through the purchase of stock of banks in separated localities by a large company had impressed me as I watched the activities of somewhat similar companies in other communities that had taken place within the previous year or two, such as the Marine Midland Company, Trans-America and others indicating that the financial communities considered the general activity of an organization, such as the Banco-Kentucky Company, a valuable financial development.

My purchase for my wife and myself of BancoKentucky stock anteceded by nearly a year the closing of the National Bank of Kentucky. During that period I was unaware of any difficulties facing the National Bank of Kentucky. I considered it a sound bank even up to the day of closing. I did not withdraw deposits from the several accounts in which I was interested and for which I was in a measure largely responsible.

The deposit account of my wife, which I entirely controlled, was on July 21, 1929, $27,317.25, and on the closing of the Bank in November, 1930, was $29,573.38.

The Coal Companies in which I am largely interested which kept deposits in checking accounts in the National Bank of Kentucky are:

The Pioneer Coal Company deposit account of which on November 1, 1930, was $11,211.66, and on November 17, 1930, was $22,707.14.

The North Jellico Coal Company deposit account of which on November 1, 1930, was $1,322.78, and on November 17, 1930, was $1,388.40.

The Jellico Coal Company deposit account of which on November 1, 1930, was $637.83, and on November 17, 1930, was $637.83.

I cite these figures of the several accounts in which I was interested in the National Bank of Kentucky because although the time of my purchase of stock in the Banco-Kentucky was in early October, 1929, and the disastrous break in the Stock Market in New York occurring from the middle to late October, 1929, following almost immediately after my purchase and developed into a business depression which brought difficulties to many of the corporate interests of the United States, I felt confident even up to the time that the Bank was closed that the National Bank of Kentucky was strong and able to weather the storm. No thought of a stockholders' liability assessment upon the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky ever entered my head. No transfer was made to avoid such a liability nor did I reduce the deposits of the accounts under my control, deposits where any difficulty in the Bank would be first felt and where protection against loss could be most easily effected.

And further affiant sayeth not.

COUNTY OF PALM BEACH }
STATE OF FLORIDA } ss.

Before me, Hazel S. Gorham, a notary public in and for said County and State personally appeared FREDERIC M. SACKETT and being first duly sworn stated that the facts set forth in the foregoing affidavit were true to the best of his knowledge and belief.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 20th day of January, 1939.

(Signed) HAZEL S. GORHAM,
Notary Public.

(SEAL)

Notary Public, State of Florida at Large. My commission expires Nov. 22, 1942.

It is further understood and agreed that the plaintiff objects to the incompetency and immateriality and relevancy of the testimony given by said affidavit to the extent as if the witness were on the witness stand, and particularly to each and every paragraph thereof, which objections are overruled.

It is stipulated by and between the plaintiff and the defendant that the following witnesses, if called to the witness stand on their own behalf, would testify as follows:—

E. J. O'Brien was and is in the leaf tobacco business, and was and is a partner of E. J. O'Brien and Company, which is one of the largest leaf tobacco specialists in the country; that he was at all times shown by the Minute Book a Director of the National Bank of Kentucky, and was a Director of the Louisville Trust Company from the unification of its stock interest with the National Bank of Kentucky, to January, 1930, and was a director of the BancoKentucky Company from the time of its organization until the receivership thereof; that his stock holdings are listed on the attached "Plaintiff's Exhibit 190," together with the time, manner and cost of acquisition thereof.

It is agreed that as a witness in his own behalf, his testimony on direct and cross-examination would be substantially similar to the testimony heretofore given in this trial by William S. Speed; that the same objections would be made; and it is assumed that the same rulings would be entered thereon; it is stipulated that he agreed to the letter of July 19, 1929, and signed counterparts of both the top and bottom of Plaintiff's Exhibit 24-4.

It is stipulated and agreed between the plaintiff and the defendants that E. Weinstock was in the wholesale hat business and was a Director in the Louisville National Bank & Trust Company, the Louisville Trust Company, and the BancoKentucky Company, as shown by their minute books; and that his official capacity also appears in the minute books.

It is stipulated and agreed between the plaintiff and defendants that Sam H. Stone is a merchandise broker; that he was a Director of the National Bank & Trust Company, the Louisville Trust Company, and the BancoKentucky Company, as shown by the minutes of such institution.

It is stipulated and agreed by the plaintiff and defendants that Ben Metcalfe was with the old Louisville National Bank & Trust Company in 1894 in various capacities and held various offices, to that of Vice-President, and went with the Louisville Trust Company at the time of the merger, being a Director in the old Louisville National Bank & Trust Company, the Louisville Trust Company, and the BancoKentucky Company as shown by the minutes of those institutions.

It is stipulated and agreed by the plaintiff and defendant that the testimony of all three of the above witnesses, namely, Sam Stone, E. Weinstock, and Ben Metcalfe, if called as witnesses on their behalf, on both direct and cross-examination, would be substantially similar to that heretofore given by George O. Boomer and E. Leland Taylor; that the same objections would be interposed, and it is assumed that the same rulings would be entered; that the stock holdings of each of the above named witnesses are listed on the attached exhibits as follows, together, with the time, manner and cost of acquisition, to-wit: Weinstock, Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 191; Stone, Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 192; Metcalfe, Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 193.

It is further stipulated that said three witnesses would also testify that they either agreed to or signed the letter of July 19, 1929, and counterparts of the top and bottom of Plaintiff's Exhibit 24-4.

It is stipulated and agreed by the plaintiff and defendants that Angereau Gray would state that he was with the old Louisville Trust Company from 1891 to its close, and held various offices, including that of Treasurer and Vice-President as shown by the minutes.

It is stipulated and agreed between the plaintiff and defendants that Walter I. Kohn was then President of Herman Straus & Sons Company, and is now engaged in the practice of law.

It is further stipulated and agreed that the testimony of Angereau Gray and Walter I. Kohn, if called as witnesses on their own behalf, on both direct and cross-examination, would be substantially similar to that heretofore given in this case by C. C. Hieatt; that the same objections would be interposed, and it is assumed that the rulings entered by the Court would be the same; that the stock holdings of Angereau Gray are listed on the attached Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 194, together with the time, manner and cost of acquisition thereof, and the stock holdings of Walter I. Kohn are set forth in his answer.

It is further stipulated and agreed that said witnesses Angereau Gray and Walter I. Kohn would testify that they signed the letter of July 19, 1929, and counterparts of both the top and bottom of Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 24-4.

Mr. Crawford: I want to offer the Plaintiff's Brief in the case of Laurent v. Anderson. That is the Brief of the Receiver.

Mr. Marx: I never heard of briefs, the argument of lawyers, going into the evidence.

(After argument.)

The Court: It may be marked "Tendered."

Said brief was marked for identification "Tendered" "Defendant's Exhibit No. 27."

The defendants having rested, the following proceedings were had:

J. C. Daniels,

called for Plaintiff, examined by Mr. Marx, testified as follows:

My name is J. C. Daniels. I live in Louisville. I am assistant to A. M. Anderson, Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky. I have been an employee of the United States in connection with the liquidation of national banks for fifteen years. I have also been a Receiver in connection with the liquidation of national banks.

I went to work in the liquidation of the National Bank of Kentucky November 19, 1930, and have been continuously engaged therein, in an official capacity ever since. At that time Mr. Keyes was the Receiver. He was succeeded by Mr. Anderson.

I prepared Plf's Ex. No. 195. The first column shows the name of the borrower from the National Bank of Kentucky.

The second column shows the page of the report of May 25, 1929, dated June 15, 1929, on which the loan was mentioned or criticized by the Examiner making the examination. It refers to the pages of the National Banking Examiner's report of the Bank for that period and where the item is mentioned in the report.

I have listed in the next column, headed "On Books May 25, 1929," the amount of debts due from the corporation or individual on the books of the National Bank of Kentucky as of May 25, 1929, as shown by the report.

The next column, headed "Previous Charge Offs" shows the amount that was charged off on that individual line previous to the date of this examination.

The next column, headed "Subsequent Charge Offs" and under that "Date" and "Amounts," is the amount of the line that was subsequently charged off before the closing of the National Bank of Kentucky.

The next column, headed "Subsequent Collections," shows the amount that was collected on the line either before the Receivership or afterwards.

The next column, headed "Subsequent Increase in Line," shows the amount the line was increased—additional borrowings after the date of this report, between that time and the closing of the Bank.

The next column shows "Balance Due," on that line on the date I made this schedule up, which was the week before last. It took me approximately a week to make it up.

The last column, headed "Loss," is my opinion of what the loss is or will be in the line eventually.

All of the figures shown here, except the last column, are from the books of the Bank. The last column also shows what the books of the Bank show in all cases where we do not, at present, hold some collateral or collectible value period, or where the actual loss has not been established by Court action.

In cases where we are holding collateral I have determined the value of that collateral. If it was marketable collateral, I used the market at that date. If it was unlisted collateral, I used my best judgment, my opinion of what it was worth. That opinion is based on eight years' experience with that collateral.

The first segregation of items "Liabilities of Corporation in which Directors Are Interested," is a classification in the Bank Examiner's report.

The listing "Slow and Doubtful Paper and Losses on Loans Listed in Examiner's Report," is the classification in the Bank Examiner's report.

The next classification, "Loans exceeding the limit prescribed by Section 200 of the Revised Statutes, and excessive balances with non-member banks under Section 19, Federal Reserve Act listed in Examiner's Reports," is the Examiners' classification.

The next item, "Real Estate loans listed in Examiner's Report," is the Bank Examiners' classification. "Other loans especially mentioned in Examiner's report closed June 15, 1929," is the Examiner's listing of those items. "Bonds, Securities, etc., listed in Examiner's reports," is the Examiner's classification. In it I have given a description of the bonds in the first column. Then, what they were held at on the books in May, 1929, and subsequently what we realized. In the last column is the loss.

The last item, "Losses on Items Criticized by John S. Wood, Chief National Bank Examiner in Examination of National Bank of Kentucky," is my own summary, not the Examiner's. That is a correct transcript from the books as to all items except the last column, where my own estimate entered into it.

Plaintiff's Exhibit 195 was received in evidence, over defendants' objection, except as to the last two columns with reference to which defendants' objection is sustained. Said last two columns offered by plaintiff as an avowal.

I prepared Ex. 196. It shows loans made on Banco-Kentucky stock. The first column shows the name of the borrower of money loaned for the purchase of Banco stock. The second column shows the amount borrowed and the third column shows payments received on those loans to January 1, 1939. The next column shows the balance due January 1, 1939. The next column, headed "Value," shows what I consider the note to be worth. That is my appraisal of that item made in the same manner that I appraised the other items. The last column shows the loss. That is my opinion of the loss in that item.

Said Exhibit No. 196 was received in evidence over Defendants' objection, except as to the last three columns, as to which Defendants' objection was sustained.

Plaintiff offered the last three columns as an avowal.

Hugh A. White,

called for Plaintiff, examined by Mr. Marx, testified as follows:

I prepared Ex. 197. It is a comparison of the deposits, on a monthly basis, from February 11, 1927, to November 17, 1930, as shown by the records of the National Bank of Kentucky. It is of the deposits of the National Bank of Kentucky.

The first column shows the date, the second column shows the deposits other than bank deposits, and the third column shows the deposits of other banks with the National Bank of Kentucky.

The last column shows the total of columns two and three, the total deposits in the National Bank of Kentucky on the dates indicated in the first column.

Cross-Examination by Mr. Crawford

On Cross-Examination by Mr. Crawford, with respect to Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 197, Mr. White testified as follows:

I haven't checked these figures from the published statements relating to the Bank's deposits at all. These were made from the daily statement record of the Bank. I don't know whether any of the published statements are on the same date that this schedule is made or not; I didn't check that. The date is shown, February 11th, March 11th, April 11th, September 12th, December 10th. I took it as near the 11th as possible. I took them from the daily statements, which are reproduced in this volume of exhibits, originally. I didn't check daily fluctuation in deposits during the week. I just happened to take the last column from the daily statement book.

I don't know whether in the same month there would be a big difference from one week to another. I didn't check that at all. I tried to be consistent by taking the last column on each page, and that was the 10th or 11th. It was the 11th in each case if that was not a Sunday or a holiday.

Said Exhibit was received in evidence and marked for identification "Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 197," on condition that if defendants wanted to question the witness, after examination of the Exhibit, defendants may recall him for cross-examination.

I prepared Ex. 198. It is a summary showing the percentage of the total outstanding shares of stock of the BancoKentucky Company, on which dividends were paid, which were held by the same stockholders who exchanged Trustees' Participation Certificates for BancoKentucky Company stock and were stockholders on November 17, 1930. The first column shows three dates—December 31, 1929, June 30, 1930, and the date of closing, November 17, 1930. The next column is the total shares of BancoKentucky stock on the date indicated which were outstanding and on which dividends were paid. The next column shows the shares held by former Trustees' Participation Certificate holders who exchanged their Trustees' Participation Certificates for Banco stock, and who held Banco stock at the close. The last column is the computation of the percentage of the total of the outstanding stock of Banco held by those stockholders listed in column 3.

According to the exhibit, the Trustees' Participation Certificate holders who exchanged and still held on December 31, 1929, was 67.01 per cent. The percentage in the same classification on June 30, 1930, was 72.26 per cent. The percentage at the close was 66.68 per cent. They never, at any time, held less than, roughly, two-thirds.

That only includes stockholders who still held Banco-Kentucky Company stock, who had held Trustees' Participation Certificates. Where a Trustees' Participation Certificate holder exchanged his stock and got Banco and held it at any of these dates, December 31, 1929, or June 30, 1930, and then got rid of his stock—that was not included. That would increase it. These were only Trustees' Participation Certificate holders who held Banco and still held Banco at the close.

That percentage would be still larger if I included those Trustees' Participation Certificate holders who acquired their Banco stock by exchange of Trustees' Participation Certificates and sold their Banco stock 15 or 20 days before the close. This is the minimum.

On Cross-Examination by Mr. Crawford, with respect to Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 198, Mr. White testified as follows:

I said I did not include the ones who sold. There were quite a number of those. I don't know the number of shares. The reason I say there was quite a number of them is that in going through the signed agreements for exchange, there are quite a number of signed agreements of people who exchanged who are not now stockholders and were not stockholders at the close. I made no attempt to find out how much that was. In stating the percentage would be increased, I don't know how much. The second column includes not only the amount they transferred, but the amount they bought.

424—How much did they have to buy in order to maintain control of the banks—to have fifty per cent?

The Court: Control of BancoKentucky, you mean?

Mr. Crawford: Yes.

A.—I am sorry, I didn't get that question.

The Court: He means how many more shares would they have to buy between what they actually had and exchanged, and what was a majority of the BancoKentucky, in order to hold fifty per cent of the stock? How much would they have to purchase over what they already held by reason of having exchanged T. P. C.'s?

425—The whole pertinency is to show that the control remained the same?

A.—Yes, the control of more than two-thirds was always in the hands of these particular individuals.

426—That is the purpose of this statement, and of introducing it?

A.—I prepared the statement of facts in this case——

427 (Interrupting)—Wasn't that the purpose?

A.—I assume it was.

428—You know it was?

A.—I say I assume it was,—I don't think there is any doubt about it.

429—How much stock did these people you are speaking about in the second column have to purchase in order to maintain even a fifty per cent ratio?

A.—I don't understand how I can answer that question from this.

430—You have been over these figures and know what they are?

A.—Sure, I prepared them.

431—Now, how much is included in this second column of purchased stock?

A.—I don't know that.

432—You saw the exhibits filed by Mr. Shuck—you went over them?

A.—I saw them.

433—Did you try to make this so it would not show the amount necessary to be purchased?

A.—I don't say I tried to make it so it would not show; I didn't analyze it from that angle.

434—Do you have any figures in front of you—I don't mean in your hands right now, but have you not figures that would show that?

A.—No; I don't have those figures at all.

435—You know how many of the holders you speak of transferred, do you not?

A.—All of these——

436—Can't you take out——

Mr. Marx: Why don't you let him answer?

A.—All shareholders whose holdings are classified in the second column exchanged T. P. C.'s.

437—I understand that.

A. (Continuing)—That includes all their stock at those particular dates, regardless of where they got it.

438—It includes, in addition to the stock they transferred, the stock they bought?

A.—That is what I say.

439—Can't you separate those two items, that which they bought and that which they transferred?

A.—I don't know how I would; I don't have those figures at all.

440—How did Mr. Shuck get them?

A.—He doesn't have it for these dates; he has made an analysis going back to the stock certificates for the final date, but he does not have it for December 31, 1929—at least, he hasn't introduced it here for December 31, 1929.

441—At the formation of Banco, or any other date—you have got three dates here?

A.—I have December 31, 1929, June 20, 1930, and November 17, 1930.

442—All right, on December 31, 1929—you have got it for that date, have you not?

A.—I have the total number of shares held by those particular stockholders as of that date.

443—You understand what I am trying to do?

A.—Yes, but I don't think it can be done from this, or anything I have.

444—I don't mean from this paper, of course, it would be impossible——

A. (Interrupting)—And not from anything I have.

445—Didn't you see the same records that Mr. Shuck has?

A.—No, he has the stock certificates, the cancelled certificates, and has attempted to trace those cancelled certificates right straight through, and see where the stock that is outstanding now—where it came from, tracing it back.

The Court: Did Banco have a stock subscription record?

A.—Yes.

The Court: Is it available?

A.—That is here—pardon me, I should say the record showing payment for stock subscriptions.

The Court: That would be the same thing.

A.—Yes, the thing that was finally paid.

The Court: A person who transferred his T. P. C.'s or his interim receipts for stock in Banco, would that show on that book?

A.—No, not on that book.

The Court: Why wouldn't that book show the actual number of shares that were subscribed, independent of any exchange?

A.—It does.

The Court: Couldn't you take, then, the names from that book of those holders of T. P. C. or interim receipts and ascertain how much stock they actually subscribed for over and above that stock they acquired by exchange?

A.—That can be done.

The Court: Is that what you want?

Mr. Crawford: Yes.

The Court: On December 31, 1929——

A. (Interrupting)—You can't do it for that date.

The Court: Up to that date?

A.—No.

The Court: It shows only who subscribed for the stock.

Mr. Crawford: There is an exhibit here filed by Mr. Shuck, and tendered to them to check which shows that in order to have the amount set out in Mr. White's exhibit that they bought over $4,000,000 of that stock, which is necessary to have that control, and it was probably not fifty per cent without it.

Mr. Marx: I don't think that can be correct, because at the beginning, as I recall it, there were 570,000 shares of Bank stock exchanged for Banco stock, which makes 1,140,000 shares of Banco that went, at the outset, roughly, to the holders of bank stock, not by purchase, but by exchange, and that is more than fifty per cent—about fifty-one per cent plus of the authorized issue of 2,000,000 shares.

The Court: But they issued more.

Mr. Marx: But they didn't sell any more of that authorized increase of 3,000,000 shares. They never sold any. On the contrary, they bought up 106,000 shares in the open market of what was outstanding.

(After argument.)

The Court: Isn't this same thing in this case once?

Mr. Marx: Not by percentages.

The Court: You are objecting to this exhibit?

Mr. Crawford: I don't care.

The Court: Let it go in without objection.

Said exhibit was received in evidence and marked for identification "Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 198."

Continuation of Cross-Examination by Mr. Marx.

I have checked through the list of persons whom Mr. Wickliffe represented to ascertain whether any of them signed this deposit agreement or made subscriptions to stock. These are the original agreements to exchange Trustees' Participation Certificates for BancoKentucky stock of Mr. Wickliffe's clients. Every one of Mr. Wickliffe's clients who exchanged stocks signed the agreement to exchange. All of them who subscribed for stock signed the subscription agreement.

Said agreements were received in evidence and marked for identification "Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 199" to "Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 199-19," inclusive, and "Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 200" to "Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 200-15," inclusive.

Federal Reserve Board regulations were received in evidence and marked for identification "Plaintiff's Exhibit 201."

Clip-sheet, Exhibit No. D-58, in the Directors case, dated May 21, 1932, directed by the Court to be produced here by the Clerk from the record in Anderson v. Akers, withdrawn from that record and placed in the record in this case.

Said Exhibit marked for identification, "Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 202."

Letter from Mr. Nellis Kraft, dated April 18, 1930, to Mr. James B. Brown, received in evidence over Defendants' objection.

Said Exhibit marked for identification, "Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 203."

It was stipulated between counsel for Plaintiff and counsel for Defendants, that the stock holdings of Mr. W. S. Speed, showing the time, manner and cost of acquisition, be placed in evidence as "Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 204."

A Letter sent by Mr. Bean to Mr. Brown received in evidence, over Defendants' objection, and marked for identification, "Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 205."

Original letter from the office of the Comptroller of the Currency, signed by the Chief National Bank Examiner, to Mr. C. F. Jones, Vice-President of the National Bank of Kentucky, dated May 20, 1930, received in evidence and marked for identification "Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 206," with the understanding that, except as to Brown and Bean, the rest of the defendants would say that they did not know anything about it.

Announcement from the Cincinnati Enquirer of the acquisition of the Brighton and Pearl Market Banks, received in evidence and marked for identification "Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 207," over defendants' objection.

Sample of Louisville National Bank & Trust Company stock certificate received in evidence and marked for identification "Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 208."

Two circulars of the Chicago Stock Exchange announcing the admission of BancoKentucky Company stock to listing on that Exchange, received in evidence and marked for identification "Plaintiff's Exhibits Nos. 209 and 210."

Circular letter of Blyth and Company and printed circular, with letter sent to Mr. Jones, the Cashier of the Bank, by Blyth and Company, dated October 7, 1929, relative to this circular, ordered filed in evidence with the stipulation, that it is only competent as to those who actually saw it, and incompetent against any of the others. Said papers marked for identification, "Plaintiff's Exhibits No. 172, No. 172-a, No. 172-b," and "Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 173."

Certified copy of the findings of fact and conclusions of law in Paul H. Deeming vs. B. C. Schram, Receiver of the Guardian National Bank of Commerce of Detroit, and Alexander J. Groesbeck, Receiver of the Guardian Detroit Union Group, Incorporated, et al., No. 6035 in Equity, in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Michigan, Southern Division, offered by Plaintiff as an avowal, Defendants' objection thereto having been sustained.

The record in the Metropolitan Holding Company case in the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals, offered in evidence as an avowal, Defendants' objection thereto having been sustained and marked for identification "Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 211-a."

Mr. Marx: A statement has been furnished to us by Mr. Burkholder's counsel, but this statement is not what we asked for. It was understood that Mr. Burkholder was to obtain, or his counsel was to obtain, from the First National Bank, I think it was, a transcript showing the dates of his deposits during the period in controversy as showing what times he was here and made deposits in Louisville. That has not been furnished.

Mr. Street: Mr. Burkholder was one of my clients and I was primarily responsible for what occurred there. I did not understand, in the first place, that Mr. Burkholder had to obtain a transcript of all deposits during this period of the year. My understanding was that Mr. Burkholder was to determine from records available to him when he was in Louisville beginning about May, 1929 and extending on to the close of the National Bank of Kentucky. This is Mr. Burkholder's statement of what he has been able to determine as to his whereabouts during that period. If Mr. Marx cares to offer it in the record, I would be glad for him to do so.

Mr. Marx: It is our contention that Mr. Burkholder, who stated he was away from here during the entire period covered by the organization of BancoKentucky—I think he said he didn't even remotely suspect there was any bank connected with it—was actually here in Louisville during a large portion of that time and made deposits at his bank in his bank account during that time, and since he said he read the newspapers and kept currently advised of what was going on while he was here, that he just must have known the facts, and that he is in error in his recollection as to his absences from town, and as to his failure to remember now what he must have known if he was here.

The Court: Can it not be ascertained if he made deposits at the bank here?

Mr. Marx: Sure, I can get it here by subpoena duces tecum in probably an hour's time or less. I offered to do that a number of times, and each time these gentlemen said it was not necessary, that they would get it.

Mr. Street: If Your Honor will remember, Mr. Burkholder was permitted to testify before the case was closed for the plaintiff because he was going to California. He hurriedly made a search of his records and from that I made up the statement I have here. I might say for Judge Marx' benefit that his bank account during the period—I suppose during August and September that he is worried about—shows that there were transactions in that bank account, but Mr. Burkholder says that does not show he was in Louisville, because checks may have been drawn from elsewhere and deposits made for his benefit; that when he was away from Louisville other people handled transactions for him on that account. If Judge Marx wants to get a transcript from the bank I have no objection, but if he does, I want to explain the fact that, according to Mr. Burkholder, that that would not necessarily show he was in Louisville at that time. This statement, so far as I can see, shows Mr. Burkholder was in Louisville—I want to explain that—I think sufficiently for Judge Marx' purposes.

He returned to Louisville the first of May, 1929 and went to West Baden. He returned to Louisville on May 10th, because of the serious illness of his father who died May 26th. During that time it was his custom to take a trip to Wyoming each Summer with friends, lasting from about August 1st to September. He finds he purchased $300.00 of traveler's checks in July, but is uncertain whether he took the trip in 1929. He does know he was in Louisville from September, 1929 to March, 1930, and in March, 1930 returned to California and was there the rest of that year.

Mr. Marx: Mr. Burkholder testified that if his bank account showed he made deposits, that he was here, and that that would refresh his recollection. I concede a man may have drawn a check at West Baden and it would go through his bank account, but what I want are the deposits. It seems to us unthinkable that he would not know what everybody in the City of Louisville knew. Counsel has stated that during that period deposits were made——

Mr. Street: I think I said both withdrawals and deposits, during that period of time.

The Court: That is all you want. If he testified he made them himself, he had to be here.

Mr. Marx: During the period covered by the organization of Banco.

The Court: That is right.

Mr. Street: Your Honor, please, according to this Mr. Burkholder was in Louisville from May 10th, certainly until the first of August, and he knew he was in Louisville from September 1929, to March 1930. That leaves a period not definitely accounted for from the first of August, 1929, until about the middle of September, 1929. According to Mr. Burkholder this bank account shows both deposits and withdrawals during that period of time, but that does not definitely establish, in his mind, that he was in Louisville during that period of time.

The Court: That is all you could possibly get from it, if he says he cannot state positively that he made those deposits himself. That would be all you could possibly get and that is all the bank's records would show.

The Court: Anything further?

Mr. Marx: I don't think so, except I am a little bit uncertain as to the language of the stipulation that we now have with reference to Mr. Wickliffe's clients. As far as the certificate, or what they signed, is concerned, we proved then, but now, as far as what they would testify to if called, I am not quite sure as to whether he is willing now to accept the language of the stipulation that other people have accepted, or whether he wants some separate stipulation for himself.

Mr. Wickliffe: I am perfectly willing to stipulate that they will come, so far as their evidence is concerned, under the rule that the Judge laid down.

(After argument.)

Mr. Marx: On the question of how these dividends were paid, it is agreed they were paid by dividend checks of the BancoKentucky Company, of which this is a sample.

Mr. Crawford: Paid by a check of BancoKentucky to its stockholders, of which that is a sample.

Mr. Marx: That is right. I offer this in evidence.

Said Exhibit was offered and received in evidence, marked for identification "Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 212."

This was all the evidence.

At the hearing on June 5, 1940, the following proceedings were had:

Plaintiff's motion, that the Court make and find each and all of the findings of fact and conclusions of law set forth in Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law requested by plaintiff and filed with the Court January 5, 1940, was overruled. Plaintiff excepted separately to such ruling with respect to each of said requested findings of fact and conclusions of law.

Plaintiff's motion, that the Court make additional and supplemental findings of fact and conclusions of law in accordance with the opinions handed down May 13, 1938, and March 23, 1940, as set forth in the motion filed June 15, 1940, overruled and plaintiff excepted.

PROCEEDINGS IN THE

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT OF APPEALS

FOR THE SIXTH CIRCUIT

CAUSE ARGUED AND SUBMITTED

(November 13, 1941—Before: SIMONS, ALLEN and MARTIN, JJ.)

These causes are argued by Robert S. Marx for A. M. Anderson, Receiver, by W. W. Crawford for Katherine Kirkpatrick Abbott, Administratrix, et al, and by Henry M. Johnson for Susie E. Tellman, et al, and are submitted to the court.

JUDGMENT

(Entered May 4, 1942)

Appeal from the District Court of the United States for the Western District of Kentucky.

This cause came on to be heard on the transcript of the record from the District Court of the United States for the Western District of Kentucky, and was argued by counsel.

ON CONSIDERATION WHEREOF, it is now here ordered and adjudged by this Court that the judgment of the said District Court in this cause be and the same is hereby affirmed.

OPINION

(Filed May 4, 1942)

Before SIMONS, ALLEN and MARTIN, Circuit Judges.

MARTIN, Circuit Judge. This court must again travel the tangled trail of ramifications resultant from the failure of the National Bank of Kentucky.

In an action brought by the receiver of that institution, double liability assessment under 38 Stat. 273, 12 U. S. C. A., 64, was upheld against the receiver of BancoKentucky Company, a Delaware corporation, as the real and beneficial owner of the national bank stock by virtue of its position as holder of participation certificates issued by trustees, who, for the benefit of BancoKentucky Company, held the bare legal title to a vast majority of the shares of the assessed capital stock of the National Bank of Kentucky. Laurent v. Anderson, 70 F. (2d) 819.

Only $90,745.17 of the judgment for $3,771,464.22 entered in that case was satisfied. In the present action, the receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky seeks to recover from the stockholders of BancoKentucky Company, on the basis of their proportionate stockholdings, the difference, with interest, between the amount of the judgment awarded the national bank receiver against the BancoKentucky Company and the amount collected by him.

After receiving and considering voluminous evidence, which in the printed record on this appeal comprises 212 exhibits contained in five volumes and 913 pages of testimony, a part of which is in condensed form, the district court dismissed the instant action brought by the receiver. The grounds of dismissal appear in the trial court's opinion (32 F. Supp. 328) and in its findings of fact and conclusions of law.

On appeal, the national bank receiver renews his contention that the stockholders of the BancoKentucky Company are shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky, within the meaning of the federal assessment statutes. He states the essence of his case to be that owners of national bank stock cannot organize a commercial corporation to hold their bank stock, channel the dividends on the bank stock to themselves through the holding company, and then interpose the corporate entity as a shield against the assessment liability imposed upon "the actual owners of the capital of a national bank, that is, those who have their money invested therein."

The rejoinder of the appellees is that BancoKentucky Company was an independent corporation and real owner of the doubly-assessed stock of the National Bank of Kentucky, and has been held liable in such capacity; and that the stockholders of BancoKentucky Company were not shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky within the meaning of the federal stock assessment statutes.

No useful purpose would be served by repetition of the historical background of this case. On the contrary, it would seem more appropriate not to repeat descriptive narrative which can be found in numerous reported cases in this circuit.

The merger and unification of control and management of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company through the issuance of trustees' participation certificates, the terms and conditions upon which the certificates were issued, the organization of BancoKentucky Company and the underlying purposes thereof, and the acquisition by Banco of the trustees' participation certificates have been described and discussed, not only in the published opinion of the court below (32 F. Supp. 328) and in Laurent v. Anderson, supra, but also in Anderson v. Akers, 7 F. Supp. 924, 947, et seq. (D. C. Ky.); and, on appeal therefrom, in Atherton v. Anderson, 86 F. (2d) 518, 534, et seq. (C. C. A. 6).

Moreover, in litigation instituted by the receiver of the national bank against its officers and directors to impose liability upon them for the bank's losses, this court, in Atherton v. Anderson, supra, and in Atherton v. Anderson, 99 F. (2d) 883, has described and discussed in detail the operations of the National Bank of Kentucky and the BancoKentucky Company and the transactions which led to the failure of the national bank, and the subsequent collapse of the BancoKentucky Company. Pertinent factual statement will also be found in the opinion of the Court of Appeals of Kentucky in BancoKentucky's Receiver v. Louisville Trust Co.'s Receiver, 263 Ky. 155, which was a successful action to recover statutory double liability, assessed under the laws of Kentucky, against BancoKentucky Company as the beneficial owner of shares of the capital stock of the Louisville Trust Company.

Without undue repetition of what we have said in Laurent v. Anderson, supra, and the two Atherton v. Anderson cases, supra, we shall limit discussion of the facts to salient points which appear to direct the way to correct decision.

In the consummation of the plan of unification of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company, it was carefully provided that the six trustees holding legal title to the stocks of the two banking institutions should not be personally liable as shareholders, but that each owner of a trustees' participation certificate should be subject to the same liability thereon as if he were owner of record of the proportionate number of bank stock shares held in trust for him. Insofar as attaching liability for double assessment was concerned, the trustees' certificates were the equivalent of bank stock; and holders of such certificates were the real beneficial shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky.

But, in the certificate of incorporation issued by the state of Delaware to BancoKentucky Company, it was distinctly provided that the private property of the stockholders should not be subject to the payment of corporate debts to any extent whatever, and the shares of that company were described in each stock certificate as "full paid and non-assessable." In the prospectus of the BancoKentucky Company, dated July 19, 1929, mailed to the holders of trustees' participation certificates, it was stated that the new corporation could exercise many profitable and important functions which neither a bank nor a trust company is authorized to exercise, and could take advantage of many sound and profitable financial opportunities frequently presented in the course of business of the two banks but not available to them because of the restrictions upon their power and activities.

It was further pointed out in the prospectus that the broad charter powers of the new corporation would include the right to acquire stocks, bonds, securities, and evidence of indebtedness of other corporations; the power to underwrite securities, to participate in syndicate management and to charge fees and commissions for services in the reorganization or refinancing of other corporations; and the power to issue bonds, to guarantee the obligations of others, and to become surety, guarantor and endorser thereof.

The unification of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company was consummated under the trustees' participation certificate plan by an agreement dated April 22, 1927. A week later, market quotations of the National Bank of Kentucky shares of par value of $100 each were $470 bid and $485 asked. Quarterly dividends of four percent were paid regularly on the national bank stock up to the time of the incorporation of the BancoKentucky Company on July 16, 1929; indeed, were so paid up to the closing of the national bank [redacted] November 17, 1930. None of these dividends was criticised by the Comptroller of the Currency in his letters to the bank, or in the reports of the examiner. On June 14, 1929, a month before BancoKentucky Company was incorporated, the official reports of the National Bank of Kentucky to the Comptroller of the Currency showed a capital of $4,000,000, a surplus of $2,000,000, and substantial undivided profits.

No probability of double liability assessment appeared at the time the holders of trustees' participation certificates exchanged the same for shares of BancoKentucky Company. At the time BancoKentucky Company was organized, its directors, who owned 76,115 trustees' participation certificates carrying a maximum statutory assessment liability of $761,150, exchanged their participation certificates for 152,230 shares of BancoKentucky stock. They subscribed for an additional 47,188 shares of Banco, for which they paid $1,179,750 in cash. Moreover, of the 2,225 holders of trustees' participation certificates prior to the organization of Banco, 646 of them purchased for $4,471,950 cash 178,878 shares of Banco Kentucky stock at $25 per share. This investment in Banco was in addition to their exchange of trustees' participation certificates for stock in Banco. At the time, the trustees' certificates had a market value of "46 bid and 48 asked."

A survey of all the evidence in the case impels the conclusion that the BancoKentucky Company was organized for the purposes declared in its prospectus, and not for the purpose of affording escape by holders of trustees' participation certificates from double liability assessment on bank stock.

Immediately after the closing date for deposit and subscription to BancoKentucky stock, pursuant to the terms of the prospectus, the board of directors, in view of the almost unanimous exchange of trustees' participation certificates for BancoKentucky stock, adopted plans to amend the charter of the latter, so as to increase its capital from two million shares to five million shares; and, in January, 1930, the charter was so amended. Contracts with brokers were authorized for the sale of its shares to the public. On July 1, 1930, Banco stock was held by 6,000 stockholders.

The BancoKentucky Company collected on call and from subscribers to its stock $25 per share for 394,786 shares, or $9,869,650 in cash—a wholesome asset. More than half of this amount was furnished by investors who were not holders of trustees' participation certificates.

An excess of $3,000,000 of the cash realized by Banco from sales of its shares was not invested in bank stocks; but on November 17, 1930, the aggregate par value of bank stocks owned by BancoKentucky Company had reached $7,770,780. The BancoKentucky Company acquired, during the period between September 25, 1929, and November 22, 1930, either by cash payment or by exchange of its stock, or by both, controlling stock interests in Pearl-Market Bank and Trust Co., Cincinnati, Ohio; Brighton Bank and Trust Co., Cincinnati, Ohio; Central Savings Bank and Trust Company, Covington, Kentucky; Peoples-Liberty Bank and Trust Co., Covington, Kentucky; First National Bank of Paducah, Kentucky; Ashland National Bank, Ashland, Kentucky; Security Bank of Louisville, Kentucky; and the Mechanics Trust and Savings Bank, Paducah, Kentucky.

But it acquired, also, 625 shares of Union Central Life Insurance Company stock; a $2,000,000 note of James B. Brown, President of the National Bank of Kentucky; a $588,000 note of Murray Rubber Company of Trenton, N. J., a $20,000 participation in a note of Louis C. Humphrey; and contracted, on May 28, 1930, for the purchase of 10,000 shares of Caldwell and Company, an expansive investment corporation, in a trade which was not fully consummated.

The deal between Banco and Caldwell and Company was much publicized; and, following the failure of the latter on November 5, 1930, some twelve million dollars was withdrawn from the National Bank of Kentucky by its depositors. The national bank went into the hands of a receiver on November 17, 1930; and, on November 24, 1930, a petition for receivership was filed in a Kentucky state court against the BancoKentucky Company and thereafter a receiver was appointed. On February 20, 1931, the Comptroller of the Currency assessed the stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky on the full par value of its capital stock of $4,000,000; and, on March 20, 1931, the receiver of the national bank notified the stockholders of BancoKentucky Company that it was his intention to proceed against them for the collection of the assessment liability represented by trustees' participation certificates held by the BancoKentucky Company to the extent that he should be unable to collect such assessment from the BancoKentucky Company or its receiver.

A few days later, the receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky filed suit in the United States District Court for the Western District of Kentucky for recovery of more than $14,000,000 from the bank's directors, on the predicate of their alleged violation of federal statutes and their alleged common law negligence. That civil action has been finally determined by this court in the two Atherton v. Anderson, cases, supra.

As has been stated, final judgment has been rendered against the receiver of BancoKentucky Company as the real and beneficial owner of the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky involved herein. Laurent v. Anderson, supra. We are now asked to take the advanced, if not inconsistent, position that the stockholders of the Banco-Kentucky Company, also, are liable as shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky, "within the meaning of the federal stock assessment statutes."

The appellant receiver contends that the BancoKentucky Company was intended primarily and functioned exclusively as a holding company for bank stocks, was publicly known as such, and was created to "hold and control banks in the Ohio Valley"; that the stockholders of the national bank were solicited to exchange their bank stock, held in the form of trustees' participation certificates, for stock of the holding company to enable the bank to reorganize and to expand by acquiring a chain of banks; that, throughout the existence of the holding company, substantially all of its income was received from bank-stock dividends, which were channeled to its shareholders; that the dividends received by the national bank stockholders who exchanged their trustees' certificates for shares in Banco were the same in amount as had been received by them prior to the exchange; and that the BancoKentucky Company was "run by and for the bank and bank shareholders."

Appellant points to evidence that the BancoKentucky Company paid no salary or fees to its officers, directors, or employees; maintained no separate offices, and incurred no office expenses; that Banco kept only three books—a journal ledger, a cash and journal book, and a stock securities record, all of which were kept by the cashier of the National Bank of Kentucky. He insists that although the national bank and the holding company were separate corporate entities, their officers and directors interlocked—not entirely, however; and that 94.73 percent of the stockholders of the national bank became stockholders of the holding company. The receiver introduced the evidence of a Certified Public Accountant that, from October 1, 1929, to November 22, 1930, the total income of the BancoKentucky Company was $1,307,662.29 and its total expense $97,413.24, leaving net income in the amount of $1,210,249.05; that dividends were distributed to its stockholders in the amount of $1,253,513, which was $43,263.95 in excess of its net income; and that the money to pay this deficit came from the National Bank of Kentucky and was met by an overdraft on that bank in the sum of $81,537.15.

Appellant asserts in his brief that the only assets of BancoKentucky Company, other than bank stocks, "were the few shares of life insurance company stock, the note of its president and the worthless assets taken over from the bank just preceding its collapse at the insistence of the National Bank Examiner."

Appellant insists that in dismissing the bill of complaint the district court failed to follow Barbour v. Thomas, 86 F. (2d) 510, 516 (C. C. A. 6), wherein recognition was accorded the principle that "the actual owners of the capital of a national bank, that is, those who have their money invested therein, are 'shareholders' and liable to assessment."

In the case cited, it appears that the Detroit Bankers Company had been organized as a holding company to acquire the stock of five Detroit banks, including the First National. Stockholders of the respective banks exchanged their bank stock for stock in the holding company. None of the stock of the holding company was sold to the public or issued to any persons other than stockholders of the constituent banks, or their assignees.

The only assets of the holding company upon its organization were the bank stocks transferred to it by constituent units, in exchange for its stock, and $1,200 received from 120 "trustee shares" of no par value, issued to 12 persons composing a committee which served as agent and attorney for all stockholders who transferred their stock. Such trustee shares were non-participating in dividends, assets, or subscription rights, but were vested with exclusive voting power in the election of directors until the specified date at which they were to be redeemed at cost price, and retired and cancelled. The expenses of the holding company were met by a levy of "service charges" on its various units.

The opinion pointed out that inasmuch as the holding company possessed no substantial assets, except the stock of its component banks, cerditors and depositors of the latter were afforded no real protection, either under the federal statute imposing double liability upon shareholders in a national bank, or under a similar statute of Michigan applicable to state banks.

Moreover, by express agreement, the stockholders of the holding company assumed its statutory liability as record holder of the bank stocks and agreed that such liability might "be enforced in the same manner and to the same extent as statutory liability may now or hereafter be enforceable against stockholders of banks or trust companies under the laws under which said banks or trust companies are organized to operate." This provision was printed on the reverse side of the holding company's stock certificate, leading to the court's comment that "there was no hardship on new stockholders or transferees because all were warned by the provision in the certificate." It was observed that the super-added liability imposed by the stockholders upon themselves constituted additional evidence that they regarded themselves as the true and real owners of the bank stocks, and that creditors and depositors should have "that real protection which the law demanded rather than an irresponsible promise; and that this vitally important matter should not be subject to any doubtful interpretation." The point, while deemed worthy of evaluation, was not considered controlling, however, for Judge Hicks said: "But, all this to one side, we are applying a federal statute in a suit by the receiver of a national bank to enforce the personal liability of its real shareholders for the benefits of its creditors and depositors."

The stockholders of the holding company were held to double liability assessment on the shares of stock of the First National Bank.

It would seem that the facts of Barbour v. Thomas, supra, are pointedly differentiable from those in the case at bar.

In the former case, the holding company sold no stock to the general public; it was capitalized exclusively by the exchange of its own shares for those of state and national banks, and only bank stocks were acquired; its stockholders expressly assumed double liability assessment on the bank stocks held by it; and the corporation operated strictly within the scope of a typical holding company organized for the acquisition of bank stocks in one community.

In the case at bar, a large portion of its stock was sold by the BancoKentucky Company to the general public, for cash; the company accumulated a cash capitalization of several million dollars, in addition to stocks acquired by exchange of shares; its stockholders expressly assumed no liability for assessment on shares of stock which it owned, its charter provision being that "the private property of stockholders shall not be subject to the payment of corporate debts to any extent whatever"; in addition to its investment in bank stocks, the BancoKentucky Company purchased stock in an insurance company, the heavy obligation of a commercial corporation, the large note of one individual, and the smaller note of another; and an agreement was reached but not consummated to acquire large stockholdings in a non-banking corporation.

In sum total, the BancoKentucky Company conducted operations broader in scope, both territorially and in corporate financing, than did the holding company involved in Barbour v. Thomas.

In the opinion in Atherton v. Anderson, 86 F. (2d) 518, 536, 537, which was filed on the same date upon which the decision in Barbour v. Thomas, supra, was announced, Judge Simons, in reviewing a record which had been incorporated as a part of the record in the instant case, said:

> "But Banco was not a mere holding company for the bank's [National Bank of Kentucky's] stock. It was organized for clearly defined purposes, too optimistically conceived, perhaps, but neither illegitimate nor unlawful. It had its own capital with cash resources at one period almost twice the entire capital and surplus of the bank. While in the very beginning the bank stock may, as found by the court, have been its principal asset, and may have continued thereafter to be its most valuable single asset, it had other assets of very substantial value, and it was warrantable inference at the time of its organization and for a substantial period thereafter that it could well meet any assessment that might be levied upon it as a stockholder of the bank. At any rate there is nothing in the record to point to its creation for the purpose of escaping such assessment. Indeed when the assessment was finally made by the Comptroller it was enforced against Banco and not against the stockholders. See Laurent v. Anderson, supra. Its separate corporate existence was recognized by the very receiver on whose behalf we are now asked to ignore it. . . .
>
> "The BancoKentucky Company was certainly not a sham, for nearly $10,000,000 of actual cash paid for its stock attest its reality, and there is nothing in the record to point to it as an instrumentality of the bank. Nor was it organized for a fraudulent purpose or to conceal secret or sinister enterprises conducted for the benefit of the bank."

The additional evidence adduced in the case at bar, though on a different issue, presents no discernible reason for change in the court's previously expressed concept of the character of the BancoKentucky Company.

From our study of the record in this case, we are in accord with the conclusions of the district court that the

BancoKentucky Company was not a mere holding company, a sham corporation, or an empty shell; but was a very real and live corporate entity, actively acquiring capital assets; that the corporation was organized for the purposes set out in its prospectus of July 19, 1929, and for no other; that it was conceived in no planned avoidance of double liability assessment upon stock of the National Bank of Kentucky; that the BancoKentucky Company was the true, legal and beneficial owner of the national bank stock; and that its stockholders were not stockholders of the national bank within the meaning of the federal assessment statutes. (38 Stat. 273; 12 U. S. C. A. 64.)

Careful consideration has been given to cases from other jurisdictions which have been cited by the appellant. In none of these decisions has a court traveled the distance which this court is invited to go to hold stockholders in a corporation liable for statutory assessment upon stock held by the corporation in a state or national bank.

In Nettles v. Rhett, 94 F. (2d) 42 (C. C. A. 4), the holding company owned no other assets than bank stock, confining its investment to the shares of banks which were being merged into a chain. It appears from the opinion that when the merger was completed the holding company "owned solely the 74,000 shares of the Peoples State Bank stock, which are the subject of this suit, and continued to hold them until the bank closed." The stockholders of the holding company, which was a record stockholder of a single bank, were properly held liable for assessment under a statute of South Carolina providing for double liability assessment upon the stock of insolvent state banks.

Metropolitan Holding Company v. Snyder, 79 F. (2d) 263 (C. C. A. 8), is a far cry from the instant case. There, when a national bank was in shaky condition, its directors organized a holding company to purchase stock in the bank from a stockholder who was unable to make a voluntary contribution under a scheme whereby the bank stock would be re-sold at a profit which was to be paid to the bank to restore its impaired capital. In these circumstances, the holding company was found to be a mere agency and its individual stockholders were held to be beneficial owners of the bank stock, and liable to assessment as such.

Corker v. Soper, 53 F. (2d) 190 (C. C. A. 5), is even more remote to the situation confronted here. A national bank president organized a corporation, as his mere agent, to hold shares of stock in the bank. In holding him to double liability assessment when the bank failed, the court said that "the law will look through the subterfuge of pretended ownership to fasten liability upon the shareholder to whom, in fact, the shares belong."

In our judgment, Fors v. Farrell, 271 Mich. 358, is no more cogent in support of appellant's contention than was our decision in Barbour v. Thomas, supra. The court said (op. 375): "It all comes to this: That neither an individual nor a corporation can through a trust arrangement or by other indirect means or circumlocution possess as an owner and enjoy the beneficial interest in bank stock without assuming the contingent liability of a stockholder's assessment imposed by law. To hold otherwise would be to nullify the protection given the bank creditors by the statute imposing double liability."

In a later opinion, Burrows v. Emery, 285 Mich. 86, the Supreme Court of Michigan said, with respect to its earlier language just quoted, that "this rule is not meant to lend aid to an effort to attack a bona fide corporate entity and hold shareholders of that corporation liable for a bank assessment levied upon bank stock which the corporation owns." Barbour v. Thomas, supra, was distinguished upon reasoning similar to our own. The Michigan court held that the stockholders of a "Securities Corporation" holding stock in a national bank were not liable for double assessment thereon, where such stockholders had assumed no liability for the assessment, and the holding company "dealt in a wide variety of stocks and bonds pursuant to the terms of its creation," and where "the history of the corporation persuades one to believe that it enjoyed a bona fide existence free from fraudulent intent to evade liability." Judge McAllister, now a member of this court, concurred in the opinion.

BancoKentucky's Receiver v. Louisville Trust Co.'s Receiver, 263 Ky. 155, was an action brought under Kentucky assessment statutes by the receiver of the Louisville Trust Company to recover judgment against BancoKentucky Company for its statutory double liability as a stockholder of the trust company. The Court of Appeals of Kentucky followed Laurent v. Anderson, supra, and held the BancoKentucky Company liable for the assessment as the real and beneficial stockholder under the Kentucky statute. There is no intimation in the opinion that the highest Kentucky court would carry statutory assessment liability beyond BancoKentucky Company to embrace individual liability of its stockholders.

Certain expressions in Laurent v. Anderson, supra (823, 824), have direct bearing here and are therefore reiterated: "The stockholder's double liability is not contractual, but is imposed by statute as an incident of ownership. . . . To determine liability under Sec. 64, the courts must disregard the forms of transactions and ascertain who is the real and beneficial holder of the stock. It has long been settled that the real and beneficial holder of bank stock is primarily liable for the double liability. . . . The evidence establishes that Banco was in every sense the true and beneficial owner of the national bank stock involved; the trustees holding only the bare legal title to the stock. . . . The petition and especially the evidence sustain recovery against Banco as the real and beneficial owner under Sec. 64 of the National Banking Act."

The BancoKentucky Company was a legal entity, separate and distinct from its shareholders. The record reveals no underlying purpose of those who organized it or invested in its shares to afford asylum to stockholders of a national bank, seeking escape from the rigidity of individual liability for double assessment. Banco was not a mere sham corporation, nor was it exclusively a holding company. It existed vitally as an independent corporation and not as a mere conduit for the flow of national bank-stock dividends to individuals. The corporation has been held liable as the real and beneficial owner of a large majority of the capital stock of a defunct national bank.

In our judgment, the reach of double liability assessment within the true meaning of the National Banking Act does not extend beyond the BancoKentucky Company to its stockholders.

The judgment of the district court is affirmed.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT OF APPEALS

SIXTH CIRCUIT

Nos. 8852, 8853

A. M. ANDERSON, Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky, Appellant,

v.

KATHERINE KIRKPATRICK ABBOTT, Administratrix of the Estate of David J. Abbott, deceased, et al.,

Appellees.

PETITION FOR REHEARING

Now comes A. M. Anderson, Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky, appellant herein, by counsel, and respectfully petitions and moves the Court to grant a rehearing in the above entitled cause in which an opinion was filed May 4, 1942, affirming the judgment and decree of the United States District Court for the Western District of Kentucky, and in support of his petition respectfully submits:

1. The opinion of the court does not touch upon the liability of a large group of defendants who originally held National Bank stock and acquired their Banco stock by merely exchanging bank stocks (T.P.Cs.) for holding company stock in a non-taxable reorganization of their bank stock holdings and not by sale or other "out and out" transfer.

When the bank closed a majority of the holding company stock was held by original bank shareholders who merely exchanged bank stock (in form of T.P.Cs.) for holding company stock. The holders of the bank stock in the form of T. P. Cs. specifically contracted liability to assessment by a provision incorporated in each of their certificates.

> "Article IX, (3). Each owner of a Trustees' Participation Certificate issued hereunder shall be subject to the same liability thereon as he would have been subject to in case he had been the owner of record of such proportionate part of the shares held by the Trustees in any corporation as the number of shares called for by his Trustees' Participation Certificate bears to the whole number of shares covered by all outstanding Trustees' Participation Certificates; . . . The measure of liability assumed hereunder shall be the same as that provided by law with reference to the holders of stock in any particular corporation in which the trustees may hold stock as is provided by law with reference to the holders of such stock, and no more."*

Almost coincident with the organization of Banco and the announcement of the bank's "Plan of Reorganization" through the holding company (and as an incident thereto), these participation certificates were split ten for one. The new $10.00 par certificates again contained the contractual assumption of assessment liability and by accepting them the shareholders again reaffirmed their contract and again recognized themselves as the real owners of the bank stock.

Although the few shareholders who still held T.P.Cs. when the National Bank of Kentucky failed resisted payment of the assessment just as vigorously as the defendants here, they were held liable. In Laurent v. Anderson, 70 F. 2d 819, the court said: "Had it been necessary to recover upon the provision of the contract assuming liability, the decisions of this court would permit such recovery." This language was approved by the Kentucky Court of Appeals in Banco's Receiver v. Trust Co.'s Receiver, 263 Ky. 155, 92 S. W. 2d 19, 22. This court recognized a similar contractual liability on the part of the shareholders of Detroit Bankers Company in Barbour v. Thomas.

The only transfer of bank stock which releases the shareholder from liability is an "out and out" transfer whereby the shareholder completely severs his stock interest in the bank and completely divests himself of his opportunity of having a voice in its control or the receipt of any of its earnings. In National Bank v. Case, 99 U. S. 628, the Supreme Court said:

> "It is not every transfer which releases a stockholder from his responsibility as such." Liability continues if the "privileges and possible benefits of ownership continue."

The bank's "Plan of Reorganization" proposed to the bank shareholders (T.P.Cs.) that they merely exchange their T.P.Cs. for holding company stock, on the basis of two holding company shares for each $10.00 T.P.C. or twenty holding company shares for each $100.00 T.P.C. This exchange was not a sale but a mere reorganization in so far as this group of original bank shareholders was concerned. The bank stock was to be the principal asset of the holding company and the latter was to be managed and controlled by the bank's officers and directors. The promoters of the holding company designed the plan to trade two shares of holding company stock for one T.P.C. so that it positively should be "made to appear (so far as the Bank's stockholders are concerned) as a mere receipt of the same property in another form, and not as a closed transaction wherein they part with one species of property in exchange for an entirely different species of property."

They decided to make a "reorganization" and to merely change the form of the investment "without in anywise impairing the structure of the setup already agreed upon." * (Ex. 25-5, p. 1157.)

They merely reorganized the mechanics of the control. The trust arrangement was considered a sort of quasi corporation. The exchange of the bank shares (T.P.Cs.) for Banco shares was only a change in the form of the investment. The promoters were careful, "in order to clinch our right, as far as possible, to claim for our stockholders the immunity provided for in" United States Revenue Statutes. (Ex. 25, pp. 1145-46.)

Long after the bank closed the Louisville Trust Company in a pleading filed in court, prepared by capable attorneys, one of whom participated in the defense of this case, and verified by an officer, positively affirmed that the officers

*Mr. James B. Brown, President
National Bank of Kentucky
Louisville, Kentucky

Dear Mr. Brown:

IN RE: THE BANCOKENTUCKY COMPANY

Supplementing my former letter to you under date of July 6th, on yesterday I had a conversation with a lawyer, representing the Income Tax Unit at Washington, in the General Counsel's Department, who shortly expects to become a member of the firm of Miller and Chevalier, my office associates in Louisville, which firm, as heretofore explained, specializes in Federal Tax cases, with offices in Washington and New York.

The gentleman gave as his opinion (without opportunity to study the history of the entire transaction) that it was highly important that every preliminary paper, resolution, etc., dealing with this Company and its organization, should clearly recite that the Company is a "reorganization," within the purview of the Revenue Act of 1928.

In other words, the issue and delivery of two shares of stock of the Company, for one Trustees' Participation Share, must be made to appear (so far as the Bank's stockholders are concerned) as a mere receipt of the same property in another form, and not as a closed transaction wherein they part with one species of property in exchange for an entirely different species of property.

I believe we can accomplish this result, without in anywise impairing the structure of the setup already agreed upon, by prefacing the prospectus with some general remarks, as per the enclosed draft herewith submitted for your criticism.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) ROBERT F. VAUGHN.

and directors of the Bank and Trust Company and the shareholders decided that it would be to the best interests of the two institutions and their stockholders to accomplish "a more complete and beneficial unification of interests and of the operations of said two institutions," through the "formation of a separate corporation" to acquire a majority of the T. P. Cs. and "that in order to carry out such purpose, the BancoKentucky Company was organized as a holding corporation. . . . That the acquisition by the Louisville Trust Company, as Trustee under the will of Clara H. Bullitt, deceased, of said 580 shares of stock of the BancoKentucky Company was a mere change in form of securities. . . . Such acquisition represented, and was in its essence, a mere continuation and retention of the ownership of said Trustees' Participation Shares." (Ex. 122, pp. 1886, 1887, 1890. See also Ex. 123.)

The Revenue Act of 1928, 26 U. S. C. A. 112b(5),* exempts gains or losses on exchanges of shares, such as the exchange of T.P.Cs. for Banco stock, on a "reorganization." The exemption deals with actualities—the substance of things—not mere forms. "The underlying purpose of the exemptions in § 112 is to disregard corporate manipulations which do not substantially affect the shareholders' interest in the properties." Helvering v. Schoellkopf, 100 F. 2d 415, 417. This section was designed to "prevent the taxation of purely fictitious gains." Speedway Water Co. v. U. S., 100 F. 2d 636.

The two important elements exempting such exchanges are the "continuity of interest" and "continuity of control" of the transferror. Comr. v. Kitselman, 89 F. 2d 458; 26 U. S. C. A. § 112 (b) (5).

* (5) Transfer to corporation controlled by transferor. No gain or loss shall be recognized if property is transferred to a corporation by one or more persons solely in exchange for stock or securities in such corporation, and immediately after the exchange such person or persons are in control of the corporation; but in the case of an exchange by two or more persons this paragraph shall apply only if the amount of the stock and securities received by each is substantially in proportion to his interest in the property prior to the exchange.

Had the bank shareholders terminated the continuity of their interest in and control of the National Bank of Kentucky a very substantial liability to income tax would have resulted. One of the attorneys who aided in the organization of the holding company said, "it will be at once seen that the taxable gain would be very large were it not possible to treat the BancoKentucky Company as a reorganization under the Revenue Act of 1928." (Ex. 25, p. 1145.) It is even possible that the trading of bank stock for Banco stock, had it been taxable, would have resulted in a liability exceeding the assessment per share here sought to be recovered.

Persons liable to assessment on bank stock who also assume such liability by express written contract are not relieved from such contractual liability by merely reorganizing the form of their investment. The trading of bank stock for holding company stock simply cannot be a "reorganization," to escape taxes, and a sale, to escape assessment.

As the court said in Barbour v. Thomas:

> "The stockholders never sold their stock. They simply exchanged it for holding company shares. The holding company certificates represented the interests which the shareholders of each unit held or acquired in the assets of the group. . . . The stockholders of the bank had no intention of retiring from the banking business. They organized the holding company for the protection and promotion of their common interests because they realized that the banks acting separately were at a disadvantage in competing with the Guardian-Detroit Union group. Their primary purpose was to centralize the control and operation of the five unit banks and from time to time acquire control of additional ones by the exchange of holding company stock for other stocks. They were careful to provide that the holding company should be under the exclusive control of officers and agents of the component banks at least until December 21, 1934."

The court should at least hold on rehearing that all defendants who originally owned National Bank stock and who acquired their holding company stock by a mere exchange of T.P.Cs. are liable under their express written contract.

2. The court erred in referring to the decision of Laurent v. Anderson, 70 F. 2d 819, as if it was an impediment to the claim asserted against holding company shareholders in this case. The District Court overruled defendant's contention in this respect as did the District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, in Anderson v. Atkinson, 22 F. Supp. 853, and this court has affirmed the trial court's decision. Nevertheless, throughout this court's opinion appears repeated references to the Laurent decision and to the fact that Banco was there held to be liable as the real owner of stock of the National Bank of Kentucky. This court says, "We are now asked to take the advanced, if not inconsistent position, that the stockholders of BancoKentucky Company also. are liable as shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky, 'within the meaning of the Federal stock assessment statutes.'"

There is no inconsistency in so holding! Banco was held liable as the record owner of T.P.Cs. which defendants say "are admittedly Bank stock for the purpose of this case. This case then turns on who is the owner of them—Banco or its stockholders." (Appellees' Brief, p. 40.) This Court finds "insofar as attaching liability for double assessment was concerned, the trustees' certificates were the equivalent of bank stock." In each reported decision except one, and that decided by a district court in 1893 (Yardley v. Wilgus, 56 F. 965), and particularly in the bank stock holding company cases, where the question has been raised, it has been held that national bank receivers may recover assessments both from the record owner, or one liable as a record owner, and from the real owner and particularly both from bank stock holding companies and their stockholders.

This court did not hold in the Laurent case that liability stopped with BancoKentucky Company. That issue was not before it. The same answer to that contention should be made here as this court made in answer to defendants' claim in Barbour v. Thomas, 86 F. 2d 510, 517. There the holding company stockholders claimed that the decision of the Supreme Court of Michigan, in Backus v. Connolly, 268 Mich. 595, that the holding company was the real owner of the stock of the bank, was inconsistent with the receiver's claim that the holding company's stockholders were the real owners of the same bank stock. "The holding company was of course the record owner of the stock of the bank as listed with its president and cashier (U. S. C., Title 12, § 62, 12 U. S. C. A. § 62), but the court did not hold that an assessment under the federal statute was not enforceable against its stockholders as the real or actual owners of the bank's stock. That question was not in issue. . . ."

In Ullrich v. Thomas, 86 F. 2d 678, the court again said, "upon this feature it is sufficient to restate our conclusion reached in cases Nos. 7116 and 7117" (Barbour v. Thomas) "that the holding company, as between it and the creditors and depositors of the bank, was not the real owner of its stock."

We also call to the court's attention its emphasis in the Ullrich case on the importance of the fact that the appellants there "in union with other stockholders of the holding company, received dividends from it" (the bank) "through the holding company."

In this same connection, we believe the court is in error in its interpretation of the decision of the Kentucky Court of Appeals in BancoKentucky's Receiver v. Louisville Trust Company's Receiver, 263 Ky. 155, 92 S. W. 2d 19. Because the Kentucky Court of Appeals did not indicate that it would have carried assessment liability beyond BancoKentucky Company to its stockholders, this court implies that the Kentucky decision supports the decision here. The question of the liability of the stockholders of the holding company was not before the Kentucky court. Its decision did not hold the BancoKentucky Company exclusively liable to assessment any more than the decision of the Supreme Court of Michigan in Backus v. Connolly, supra. The Kentucky Court of Appeals did attach some importance to the purpose of the Kentucky statute, positively prohibiting Banco from owning more than half of the stock of any banking corporation, to protect creditors and not to enable a bank stockholder to defeat liability. The opinion in the instant case approves a scheme the natural and foreseeable consequence of which was the nullification of the purpose of the National Bank Act to protect creditors.

The holding company was vested with legal title to the T.P.Cs. and thereby subjected itself to the liability of a record owner of National Bank of Kentucky stock, because the Register of the owners of Trust Certificates was, by the terms of the Trust Instrument, kept of record in the bank and showed Banco to be a record owner of T.P.Cs., to-wit, the bank stock. Describing it as the beneficial owner of the bank stock under the trust indenture does not negative the obvious fact that the ultimate beneficiaries of the same bank stock were holding company shareholders.

3. The court in its opinion includes as one of the salient points, directing the way to a correct decision, the fact that the T.P.C. holders "carefully provided" that the owner of each of them should be subject to the same liability thereon as if he were a record owner of bank stock, whereas Banco's charter and stock certificates "distinctly" (and deliberately) provided for "non-assessable" share interests. Defendants exchanged their bank stock for T.P.Cs. subsequent to April, 1927. The shareholders then willingly contracted in writing to pay any assessment liability directly and un-equivocably. While Banco was being organized, the $100.00 par T.P.Cs. were divided into $10.00 par T.P.Cs., which again incorporated the express super-added contractual assumption of assessment liability. The bank's deposits were then shrinking, its borrowing power was substantially exhausted, and examiners were insisting upon the removal of millions of substandard assets. No one has yet suggested a plausible reason for Banco's promoters' pretended obliviousness to assessment liability in 1929, while they were denominating their share interests as "non-assessable" and when their bank was on the brink of disaster, when the same men were so careful to express their recognition of assessment liability in 1927. However, assessment liability does not turn on intent—on fraud—or on the condition of the bank (except as it may throw light and color on what was done). Shareholders of banks which were sound as Gibraltar up to the day of failure (whose insolvency may have been suddenly precipitated by embezzlement, forgery or catastrophe) are held liable for assessment. The test is—looking through all forms,—Is the person against whom assessment is sought the ultimate beneficiary of bank stock holding?

4. The court refers to the prospectus and Banco's charter as salient points. True, the prospectus referred to many things the new corporation "could" do that which a bank could not do. True, the prospectus pointed out the "broad charter powers" of the holding company, including its "right" to do many things. Neither the prospectus, nor the charter, gave any indication of what the holding company participants proposed that it actually do. The only certain representations in the prospectus were that the bank and the trust company, and the business conducted by them, should be reorganized by adding Banco which was to be managed and operated by the directors and officers of the two banks. The plan was expressly conditioned upon the T.P.C. holders acquiring a majority of the holding company shares and the holding company's acquiring a majority of the T.P.Cs.

We submit the court erred in disregarding the documentary evidence of Banco's promoters' actual purposes, the knowledge of all defendants of those actual purposes, the absence of any activity on the part of the holding company except its ownership of bank stock and the receipt and disbursement dividends thereon.

5. Other salient facts to which the court refers in its opinion are the bank's payment of dividends until it closed November 17, 1930, defendants' claim that none of these dividends were criticized by the Comptroller, and the bank's report to the Comptroller of the Currency before Banco was organized showing a capital of four million dollars, a surplus of two million dollars, and substantial undivided profits. We submit that the only significance of the amount or frequency of dividends paid by the bank, to defendants, is that the original shareholders of the bank who exchanged for Banco still kept getting the dividends on their stock through Banco (which was their own corporate creation). The bank directors declared and paid these dividends to Banco and the same men, as directors of Banco, paid them to the defendants. Would it have made any difference in assessment liability if the Comptroller had urged an increase in the dividends? Obviously not—but the Comptroller's criticism of the management of the bank and its financial condition from 1927 to the date of its closing could scarcely be considered approval of the way the bank was run. Of what significance can it be that the bank's books showed a capital surplus in undivided profits of six million dollars just before Banco was organized. Those "books" showed about the same figures the day after it closed. The fact is that the bank was so rotten that after twelve years the assets have only paid depositors seventy cents on the dollar.

6. The court's opinion indicates that it considered the fact that the Banco-Bank directors increased their investment in the enterprise beyond the amount of their assessment liability, that T.P.C. holders likewise increased their investment by buying more holding company stock, as supporting the story of all defendants that they thought they were making a good investment in a company controlling sound banks and that there appeared no probability of an assessment when they traded their bank stock for Banco stock. Our contention is that regardless of the nearness or remoteness of an assessment, liability existed by statute on the part of the defendants before Banco was organized and that the negation of that liability was an expressed part of the bank's plan of reorganization. A person might not increase his investment in a bank with an assessment appearing probable, but bank stockholders might well be induced to increase their investments in a chain of new banks, by the thought that they could share in the voting control and profits of the enterprise, but have no liability in the event an assessment was ever levied.

The very fact that defendants say they bought holding company stock because they thought the bank was in good financial condition is proof that they fully appreciated their position as the beneficial owners of bank stock.

7. We respectfully submit that the court erred in concluding that Banco was organized for the purposes declared in the prospectus and "that it was conceived in no planned avoidance of double liability." Banco's purpose to operate and function as a bank stock holding company was not declared in its prospectus, but that purpose appeared in every other medium of reaching shareholders and the public in general. We hardly expect capable and careful lawyers, bankers and bank stockholders to publicly declare that one of the purposes of trading assessable bank stock for non-assessable Banco stock was the avoidance of assessment liability. However, it is true that the bank stockholders changed the form of their investment but retained their voting control of the bank and their right to dividends from the bank and provided that the new form of stock holding should be non-assessable. It is also true that some at least of Banco's organizers considered double assessment liability and the advantage of its avoidance. The president of the trust company wrote the president of the bank a proposed form letter to be sent to all shareholders, answering questions about the plan which he thought they would naturally raise. Bean proposed to say, "one of the advantages of transferring your bank stock for Banco-Kentucky Company stock is that you are relieved of the double liability." (Ex. 27.) Bean also wrote that he "had serious doubts about" including that statement in the suggested letter. (Ex. 27, p. 1262.) Another officer of the bank solicited the trading of T.P.Cs. for holding company stock, using as an inducement the representation that double liability did not apply to the "new stock." (Ex. 27-1; 37-3.) The Louisville Trust Company in a pleading filed in the Kentucky court, explained its exchange of T.P.Cs. held in a representative capacity for Banco stock as merely an exchange in the form of security with the advantage of terminating assessment liability. (Ex. 123, p. 1909.) The same trust company in another verified answer, again represented that BancoKentucky was organized as a "holding corporation" empowered to acquire and hold the shares of the stock of the bank and trust company and the stock of other banks and trust companies and corporations; that the exchange of T.P.Cs. for holding company stock did not change the former character of the investment "except that said BancoKentucky Company became the beneficial owner of the shares of bank stock and the shares of trust company stock represented by said 290 Trustees' Participation Shares and became subject to the double liability attaching to both said bank stocks and said trust company's stocks." (Ex. 122, pp. 1887-8.)

8. The court's opinion notes that "immediately" after the closing date for the deposit of T.P.Cs. and subscriptions for Banco stock, the directors adopted plans to increase the company's capital from two million to five million shares and that this was accomplished in January 1930. We assume that this is in connection with defendant's contention that they were surprised at the almost unanimous exchange of T.P.Cs. for holding company stock and that they immediately sought to provide for more Banco stock which could be sold to raise the cash capital the promoters contemplated. At the time the plan was announced enough Banco was set aside for exchange for T.P.Cs. to cover all outstanding T.P.Cs. All of Banco stock was pre-empted for the bank shareholders. It was an essential part of the plan that Banco acquire a majority of the T.P.Cs. The bank-trust company officers and directors bent every effort to secure an unanimous exchange.

Of course, the implication in defendants' argument is that Banco's organizers actually expected to provide the holding company with substantial assets other than assessable bank stock. The increased capital was supposed to be made available for the purpose of raising such cash. That this additional cash was not raised is attributed to the stock market crash and the general lack of market for any stock. The stock market crash was in October, 1929. Banco's capital was not increased until January, 1930, months after Banco's organizers had exhausted the possibility of selling any more of the stock.

The real purpose of increased capital was explained by Mr. Bean. He wrote, November 4, 1929, that the holding company had enough stock in its treasury to "handle the remaining Cincinnati and Covington deals probably" (bank deals). "If we trade for many more banks we will have to increase the capital." (Ex. 134-5, p. 1934.) The Chicago Stock Exchange got out a circular based, of course, upon information secured from the holding company, advising prospective investors that the additional stock was "to be issued in connection with the acquisition of additional banks" to provide cash and for other corporate purposes.

9. The so-called cash subscription for Banco stock, $9,869,650.00, is characterized in the court's opinion as a "wholesome asset" and it is noted that more than half of that amount was furnished by investors who had not been holders of T.P.Cs. This might have been a wholesome asset in the sense that it might have meant some protection to the depositors of the banks in the event of assessment, had that fund not been dedicated before it was even collected to the purchase of more assessable bank stock. Banco promoters represented to the Chicago Stock Exchange, "It is the intention of the management to employ its cash for acquiring additional banks" (Ex. 74, p. 1723). The Chicago Stock Exchange issued a circular advertising that Banco was organized for "the purpose of owning a controlling interest in state and national banks. . . . The BancoKentucky Company has acquired, through an exchange of stock, nearly 100% of the shares of the National Bank of Kentucky-Louisville Trust Company, and in addition its stockholders have subscribed to 480,000 shares of its stock for cash. This cash will be used for acquiring majority interests in other banks and for other corporate purposes." (Ex. 209, p. 2168.)

Bean wrote Brown before the Banco plan was publicly announced, outlining his understanding of the Banco plan. It was to be suggested to stockholders that they trade their T.P.Cs. for Banco stock and that they could then buy 575,000 shares for $14,375,000 in cash. "In connection with the idea that our present stockholders put up $14,375,000.00 in cash, this occurs to me; while the present market value of our stock at $40.00 is $23,000,000.00, this stock probably cost them $15,000,000.00 so we are asking them to double their investment in the bank." (Ex. 28, p. 1265.)

The proof is absolutely clear that no one expected this asset to remain "wholesome" and that everyone intended it to be used as it actually was—in the acquisition of more assessable bank stock. The wholesomeness of the cash, aside from its intended purpose, is further questionable in view of the fact that the bank loaned $5,300,000.00 and the trust company loaned $1,710,000.00 to pay for Banco subscriptions. (Ex. 134-5.) The bank lost nearly two million dollars on such loans (Ex. 196), and the cash of the Bank was transferred to the holding company to the tune of seven million dollars.

10. The court notes that, aside from bank stock (having a total par value and equivalent assessment liability, of $7,770,780.00), over three million dollars of Banco's cash was not invested in bank stocks and that Banco acquired 625 shares of Union Central Life Insurance Company stock, a two million dollar note of President Brown, a $588,000.00 note of Murray Rubber Company, a $20,000.00 participation in the Humphries note and contracted for 10,000 shares of Caldwell & Co., "an expansive investment corporation." The Brown note was an investment by Banco which the other officers and directors claim was unknown and unauthorized. Banco paid $600,000.00 for the Murray Rubber and Humphries notes, or face value. The transfer of those "assets" from the bank to the holding company was at the insistence of the National Bank Examiner. Both obligations were worthless. That was not an "investment" by Banco but a belated effort to save the sinking bank. [See Banco's Receiver v. National Bank, 281 Ky. 784, 137 S. W. (2d) 357.]* Banco's investment in Union Central Life Insurance Company stock was described by one defendant as "an infinitesimal amount" (R. 3, p. 167). We submit that, compared with its millions in assessment liability, Banco's assets, consisting of other than bank stock, were nil.

* The Court of Appeals of Kentucky pointed out that the Murray Rubber and Humphries notes were not investments but were worthless when acquired by Banco. The court further pointed out that the transaction was consummated by the President, acting as dual agent, without disclosing all the facts, and that under those circumstances the transaction could not be sustained. Actually, the only vote to transfer these notes to Banco was a resolution adopted by the Board of the Bank consisting of some of the members of the Board of Banco. Banco's Board never voted on the transaction and those members of Banco's Board who were directors of the Louisville Trust Company were not advised of the transaction until after both institutions closed.

The Caldwell deal, urged by defendants as proof of their intent to get into the securities business, neither substantiates that claim nor did it bring into the holding company's coffers any asset. The transaction was never consummated. It was suggested by Rogers Caldwell, the sole stockholder of "Caldwell & Co., Bankers" who wrote Brown about the feasibility of a consolidation "between the BancoKentucky Corporation and the banks in which we are interested." (Ex. 103, p. 1840.) One of the purposes of the proposed deal was the affiliation of "the BancoKentucky Company chain of banks with the Caldwell & Company chain of banks." (R. 3, pp.166-243.) When Brown announced the contemplated tie-up of the two companies, newspapers published the formation of "Banking Giant" and compared this "banking giant" to other "Bank stock holding companies." (Ex. 26, pp. 1207, 1212.) In fact, defendants' brief shows that Caldwell & Company was not just an investment corporation, but very closely associated with the banking business. The Nashville Clearing House Committee investigated Caldwell and met with the officers of Nashville banks, who were members of the clearing house, and succeeded in having the affairs of that company placed in its hands. (Appellees' Brief, p. 1415.)

We earnestly urge that the court has not realistically considered the undisputed evidence showing that Banco had no independent assets (other than assessable Bank stocks) with which to meet an assessment and was intended primarily to hold bank stocks. The proof of the pudding is the poor eating left for unpaid depositors.

11. The court erred in failing to follow the principles announced in Barbour v. Thomas. In discussing the facts of that case, the opinion of the court states that Detroit Bankers Company was organized as a holding company to acquire the stock of five banks. The Detroit Bankers Company was admitted to be and held to have been a holding company, though its operations were far more extensive in character and amount than those of BancoKentucky Company. The opinion states that none of the Detroit Bankers Company stock was sold to the public or issued to anyone other than "stockholders of the constitutent banks or their assignees." What difference does it make that Detroit Bankers Company sold none of its stock to the public? Many of the defendants in the Barbour case never owned any interest in the First National Bank-Detroit stock until they purchased Detroit Bankers stock on the open market. Detroit Bankers stock was listed and freely bought and sold on the exchanges. The owners of that holding company stock were held liable because they were the real owners of the bank stock.

The court notes that the only assets of the Detroit Bankers Company "upon its organization" were bank stocks and $1,200.00 paid for 120 trustees' shares, the holders of which were vested with exclusive voting power in the election of directors, and that the expenses of that holding company were met by service charges against its bank units. However, the Detroit Bankers Company had far more, in the form of assets other than bank stock, when it got under way than BancoKentucky Company ever had. Detroit Bankers Company acquired not only the stock of the banks but owned and operated one of the largest office buildings in the City of Detroit, a safe deposit company, a garage, held the stock of the First Detroit Company (its investment unit), the stock of the First National Company-Detroit, the Detroit Company and the Assets Realization Company (See Record, Barbour v. Thomas, Vol. 3, Ex. 97, pp. 1097-1121; Ex. 99-A, p. 1193; Ex. 99-B, p. 1210, Ex. 101-A, p. 1267; Ex. 101-B, p. 1272.) The voting control of Detroit Bankers Company was vested in the twelve trustees. The voting control of the National Bank of Kentucky was vested in the Advisory Committee, consisting of the bank-trust company board, which was also the holding company board, but the Louisville holding company shareholders had the power and right to elect directors of Banco-Kentucky Company. The defendants in this case retained more control over their representatives than those in Detroit did.

The opinion refers to the Barbour opinion where it was observed that it was apparent at the outset that the creditors and depositors of the Michigan banks would not be afforded the protection to which they were entitled under Federal and Michigan law, since Detroit Bankers Company possessed no substantial assets except the stock of its component banks (unless holding company stockholders were liable). Of course, that observation concerned the Detroit-Bankers Company at the time of its organization and explained the reason for the shareholders of that Company's expressly assuming assessment liability. In the instant case, it was just as obvious to the organizers of Banco-Kentucky Company that depositors and creditors of their holding company's bank units would have no real protection in the event of assessment. While denying any thought of avoiding assessment liability, and explaining the label "non-assessable" on their shares as the usual form to limit liability, defendants can hardly be heard to say that they unconsciously sought to protect depositors by the contribution of cash capital to the holding company, which was intended to be spent for more bank stocks.

The court refers to the language in the Barbour opinion where it is stated that the contract for the assumption of assessment liability appearing on Detroit Bankers Company certificates was a warning to new stockholders or transferees of the nature and extent of their liability which served as additional evidence that they regarded themselves as the real owners of the bank stock. The proof shows that the Banco shareholders knew of their investment in the National Bank of Kentucky and in Banco's other banks, they knew their profits came from the business of those banks and they knew that they were the ultimate stockholders whose votes elected persons who ran those banks. The possible hardship on a bank stockholder in complying with a Federal assessment statute is no greater than the "hardship" of complying with other Federal laws to promote the welfare and security of the nation. Plaintiff must concern himself, first, with the hardship on the depositors of the National Bank of Kentucky which will follow from this decision unless a rehearing is granted.

The court further distinguishes Barbour v. Thomas by pointing out that Detroit Bankers Company stockholders expressly assumed the double liability, whereas Banco-Kentucky Company shareholders provided expressly that they should not be subject to assessment. This difference is more apparent than real. The Detroit Bankers Company stockholders honestly assumed and provided for liability but denied that liability and the validity of their contract when assessment was levied. Banco stockholders also provided by contract for recognition of assessment liability on the Trust Certificate—then reorganized their holdings by exchanging the T.P.C.s for so-called non-assessable shares of Banco. We believe the language of the District Court in Barbour v. Thomas, 7 F. Supp. 271, pertinent here:

> "In such circumstances, should the corporate entity of the holding company shield the shareholders from the assessment? If the individuals had incorporated to defeat the assessment, the law would disregard the corporate entity and enforce it without regard to the corporate fiction, or treat the corporation as a mere agency, holding the legal title for the beneficial owners. Corker v. Soper, 53 F. 2d. 190 (C. C. A. 5). Where individuals incorporate, as here, to preserve and provide the means of enforcing, the assessment for the security of the bank's creditors, the corporate entity should not become a shield against such liability, but should be disregarded in law, if necessary, in order that such subterfuge should not succeed in nullifying statutes enacted to safeguard the buying public.

Generally, the primary purpose of incorporating is to limit the liability of the investors for corporate debts to the stock subscribed. The general principle is against stock liability in the absence of statute. But this is not a general corporation operating under general rules. The situation is singular, and the principle must be considered in the light of such a situation." (7 F. Supp. 271-277.)

As we have noted above, Detroit Bankers Company was far less typical a holding company than BancoKentucky Company. The Detroit holding company had many activities. It owned and controlled companies other than banks. It did have employees. It had operating expenses and it actually had departments manned by non-bank employees which sought to, and perhaps to some extent probably did, simplify and standardize the practices of its unit banks. Detroit Bankers Company certainly was not confined to the acquisition of bank stocks in one community. It owned and controlled stock in banks all over the State of Michigan. Banco had no employees and never contemplated having any employees. It was a name and its headquarters was the desk of the cashier of the National Bank of Kentucky. Banco's assets, other than bank stock, were insignificant compared with such other assets of Detroit Bankers Company. The shares of Union Central Life Insurance Company stock was not a very substantial asset of BancoKentucky Company. It paid $25,000.00 for the insurance stock and sold it for $21,000.00. The obligation of the Murray Rubber Company and the Louis Humphries notes could hardly be described as "investments" of BancoKentucky Company. They were known to be worthless when acquired by BancoKentucky Company and they were taken over only to assist the National Bank of Kentucky.

The defendants' explanation of the reason Banco paid $600,000.00 in cash for worthless National Bank of Kentucky assets is enlightening. Attorney-director-Carroll, who prepared Banco's articles of incorporation, said: "BancoKentucky Company owned all of the capital stock of the National Bank of Kentucky and, therefore, anything that was of benefit to the National Bank of Kentucky would necessarily be beneficial to BancoKentucky" because "ownership was common." Attorney, director and Banco-organizer-Helm said: "after all, the whole thing was one and it all belonged to the same people; it was just taking money out of one pocket and putting it into another, and if the bank owned it and it was questionable, it really did not make any difference. . . . It was just taking money out of one pocket and putting it into another." Director Speed testified that he voted to request Banco to purchase certain worthless assets because: "It was to the advantage of Banco to do it. . . . Banco owned 95% or more of the stock of the bank, that if that was a bad asset they owned 95% of what was bad, and if it was good they owned 95% of what was good."

Three of the defendant witnesses, two of them lawyers who helped organized Banco and one of them counsel for defendants in this case, as members of Banco's Executive Committee had a different view of these "other substantial assets" before the stock assessment was levied. In their petition for appointment of a receiver for the holding company, filed November 24, 1930, they said that prior to the bank's failure Banco "was in the pursuance of its business the owner and holder of large amounts of the capital stock of the bank-trust company and five other banks which holdings represented substantially all of the prop- erty and assets belonging to said defendant (Banco)"; that the failure of the bank and trust company "made it impossible to conduct the affairs of the BancoKentucky Company in the manner and for the purposes for which it was organized," that they had immediately disposed of all Banco's holdings of stock in two Cincinnati banks, two Covington banks and the Ashland bank "for the purpose of enabling those banks to proceed in the operation of their respective positions and to protect their depositors from the results of public excitement"; that they had caused the proceeds of bank stock sales to be placed in the custody of the Receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky and that, in addition to such proceeds "The BancoKentucky Company owns shares of stock in the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company, which stock constitutes the only assets of said defendant, except the deposit aforesaid held by Paul C. Keyes." (Ex. 66, p. 1676.)

So far as the so-called other substantial assets are concerned, we also call to the court's attention the statement of the Cashier of the bank, the Secretary-Treasurer of the holding company, March 19, 1930, to the Chicago Stock Exchange: "This is to state that the BancoKentucky Company is a holding company for capital stock of banks and trust companies of which it owns a majority of stock, or a controlling interest. We do not own any stocks outside of bank shares or bonds." (Ex. 72, p. 1711.)

Negotiations looking to the creation of another of the "Banking Giant" by tying up BancoKentucky Company and Caldwell & Company was merely one of the several gestures made to bolster waning public confidence. Caldwell stock was absolutely worthless at the time that those negotiations began and it never became an asset of BancoKentucky Company.

It is respectfully submitted that the distinction referred to in the opinion between Banco and Barbour v. Thomas are proved by the evidence to be factually without basis and we believe on re-argument we can establish that this court has made a grievous factual mistake and that factually there is no real distinction from Barbour v. Thomas.

12. This court, in its opinion, refers to the language in Atherton v. Anderson, 86 F. 2d 518, where Judge Simons said that Banco was neither a holding company for just stock of the National Bank of Kentucky, nor organized for unlawful purposes; that it had assets of a very substantial nature and that it could have paid any assessment on the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky for a substantial period after it was organized; that there was nothing in the record to point to its creation for the purpose of escaping assessment; that the Receiver had recognized its separate corporate existence in the Laurent case; and that it was not a sham because it had nearly ten million dollars cash.

True Banco was a holding company for the stock of many banks. It might have paid an assessment on National Bank of Kentucky stock had that bank immediately failed after Banco was launched, although even that is doubtful. The other assets Judge Simons referred to were undoubtedly either the ten million dollars or other bank stocks acquired with that money. Whatever may have been in the record in the Atherton case, there is certainly proof in this record to point to the fact that in the legal set-up for the organization of this holding company the plan was to deny or negative all assessment liability. Apparently, it was not brought to the attention of the court in the Atherton case, that BancoKentucky Company never legally transacted any business and that its very ownership of T.P.C.s, the acquisition of which was the first essential to the whole plan, was illegal under Kentucky law.

Under Kentucky Statutes, ordinary corporations could be formed for the transaction of any lawful business except banking (Ky. Stat. 538). Under Kentucky law, stockholders of investment companies and guaranty companies are subject to double liability (Ky. Stat. 547). Defendants claim that they intended Banco to be a guaranty company and an investment company. It never was, but had that doubtful intention existed, its organizers knew that the holding company shareholders would be liable to assessment. If the organizers of Banco actually intended that company to engage in the business of making mortgage loans, as they now say they did, they must have known that the corporation would fall within the jurisdiction of the Kentucky Department of Banking (Ky. Stat. 165a-1).

Kentucky laws prohibited any corporation, unless organized under banking statutes, from either "directly or indirectly" engaging in or "carrying on in any way" the business of banking . . ." (Ky. Stat. 567). The very prospectus indicates an intention to reorganize and extend the banking business despite this prohibition. The organizers admitted that another of their unrealized intentions was to use Banco as a little federal reserve system for its unit banks. That certainly is engaging in the banking business, "directly or indirectly."

Under Kentucky laws it was unlawful for a corporation to carry on any business in the state until filing a certain statement and designation of agent with the Secretary of State (Ky. Stat. § 571). No such statement was ever filed by Banco. (Ex. 69-A, p. 1692.) Banco failed to pay a license tax or to file any report with the Kentucky Tax Commission as required by Kentucky law. (Ky. Stat. 4189-2-3; Ex. 69-B, p. 1694.)

Banco intended to and actually did violate the spirit of the McFadden-Pepper bill (12 U. S. C. A. 36) which prohibited the establishment of branch banks outside of City limits by either State or National bank members of the Federal Reserve System. The National Bank of Kentucky had one branch in Louisville and the Trust Company had six. (Ex. 79, p. 1780.) Senator Sackett admitted his knowledge of the limitation on the bank's right to establish branches and said when he traded his bank stock for Banco stock that this limitation "was being overcome to a certain extent through the adoption of what is known as group banking. . . ." (R. III, p. 288.)

Long before the unification of the bank with the trust company, Kentucky statutes prohibited any person from "directly or indirectly" holding more than half of the capital stock of any bank or trust company (Ky. Stat. 581, 609). Those laws were designed to "spread the liability" imposed by the ownership of bank and trust company stock "and thus afford greater protection to the creditors." Banco's Receiver v. Louisville Trust Company Receiver, 92 S. W. 2d. pp. 19-22. One of the attorney-organizers of Banco wrote "the only plausible excuse we have at the present time for Banco owning such a large per cent of the trustees certificates is that the Bank of Kentucky Company is not 'directly or indirectly' owning more than half of the capital stock of the other institutions, and, furthermore counting upon non-action by the State Banking Commission or Attorney General to enforce this provision." (Ex. 32-2; pp. 1273-4.)

There is certainly proof in this record indicating that Banco was organized for illegal purposes and unlawful purposes in direct violation of applicable State and Federal Statutes.

While the separate corporate existence of Banco need not be disregarded to impose assessment liability, there is ample justification in this record for its being disregarded should that be necessary.

For the foregoing reasons, appellant respectfully prays that a rehearing be granted and that the matters be re-argued before this court.

Respectfully submitted,

No. 5312

TREASURY DEPARTMENT
OFFICE OF THE COMPTROLLER OF THE CURRENCY

Washington, February 20, 1931

In the matter of
The National Bank of Kentucky
of
Louisville, Kentucky

To all whom it may concern:

WHEREAS, upon a proper accounting by the Receiver heretofore appointed to collect the assets of "The National Bank of Kentucky of Louisville, Kentucky" and upon a valuation of the uncollected assets remaining in his hands, it appears to my satisfaction that in order to pay the debts of such association it is necessary to enforce the individual liability of the stockholders therefor to the extent hereinafter mentioned, as prescribed by Sections 5151 and 5234 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, Section 1c 156, Act of June 30, 1876, and Section 23, Act approved December 23, 1913, known as Federal Reserve Act.

NOW, THEREFORE, by virtue of the authority vested in me by law, I do hereby make an assessment and requisition upon the shareholders of the said "The National Bank of Kentucky of Louisville" for Four Million ($4,000,000.-) dollars, to be paid by them ratably on or before the first day of April 1931, and I hereby make demand upon each and every one of them for the par value of ~~full amount upon~~ each and every share of the capital stock of said association held or owned by them, respectively, at the time of its failure; and I hereby direct Paul C. Keyes the Receiver heretofore appointed, to take all necessary proceedings, by suit or otherwise, to enforce to that extent the said individual liability of the said shareholders.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereto set my hand and caused my seal of office to be affixed to these presents, at the City of Washington, in the District of Columbia, this twentieth day of February, A. D. 1931.

OFFICE OF THE RECEIVER
THE NATIONAL BANK OF KENTUCKY
LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY

Louisville, Ky., March 20, 1931

As a stockholder in The BancoKentucky Company, you will please take notice, that the Comptroller of the Currency has on February 20, 1931, levied an assessment upon the stockholders of The National Bank of Kentucky, Louisville, Ky., on the par value of each and every share, payable at the Office of the Receiver, on or before April 1, 1931. A notice of such assessment and a demand for payment of the same has been served upon the Receiver of The BancoKentucky Company as the holder of 540,484 trustees' participation certificates, issued under a certain trust agreement of April 22, 1927, which trustees' participation certificates represent the ownership of 37,721.624 shares of stock in The National Bank of Kentucky. You will, therefore, take notice that it is the intention of the undersigned, as Receiver of The National Bank of Kentucky, to proceed against you for the collection of the aforesaid assessment liability represented by the said trustees' participation certificates held by said BancoKentucky Company, to the extent that the undersigned, as Receiver of The National Bank of Kentucky, is unable to collect said assessment from The BancoKentucky Company or its Receiver.

This Agreement, entered into this 22d day of April, 1927, between:

Such owners and holders of capital stock in THE NATIONAL BANK OF KENTUCKY, of Louisville, Kentucky, as now unite and such other owners and holders of that stock as may hereafter unite in this agreement by signing it or a counterpart thereof, or by depositing their stock as hereinafter provided, hereinafter referred to as "Bank Stockholders," as parties of the first part; and

Such owners and holders of the capital stock of THE LOUISVILLE TRUST COMPANY, of Louisville, Kentucky, as now unite and such other owners and holders of that stock as may hereafter unite in this agreement by signing it or a counterpart thereof, or by depositing their stock as hereinafter provided, hereinafter referred to as "Trust Company Stockholders," as parties of the second part; and

HENRY VOGT, THOMAS J. MINARY, STUART E. DUNCAN, ALLEN P. DODD, EDWIN M. DRUMMOND and CHAS. H. BOHMER, hereinafter referred to as "Trustees," as parties of the third part;

WITNESSETH.

The undersigned owners and holders of the shares of capital stock of The National Bank of Kentucky of Louisville (organized under the National Banking Act), and owners and holders of the capital stock of The Louisville Trust Company (organized as a Trust Company under the laws of Kentucky), looking to the best interests of the respective institutions as separate corporate entities, and of each stockholder therein, have determined that such interests require closer co-operation of such Bank and Trust Company, to be of greater service to their respective patrons, and in order to secure such co-operation have agreed upon the plan hereinafter set forth for creating a trust estate to consist of their respective shares of stock in the Bank and in the Trust Company.

I.

APPORTIONMENT OF INTERESTS BETWEEN THE TWO SETS OF STOCKHOLDERS.

At this time the Bank has a capital, surplus and undivided profits of more than $6,800,000, which will be represented by 40,000 shares of its stock when a contemplated stock dividend of 60% has been declared; and The Trust Company has a capital, surplus and undivided profits of more than $1,700,000, represented by 10,000 shares of its stock.

The combined net assets of the two institutions aggregate more than $8,500,000.

In apportioning between the Bank Stockholders and the Trust Company Stockholders the participation shares hereinafter provided for, which represent interests in the Trust Estate, presently consisting of the stocks of said two institutions deposited hereunder, such apportionment shall be made upon the following basis:

The total assets and business of the Bank shall be treated as worth 80% of the combined assets of the Bank and of the Trust Company, and the total assets and business of the Trust Company shall be treated as worth 20% of the combined assets and business of the Bank and of the Trust Company.

The rights of such stockholders in said respective institutions as become a party to this agreement shall be determined on said basis, namely, each shareholder shall receive one participation certificate for each share of stock.

II.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE.

There is hereby created an Advisory Committee, with such powers as are herein conferred, and which shall at all times be composed of the individuals who are the then directors of The Louisville Trust Company and of The National Bank of Kentucky.

In any action to be taken by the Trustees only on the approval of the Advisory Committee, such approval shall be evidenced by a writing filed with the Trustees and signed by a majority of the members from each institution on said Committee.

Said Committee shall have the right by a resolution adopted by them, respectively, to add to their number not more than three of the higher executive officers of each institution who are not already members of the Committee, and such action upon the part of the Advisory Committee, if taken, shall be evidenced by a writing filed with the Trustees.

Exhibit 7

III.

TERMS OF TRUST.

The Trustees shall hold all assets which shall come into their hands hereunder as one indivisible Trust Estate, the proportionate interest of each shareholder therein being represented by the certificates issued by such Trustees, and the Trustees agree to hold such estate upon the following trust, terms and conditions:

(1) They shall reassign to each person who shall be at the time of signing this agreement a member of the board of directors of The National Bank of Kentucky, or of The Louisville Trust Company, who desires and is eligible a sufficient number of shares of stock in such Bank and Trust Company to qualify him as a director in both institutions.

(2) The Trustees may, out of the shares owned by them, sell and assign absolutely to any holder of a Trustees' Participation Certificate desiring to be elected a director of either of said institutions, the number of shares of stock necessary to legally qualify him for such office. These provisions shall apply to any other stock acquired by the Trustees.

(3) Upon request made in writing not more than 30 nor less than 15 days before any annual election of directors, by the holders of sufficient in amount of Trustees' Participation Certificates to insure his election they shall sell and transfer to a designated person the number of shares of stock necessary to legally qualify him for such office, upon his surrender of sufficient Trustees' Participation Certificates therefor.

(4) In addition to the Trust Estate herein presently provided for, the Trustees shall have power to purchase all or part of the stock of any other corporation of similar character and engaged in a like or similar business, but only with the written consent of the Advisory Committee, as to terms, price and conditions of purchase, and any stock so purchased by the Trustees shall become and be a part of the Trust Estate above referred to, and the Trustees may issue Trustees' Participation Certificates in sufficient amount to pay for the stock so purchased by them. The Trustees may issue such new certificates direct to the holders of the stock so purchased by the Trustees in exchange or payment therefor, in whole or in part, or may sell such Trustees' Participation Certificates to the then holders of such Trustees' Participation Certificates in proportion to their then holding thereof, which right of purchase by such holders shall be assignable. If all the certificates so offered to existing certificate holders be not taken and paid for by them or their assigns within the time fixed by the Trustees in their offering of the same, it shall be the duty of the Trustees to offer for sale such certificates not taken or paid for to any other person or persons.

(5) No certificate shall be issued by the Trustees calling for a fraction of a share, but scrip may be issued for fractions of shares to those entitled thereto, and when scrip representing as much as one full share shall be presented to the Trustees, they shall issue a certificate in lieu of such scrip for as many full shares as said scrip shall call for in the aggregate. No dividends shall be paid on scrip, but when such scrip shall have been converted into

Trustees' Participation Certificates, the rights represented thereby shall be entitled to receive their full share of dividends thereafter declared and theretofore declared during a period not to exceed five years before such conversion.

(6) The Trustees, with the written consent of the Advisory Committee, may sell any stock acquired under Subsection (4) of Article III and the proceeds of sale when collected shall be disposed of by the Trustees with the written consent of the Advisory Committee by:

(a) Either dividing the same among the holders of Trustees' Participation Certificates, in which event the Trustees shall have the right to correspondingly reduce pro rata the number of shares represented by outstanding Trustees' Participation Certificates; or

(b) Using the same in the purchase of stock of corporations engaging in like or similar business; or

(c) Adding to the capital or surplus or capital and surplus of any of the corporations the stock of which is owned by the Trustees.

(7) The Trustees, with the written consent of the Advisory Committee:

(a) Shall have the right to consent to and take any legal action appropriate for an increase or decrease in the capital stock of any corporation, the stock of which may become a part of the Trust Estate;

(b) In case of an increase in the capital stock of any such corporation, the proper proportionate part thereof to which the Trustees may be entitled, may be purchased by them and same shall be added to and become a part of the indivisible Trust Estate held by the Trustees under the same terms and conditions as are herein provided for the stock acquired hereunder;

(c) The Trustees shall thereupon issue additional Trustees' Participation Certificates equal to the par value of such increase of capital stock so purchased by them and shall offer the same pro rata to the then holders of outstanding Trustees' Participation Certificates at a price which will reimburse the Trustees for the purchase price so paid by them.

If any holder of Trustees' Participation Certificates declines or fails within a reasonable time to be fixed by the Trustees, to take his pro rata of such increased issue of certificates, and which right of purchase by such holder shall be assignable, the Trustees shall have the right to sell such certificates to any purchaser for a price not less than that at which the Trustees acquired such stock.

(d) In case either the Bank or Trust Company, or any other institution in which the Trustees shall own stock, shall reduce its outstanding capital stock in the manner provided by law so as to effect a distribution of corporate assets among stockholders, the Trustees shall dispose of said fund as a distribution pro rata among the holders of Trustees' Participation Certificates or, under the written direction of the Advisory Committee, for the benefit of the trust estate, in any other lawful manner.

(8) The Trustees shall have the right, and it shall be their duty subject only to the limitations herein prescribed, to exercise in the interest of the holders of Trustees' Participation Certificates, all of the powers of management and control over any corporation in which they shall hold stock, incident to the ownership of stock eld by them hereunder, and their power shall include all rights as stockholders in connection with any corporate purposes or functions whatever and shall authorize them to exercise all voting rights and rights of ownership over such stock in the election of directors or in the discharge of any other corporate functions.

Provided, however, that the owner of record on the books of the Trustees of any Trustees' Participation Certificate, shall have the right by written directions to the Trustees given at least 5 days before the vote is to be cast, to instruct them how they shall vote in the corporate meetings such proportionate number of shares therein owned by the Trustees as the number of shares represented by the Trustees' Participation Certificate owned by such person giving such directions may bear to the total number of shares represented by outstanding Trustees' Participation Certificates and the Trustees shall vote such proportion of stock in accordance with such instruction.

(9) Dividends received by the Trustees on any stock held by them shall be distributed among the holders of Trustees' Participation Certificates; provided, however, that upon the written direction of the Advisory Committee, the Trustees may use any extra dividends, or part thereof, received by the Trustees, for the benefit of the trust estate, in any lawful manner.

(10) The Trustees shall deposit in the Bank or the Trust Company all funds which they receive with directions to such Bank or Trust Company as to the distribution thereof as hereinabove authorized and the making of such deposits and the giving of such directions shall relieve the Trustees of all further responsibility for such dividends. The Trustees shall out of the funds coming into their hands pay the expenses of the organization and conduct of the Trust.

(11) The enumeration of powers herein shall not be held to be exclusive of other powers herein referred to or incidental to the powers herein mentioned.

IV.

MEETING OF TRUSTEES' PARTICIPATION CERTIFICATE HOLDERS.

(1) Annual meetings of the registered holders of the Trustees' Participation Certificates shall be held at the office of the Trust Company at Louisville, Kentucky, at 2:30 P. M. on the first Monday in January of each year, unless that be the first day of the year, and in which event it shall be held at the same place and hour upon the following day, at which time and place the Trustees or one or more of them, shall attend, and to which meeting the chief executive officers of all corporations in which the Trustees hold stock shall be requested to attend so as to give information as to the condition and progress of such corporation and to make to such meeting any report that may be proper.

(2) Such meeting may be adjourned to any other time and place in Louisville, Kentucky.

(3) The time and place of such annual meeting may be changed at any annual meeting by a vote of persons holding a majority in amount of the Trustees' Participation Certificates present at the meeting in person or by proxy.

(4) Special meetings of the holders of the Trustees' Participation Certificates may be called by the Trustees at any time and place in the city of Louisville, and such meetings shall be called upon the written request of the holders of one-third in amount of the Trustees' Participation Certificates.

(5) Notice of all meetings shall be given by the Trustees in writing mailed to the registered address of each certificate holder at least ten days before the meeting, and such notice shall state the purpose for which any special meeting is called; provided, however, that if a special or annual meeting is to consider the termination, dissolution or modification of this Trust, then at least 30 days' notice thereof shall be given in like manner.

(6) The right to vote at any meeting of Participation Certificate Holders shall be restricted to holders of such certificates of record at least 15 days before the annual meeting, and in case of a special meeting 15 days before the notice of such meeting is required to be mailed. Holders of Trustees' Participation Certificates may vote either in person or by proxy, and if by proxy by a writing attested by one person.

V.

APPOINTMENT OF TRUSTEES AND THEIR ORGANIZATION.

(1) Henry Vogt, Thomas J. Minary, Stuart E. Duncan, Allen P. Dodd, Edwin M. Drummond, and Chas. H. Bohmer are hereby chosen as Trustees under this agreement, and they and their successors shall have all the rights, powers and duties herein set forth.

Henry Vogt, Thomas J. Minary, and Stuart E. Duncan, named above, are agreed upon as the Trustees representing the Stockholders of The Bank, and Allen P. Dodd, Edwin M. Drummond, and Chas. H. Bohmer, named above, are agreed upon as the Trustees representing the Stockholders of The Trust Company. Provided: That, upon the written direction of the Advisory Committee, a corporation or corporations duly authorized to act in a fiducial capacity, may be designated as Trustee or Trustees in lieu of the individual Trustees herein provided for. In the event of such change the individual Trustees shall cease to act and the corporation or corporations, so designated, shall alone have and exercise all the powers herein conferred on the Trustees.

(2) Those persons upon the Advisory Committee who shall at the time constitute the Board of Directors of the Bank may at any time by a writing signed by a majority of them and filed with the Trustees, remove any of the Trustees designated by the Bank stockholders, and in like manner those persons upon the Advisory Committee who shall at the time constitute the Board of Directors of The Trust Company may at any time by a writing signed by a majority of them and filed with the Trustees, remove any of the Trustees designated by The Trust Company stockholders; provided, however, that such power shall not be exercised within sixty days prior to the annual meetings of the stockholders of the Bank or The Trust Company.

(3) Upon the death, removal, resignation or refusal to act of any Trustee, or if from any cause there shall be vacancy in the position of any Trustee, the successor of such Trustee shall be elected and certified to the acting Trustees by a writing signed by a majority of those persons who shall at the time constitute the Advisory Committee for the respective institutions, as the case may be, to the end that there shall always be three Trustees appointed on behalf of the Bank Stockholders and three Trustees appointed on behalf of the Trust Company Stockholders unless a corporate Trustee or Trustees be appointed as above provided.

This power to fill vacancies shall not only apply to the original Trustees herein named, but to any successor, and shall be exercised as and when any vacancy may hereafter occur in the position of any Trustee herein designated as the representative Trustee of the stockholders of either the Bank or the Trust Company.

(4) The term "Trustee" whenever used in this agreement shall include successors duly appointed or elected and all estate hereby vested in and all the rights herein given to and the powers herein conferred upon any Trustee shall be vested in, given to and exercised by his successor duly appointed or elected, and such successor shall be substituted in all respects in place of the former Trustee without the necessity of any formal assignment or transfer to him.

(5) The majority of the Advisory Committee in exercising the powers in this article shall be determined in the same manner as prescribed in Article II.

Exhibit 7

VI.

ORGANIZATION OF TRUSTEES.

(1) The Trustees shall organize by electing from their own number a Chairman and a Vice-Chairman; and by electing a Secretary and Assistant Secretary, neither of the two latter need be a Trustee.

(2) The Trustees shall keep such record of their official action as may be necessary, including a register of Trustees' Participation Certificates issued by them similar to the ordinary stock certificate book showing the name and mailing address of each certificate holder, and shall certify a copy thereof to each institution issuing stock to them.

(3) They shall adopt a seal and prescribe such regulations or by-laws as they may deem necessary, including regulations for the issuance of duplicate Trustees' Participation Certificates in case of loss or destruction of original certificates, and regulations governing the transfer of such certificates, and no Trustees' Participation Certificate shall be transferred except upon the surrender thereof duly endorsed, in person or by attorney, and all such transfers shall be made only upon the books of the Trustees.

(4) The seal of the Trustees shall be affixed to the Trustees' Participation Certificates and they shall be signed by the Chairman or Vice-Chairman of the Trustees and by their Secretary or Assistant Secretary.

(5) The Louisville Trust Company is hereby designated as Transfer Agent for the transfer of Trustees' Participation Certificates, and The National Bank of

Exhibit 7

Kentucky shall be the Registrar thereof, and no certificate issued by the Trustees shall be valid unless countersigned by the Transfer Agent and Registrar.

(6) A majority of the Trustees concurring shall have and exercise all the powers that could be exercised by the whole number of the Trustees.

VII.

ASSIGNMENT OF STOCK TO TRUSTEES.

The Bank Stockholders and Trust Company Stockholders who shall execute this agreement now or hereafter, or a counterpart hereof, or transfer their stock to the Trustees as herein provided for by that act, assign to the Trustees hereinbefore named, under the terms, conditions and limitations hereof, all of the shares of the capital stock owned or held by them at the time of such execution, either in the Bank or Trust Company, or in both.

Each assignment is made upon the terms, trusts and conditions herein stated.

Each assignment shall be made effectual by proper transfers upon the books of the Bank and the Trust Company, respectively, as provided by law and by the by-laws, rules or regulations of said institutions, respectively, governing such transfer.

The certificate or certificates issued by the Bank or by the Trust Company to the Trustees for the shares transferred to such Trustees hereunder, may be issued to them, as "The Trustees Under Stockholders' Agreement of April 22, 1927," without designating them by name.

It shall not be necessary to issue a new certificate to the Trustees in the event of a change in the personnel of the Trustees, but if desired by the Bank or by the Trust Company the names of the Trustees, or any changes therein may be indicated by a memorandum endorsed upon each certificate issued to the Trustees.

The Trustees and their Transfer Agent for the certificates issued by them shall certify to the Bank and Trust Company a copy of the Trustees' register of Trustees' Participation Certificate-Holders and their addresses and from time to time and as often as any change may be made in the holders of such certificates shall certify such change.

VIII.

TRUSTEES' PARTICIPATION CERTIFICATES.

(1) The shares for which such Trustees' Participation Certificates shall be issued shall be of the par value of $100 each, provided that if hereafter the Trustees shall consider it wise to change the par value of such shares, they shall have the power to do so, and to that end may call in all outstanding certificates and issue others in lieu thereof prescribing the changed par value of shares. After such call has been issued no dividends shall be paid on shares represented by such outstanding old certificates until they have been surrendered for exchange for new certificates in the revised form.

(2) The Trustees' Participation Certificates, subject to the aforesaid power of modification as to the par value of shares, shall be in form as follows:

IX.

RESPONSIBILITY OF TRUSTEES.

(1) The Trustees shall not be responsible for any acts done by them as Trustees in good faith and in the exercise of an honest judgment. No Trustee shall be liable for the act or omission of another Trustee.

(2) They shall not be liable, except as Trustees to the extent of the Trust funds held by them, by reason of the ownership of stock in any corporation. They shall be indemnified against any such liability by each holder of Trustees' Participation Certificates to the extent hereinafter set forth.

(3) Each owner of a Trustees' Participation Certificate issued hereunder shall be subject to the same liability thereon as he would have been subject to in case he had been the owner of record of such proportionate part of the shares held by the Trustees in any corporation as the number of shares called for by his Trustee's Participation Certificate bears to the whole number of shares covered by all outstanding Trustees' Participation Certificates; and to such extent he shall indemnify and hold harmless the Trustees owning such stock from any loss or liability on account of being the holders or owners thereof. The measure of liability assumed hereunder shall be the same as that provided by law with reference to the holders of stock in any particular corporation in which the Trustees may hold stock as is provided by law with reference to the holders of such stock, and no more.

X.

TERMINATION OR MODIFICATION OF AGREEMENT.

1. The trust herein created shall continue until the death of the last survivor of all those persons who are now stockholders of either of said institutions who presently enter into this agreement, and for the further period of twenty-one years after the death of such last survivor, unless sooner terminated, as it may be, by a vote of the owners of not less than two-thirds in amount of the Trustees' Participation Certificates, such vote to be taken at a special meeting called for that purpose, of which notice shall be given in writing thirty days in advance of such meeting as above provided.

2. By a vote of two-thirds had at a meeting called as above, this agreement may be modified, such modification being evidenced by the signatures of the owners of Trustees' Participation Certificates assenting thereto, in person or by proxy. Such written modification shall be lodged with the Trustees and a copy thereof lodged with The National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF AGREEMENT.

This agreement shall become effective only when it shall have been executed by the owners of not less than one-half in amount of the stock in The Louisville Trust Company and one-half in amount of the stock in The National Bank of Kentucky by signing this agreement or assigning their stock to the Trustees. It shall, however, remain open for one hundred and twenty days from the date hereof for additional stockholders to make themselves parties hereto by signing it or a counterpart hereof and which additional period may be further extended by a majority vote of the persons herein named as Trustees.

Louisville, Ky. May 2., 1927

Messrs Henry Vogt, Thomas Minary, Charles H. Bohmer, Edwin H. Drummond, and Allen P. Dodd, five of the six Trustees named in the Trust Agreement with reference to stock in the National Bank of Kentucky of Louisville, and The Louisville Trust Company, dated April 22, 1927, met, pursuant to call, in the Directors' room of The National Bank of Kentucky, on the above date at 3:30 P.M.

Mr. Stuart Duncan, the sixth Trustee, was detained from the meeting on account of death in his family.

Mr. Henry Vogt was duly selected as Chairman Pro Tem.

Upon motion duly made, seconded and carried, the following officers were elected:

Election of officers.

Chairman, ------	Henry Vogt
Vice-Chairman ----	Charles H. Bohmer
Secretary ----	Huston Quin
Assistant Secretary --	John S. Akers

Stock Represented.

The Louisville Trust Company, depositary for the stock under the Agreement aforesaid, reported that the holders of 17,274 shares of the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky, and the holders of 8,307 shares of the stock of The Louisville Trust Company, had executed the Agreement of April 22, 1927.

Agreement declared effective.

It was thereupon moved, seconded and carried that said Agreement be and is hereby declared effective and in force, and The Louisville Trust Company, depositary, was instructed from the shares of stock in its hands to cause to be issued to each person eligible to qualify as a Director in the affiliating Companies, a certificate for Ten(10) shares of stock in each of said Companies. And further, that The Louisville Trust Company, depositary, cause to be issued to "The Trustees Under Stockholders Agreement of April 22, 1927", two stock certificates, one each representing all the stock of the respective Companies, remaining in its hands, after delivery of the qualifying shares for the Directors, as aforesaid.

Issue of Stock.

Seal.

Upon motion duly made and carried a seal was adopted, as per the form impressed hereon, to-wit:

Purchase of Supplies.

The Secretary and Assistant Secretary were authorized and directed by proper motion, to purchase all books, stationery and supplies necessary in the performance of their duties, also to order a sufficient quantity of Trustees' Participation Certificates in form as set forth in the Agreement of April 22, 1927, and in all respects to conform to the requirements of the rules promulgated by the New York Stock Exchange as to engraving and the like.

Agreement as to By-Laws.

Until formal by-laws are adopted, it was the unanimous opinion of the Trustees that they be guided in all respects by the terms of the Agreement aforesaid.

Certificates for additional Stock deposited.

The Louisville Trust Company was instructed to have issued to the Trustees additional stock certificates representing the stock deposited with it from time to time after this date.

Box for Certificates.

The Secretary was instructed to rent a box in a Safety Vault for the purpose of depositing therein such stock certificates, or other papers, as might be desired. Said box to be entered only by the Secretary or Assistant Secretary in the presence of any two of the Trustees.

Messrs Alex. P. Humphrey and T. K. Helm as counsel, and Messrs James B. Brown, Charles F. Jones and Nicholas Dosker were present at this meeting.

Representation at Stockholders' meeting Nat'l Bank of Kentucky.

On Motion duly made and carried, Messrs T. J. Minary, and Charles H. Bohmer, or either of them, were authorized and delegated to cast the vote of the Trustees for the stock in their name, at the Stockholders' meeting of The National Bank of Kentucky to be held on May 27, 1927.

There being no further business to be transacted, the meeting upon motion adjourned.

The minutes of the meetings of May 23 and June 3, 1927 were read and approved.

RENTAL OF BOX. The secretary reported that he had rented box No. 2687 in the Vault of The Louisville Trust Company and upon the adjournment of this meeting the members agreed to visit the vault and place in said box certain stock certificates and other documents, a list of which will be placed in said box and reported at the next meeting of the Trustees.

DELIVERY OF STOCK DEPOSITED. The Secretary stated that he had delivered(1) to the National Bank of Kentucky certificates representing 18,218 shares of its capital stock which had been deposited under the Agreement of April 22, 1927. Also that he had received from the National Bank of Kentucky certificates in the name of the Trustees Under The Stockholders Agreement of April 22, 1927, for an aggregate of 17,828 shares, which, with the qualifying shares for the Directors, ten each for the thirty-nine, or a total of 390 shares, represents the number of shares delivered to the National Bank of Kentucky, to-wit: 18,218 shares; and (2) certificates representing 8,318 shares of the capital stock of The Louisville Trust Company deposited under the Agreement aforesaid, were delivered to said Trust Company and in lieu thereof the Secretary had received from said The Louisville Trust Company, certificates for a total of 7,928 shares which, plus the 390 qualifying shares for the thirty-nine Directors, makes a total of 8,318 shares, the number deposited as aforesaid.

RECEIPT OF STOCK IN NAME OF TRUSTEES, AND DIRECTORS.

The Secretary announced that he had also received a certificate from the National Bank of Kentucky for 10,690 shares of its capital stock representing the 60% dividend on 17,818 shares delivered to it.

Attention is called to the fact,(as a matter of record,) that the difference between the 17,818 shares on which the 60% dividend is received, and the 17,828 shares referred to in the third paragraph of these minutes,represents the certificate originally issued to George L. Everbach, who has not qualified as a Director. The certificate issued in lieu of his ten qualifying shares was included in the total received, but the dividend on this certificate had not been received on this date.

The Secretary reported that he had received from the National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company, certificates of stock in the name of each of the thirty-nine qualifying Directors for ten shares of stock in each Company for each of said directors. Exhibit 8

PERMANENT CERTIFICATES ORDERED.

The Assistant Secretary announced that the American Bank Note Company had been given the order for engraving the Trustees Participation Certificates and that it would probably require five weeks to complete the work, said certificates to conform to the rules of the New York Stock Exchange.

PAYMENT OF DIVIDENDS.

It was moved by Mr. Bohmer, seconded by Mr. Minary, and unanimously carried, that all dividends paid to the trustees, either by the National Bank of Kentucky, or The Louisville Trust Company, shall be deposited with The Louisville Trust Company, and the entire sums so received and deposited shall be distributed as of the date when payable to the stockholders who shall have accepted the terms of the Agreement of April 22, 1927, in the proportion their respective stockholdings bear to the entire amount of stock deposited with the Trustees under the Agreement aforesaid, unless otherwise ordered.

DIVIDEND CHECKS HONORED AT EITHER INSTITUTION.

Said dividend checks issued by said The Louisville Trust Company shall be payable at either The National Bank of Kentucky, or The Louisville Trust Company. The Louisville Trust Company to reimburse the National Bank of Kentucky for any checks so honored by the latter. Arrangements for handling these checks to be agreed upon between said Bank and Trust Company.

ELIGIBILITY OF DIRECTORS.

A message was received from T. K. Helm that the Federal Reserve Board had consented that all the present Directors, for whom application had been made, were eligible to qualify as Directors in both the National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company.

CERTIFICATES OF CONSENT FEDERAL RESERVE BANK.

Certificates of said consent were filed with the Secretary by Messrs Stites, Rutledge and Quin.

WAIVER IN RE DIVIDENDS

Written waiver was presented signed by Messrs Stites, Block, Helm, Kohn, Akers, Short, Drummond, Bohmer, Jones, Speed, Lyons, Crawford, Angermeier, Vogt, Coons, Durham, O'Brien, Hickman, Clark, Ormsby, Pirtle, Gray, and Quin, in regard to the payment of dividends on the qualifying shares.

AMENDMENT TO CHARTER THE LOUISVILLE TRUST COMPANY TO INCREASE NUMBER DIRECTORS FROM 25 TO 40.

Messrs Vogt, Bohmer, Minary, Drummond, and Dodd have signed an amendment to the charter of The Louisville Trust Company reading as follows:

"We, the undersigned Stockholders of The Louisville Trust Company, hereby consent in writing that the Board of Directors may, and request them to, amend Section Three of the Amendment to the Company's Charter, approved January 17, 1890, by striking out the word "Twenty-five", and substituting therefor the word "Forty" so as to increase the authorized number of Directors in the Company from twenty-five to forty." Mr. Duncan being absent from the city has not as of this date affixed his signature to said amendment.

AGREEMENT IN RE RETURN OF QUALIFYING SHARES.

The Secretary reported that all but five of the Directors had signed Agreements to the effect that upon death, insolvency, attachment; or upon ceasing to be a director in either of the affiliating institutions, they or their heirs, assigns or personal representatives would forthwith retransfer to the Trustees, certificates for their qualifying shares of stock in each institution upon receiving from the Trustees Participation Certificates of Interest for an equal number of shares thereof, upon the basis of a par of $100.00 each.

The Directors who have not signed being either sick or absent from the city.

The Assistant Secretary was present at this meeting.

There being no further business to be transacted, the meeting, on motion, adjourned.

AGREEMNET WITH FIDELITY & COLUMBIA TRUST COMPANY RE DEPOSIT OF STOCK IN NATIONAL BANK OF KENTUCKY HELD BY IT.

It was moved by Mr. Dodd, seconded by Mr. Duncan and duly carried, that the Secretary be directed to notify the Fidelity & Columbia Trust Company that if said Company will deposit with The Louisville Trust Company under the Agreement of April 22, 1927, all stock in the National Bank of Kentucky, held by it in any trust or fiduciary capacity, for life tenants and remainderman, the right will be granted to said Fidelity & Columbia Trust Company any time before January 1, 1928, to surrender any Trustees' Participation Certificates so held by it representing the stock dividend of 60% declared by the National Bank of Kentucky, and to receive in lieu thereof stock in the National Bank of Kentucky to represent such stock dividend on the stock held before such surrender. This shall apply to any stock so deposited after this date and this action is taken at the instance of said Fidelity & Columbia Trust Company and in order to relieve it of any complications that might arise in the apportionment of the stock dividend declared by The National Bank of Kentucky.
Mr. T. K. Helm was present by request and he explained in detail the question that had been raised by the Fidelity & Columbia Trust Company, and it was after this explanation and a full discussion of the proposition that the foregoing motion was made and passed.

AGREEMENT RE QUALIFYING SHARES.

The Secretary reported that one more director(Mr. S. E. Duncan,) had signed the agreement re transfer of qualifying shares upon ceasing to be a director.

JUDGE A.P. HUMPHREY STOCK DELIVERY AND RESIGNATION

The Secretary stated that he had delivered to Judge A.P. Humphrey his qualifying certificate of stock in each of the affiliating institutions, and had later received from Mr. Churchill Humphrey, son of Judge A. P. Humphrey, a letter returning said certificates duly endorsed, and in which letter Judge Humphrey tendered his resignation as a Director. The letter was read, but by request, no action was taken thereon.

FURTHER DEPOSIT AND DELIVERY OF STOCK.

The Secretary stated that since the last meeting there had been deposited under Agreement of April 22, 1927, certificates for 444 additional shares of stock in the National Bank of Kentucky, and same had been delivered to said National Bank of Kentucky. This makes a total of 18,662 shares so deposited and delivered to the National Bank of Kentucky to this date. Also that he had received from said Bank certificates for 905-2/10 shares issued in the name of the Trustees Under the Stockholders Agreement of April 22, 1927, representing both original stock delivered and the stock dividend of 60% due on stock delivered, and that to date, including the number reported as received at the last meeting, makes a total of 29,421-2/10 shares received. This does not include the 390 qualifying shares, but represents the number of shares delivered to the National Bank of Kentucky plus 60% stock dividend thereon, less the 390 qualifying shares and the stock dividend of six shares each on the qualifying shares of eight Directors who have been absent from the city or sick.

18,662 SHARES NATIONAL BANK OF KENTUCKY STOCK DEPOSITED TO DATE.

CERTIFICATES FOR 29,421-2/10 SHARES RECEIVED.

The Secretary announced that he had delivered qualifying certificates of ten shares in each affiliating institution to all directors except Messrs Kelley(sick); Lemon, Mengel and Reynolds,(absent from city), and had taken their receipts therefor, delivering said receipts to the respective institutions.

DELIVERY OF QUALIFYING SHARES

It was reported, as a matter of record, that Messrs Dodd, Duncan, Atherton, Rutledge, Garnett, Carroll, Callahan, Hieatt and Minary had signed the written waiver as to the payment of dividends.

ADDITIONAL SIGNATURES TO WAIVER RE DIVIDENDS.

This meeting, as well as all the previous meetings of the Trustees, was held in the Directors' Room of The Louisville Trust Company, and all subsequent meetings of the Trustees, unless otherwise indicated, will be held at the same place.

This being all of the business on hand, the meeting, on motion, adjourned.

Louisville, Ky. November 28,1927.

A called meeting of the Trustees was held on this date, Messrs. Vogt, Behmer, Drummond, Duncan and Minary being present.

The minutes of the meeting of September 16th, 1927, were read and approved.

The Secretary read a letter from Mr.Alex.C.Barret relative to the issual of a duplicate certificate of stock for his wife, Mrs.Ellen B.Barret, the original of which has been lost or misplaced.

The question for decision being whether to accept the personal obligation of Mr.Barret or to secure an indemnifying bond issued by a corporate surety. After full discussion it was unanimously decided preferable to secure corporate security and the Secretary was instructed to have this done without expense to Mr.Barret, since it was not clear that said original certificate was lost or mislaid through any fault or mistake of Mr.Barret or his wife.

The Secretary reported the receipt of additional certificates in the name of the Trustees under Stockholders Agreement of April 22nd,1927, as follows:

Certificate A-3415 from the National Bank of Kentucky for 9 shares, which with the number heretofore reported (September 16,1927) of 34646 shares, makes a total of 34655 shares.

Certificate 3398 from The Louisville Trust Company for 7 shares, which, with the number heretofore reported (September 16,1927) of 9368 shares, makes a total of 9375 shares.

Messrs. T.K.Helm and J.S.Akers were present at this meeting.

There being no further business to be transacted, the meeting upon motion adjourned.

Louisville, Ky., December 15,1927.

The Trustees met on the above date with every member present.

The minutes of the meeting of December 2nd, 1927, were read and approved.

The Secretary submitted a form of notice for the annual meeting, to be sent to the holders of Participation Certificates, and same was approved by the Trustees. For the purpose of record, the notice is copied in full, to-wit:

" Louisville, Kentucky, December 16,1927.

The annual meeting of the holders of Trustees Participation Certificates under the Trust Agreement with reference to stock in The National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company, will be held in the Directors Room of The Louisville Trust Company, Louisville, Kentucky, on Tuesday, January 3rd, 1928, at 2:30 o'clock P.M., for the transaction of such business as may properly come before the meeting.

For the Trustees,

By
HUSTON QUIN
Secretary."

On motion of Mr.Bohmer, seconded by Mr. Dodd, and duly carried, the Chairman was instructed to sign the necessary proxies or be present at the annual meetings of the stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company, to be held on January 10th, 1928, for the purpose of representing the Trustees and of voting the stock held by the Trustees, on all matters that might properly come before said meetings.

It was moved by Mr.Duncan, seconded by Mr.Drummond and duly carried that the transfer books of the Trustees be closed at the end of business hours, December 15th,1927 and reopened on January 3rd, 1928.

Louisville, Kentucky, February 3, 1928.

The Trustees met on the above date with the following members present: Messrs. Bohmer, Dodd, Duncan, Minary and Quin.

The minutes of the meeting of December 23, 1927 were read and approved.

Messrs. Alex P. Humphrey and William W. Crawford having heretofore resigned as Directors in the affiliated companies and said resignations accepted, their qualifying shares, (ten each in each company,) were withdrawn from the safety box January 17, 1928, said certificates are as follows:

	Natl. Bank of Ky.	The Louisville Trust Co.
Alex P. Humphrey	A 3066	3369
William W. Crawford.	A 3077	3369

Mr. E.M. Drummond, one of the Trustees and a Director in the affiliated companies died January 22, 1928, and committees have been appointed by the Presidents of the two companies to draft appropriate resolutions on account of his death, same to be spread on the minutes of the Boards of the two companies.

Under the provisions of the Trust Agreement of April 22, 1927, more than a majority of those constituting the Board of Directors of The Louisville Trust Company, by writing, dated January 27, 1928, designated Huston Quin as a Trustee for the stockholders of the affiliated companies to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. E.M. Drummond's death.

Mr. E.M. Drummond's qualifying shares, (ten in each company) were ordered withdrawn from the safety box for cancellation, said certificates being:

National Bank of Kentucky	No. A 3079
The Louisville Trust Company	3361

The withdrawal of the above thirty qualifying shares in each company reduces the total to 360 qualifying shares in each company, there being as of this date, only 36 Directors.

Since the last meeting, the following certificates of stock in the name of the Trustees, have been received from the National Bank of Kentucky:

A 3121 for	11 shares
A 3122 "	34 "
Total	45 shares

Added to the previous total of 35,280 shares, makes 35,325 shares, plus 360 qualifying shares, makes a total of 35,685 shares in the National Bank of Kentucky, leaving 4315 shares outstanding.

The 9424 shares in The Louisville Trust Company heretofore reported, (December 23, 1927,) plus 360 qualifying shares, makes a total of 9784 shares, leaving 216 shares in The Louisville Trust Company outstanding.

Louisville, Kentucky, February 8, 1929.

At a meeting this day of the Trustees under the Trust Agreement between the National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company, dated April 22, 1927, there were present: Messrs. Charles K. Bohmer, Thomas J. Minary, Allen P. Dodd, and Huston Quin. Messrs. Henry Vogt and Stuart E. Duncan were absent, both being out of the city. Mr. John S. Akers was also present.

Vice Chairman Bohmer presented a certified copy of the Resolution of a joint meeting of the Boards of Directors of the National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company, held January 16, 1929, (see A, "Minutes and Resolution in these minutes") and also a written consent signed by a majority of the Advisory Committee of each of said institutions, consenting, in writing, to the entering into with the stockholders of The Louisville National Bank & Trust Company of a contract under and by which the Trustees, for the benefit of the trust estate, shall acquire all or not less than 80% of the stock of said institution, upon the terms and conditions set forth in the said Resolution of directors and written consent of the Advisory Committee. (See B "Written Consent" in these minutes.)

Upon motion duly made, seconded and carried, it was Resolved:

1. That said Resolution of the directors and written consent of the Advisory Committee be filed herewith as a part hereof.

2. That pursuant to the said Resolution and written consent, we, as Trustees, enter into a contract with representative stockholders of The Louisville National Bank & Trust Company, to include themselves and others who may unite with them to an amount of not less than 80% of all of such stockholders, as follows:

Louisville, Kentucky, Feb. 8,1929.

"THIS AGREEMENT, executed in as many duplicate copies as may be found convenient, between the undersigned stockholders of The Louisville National Bank and Trust Company, a corporation organized under the National Banking Law, parties of the first part; and the Trustees of the stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company, under an Agreement dated April 22, 1927, who are acting under the written consent of the Advisory Committee of the National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company, parties of the second part:

WITNESSETH

WHEREAS, the terms of a proposed consolidation between the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company and the Louisville Trust Company were heretofore approved by their respective Boards of Directors on January 15 and January 16, 1929; and

WHEREAS, the second parties were duly authorized, on the day of February, 1929, by written consent of said Advisory Committee, to purchase the entire stock of The Louisville National Bank and Trust Company (7,500 shares) upon the terms, price and conditions of purchase set forth in said written consent and in said resolutions, to wit:

1. That the name of the institution shall be the Louisville Trust Company;

2. That the said Trustees shall issue to the shareholders of The Louisville National Bank and Trust Company, pro rata, 7,500 Trustees Participation Shares in return and in exchange for 7,500 shares of the stock of The Louisville National Bank and Trust Company, being its entire capital stock, carrying with it all the stock of the Louisville National Company.

3. That Judge John Stites shall be Chairman of the Board of Directors of the consolidated institution; that Mr. Richard Bean shall be President and chief executive officer thereof, and Mr. Nicholas H. Dosker executive Vice President thereof; and

WHEREAS, the first parties approve the consolidation of said banking institutions, and are willing to accept the said terms, price and conditions of purchase of their shares in The Louisville National Bank and Trust Company,

NOW, THEREFORE, the premises considered, the undersigned, being the owners of the shares of stock of The Louisville National Bank and Trust Company to the amounts set opposite their respective names below, hereby agree to surrender their certificates of stock, properly endorsed in blank to The Louisville National Bank and Trust Company, as Escrow Agent, receiving therefor ad interim certificates of said Company; and consent that when certificates, aggregating not less than 80% of all the stock of the said Bank, shall have been deposited hereunder by the owners, the certificates of the undersigned may be delivered to the Trustees in accordance with the terms and conditions above set forth.

It is understood and agreed that the second parties will offer to purchase all of the stock of The Louisville National Bank and Trust Company according to said terms, price and conditions of purchase, and that unless at least 80% thereof is deposited, properly endorsed, with the Escrow Agent by March 15, 1929, this Agreement shall not become effective unless the said Trustees extend the time, as they may do in their discretion; and upon a failure of said plan to become effective, the stock deposited hereunder shall be returned, without expense, to the depositors thereof or their assigns.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, this contract is executed by the undersigned the year and day above written. "

It was further moved, seconded and carried, that pursuant to the foregoing Resolution, the foregoing contract be signed by the Trustees and certified by their Secretary.

Said Contract after signatures to duplicate copies was so certified by the Assistant Secretary.

A. - MINUTES AND RESOLUTION

Louisville, Kentucky,
January 16, 1929.

At the special called meeting of the Board of Directors of the National Bank of Kentucky held this day there were present the following directors:

Charles H. Bohmer, James B. Brown, R. Lee Callahan, Anthony J. Carroll, Samuel W. Coons, Allen P. Dodd, Stuart E. Duncan, Joseph H. Durham, James Garnett, Angereau Gray, James J. Hayes, T. Kennedy Helm, Baylor O. Hickman, Clarence C. Hieatt, Saunders P. Jones, Walter I. Kohn, S. Clay Lyons, Charles C. Mengel, Thomas J. Minary, Edward J. O'Brien, Jr., Henry D. Ormsby, Huston Quin, Arthur M. Rutledge, William S. Speed, John Stites, Henry Vogt.

The following directors were absent - John S. Akers, Henry J. Angermeier, Oscar E. Bloch, George M. Clark, Milburn P. Kelley, Brainard Lemon, John B. Pirtle, Richard S. Reynolds, William Short.

President Brown explained in detail to the Board the negotiations had between him and the representatives of the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company and laid before the Board a proposition submitted by the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company setting forth the terms upon which they were willing to agree to the consolidation of that institution with the Louisville Trust Company, and which proposition had been approved by the Board of Directors of the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company. Said proposition was in substance as follows:

1. That the name of the combined institution should be the Louisville Trust Company.

2. That the Louisville Trust Company shall cause to be issued to the shareholders of the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company pro-rata seventy-five hundred (7500) shares of the Trustees' Participation Certificates in return and exchange for seventy-five hundred (7500) shares of the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company stock, being its entire capital stock, carrying with it all the stock of the Louisville National Company, which the shareholders of the Louisville National Bank and Trust Company contribute and which stock, so contributed, shall be delivered to the Louisville Trust Company.

3. That Judge John Stites should be Chairman of the Board of Directors of the consolidated institution, Mr. Richard Bean should be President and Chief Executive Officer and Mr. Nicholas H. Dosker, Executive Vice-President.

President Brown recommended the acceptance of the proposition so submitted. Mr. Stuart Duncan moved that said proposition be accepted and said motion being seconded by Mr. Saunders P. Jones, it was suggested that a call of the roll be had on the motion. Thereupon, Mr. Jones, Secretary of the meeting, called the roll of the Directors present resulting as follows: There was cast in favor of the motion twenty-four (24) votes and no votes against. Judge John Stites and Judge Huston Quin, the other two directors present, stated that they would prefer not to vote either for or against the proposition. President Brown announced that twenty-four votes had been cast in favor of the adoption of the motion and no vote against the same and that the motion was carried.

There being no further business on motion the meeting adjourned.

To the Trustees of the Stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company:

This is to certify that the foregoing is a true and correct copy of the minutes of the joint meeting of the Directors of the National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company, held January 16, 1929.

C.F. Jones
Secretary of Directors of Natl. Bank of Kentucky.

Edgar B. Hawes
Secretary of Directors of The Louisville Trust Company.

B. - WRITTEN CONSENT.

To the Trustees of the Stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky and
The Louisville Trust Company,
Under Agreement dated April 22, 1927.

Gentlemen:

The undersigned, constituting a majority of the Advisory Committee, under Article II of the Trust Agreement dated April 22, 1927, in order to consummate the consolidation of The Louisville National Bank & Trust Company and The Louisville Trust Company, in accordance with an agreement approved by their Boards of Directors, by resolutions dated January 15, and January 16, 1929, respectively, hereby give their written consent that the Trustees under said Trust Agreement may purchase 7500 shares of stock of The Louisville National Bank and Trust Company (being the entire capital stock of said Bank and all the stock of The Louisville National Company) upon the terms, price and conditions of purchase set forth in the aforementioned resolution of January 16, a copy of which is hereto attached and made a part hereof.

It is contemplated that The Louisville National Bank and Trust Company will immediately issue to its stockholders a request for deposit of their shares with said Bank as Escrow Agent, with authority in said Agent to deliver the shares so deposited to said Trustees in accordance with said terms, price and conditions of purchase above referred to. Whenever certificates for shares aggregating not less than 80% of said capital stock of said The Louisville National Bank and Trust Company shall have been thus deposited with it as Escrow Agent, the said Trustees are hereby authorized to accept delivery of said shares and of all shares thereafter deposited, not in excess of 7500 and issue in exchange therefor an equal number of Trustees' Participation Shares.

When the Trustees shall have thus acquired 80% or more of the capital stock of The Louisville National Bank & Trust Company, they are authorized to take such action in behalf of the stockholders represented by them as may be deemed legally necessary to bring about the conversion of said institution into a State institution and to merge said Company with The Louisville Trust Company when the capital stock of the latter has been increased and delivered to the Trustees for the purpose of issuing against the same Trustees' Participation Certificates to the present stockholders of The Louisville National Bank and Trust Company on the basis of share for share, or selling in the market any Trustees' Participation Certificates not so taken.

And we further consent to and approve of an amendment of the Charter of The Louisville Trust Company to be executed by its President and a majority of its Directors increasing the capital stock of The Louisville Trust Company from $1,000,000.00 to $1,750,000.00, and upon such increased capital stock of $750,000.00 to issue Trustees' Participation Certificates to the selling stockholders of The Louisville National Bank & Trust Company pro rata in full payment of the capital stock so issued by it; and to further amend said Charter or Articles of Incorporation to include the power of commercial banking and otherwise as may be for the declared purpose deemed advisable.

The foregoing action being taken pursuant to the terms of the Trust Agreement known as Article 3, Section 4, Section 6 (c) and Section 7 (a).

Motion to make reduction in par value of shares from $100.00 to $10.00.

Upon motion made, seconded and carried, it was unanimously Resolved: That, acting pursuant to Article VIII, Section (1), of the Trust Agreement, it is now considered wise to change the par value of the shares of Trustees' Participation Certificates from a par of One Hundred ($100.00) Dollars per share to a par of Ten ($10.00) Dollars per share, of such outstanding certificates, and such change is now made, ordered and directed, and all outstanding certificates are hereby called in for exchange on the basis of receiving ten (10) shares for each share of such Trustees' Participation Certificates now outstanding. That the stockholders be presently notified of such action and that no dividends will be paid upon the outstanding certificates after that payable April 1, 1929, until such exchange has been made.

Changes ordered in stock certificates account change in par value.

Upon motion made, seconded and unanimously carried, it was Resolved: That the Secretary or Assistant Secretary arrange at once for securing new permanent certificates in the exact form of the present certificate, except the line reading, "Present authorized issue $5,000,000.00," will be eliminated and the two places on said certificate where the par value of the shares is fixed at $100.00 shall be changed to read $10.00 par value per share, and advise the stockholders of record of this action and request that they send in their certificates for such exchange.

"AMENDMENT TO ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION OF THE LOUISVILLE TRUST COMPANY OF LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY.

"KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS:

"That pursuant to consent in writing of the holders and owners of more than two-thirds (2/3) of all its authorized and outstanding capital stock, the undersigned duly elected, qualified and acting directors, and constituting out of of the institution, hereby further amend its charter as amended, so that when amended the sections re - ferred to will read as follows:

(1) "SECTION TWO: The capital stock of said Company shall consist of Seventeen Thousand Five Hundred (17,500) shares of the par value of One Hundred ($100.00) Dollars each, with the privilege to increase the same as is provided by law. The stockholders at the annual or any special meeting may elect not less than twenty (20) nor more than fifty (50) directors who shall serve until the next annual election, and until their successors are duly elected and qualified. The regular annual meeting and election of directors shall be on the second Tuesday of January of each year.

"Directors shall have power and authority to exercise in the name, and in behalf of the Company all the rights and privileges conferred upon Trust Companies and combined Banks and Trust Companies under laws of the Commonwealth of Kentucky.

"Except as hereinabove set forth Section Two of the original charter is hereby repealed.

(2) "SECTION FOUR: The directors may elect from their number a chairman of the board of directors, and at the first meeting of the board after their election shall elect a President, an Executive Vice President and such other Vice Presidents as may be provided for in the by-laws. The board may also elect a Secretary, and a Treasurer and such other officers as the business may require. All of said officers shall be elected to serve for a period of one (1) year and until their successors shall be elected and qualified, but any officer or employee may be removed at any time by the board of directors for cause. The board may also elect such other officers and employees as the business of the Company may require or it may delegate to one or more of the senior officers of the Company the power to employ and discharge minor officers, superintendents; agents and/or employees of the Company and fix their compensation from time to time. The board shall fix the compensation of all officers of the Company elected by it, and may require from any or all of said officers bond for the faithful discharge of their duties. No person shall be eligible as director who is not a stockholder to the amount of ten (10) shares. The board of directors are authorized to specify in the by-laws the number of directors which are necessary to constitute a quorum for any meeting of the board.

(8) "SECTION EIGHT: The said corporation shall have and may exercise all the powers conferred by the laws of Kentucky upon Trust Companies, combined Banks and Trust Companies, and commercial and savings banks, and the enumeration of the powers hereinafter specified shall not be taken to be a limitation upon the general powers heretofore stated.

"It may be appointed and act as guardian of infants, as executor, administrator or curator of estates of decedents, as committee of persons of unsound mind, as receiver, assignee or trustee for persons or estates, whether appointed by deed or by last will and testament by any Court within this Commonwealth, or in any other manner not inconsistent with law; and it may act as agent or attorney for the transaction of any business for any persons or corporations, or in the management of estates, or the collection of rents, accounts, interest, dividends, notes, bonds, securities for money and debts, and demands of every kind, character and description, and receive and hold in trust, estates real and personal, including notes, bonds, obligations and accounts of estates and individuals, or companies and corporations, private or public, in this State or elsewhere, as permitted by law; it may act as agent or attorney in the leasing, conveying and management of real and personal estates, and receiving and collecting rents and other moneys; it may receive on deposit and for safe-keeping, gold, silver, jewelry, money and other personal property of every kind, and shall have a lien upon all personal property deposited with it for its charges; it may purchase, own, maintain and operate a safety vault, containing any number of compartments or boxes, and may rent such compartments or boxes to such persons and for such sums of money, and for such times as may be agreed upon between it and such persons; and may act as trustee under deeds of trust or mortgages, making certificates of such trust upon the bonds secured thereby, and in receiving and investing sinking funds under such deeds of trust or mortgages; and may act as agent for transferring or registering the transfer of certificates of stock, bonds, or other obligations for any corporation or municipality, State or public authority, and may receive and manage any sinking fund therefor, and may accept and execute and guarantee all trusts of every description not inconsistent with the laws of this State as may be committed to it by any person or persons, or by any corporation, public or private, or by any order of Court of this or any other State; and may transact the business above described through corporate or individual agents selected by it; and it may exercise such powers as may be necessary to carry on the business of banking by discounting and negotiating notes, drafts, bills of exchange andother evidences of debt, and purchasing and selling bonds, receiving deposits and allowing interest thereon, buying and selling exchange, coin and bullion, and lending money on personal or real security, as provided by law; and it may accept for payment at a future date drafts or bills of exchange drawn upon it by its customers, and issue letters of credit authorizing the holders thereof to draw drafts upon it or its correspondents at sight or on time not exceeding one year, and may also accept drafts or bills of exchange drawn upon it having not more than six months' sight to run, growing out of transactions involving the importation and exportation of goods, and it may discount acceptances which are based upon the importation or exportation of goods, and which have a maturity at time of discount of not more than three months, and are endorsed by at least one other bank or trust company; and it may also receive moneys on deposit and pay interest thereon; and it may pledge such portion of its assets as may be required by law as collateral security on Government deposits.

"The original Section Eight of the Company's charter is repealed so far as inconsistent with the foregoing powers of this provision; and Section Nine of the original charter is amended by striking therefrom the following words:

> "but nothing herein shall be construed to permit such Company to discount paper, or to engage in the business of banking," and Section Six of the amendment of 1886 is repealed so far as inconsistent with the foregoing.

(4) "SECTION TWELVE of the original charter of 1884 is hereby repealed.

"IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF this amendment is signed and acknowledged by more than a majority of its directors this___ day of March, 1929."

This being all the business before the meeting, same upon motion adjourned.

Louisville, Kentucky, April 30, 1929.

The Trustees met on this day, all the Trustees, to wit: Messrs. Vogt, Bohmer, Dodd, Duncan, Minary and Quin, and the Assistant Secretary were present.

The minutes of the meeting of March 15, 1929, after reading, were approved.

Report of delivery by stockholders of certificates representing 7350 shares of stock in Lou. Natl. Bank & Tr. Co. and receipt of Ctf. No. 667 for 7350 shares payable to Trustees.

The Secretary reported that pursuant to the resolutions and contract of February 7, 1929, and executed February 8, 1929, between the Trustees and certain stockholders of The Louisville National Bank and Trust Company, the said stockholders owning seven thousand three hundred and fifty (7350) shares of the par value of One Hundred ($100.00) Dollars each out of the total authorized capital stock of said Bank of seven thousand five hundred (7500) shares, had delivered their certificates, properly endorsed, to The Louisville National Bank and Trust Company as Escrow Agent, which has issued to the Trustees its certificate No. 667 as a National bank for an equal number of shares, to wit: seven thousand three hundred and fifty (7350), to be exchanged for certificates for seventy-three thousand five hundred (73,500) participation shares of the par value of Ten ($10.00) Dollars, when and as instructions are hereafter given as to the names, addresses and number of shares to be embodied in each of said several certificates; and upon motion duly made, seconded and carried, the report was received and approved and the action then taken ratified.

Mr. C.H. Bohmer designated a proxy to represent Trustees and vote their stock at meeting of stockholders of Lou. Natl. Bank & Tr. Co. to be held this day for purpose of dissolution of said Lou. Natl. Bank & Tr. Co. and transfer of its assets to State Institution.

Attention was called to the fact that pursuant to the plans heretofore outlined a meeting of the stockholders of The Louisville National Bank and Trust Company will be held pursuant to notice at its office in Louisville, Kentucky, at 10:30 A.M., April 30, 1929, and that it is desirable that the Trustees attend the said meeting or appoint a proxy to attend said meeting of the stockholders and to vote the stock of said bank standing in the names of the Trustees.

Upon motion duly made, seconded and carried, it was resolved that Mr. Charles H. Bohmer be and is hereby designated the proxy of the Trustees at said meeting of the stockholders of The Louisville National Bank and Trust Company to vote the said stock standing of record in the name of and owned by the Trustees in favor of the dissolution of the said Louisville National Bank and Trust Company, and for the transfer of all its assets, good will, rights and interest, to a banking corporation organized under the laws of Kentucky by a majority of the directors under the name of The Louisville Bank and Trust Company, pursuant to Section 589 Carroll's Kentucky Statutes.

It was further moved, seconded and carried, that the Secretary, or the Assistant Secretary, be and is hereby authorized for and on behalf of said Trustees, first, to execute the written consent hereby given of the Trustees as owners of SEVENTH: This corporation is tohave perpetual existence.

EIGHTH: The private property of the stockholders shall not be subject to the payment of corporate debts to any extent whatever.

NINTH: Subject to the provisions of the "General Corporation Law" the number of Directors of the corporation shall be determined as provided in the By-Laws.

TENTH: In furtherance, and not in limitation of the powers conferred by statute, the Board of Directors is expressly authorized:

To make and alter the By-Laws of this corporation, to fix the amount to be reserved as working capital over and above its capital stock paid in, to authorize and cause to be executed mortgages and liens upon the real and personal property of this corporation.

From time to time to determine whether and to what extent, and at which times and places, and under what conditions and regulations, the accounts and books of this corporation (other than the stock ledger), or any of them, shall be open to inspection of stockholders; and no stockholder shall have any right of inspecting any account, book or document of this corporation except as conferred by statute, unless authorized by a resolution of the stockholders or directors.

If the by-laws so provide, to designate two or more of its number to constitute an executive committee, which committee shall for the time being, as provided in said resolution or in the by-laws of this corporation, have and exercise any or all of the powers of the Board of Directors in the management of the business and affairs of this corporation, and have power to authorize the seal of this corporation to be affixed to all papers which may require it.

Pursuant to the affirmative vote of the holders of at least a majority of the stock issued and outstanding, having voting power, given at a stockholders' meeting duly called for that purpose, or when authorized by the written consent of at least a majority of the holders of the voting stock issued and outstanding, the Board of Directors shall have power and authority at any meeting to sell, lease or exchange all of the property and assets of this corporation, including its good will and its corporate franchises, upon such terms and conditions as its Board of Directors deem expedient and for the best interests of the corporation.

This corporation may in its By-Laws confer powers upon its directors in addition to the foregoing, and in addition to the powers and authorities expressly conferred upon them by the statute.

Both stockholders and directors shall have power, if the By-Laws so provide, to hold their meetings, and to have one or more offices within or without the State of Delaware, and to keep the books

Reorganization Plan
For
National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company
In connection with
The BancoKentucky Company.

To the Holders of Trustees' Participation Shares,
National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company:

Your Officers and Directors have been studying the rapidly changing conditions in the banking business in America, with a view to preparing the two banking institutions under their management, to meet these changed conditions, and to take early advantage of new opportunities presented thereby.

The conclusion unanimously reached, as a result of these deliberations, is that the two banks, and the business conducted by them, should be reorganized by adding to this group a third corporation, which will make the assets of these banking institutions more profitable, expand their facilities, and thus develop for the entire group new and profitable financial opportunities and connections.

Such a reorganization is in line with the trend of business and finance in this country; and there can be little doubt that the assets of the new corporation will not only greatly benefit the two banks and the territory they now serve, but will also be a stabilising influence in banking circles throughout this section of the country. The new corporation can exercise many profitable and important functions which neither a bank nor a trust company has authority to exercise, and can take advantage of many sound and profitable financial opportunities, frequently presented in the course of business of the two banks, but not available to them, because of the restrictions upon their powers and activities.

The following is the Plan of Reorganization agreed upon by the Officers and Directors of the two banks, and approved by formal Resolutions of the Trustees, under the Trustees' Agreement for the National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company.

1. There has been organized under the laws of the State of Delaware, a corporation known as The BancoKentucky Company, with an authorized capital of 2,000,000 shares, having a par value of Ten ($10.00) Dollars each. The stock will be exchanged or sold, in accordance with this Plan, on the basis of Twenty-five ($25.00) Dollars per share, which will give the Company a capital of Twenty Million ($20,000,000.00) Dollars, and a surplus of Thirty Million ($30,000,000.00) Dollars, or a total capital and surplus of Fifty Million ($50,000,000.00) Dollars. No stock will be sold by the Company at less than Twenty-five ($25.00) Dollars per share.

2. The corporation is given broad charter powers, including the right to acquire stocks, bonds and other securities of other corporations, and evidences of indebtedness created or issued by other corporations; the power to underwrite securities and take part in syndicate management, and to charge fees and commissions for its services in connection with the reorganization or refinancing of other corporations; the power to issue bonds and to guarantee the obligations of others and to become surety, guarantor and endorser thereof. The foregoing is merely a brief summary of the broad powers given the corporation; complete details of these powers appear in the Certificate of Incorporation of the Company, copies of which may be examined at the offices of the two banks by any one interested.

3. It is an essential part of this reorganization that the shares of this corporation (or at least a substantial majority thereof) be owned by the Trustees Participation Shareholders, and that it be managed and operated by the Boards of Directors and the officers of the two banks. The BancoKentucky Company, therefore, offers to the Trustees Participation Shareholders of the National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company, through the Trustees as agents in the transaction, its entire capital stock, on the bases and subject to the terms and conditions hereinafter set out:

It is an essential part of this Plan that:

(a) On or before September 19, 1929, the holders of the Trustees Participation Shares must deposit their Certificates with the Trustees for exchange into the shares of The BancoKentucky Company; and for each Participation Share thus deposited, the Trustees will cause to be issued to the holder thereof, Two (2) shares of the stock of the new corporation. In addition thereto the depositing shareholder will have the right to subscribe for as many additional shares of the stock of The BancoKentucky Company as he may desire at the price of Twenty-five ($25.00) Dollars per share subject to allotment ratably if over-subscribed. Trustees Participation Shareholders who fail to deposit their shares on or before September 19, 1929, will be deemed to have waived their rights to thus exchange their shares and subscribe for stock in the new Company, unless the Trustees shall extend the time for deposit and subscription (as they may do in their discretion), in which event the Trustees Participation Shareholders will be deemed to have waived their rights, unless their shares are deposited within the extended time.

(b) The entire Plan of Reorganization, and the deposit and subscription privileges and rights hereinabove set out, are all, and each of them is, conditioned expressly upon the acquisition by the Trustees Participation Shareholders, either by deposit for exchange, or by direct subscription as above, of at least a majority of the shares of The BancoKentucky Company; and further conditioned upon the acquisition by The BancoKentucky Company of at least a majority of the Trustees Participation Shares issued and outstanding as of September 19, 1969.

8. It is the unanimous recommendation of your Officers, Directors and Trustees of the National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company, that the Trustees Participation Shareholders immediately deposit their shares under this Reorganization Plan, and that they exercise their right to subscribe to the additional shares of stock of The BancoKentucky Company.

There is enclosed herewith a subscription form covering this transaction, which you are asked to sign at your earliest opportunity and deposit with the Trustees, together with your Certificate or Certificates for Trustees Participation Shares, endorsed in blank and witnessed. There will be issued to you an Interim Receipt for the shares deposited which, when the Plan has become effective as above set forth, may be presented for exchange for the permanent certificates of the BancoKentucky Company, in accordance with the Plan of Reorganization.

CONSENT OF ADVISORY COMMITTEE

Louisville, Kentucky

To the Trustees of the Stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky and
The Louisville Trust Company
under Agreement dated April 22, 1927.

Gentlemen:

It having been determined by unanimous vote of the Board of Directors of the National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company, at their regular meeting on September 27, 1929, that it is to the best interest of the National Bank of Kentucky to surrender its National Charter and become incorporated as a State Bank, pursuant to Section 589 of Carroll's Kentucky Statutes, the undersigned, constituting a majority of the Advisory Committee under Clause II of the Trust Agreement dated April 22, 1927, in order to consummate the denationalization of said Bank and to organize its successor under the laws of Kentucky, do hereby consent in writing that the Trustees under said Trust Agreement may adopt any and all resolutions which may be legally required to place the National Bank of Kentucky in voluntary liquidation under the provisions of Sections 5220 and 5221 of the United States Revised Statutes; and they may likewise waive any and all notices required by law to be given prior to the adoption of said resolution or resolutions.

Following the incorporation of said State Bank, it is contemplated that a contract will be executed by the State Bank and the National Bank, whereby the former will acquire all the assets, rights and franchises of the latter, and that the former corporation will issue its authorized capital stock, consisting of forty thousand (40,000) shares of the par value of $100.00 each, against the assets thus received. The Trustees are hereby authorized to become a party to this Agreement for the purpose of accepting and receiving a certificate for the thirty ~~nine~~ eight thousand ~~nine~~ seven hundred and ~~seventy~~ sixty six ~~(39,976)~~ 38726 shares of said stock, for the account of the indivisible trust estate created under said Trust Agreement, which they are authorized to substitute for a like number of shares, now held by them, of the National Bank of Kentucky. The Trustees are thereupon authorized to forthwith cancel the certificates evidencing the thirty ~~nine~~ eight thousand ~~nine~~ seven hundred and ~~seventy~~ sixty six ~~(39,976)~~ 38726 shares of the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky, and to hold thirty ~~nine~~ eight thousand ~~nine~~ seven hundred and ~~seventy~~ sixty six ~~(39,976)~~ 38726 shares of the stock of the State Bank in lieu thereof as part of said indivisible trust estate, subject to all the terms and conditions of said Trust Agreement, and for the uses and purposes therein defined, and with like powers in relation to the management and control thereof.

The Trustees are hereby authorized generally to do and perform all acts and things which may be necessary and which are required of them as such to consummate the objects and purposes hereinabove set forth.

The foregoing action being taken pursuant to Article 3 - Sections 4 and 8 of said Trust Agreement.

A meeting of the Trustees for the stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky was held in the Directors' room, this date, at the hour of 3:00 P.M. Those present and voting were:

Henry Vogt, Chairman, Thomas J. Minary, Stuart E. Duncan, Allen P. Dodd and Ben Metcalfe. The Secretary, Mr. John S. Akers, was also present.

The minutes of the Meeting of October 7th, after reading, were approved.

Authorization for contract between The National Bank of Kentucky, The Bank of Kentucky and The Trustees.

On motion duly seconded and carried, a resolution was adopted authorizing Henry Vogt, as Chairman, (or in his absence the Vice-Chairman) and Mr. John S. Akers, Secretary, to execute a contract between The National Bank of Kentucky, The Bank of Kentucky and The Trustees, copy of which is hereinafter set forth:

AGREEMENT

"AGREEMENT made and entered into this 11th day of October, 1929, between THE NATIONAL BANK OF KENTUCKY, a banking association organized under the laws of the United States, party of the first part; THE BANK OF KENTUCKY, a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Kentucky, party of the second part; and HENRY VOGT, STUART E. DUNCAN, T. J. MINARY, ALLEN DODD , CHARLES H. BOHMER, AND BEN J. METCALFE, Trustees under the Agreement between the stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company, dated April 22, 1927, parties of the third part.

WITNESSETH:

WHEREAS, by resolution, concurred in by more than two-thirds of its outstanding stock, at a meeting held at Louisville, Kentucky, on October 7, 1929, first party has been authorized to dissolve under Sections 5220 and 5221 of the United States Revised Statutes, and

WHEREAS, second party has been organized under the laws of the Commonwealth of Kentucky (Section 589, Carroll's Kentucky Statutes), for the purpose of acquiring all the assets and assuming all the liabilities (except circulation) of the first party to the end that first party may be converted into a State Bank, pursuant to the provisions of said laws, and

WHEREAS, third parties are the owners and holders of 39406 shares, out of 40,000 shares issued and outstanding, of first party's capital stock, holding same as Trustees under the Agreement aforesaid, and having been duly authorized under the terms of said Agreement to enter into this contract for the purposes hereinafter set forth,

E 5

NOW, THEREFORE, the premises considered, and for other good and valuable considerations, the first party hereby bargains, sells, conveys and transfers to the second party all of its assets of every kind, character and description, and agrees to execute and deliver to second party, upon demand, proper deeds, conveyances, bills of sale, assignments and or other instruments evidencing such transfer and sale as may be appropriate or necessary to vest second party with legal title thereto.

IN CONSIDERATION WHEREOF, second party hereby assumes and agrees to discharge and satisfy all obligations and liabilities of ffrst party, whatsoever, excepting that second party does not assume or agree to discharge the outstanding circulation of first party, but it is agreed that first party shall, as provided by the Acts of Congress, deposit within six months from date of liquidation with the Comptroller of Currency, lawful money of the United States sufficient in amount to retire and discharge said circulation.

2. First party now has outstanding 40,000 shares of its capital stock, par value $100.00 each, of which 18406 shares are held by third parties as Trustees under said Trust Agreement, 320 shares are held by the present Directors of the Bank as required by law (thirty-two Directors holding 10 shares each), and the remaining 1274 shares are held by five individual stockholders. It is agreed that all of said outstanding shares shall be called in for cancellation and retirement, and, in lieu thereof, second party shall issue its entire capital stock, consisting of 40,000 shares, to the above-named holders of first party's shares, ratably, upon surrender of the old certificates for cancellation.

3. Third parties shall substitute the certificates, evidencing second party's stock, for the certificates of first party, in the indivisible trust estate created under said Agreement, and thereafter, the said certificates of second party's stock shall be held by third parties subject to the terms and conditions of said Trust Agreement, and for the uses and purposes therein set forth, with full powers in relation to the management and control thereof, as in the first instance given in said Agreement in respect of the shares of the National Bank of Kentucky.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, first party has caused this agreement to be executed by James B. Brown, President, attested by C. F. Jones, Cashier, thereunto duly authorized by the Board of Directors of first party by resolution dated October 11th 1929; and second party has caused this agreement to be executed by James B Brown President attested by C.F. Jones Cashier thereunto duly authorized by the Board of Directors of second party by resolution dated October 1929; and third parties have caused this instrument to be executed by Henry Vogt, Chairman of the Trustees, and attested by John S. Akers, Secretary, thereunto duly authorized at a meeting of the Trustees held on October 11th 1929, pursuant to consent given by the Advisory Committee under date of October 4, 1929 - all done at Louisville, Jefferson County, Kentucky, this 11th day of October, 1929.

A meeting of the Trustees was held on this date at the office of The National Bank of Kentucky at the hour of 3:00 P. M. and the following Trustees were present:

Henry Vogt, Chairman, Thomas J. Minary, Stuart E. Duncan, Allen P. Dodd and Ben Metcalfe. Mr. Akers, the Secretary, was also present.

The minutes of the meeting of October 11th, after reading, were approved.

Explanation by Secretary of extension of liquidation date from Oct. 15th to Nov. 15th, 1929.

Mr. Akers, Secretary, stated that under the terms of the resolution adopted by the stockholders on October 7, 1929, the effective date of liquidation of the National Bank of Kentucky had been fixed therein at the close of business on October 15, 1929; that it had been discovered since said meeting that certain details in connection with the liquidation could not be accomplished within the time specified (that is, by close of business on October 15, 1929) and that, therefore, it was necessary to extend the time of the effective date of the liquidation to November 15, 1929; that the Comptroller of the Currency had been notified of this fact and had given his approval of the change in the date; that a meeting of the stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky had been called for the purpose of rescinding the former resolution and re-adopting same in identical terms except that the effective date would be changed from October 15, 1929 to November 15, 1929.

Consent of Advisory Committee to liquidate National Bank of Kentucky effective Nov. 15, 1929

On motion duly seconded and unanimously carried, a resolution was adopted approving the rescinding of the resolution of liquidation of October 7, 1929 and the adoption of another resolution identical in terms, except that the effective date of liquidation would be changed from October 15, 1929 to November 15, 1929, and authorizing Henry Vogt, as Chairman, and John S. AMENDMENT TO THE AGREEMENT OF NOVEMBER 15, 1987
UNIFYING SHARES OF THE LOUISVILLE NATIONAL COMPANY WITH SHARES OF THE LOUISVILLE TRUST COMPANY

THIS AGREEMENT made and entered into this 1st day of February, 1988, between THE LOUISVILLE TRUST COMPANY, successor to The Louisville Bank & Trust Company which in turn succeeded The Louisville National Bank & Trust Company, (hereinafter called the TRUST COMPANY) party of the first part; OSCAR H. BLOCH, GEORGE O. BOOMER and ROBERT F. VAUGHAN, their successors in trust (hereinafter called the TRUSTEES), parties of the second part; HENRY VOGT, STUART H. DUNCAN, CHARLES H. [illegible], ALLEN P. DODD, THOMAS J. KINART, and BEN J. METCALFE, Trustees for the stockholders of the National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company under agreement dated April 22, 1987, transferees and successors of the stockholders of The Louisville National Bank & Trust Company, (hereinafter called the BANK TRUSTEES) parties of the third part; and THE LOUISVILLE NATIONAL COMPANY, a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Kentucky, (hereinafter called the COMPANY) party of the fourth part,

W I T N E S S E T H :

WHEREAS, on November 15, 1987 an agreement was entered into between The Louisville National Bank & Trust Company of the first part, Ben J. Metcalfe, George O. Boomer, Robert F. Vaughan of the second part; William W. Crawford, David C. Morton, and other stockholders of The Louisville National Bank of the third part, and The Louisville National Company of the fourth part, under the terms of which the shares of the COMPANY were unified with the shares of The Louisville National Bank & Trust Company, and for the purposes of such unification the certificates evidencing the shares of the COMPANY were issued to and lodged with said Ben J. Metcalfe, George O. Boomer and Robert F. Vaughan as trustees, and have been continuously since and are now in the custody of said trustees, and

Exhibit 8

WHEREAS, on the ____ day of _____, 1929, third parties acquired all of the stock of The Louisville National Bank & Trust Company and thereafter said Bank surrendered its national charter and became incorporated under the laws of the State of Kentucky as The Louisville Bank & Trust Company, which Bank was thereafter merged and consolidated with first party hereto, whereby first party succeeded to all rights, franchises and assets of The Louisville National Bank & Trust Company including its rights and obligations under the contract of November 15, 1927 as aforesaid, and in turn the third parties hereto succeeded to all of the rights of the third parties to said agreement ~~by virtue of the purchase of the shares of~~ as transferred said third parties in said The Louisville National Bank & Trust Company, and

WHEREAS, it is now desired by all the parties to this AGREEMENT that the shares of the COMPANY be unified with the shares of the first party, and thus make effective the said consolidation in relation to the COMPANY and the administration of its affairs,

NOW, THEREFORE, IN CONSIDERATION OF THE PREMISES, And by agreement of all parties in interest and their legal successors and assigns, the contract of November 15, 1927 is hereby amended in the following particulars:

1. Ben J. Metcalfe having resigned as trustee, Oscar R. Bloch is hereby designated and appointed as his successor in trust, so that the TRUSTEES under this AGREEMENT from henceforth (until further change by resignation or by removal of any one or more of the TRUSTEES) shall be Oscar R. Bloch, George O. Beemer and Robert F. Vaughan.

2. Each shareholder of the TRUST COMPANY shall be entitled to a beneficial interest in all of the shares of the capital stock of the COMPANY from time to time held by the TRUSTEES, ratably with all other stockholders of the TRUST COMPANY who have a beneficial interest in the shares of the capital stock of the COMPANY, in proportion to the number of shares of the capital stock of the TRUST COMPANY held by each such shareholder and represented by certificates of the stock of the TRUST COMPANY bearing endorsement as hereinafter provided. Said beneficial interests shall not be transferable separately, but only by the transfer of the shares of stock of the TRUST COMPANY held by the BANK TRUSTEES and represented by certificates containing reference to this AGREEMENT; and every sale or transfer of the stock of the TRUST COMPANY shall include the beneficial interest in the capital stock of the COMPANY; PROVIDED, HOWEVER, the TRUSTEES may transfer from their holdings from time to time not exceeding three shares to each Director for the purpose of qualifying him as such, the certificates for the qualifying shares to be endorsed respectively by the Directors to whom they are issued and held by the TRUSTEES along with the other stock of the COMPANY held in their names.

5. There shall be incorporated in all certificates of stock of the COMPANY at any time held by the TRUSTEES herein the following:

> "The shares of stock of THE LOUISVILLE NATIONAL COMPANY represented by the within certificate, are held by the TRUSTEES therein named and their successors in trust, according to the terms of a certain agreement dated November 15, 1927, as amended February 1, 1930, between THE LOUISVILLE TRUST COMPANY, party of the first part, OSCAR W. BLOCH, GEORGE O. BOOMER, ROBERT F. VAUGHAN (as TRUSTEES), parties of the second part, HENRY VOGT, STUART R. DUNCAN, CHARLES H. BOERER, ALLEN P. DODD, THOMAS J. MINARY, and BEN J. METCALFE, Trustees for the stockholders of the NATIONAL BANK OF KENTUCKY and THE LOUISVILLE TRUST COMPANY, parties of the third part, and THE LOUISVILLE NATIONAL COMPANY, party of the fourth part, for the benefit according to their respective interests of the registered holders of the certificates for shares of the capital stock of THE LOUISVILLE TRUST COMPANY."

4. All dividends declared upon the capital stock of the COMPANY and all distribution of the capital thereof, received by the TRUSTEES shall be paid to the BANK TRUSTEES, or to the TRUST COMPANY for their account, or in such manner as they may direct. In any event, payment by the TRUSTEES in accordance with the direction of the BANK TRUSTEES shall relieve the former of any further liability with respect thereto.

5. The TRUSTEES from time to time, upon written consent of the BANK TRUSTEES may subscribe for, acquire, receive and hold additional shares of the capital stock of the COMPANY, and they shall cause the certificates representing all additional shares acquired and held by them to be endorsed as provided in Clause 3 above. Any such increase in stock shall be held subject to the terms of this AGREEMENT. Upon written consent of the BANK

TRUSTEES and of the Directors of the TRUST COMPANY or a majority of each of said bodies, the TRUSTEES may vote in favor of or consent to any increase, decrease or classification of the capital stock, or amendment or alteration of the certificate of incorporation of the COMPANY, which they may from time to time deem advisable, and which may be permitted by law.

8. The number of TRUSTEES herein shall not be less than three. Any trustee may at any time resign. Whenever any vacancy in the number of TRUSTEES shall occur, it shall be filled by the appointment, by an instrument in writing signed by the remaining TRUSTEES or TRUSTEE, of any person (a Director of the TRUST COMPANY) selected by them or him. The Board of Directors of the TRUST COMPANY or a majority thereof may at any time by a writing signed by the majority of them and filed with the TRUSTEES, remove any of the TRUSTEES herein named or their successors in office.

9. This AGREEMENT may be at any time amended or modified by the written consent of the TRUSTEES, concurred in by the written consent of the BANK TRUSTEES or a majority thereof.

10. The agreement of November 15, 1927, is to the extent herein indicated, amended and modified; but in all other respects, the said agreement shall remain in full force and effect as modified and amended herein.

IN THE EVENT WHEREOF, THE LOUISVILLE TRUST COMPANY has caused this instrument to be executed by its President or by one of its Vice-Presidents; THE LOUISVILLE NATIONAL COMPANY has caused it to be executed by its PRESIDENT or one of its Vice-Presidents; and the parties of the third part have caused this instrument to be executed on their behalf by HENRY VOGT, Chairman; and the parties of the second part have hereunto set their hands this 1st day of February, 1930.

THIS AGREEMENT, made and entered into as of November 15, 1927, between THE LOUISVILLE NATIONAL BANK & TRUST COMPANY, (hereinafter called the BANK), party of the first part; BEN J. METCALFE, GEORGE O. BOOMER and ROBERT F. VAUGHAN and their successors in trust (Hereinafter called the TRUSTEES), parties of the second part; and WILLIAM W. CRAWFORD, DAVID C. MORTON and all other owners and holders of the shares of the BANK uniting in this agreement by affixing their signatures hereto or to a counterpart hereof or by depositing their stock as hereinafter provided (hereinafter called BANK STOCKHOLDERS) parties of the third part; and the LOUISVILLE NATIONAL COMPANY, a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Kentucky (hereinafter called the COMPANY), party of the fourth part;

W I T N E S S E T H:

WHEREAS, the BANK, pursuant to the plan of reorganization authorized at the shareholders meeting on July 18, 1927, has sold twenty-five hundred (2500) additional shares of its stock at a premium sufficient to provide for the authorized capital of the COMPANY in the sum of One Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars ($150,000.00); and

WHEREAS, the COMPANY has been organized under the laws of the State of Kentucky, as a part of said plan of reorganization, to take over the Bond Department, to conduct a mortgage finance business and such other business within its charter powers as its Board of Directors may from time to time determine;

NOW, THEREFORE, and to consummate said plan of reorganization and to provide the capital for the COMPANY, the parties have agreed this day, as follows:

(1) Each shareholder of the BANK becoming a party to this agreement by either of the methods hereinafter referred to shall be entitled to a beneficial interest in all of the shares of the capital stock of the COMPANY from time to time held by the TRUSTEES under this agreement, ratably with all other shareholders of the BANK who have a beneficial interest in such shares of the capital stock of the COMPANY in proportion to the number of shares of the capital stock of the BANK held by each such shareholder and represented by certificates of the stock of the BANK bearing endorsement as hereinafter provided. The beneficial interests of the BANK

STOCKHOLDERS therein shall not be transferable separately, but only by the transfer of the shares of stock of the BANK held by said BANK STOCKHOLDERS respectively, and represented by certificates containing reference to this agreement; and every sale or transfer of the stock of the BANK by any present or future BANK STOCKHOLDER or his assigns, shall include the beneficial interest of such BANK STOCKHOLDER and his assigns in the capital stock of the COMPANY, at the time held by the TRUSTEES or their successors under this agreement. Provided, however, the TRUSTEES may transfer from their holdings from time to time not exceeding three (3) shares to each director of the COMPANY for the purpose of qualifying him as such, the certificates for such qualifying shares to be endorsed respectively by the directors to whom they are issued and held by the TRUSTEES along with the other stock of the COMPANY held in their names.

(2) In order to facilitate participation by the BANK STOCKHOLDERS in the privilege specified in the foregoing article, the BANK agrees, upon deposit by the BANK STOCKHOLDERS of their old certificates of the stock of the BANK for cancellation and for reissue under the terms of this agreement, to declare a special dividend in the sum of $150,000.00, of which $75,000.00 will be payable December 28th, 1927, and the balance January 3, 1928. The said dividend (and each installment thereof) shall be paid to the COMPANY for the account of the BANK STOCKHOLDERS of record as of December 20, 1927, and all BANK STOCKHOLDERS becoming parties hereto in either of the methods hereinafter provided hereby expressly authorize, direct and empower the officers and directors of the BANK to pay said dividend (and each installment thereof) directly to the COMPANY, thus providing the capital of the COMPANY in accordance with the general plan of reorganization above referred to, whereupon the COMPANY agrees that it will issue a certificate or certificates for its said capital stock to the TRUSTEES which will be held by them and their successors in office for the benefit of the BANK STOCKHOLDERS, under the terms of this agreement.

(3) A copy of this agreement has been mailed to all BANK STOCKHOLDERS at their respective addresses, together with a request for the deposit of their certificates of the stock of the BANK for cancellation and reissue in new certificates which contain reference to this agreement. The Bank STOCKHOLDERS shall become parties to this agreement by affixing their signatures hereto, or to a counterpart hereof, or by depositing their old certificates of the stock of the BANK for such cancellation and reissue. Deposit of shares under this agreement shall constitute the depositor a party hereto as effectually and as fully as though his signature was affixed hereto or to a counterpart hereof.

(4) There shall be incorporated in all certificates of stock of the COMPANY at any time held by the TRUSTEES hereunder the following:

> "The shares of stock of THE LOUISVILLE NATIONAL COMPANY represented by the within certificate, are held by the TRUSTEES therein named and their successors in trust, according to the terms of a certain agreement dated November 15, 1927, between THE LOUISVILLE NATIONAL BANK & TRUST COMPANY, party of the first part, BEN J. METCALFE, GEORGE O. BOOMER and ROBERT F. VAUGHAN (as Trustees) parties of the second part, and WILLIAM W. CRAWFORD, DAVID C. MORTON and such owners and holders of the shares of the BANK as may unite in said agreement by affixing their signatures thereto or to a counterpart thereof, or by depositing their stock as therein provided, parties of the third part, and THE LOUISVILLE NATIONAL COMPANY, party of the fourth part, for the benefit, according to their respective interest, of the registered holders of certificates for shares of the capital stock of THE LOUISVILLE NATIONAL BANK & TRUST COMPANY."

(5) All dividends declared upon the capital stock of the COMPANY, and all distributions of capital thereof, received by the TRUSTEES, may be paid by the TRUSTEES to the BANK STOCKHOLDERS according to their respective interests, or to the BANK for their account; and the BANK in such case shall thereupon distribute such dividends among those entitled to receive same. Payment by the TRUSTEES to the BANK shall relieve them from all further liability with respect thereto.

(6) The TRUSTEES, from time to time, upon written consent of the directors of the BANK or majority thereof, may subscribe for, acquire, receive and hold additional shares of the capital stock of the COMPANY, and they shall cause the certificates representing all additional shares acquired and held by them to be endorsed as provided in Clause Four hereof and no BANK STOCKHOLDER shall, by virtue of his beneficial interest in the stock of the COMPANY held by the TRUSTEES, or otherwise, have any right of preemption in respect to any additional or increased stock of the COMPANY, whether or not the same shall be issued for money, but any and all such rights shall belong exclusively to the TRUSTEES, who may exercise or waive the same in their discretion, or transfer or cause same to be transferred to the BANK STOCKHOLDERS upon such terms and conditions as they may in their discretion deem advisable. The TRUSTEES may, from time to time, upon written consent of the directors of the BANK or a majority thereof, vote in favor of, or consent to, any increase, decrease or classification of the capital stock, or amendment or alteration of the certificate of incorporation of the COMPANY, which they may, from time to time, deem advisable and which may be permitted by law.

(7) The number of TRUSTEES hereunder shall not be less than three. Any TRUSTEE may, at any time, resign. Whenever any vacancy in the number of the TRUSTEES shall occur, it shall be filled by the appointment, by an instrument in writing signed by the remaining TRUSTEES or TRUSTEE, of any person (a stockholder of the BANK), selected by them or him. The Board of Directors of the BANK, or a majority thereof, may at any time by a writing signed by a majority of them and filed with the TRUSTEES remove any of the TRUSTEES , or any of them, herein designated or their successors.

(8) The TRUSTEES may adopt rules for the conduct of their own meetings, keeping such record of their official action as may be deemed by them to be proper or necessary.

(9) No TRUSTEE shall be liable for the acts of any other TRUSTEE, but shall be liable only for his own wilful misconduct. The TRUSTEES may act by a majority, either at a meeting or by writing with or without a meeting; they may vote in person or by proxy upon any and all subjects; and they may appoint agents and attorneys-in-fact and invest them with such powers as they deem proper.

(10) The term "TRUSTEES" used in this agreement shall include the TRUSTEES herein specifically named and their successors appointed or elected in the manner herein provided; and all the powers herein conferred by the TRUSTEES specifically named, shall be vested in, given to, and exercised by their successors duly appointed and elected.

(11) This agreement may at any time be amended or modified by the written consent of the TRUSTEES and of two-thirds (2/3) in interest of the shareholders of the BANK.

Henry Vogt, Chairman; Thomas J. Minary, Stuart E. Duncan and Ben J. Metcalfe. Mr. John S. Akers, Secretary, was also present.

APPROVAL OF PREVIOUS MINUTES.

The Minutes of the meetings of February first and March fifteenth, after reading, were approved.

STOCKHOLDERS OPINION RE: LIQUIDATION NATL BK KY

The Secretary, Mr. Akers, reported that under the terms of the resolution adopted by the stockholders on December 20th, 1929, the effective date of liquidation of the National Bank of Kentucky had been fixed therein at the close of business March 29, 1930; that it had been discovered since said meeting it is the unanimous opinion of all the stockholders and directors of the National Bank of Kentucky that the plan formerly agreed upon to surrender the national charter of this Bank and convert same into a state bank, under the laws of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, shall be now abandoned, and that said banking association should remain and continue to be a member of the national system.

MOTION FAVORABLY RESCINDING RESOLUTION TO LIQUIDATE NATIONAL BANK OF KENTUCKY

On motion duly seconded and unanimously carried, Henry Vogt as Chairman of the Trustees and John S. Akers as Secretary of the Trustees were authorized to cast the vote of the Trustees favorably rescinding resolution of December 20th, 1929 in its entirety, to the end that the National Bank of Kentucky shall remain a member of the national banking system; and, further, to execute written waiver of the stockholders meeting on behalf of the Trustees.

Mr. Bohmer presided as Chairman at the meeting and Mr. Metcalfe acted as Secretary.

ISSUANCE OF DUPLICATE CTF IN LIEU LOST CTF:

The Trustees unanimously adopted a resolution authorizing the Louisville Trust Company, Transfer Agents, to issue a duplicate of certificate No. 1604 for two hundred forty (240) shares (Trustees Participation) registered in the name of CALVIN M. FACKLER, dated September 20th, 1929, under the guarantee of The Louisville Trust Company to hold harmless the Trustees from loss or damage that might occur by reason of the lost certificate and the issuing of a duplicate thereof.

Guarantee of Louisville Trust Co:

For the purpose of record, said guarantee, approved by the Trustees, and signed by the President and Secretary of The Louisville Trust Company, is copied in full herewith and made a part of these minutes::

"Mr. John S. Akers,
Secretary of the Trustees,
Louisville, Ky.

Dear Sir:-

On September 20, 1929, we mailed Interim Receipt No.1604 for Two hundred forty (240) shares (Trustees Participation), and registered in the name of Calvin M. Fackler to him at 850 West Lexington Street, Lexington, Kentucky, but this was not his address and the certificate and the letter came back to us, containing the certificate, and was subsequently lost.

In view of the foregoing, we desire that the Trustees cause to be issued in lieu of certificate No. 1604 for 240 shares, a duplicate thereof, in the name of Calvin M. Fackler and, to that end we now do hereby agree that if the Trustees will issue the duplicate certificate in lieu of said certificate No. 1604 aforesaid and as herein directed, we will save harmless the Trustees from any loss or damage that may be occasioned by reason of the lost certificate and the issuing of the duplicate herein requested.

There being present in person, by proxy or by representation 560,639 shares out of a total of 570,450, the chairman announced that a quorum was present and proceeded with the purposes of the meeting.

After a statement by Mr. T. Kennedy Helm explaining the purpose of the call of the meeting was made, showing the imperative necessity for the dissolution of the trust in order that the National Bank of Kentucky or the Louisville Trust Company, either one or the other, might be reopened and the necessity for the separation of the stock in order to afford the reopening of either of said institutions if the opportunity presented itself, and after discussions by various of the stockholders present, going into detail as to the effect of the dissolution of the trust, on motion of Fred W. Bonte, seconded by Mrs. Hattie B. Speed, the following resolution was offered:

BE IT RESOLVED:

That the Trust Agreement of April 22, 1927, between the holders of the stock in the National Bank of Kentucky and The Louisville Trust Company, as amended, be and is hereby terminated and the interest in said trust of the holders of the Participation Trustees' Shares be distributed to such holders of Participating Trustees' Shares:

Provided, however, that such termination and/or distribution shall be without prejudice to any right or rights of the holders of such Participating Trustees' Shares against the trustees or either of them, and/or the directors of The Louisville Trust Company, and/or the directors of the National Bank of Kentucky, and/or either of them.

On motion seconded and carried, the vote on said resolution was taken upon the call of the roll of those present. On the call of the roll the following stock was voted for said resolution:

A special meeting of the Trustees of the Louisville Trust Company and the National Bank of Kentucky was held on Wednesday, June 3rd, 1931, at 4:00 o'clock P. M. with the following Trustees present to-wit:

Messrs. Ben J. Metcalfe, Stuart E. Duncan, Allen P. Dodd, Thomas J. Minary, and Charles H. Bohmer,

Mr. Vogt having been notified of the proposed meeting but necessarily out of town and, therefore, absent. Accordingly, Mr. Charles H. Bohmer presided at the meeting.

Attention of the Trustees was called to the fact that in action No. 208,402, styled The BancoKentucky Company by Joseph Laurent, its Receiver, vs. Henry Vogt, et al, the trustees, a judgment was entered by the Hon. Lafon Allen, Judge of the Jefferson Circuit Court, Chancery Branch, Second Division, which said judgment so entered was in words and figures as follows:

"This action coming on to be heard upon the petition of the plaintiffs and the answer of the defendants seeking a declaration of rights respecting the distribution of the shares of corporate stock (hereinafter described) held in trust by the defendants for the benefit of plaintiffs and others, and the court being advised, ordered and adjudged as follows:

1. The defendants as Trustees under a trust agreement with reference to stock in the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company, dated April 22, 1927, now hold 39,820 shares of the capital stock of the National Bank of Kentucky, par value $100 each, and 17,235 shares of the capital stock of the Louisville Trust Company, par value $100 each, in indivisible trust for the use and benefit of the plaintiff and other holders and owners of Trustees Participation Certificates representing in all 570,550 Trustees Participation shares issued by said trustees pursuant to the provisions of said trust agreement.

2. That said trust was dissolved on December 26, 1930, by resolution duly adopted at a meeting of the owners of said Trustees Participation Certificates, and it then became the duty of the defendants to distribute said trust estate by transferring to the respective holders and owners of said Trustees Participation Certificates 69.792305% of a share of National Bank of Kentucky stock and 30.207695% of a share of Louisville Trust Company stock for each 10 Trustees Participation shares so owned.

3. It further appearing to the court that the plaintiffs herein are now and were at the time of the dissolution of said trust the owners of 540,484 Trustees Participation shares and held the certificates therefor, it is now ordered that the defendants transfer and deliver to the plaintiff, Joseph S. Laurent, Receiver of the BancoKentucky Company, 37721.624 shares of the capital stock of the National Bank of Kentucky and 16326.77 shares of the capital stock of the Louisville Trust Company upon the surrender to said defendants by said plaintiff of the Trustees Participation Certificates for the aforesaid Trustees Participation shares held by plaintiff.

Upon the surrender of said Trustees Participation Certificates same shall be cancelled by defendants.

4. This action is referred to the Commissioner of this court with directions to cause notice to be sent to each of the holders of Trustees Participation shares, as shown by the list thereof herein filed by defendants, and said Commissioner shall notify said holders to present and file with said Commissioner within days from this date their said certificates, with any claims they may have, to a distribution of the aforesaid trust estate in the proportions above set out.

5. This judgment may be executed immediately as to distribution to plaintiff and the action is retained for such orders as may be necessary to complete the distribution to other certificate holders in above proportions."

It appearing from said judgment that the Jefferson Circuit Court had ordered the Trustees to deliver to the BancoKentucky Company its pro rata part of the stock of the Louisville Trust Company and National Bank of Kentucky due it as the holder of 540,484 Trustees Participating Receipts out of a total of 570,550 shares issued and outstanding, and in obedience to said judgment and in order to do and perform the duties and obligations placed upon said Trustees by the said judgment and to dissolve said trust in accordance with the resolution of Participating Trustees' Receipt-holders adopted at their meeting held on December 26, 1930, on motion duly seconded the following resolution was offered and unanimously adopted:

RESOLVED By the Trustees of the Louisville Trust Company and National Bank of Kentucky that the 39,820 shares of the capital stock of the National Bank of Kentucky owned and held by the Trustees as a part of said trust estate be surrendered by the Trustees to the National Bank of Kentucky for transfer as hereinafter set forth, and that the 17,235 shares of capital stock of the Louisville Trust Company held by the Trustees be surrendered to the Louisville Trust Company for transfer as hereinafter set forth, which said stocks make up the total of the trust estate held by the Trustees under the trust agreement dated April 22, 1927.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that in obedience to said judgment of said Jefferson Circuit Court, as aforesaid, the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company be and each of them are now authorized. that is to say, the National

Have you available a list of names of trust companies that have been involved in unification within the last few years?

We have under consideration, the question of unification with the National Bank of Kentucky, of this city, and would like to get in communication with other banks or trust companies that have passed through this experience.

Any information you can let us have about this matter will be appreciated.

Very truly yours,

Mr. Anston Mix,
Vice President, Louisville Trust Company,
Louisville, Ky.

Dear Sir:

Receipt is acknowledged of your letter of March 21, requesting a list of banks and trust companies that have consolidated within the last few years, and in reply you are advised that this office has no list available of national bank that have merged with state banks.

If the Louisville Trust Company desires to consolidate with the National Bank of Kentucky of Louisville as proposed the consolidation can be effected under the Act of February 25, 1927. You are advised, however, that under the rules of this office it will be necessary for an examination to be made of the Trust Company prior to approval of the proposed consolidation.

Before this examination is made it will be necessary for the Trust Company to forward a letter to this office consenting to the examination and agreeing to pay the expense thereof. The expense of the examination will be the per diem of the Examiner and assistants, if necessary, together with the actual expense incurred for travel and subsistence.

Respectfully,

Deputy Comptroller.

Dear Sir:-

Your letter of the 22nd.

[illegible]tative plans between this institution [illegible] National Bank of Kentucky do not call for a merger but rather an affiliation or unification. Of course, if the plan is perfected, this Company will be very glad to comply with any requests from your Department.

What we are trying to get is the names of institutions that have passed through a similar experience, and we were hopeful that you might be able to give us some data along this line. If you know of any unifications, rather than mergers, that have taken place between trust companies and banking institutions, we would be glad if you would give us such information.

Very truly yours,

Mr. Huston Quin,
Vice President,
Louisville Trust Company,
Louisville, Kentucky.

Dear Sir:

Your letter of March 25 is received, stating that tentative plans between your Company and the National Bank of Kentucky do not call for a merger but rather an affiliation or unification; that if the plan is perfected your Company will be glad to comply with any requests of this office. You request to be advised of the names of institutions that have passed through a similar experience, and if this office knows of any unifications rather than mergers that have taken place between trust companies and banking institutions.

The question of your Company becoming affiliated or unified with the National Bank of Kentucky is a matter entirely between the two institutions.

If it is the intention of your bank to trustee the stock of one of the corporations, you are advised that the usual procedure followed in cases of this kind is to trustee the stock of the company having a state charter and place on the stock of the national bank a statement with respect to the transfer of the stock of the two associations. If, however, you contemplate trusteeing the stock of the national bank, you are advised that it would not be lawful to do so, as this would disqualify the directors of the national banks.

This office has no list available of national banks and other corporations which have become affiliated in the manner indicated.

Respectfully,

Deputy Comptroller.

James B. Brown, Chairman

At the regular weekly meeting of the Board of Directors of the National Bank of Kentucky of Louisville held this day there were present -

Messrs. Charles C. Mengel, Anthony J. Carrell, John M. Atherton, Brainard Lemon, Joseph H. Durham, Baylor O. Hickman, Thomas J. Minary, Henry Vogt, Alex P. Humphrey, Saunders P. Jones, George M. Clark, Samuel W. Coons and James B. Brown

Minutes of last meeting were read and said minutes and all actions recorded therein are hereby approved and confirmed.

Statement of condition of bank as of March 31st, overdrafts of $100.00 and over and maturities of $5000.00 and over of the succeeding week were read.

Loans taken during the previous week were submitted to the Board and unanimously approved.

Past due paper of $1000.00 and over read.

On motion of Mr. Alex P. Humphrey seconded by Mr. C. C. Mengel the following resolution was unanimously adopted :

BE IT RESOLVED : That the Board of Directors of the National Bank of Kentucky approves the plan of unification of the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky with the stock of the Louisville Trust Company on the basis of the National Bank of Kentucky's stockholders receiving four shares of the new securities or certificates to each one share received by the stockholders of the Louisville Trust Company and on the condition that the charter rights and powers of the two institutions be preserved.

The Board of Directors recommend to the stockholders the deposit of their stock under the plan of unification and the officers are hereby directed to carry into effect this resolution.

It was moved by Mr. John M. Atherton, seconded by Mr. C. C. Mengel and unanimously carried that the President appoint a committee of five, of which he shall be chairman, to represent our Board of Directors in working out the details of the unification of the stock of our bank with that of the Louisville Trust Company. Said committee to act in conjunction with a committee appointed by the Directors of the Louisville Trust Company.

THEREUPON : the President appointed as additional members of this committee Messrs. John M. Atherton, Alex P. Humphrey, Anthony J. Carrell and Henry J. Augermeier.

There being no further business on motion the meeting adjourned.

James B. Brown, Chairman.

At the regular weekly meeting of the Board of Directors of the National Bank of Kentucky of Louisville held this day there were present -

Messrs. Anthony J. Carroll, Brainard Lewon, Joseph H. Durham, Baylor O. Hickman, H. Lee Callahan, Thomas J. Minary, George W. Clark, Henry Vogt, Samuel W. Coons, and James B. Brown.

Minutes of last meeting were read and said minutes and all actions recorded therein are hereby approved and confirmed.

Statement of condition of bank as of April 21st was read.

Loans taken during the past week were submitted to the Board and unanimously approved.

On motion of Mr. A. J. Carroll seconded by Mr. Henry Vogt the following resolution was unanimously adopted :

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF THE NATIONAL BANK OF KENTUCKY AS FOLLOWS :

The present capital stock of this bank is Two Million Five Hundred Thousand ($2,500,000.00) Dollars; its surplus Two Million Five Hundred Thousand ($2,500,000.00) Dollars; undivided profits more than One Million Four Hundred Thousand ($1,400,000) Dollars. A stock dividend of sixty (60%) per cent on the stock of this bank can be declared, making the capital of this bank Four Million ($4,000,000) Dollars, and still leave largely more than twenty(20%) per cent of its capital as surplus. There is , therefore, now declared a stock dividend of sixty (60%) per cent upon the stock of this bank, to be issued to all stockholders of record on the 1st day of June, 1927, subject to the assent of the Controller of the Currency and to the authorization of the owners of two-thirds of the capital stock. A meeting of the stockholders, taking into consideration this resolution, is hereby called to be convened at the banking house at 12 M. on the 27th day of May, 1927, and the officers of the Bank are hereby directed to give notice thereof in the manner required by law.

IT IS FURTHER RESOLVED that the number of directors of this Bank shall be increased from nineteen to forty and to that end a meeting of the stockholders of this bank shall be called to convene at the banking house at 12 M.on the 27th day of May, 1927, for the purpose of authorizing the election of such additional directors and electing the same. The officers of this bank are hereby directed to give due notice of this meeting according to law.

The Committee composed of Messrs. James B. Brown, Alex P. Humphrey, A. J. Carroll, John M. Atherton, and H. J. Angermeier submitted a printed trust agreement setting forth the terms and conditions concerning the unification of the stock of the National Bank of Kentucky and the Louisville Trust Company under date of April 22, 1927, and recommended its approval and adoption by the Board of Directors. On motion of George W. Clark seconded by Henry Vogt the report was adopted and the agreement approved.

There being no further business on motion the meeting adjourned.

This Agreement, entered into this 22d day of April, 1927, between:

Such owners and holders of capital stock in THE NATIONAL BANK OF KENTUCKY, of Louisville, Kentucky, as now unite and such other owners and holders of that stock as may hereafter unite in this agreement by signing it or a counterpart thereof, or by depositing their stock as hereinafter provided, hereinafter referred to as "Bank Stockholders," as parties of the first part; and

274

Such owners and holders of the capital stock of The Louisville Trust Company, of Louisville, Kentucky, as now unite and such other owners and holders of that stock as may hereafter unite in this agreement by signing it or a counterpart thereof, or by depositing their stock as hereinafter provided, hereinafter referred to as "Trust Company Stockholders," as parties of the second part; and

Henry Vogt, Thomas J. Minary, Stuart E. Duncan, Allen P. Dodd, Edwin M. Drummond and Chas. H. Bohmer, hereinafter referred to as "Trustees," as parties of the third part;

WITNESSETH.

The undersigned owners and holders of the shares of capital stock of The National Bank of Kentucky of Louisville (organized under the National Banking Act), and owners and holders of the capital stock of The Louisville Trust Company (organized as a Trust Company under the laws of Kentucky), looking to the best interests of the respective institutions as separate corporate entities, and of each stockholder therein, have determined that such interests require closer co-operation of such Bank and Trust Company, to be of greater service to their respective patrons, and in order to secure such co-operation have agreed upon the plan hereinafter set forth for creating a trust estate to consist of their respective shares of stock in the Bank and in the Trust Company.

I.

APPORTIONMENT OF INTERESTS BETWEEN THE TWO SETS OF STOCKHOLDERS.

At this time the Bank has a capital, surplus and undivided profits of more than $6,800,000, which will be represented by 40,000 shares of its stock when a contemplated stock dividend of 60% has been declared; and The Trust Company has a capital, surplus and undivided profits of more than $1,700,000, represented by 10,000 shares of its stock.

The combined net assets of the two institutions aggregate more than $8,500,000.

In apportioning between the Bank Stockholders and the Trust Company Stockholders the participation shares hereinafter provided for, which represent interests in the Trust Estate, presently consisting of the stocks of said two institutions deposited hereunder, such apportionment shall be made upon the following basis:

The total assets and business of the Bank shall be treated as worth 80% of the combined assets of the Bank and of the Trust Company, and the total assets and business of the Trust Company shall be treated as worth 20% of the combined assets and business of the Bank and of the Trust Company.

The rights of such stockholders in said respective institutions as become a party to this agreement shall be determined on said basis, namely, each shareholder shall receive one participation certificate for each share of stock.

II.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE.

There is hereby created an Advisory Committee, with such powers as are herein conferred, and which shall at all times be composed of the individuals who are the then directors of The Louisville Trust Company and of The National Bank of Kentucky.

In any action to be taken by the Trustees only on the approval of the Advisory Committee, such approval shall be evidenced by a writing filed with the Trustees and signed by a majority of the members from each institution on said Committee.

Said Committee shall have the right by a resolution adopted by them, respectively, to add to their number not more than three of the higher executive officers of each institution who are not already members of the Committee, and such action upon the part of the Advisory Committee, if taken, shall be evidenced by a writing filed with the Trustees.

III.

TERMS OF TRUST.

The Trustees shall hold all assets which shall come into their hands hereunder as one indivisible Trust Estate, the proportionate interest of each shareholder therein being represented by the certificates issued by such Trustees, and the Trustees agree to hold such estate upon the following trust, terms and conditions:

(1) They shall reassign to each person who shall be at the time of signing this agreement a member of the board of directors of The National Bank of Kentucky, or of The Louisville Trust Company, who desires and is eligible a sufficient number of shares of stock in such Bank and Trust Company to qualify him as a director in both institutions.

(2) The Trustees may, out of the shares owned by them, sell and assign absolutely to any holder of a Trustees' Participation Certificate desiring to be elected a director of either of said institutions, the number of shares of stock necessary to legally qualify him for such office. These provisions shall apply to any other stock acquired by the Trustees.

(3) Upon request made in writing not more than 30 nor less than 15 days before any annual election of directors, by the holders of sufficient in amount of Trustees' Participation Certificates to insure his election they shall sell and transfer to a designated person the number of shares of stock necessary to legally qualify him for such office, upon his surrender of sufficient Trustees' Participation Certificates therefor.

(4) In addition to the Trust Estate herein presently provided for, the Trustees shall have power to purchase all or part of the stock of any other corporation of similar character and engaged in a like or similar business, but only with the written consent of the Advisory Committee, as to terms, price and conditions of purchase, and any stock so purchased by the Trustees shall become and be a part of the Trust

276

Estate above referred to, and the Trustees may issue Trustees' Participation Certificates in sufficient amount to pay for the stock so purchased by them. The Trustees may issue such new certificates direct to the holders of the stock so purchased by the Trustees in exchange or payment therefor, in whole or in part, or may sell such Trustees' Participation Certificates to the then holders of such Trustees' Participation Certificates in proportion to their then holding thereof, which right of purchase by such holders shall be assignable. If all the certificates so offered to existing certificate holders be not taken and paid for by them or their assigns within the time fixed by the Trustees in their offering of the same, it shall be the duty of the Trustees to offer for sale such certificates not taken or paid for to any other person or persons.

(5) No certificate shall be issued by the Trustees calling for a fraction of a share, but scrip may be issued for fractions of shares to those entitled thereto, and when scrip representing as much as one full share shall be presented to the Trustees, they shall issue a certificate in lieu of such scrip for as many full shares as said scrip shall call for in the aggregate. No dividends shall be paid on scrip, but when such scrip shall have been converted into

Trustees' Participation Certificates, the rights represented thereby shall be entitled to receive their full share of dividends thereafter declared and theretofore declared during a period not to exceed five years before such conversion.

(6) The Trustees, with the written consent of the Advisory Committee, may sell any stock acquired under Subsection (4) of Article III and the proceeds of sale when collected shall be disposed of by the Trustees with the written consent of the Advisory Committee by:

(a) Either dividing the same among the holders of Trustees' Participation Certificates, in which event the Trustees shall have the right to correspondingly reduce pro rata the number of shares represented by outstanding Trustees' Participation Certificates; or

(b) Using the same in the purchase of stock of corporations engaging in like or similar business; or

(c) Adding to the capital or surplus or capital and surplus of any of the corporations the stock of which is owned by the Trustees.

(7) The Trustees, with the written consent of the Advisory Committee:

(a) Shall have the right to consent to and take any legal action appropriate for an increase or decrease in the capital stock of any corporation, the stock of which may become a part of the Trust Estate;

(b) In case of an increase in the capital stock of any such corporation, the proper proportionate part thereof to which the Trustees may be entitled, may be purchased by them and same shall be added to and become a part of the indivisible Trust Estate held by the Trustees under the same terms and conditions as are herein provided for the stock acquired hereunder;

(c) The Trustees shall thereupon issue additional Trustees' Participation Certificates equal to the par value of such increase of capital stock so purchased by them and shall offer the same pro rata to the then holders of outstanding Trustees' Participation Certificates at a price which will reimburse the Trustees for the purchase price so paid by them.

If any holder of Trustees' Participation Certificates declines or fails within a reasonable time to be fixed by the Trustees, to take his pro rata of such increased issue of certificates, and which right of purchase by such holder shall be assignable, the Trustees shall have the right to sell such certificates to any purchaser for a price not less than that at which the Trustees acquired such stock.

(d) In case either the Bank or Trust Company, or any other institution in which the Trustees shall own stock, shall reduce its outstanding capital stock in the manner provided by law so as to effect a distribution of corporate assets among stockholders, the Trustees shall dispose of said fund as a distribution pro rata among the holders of Trustees' Participation Certificates or, under the written direction of the Advisory Committee, for the benefit of the trust estate, in any other lawful manner.

(8) The Trustees shall have the right, and it shall be their duty subject only to the limitations herein prescribed, to exercise in the interest of the holders of Trustees' Participation Certificates, all of the powers of management and control over any corporation in which they shall hold stock, incident to the ownership of stock held by them hereunder, and their power shall include all rights as stockholders in connection with any corporate purposes or functions whatever and shall authorize them to exercise all voting rights and rights of ownership over such stock in the election of directors or in the discharge of any other corporate functions.

Provided, however, that the owner of record on the books of the Trustees of any Trustees' Participation Certificate, shall have the right by written directions to the Trustees given at least 5 days before the vote is to be cast, to instruct them how they shall vote in the corporate meetings such proportionate number of shares therein owned by the Trustees as the number of shares represented by the Trustees' Participation Certificate owned by such person giving such directions may bear to the total number of shares represented by outstanding Trustees' Participation Certificates and the Trustees shall vote such proportion of stock in accordance with such instruction.

(9) Dividends received by the Trustees on any stock held by them shall be distributed among the holders of Trustees' Participation Certificates; provided, however, that upon the written direction of the Advisory Committee, the Trustees may use any extra dividends, or part thereof, received by the Trustees, for the benefit of the trust estate, in any lawful manner.

(10) The Trustees shall deposit in the Bank or the Trust Company all funds which they receive with directions to such Bank or Trust Company as to the distribution thereof as hereinabove authorized and the making of such deposits and the giving of such directions shall relieve the Trustees of all further responsibility for such dividends. The Trustees shall out of the funds coming into their hands pay the expenses of the organization and conduct of the Trust.

278

(11) The enumeration of powers herein shall not be held to be exclusive of other powers herein referred to or incidental to the powers herein mentioned.

IV.

MEETING OF TRUSTEES' PARTICIPATION CERTIFICATE HOLDERS.

(1) Annual meetings of the registered holders of the Trustees' Participation Certificates shall be held at the office of the Trust Company at Louisville, Kentucky, at 2:30 P. M. on the first Monday in January of each year, unless that be the first day of the year, and in which event it shall be held at the same place and hour upon the following day, at which time and place the Trustees or one or more of them, shall attend, and to which meeting the chief executive officers of all corporations in which the Trustees hold stock shall be requested to attend so as to give information as to the condition and progress of such corporation and to make to such meeting any report that may be proper.

(2) Such meeting may be adjourned to any other time and place in Louisville, Kentucky.

(3) The time and place of such annual meeting may be changed at any annual meeting by a vote of persons holding a majority in amount of the Trustees' Participation Certificates present at the meeting in person or by proxy.

(4) Special meetings of the holders of the Trustees' Participation Certificates may be called by the Trustees

at any time and place in the city of Louisville, and such meetings shall be called upon the written request of the holders of one-third in amount of the Trustees' Participation Certificates.

(5) Notice of all meetings shall be given by the Trustees in writing mailed to the registered address of each certificate holder at least ten days before the meeting, and such notice shall state the purpose for which any special meeting is called; provided, however, that if a special or annual meeting is to consider the termination, dissolution or modification of this Trust, then at least 30 days' notice thereof shall be given in like manner.

(6) The right to vote at any meeting of Participation Certificate Holders shall be restricted to holders of such certificates of record at least 15 days before the annual meeting, and in case of a special meeting 15 days before the notice of such meeting is required to be mailed. Holders of Trustees' Participation Certificates may vote either in person or by proxy, and if by proxy by a writing attested by one person.

V.

APPOINTMENT OF TRUSTEES AND THEIR ORGANIZATION.

(1) Henry Vogt, Thomas J. Minary, Stuart E. Duncan, Allen P. Dodd, Edwin M. Drummond, and Chas. H. Bohmer are hereby chosen as Trustees under this agreement, and they and their successors shall have all the rights, powers and duties herein set forth.

Henry Vogt, Thomas J. Minary, and Stuart E. Duncan, named above, are agreed upon as the Trustees representing the Stockholders of The Bank, and Allen P. Dodd, Edwin M. Drummond, and Chas. H. Bohmer, named above, are agreed upon as the Trustees representing the Stockholders of The Trust Company. Provided: That, upon the written direction of the Advisory Committee, a corporation or corporations duly authorized to act in a fiducial capacity, may be designated as Trustee or Trustees in lieu of the individual Trustees herein provided for. In the event of such change the individual Trustees shall cease to act and the corporation or corporations, so designated, shall alone have and exercise all the powers herein conferred on the Trustees.

(2) Those persons upon the Advisory Committee who shall at the time constitute the Board of Directors of the Bank may at any time by a writing signed by a majority of them and filed with the Trustees, remove any of the Trustees designated by the Bank stockholders, and in like manner those persons upon the Advisory Committee who shall at the time constitute the Board of Directors of The Trust Company may at any time by a writing signed by a majority of them and filed with the Trustees, remove any of the Trustees designated by The Trust Company stockholders; provided, however, that such power shall not be exercised within sixty days prior to the annual meetings of the stockholders of the Bank or The Trust Company.

(3) Upon the death, removal, resignation or refusal to act of any Trustee, or if from any cause there shall be vacancy in the position of any Trustee, the successor of such Trustee shall be elected and certified to the acting Trustees by a writing signed by a majority of those persons who shall at the time constitute the Advisory Committee for the respective institutions, as the case may be, to the end that there shall always be three Trustees appointed on behalf of the Bank Stockholders and three Trustees appointed on behalf of the Trust Company Stockholders unless a corporate Trustee or Trustees be appointed as above provided.

This power to fill vacancies shall not only apply to the original Trustees herein named, but to any successor, and shall be exercised as and when any vacancy may hereafter occur in the position of any Trustee herein designated as the representative Trustee of the stockholders of either the Bank or the Trust Company.

(4) The term "Trustee" whenever used in this agreement shall include successors duly appointed or elected and all estate hereby vested in and all the rights herein given to and the powers herein conferred upon any Trustee shall be vested in, given to and exercised by his successor duly appointed or elected, and such successor shall be substituted in all respects in place of the former Trustee without the necessity of any formal assignment or transfer to him.

(5) The majority of the Advisory Committee in exercising the powers in this article shall be determined in the same manner as prescribed in Article II.

VI.

ORGANIZATION OF TRUSTEES.

(1) The Trustees shall organize by electing from their own number a Chairman and a Vice-Chairman; and by electing a Secretary and Assistant Secretary, neither of the two latter need be a Trustee.

(2) The Trustees shall keep such record of their official action as may be necessary, including a register of Trustees' Participation Certificates issued by them similar to the ordinary stock certificate book showing the name and mailing address of each certificate holder, and shall certify a copy thereof to each institution issuing stock to them.

(3) They shall adopt a seal and prescribe such regulations or by-laws as they may deem necessary, including regulations for the issuance of duplicate Trustees' Participation Certificates in case of loss or destruction of original certificates, and regulations governing the transfer of such certificates, and no Trustees' Participation Certificate shall be transferred except upon the surrender thereof duly endorsed, in person or by attorney, and all such transfers shall be made only upon the books of the Trustees.

(4) The seal of the Trustees shall be affixed to the Trustees' Participation Certificates and they shall be signed by the Chairman or Vice-Chairman of the Trustees and by their Secretary or Assistant Secretary.

(5) The Louisville Trust Company is hereby designated as Transfer Agent for the transfer of Trustees' Participation Certificates, and The National Bank of Kentucky shall be the Registrar thereof, and no certificate issued by the Trustees shall be valid unless countersigned by the Transfer Agent and Registrar.

(6) A majority of the Trustees concurring shall have and exercise all the powers that could be exercised by the whole number of the Trustees.

VII.

ASSIGNMENT OF STOCK TO TRUSTEES.

The Bank Stockholders and Trust Company Stockholders who shall execute this agreement now or hereafter, or a counterpart hereof, or transfer their stock to the Trustees as herein provided for by that act, assign to the Trustees hereinbefore named, under the terms, conditions and limitations hereof, all of the shares of the capital stock owned or held by them at the time of such execution, either in the Bank or Trust Company, or in both.

Each assignment is made upon the terms, trusts and conditions herein stated.

Each assignment shall be made effectual by proper transfers upon the books of the Bank and the Trust Company, respectively, as provided by law and by the by-laws, rules or regulations of said institutions, respectively, governing such transfer.

The certificate or certificates issued by the Bank or by the Trust Company to the Trustees for the shares transferred to such Trustees hereunder, may be issued to them, as "The Trustees Under Stockholders' Agreement of April 22, 1927," without designating them by name.

It shall not be necessary to issue a new certificate to the Trustees in the event of a change in the personnel
